Small Greek Navy Moves Alongshore To Strike Fascists

Naval Guns Shelled "Successfully" Right Wing of Italian Army for More Than Hour

Athens, Greece, Nov. 1 (AP). — Tank-supported Italian infantry attacks in northwestern Greece have been "repulsed everywhere", the Greek general staff disclosed today, and the small Greek navy has moved alongshore to bombard the invading Fascists.

Greek planes also joined in the fighting, a communique said, bombing and machine-gunning invasion forces. Naval guns were said to have shelled "successfully" the Italian right wing (closest the sea) for more than an hour yesterday.

The communique said the Fascist forces suffered losses in yesterday's fighting and added that "prisoners were taken".

For the second time in two days the general staff reported that "irregulars are collaborating with the enemy" without further identification.

Why The Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

Cold fronts! Now that winter is coming on, we will hear more of "cold fronts". A cold front is the boundary between a cold, dense air mass and a warm, light air mass. The cold mass, being the heavier, will underrun the lighter, warm air mass, raise it up, and bring about cloudiness, squalls and precipitation. Due to the friction of the ground, the cold mass does not form a clean, sharp wedge under the warm mass, but tends to roll over, forming a rounded squall head or tongue extending perhaps 25 miles ahead over the warm mass. On the first arrival of the cold wedge, there may be partial cloudiness, but if the warm mass is very moist, there will be complete cloudiness, rain or snow, and thunderstorms.

Accused Tells Court 'Before God I Am Not Guilty,' Before Sentence is Passed

JURY OUT 2 1-2 HRS.

Stillness of Court Room Felt as Jury Files Into Their Seats to Give Verdict

(By Geo. H. Carver)

Frederick Thain, 46-year-old Harold farmer will pay with his life for the murder of Arnold Wellman, aged Rawdon Township resident, whose shotgun-blasted body was found with that of his wife, Nancy Wellman, in their farm buildings twenty-five miles north of this city on February 1st.

Thain was found guilty by a Supreme Court jury here yesterday afternoon after two and one-half hours' deliberation. The verdict culminated one of the shortest murder trials in the history of Ontario.

The convicted man was sentenced to death by Mr. Justice Keiller MacKay, immediately following the verdict. He will be hanged here on Tuesday, January 14th, 1940.

LONG-RANGE GUNS IN 2-HOUR DUEL

Germans Shell British Convoy Without Causing Damage

London, Nov. 1.— (CP)—German long-range guns on the French coast shelled British shipping in the Dover Strait today and received a hot reply from Britain's big batteries.

The Nazi bombardment lasted about two hours. The Germans used at least two batteries, one near Cap Gris Nez and the other in the Calais area. Most of their shells burst wide of the targets and the British vessels continued on their courses, observers said.

FREIGHTER SUNK BY ENEMY ACTION, 16 MEN RESCUED

Survivors Have Been Landed in the United Kingdom

UNDER CANADA'S FLAG

Vessel, Originally French, Now Operated by Canadian Government Merchant Marine

Ottawa, Nov. 1 (CP). — Sixteen survivors of the former French freighter St. Malo, sunk by enemy action while flying the Canadian flag, have been landed in the United Kingdom.

Believed lost when the 5,770-ton ship went down are 28 other members of her mostly-Canadian crew, the transport department disclosed yesterday.

Names of the sixteen men rescued were released at Montreal last night by R. B. Teakle, general manager of the Canadian government merchant marine which was operating the freighter.

Britain Should Strike Violent Blow Against Italy Now Says Br. Admiral

London, Nov. 1 —(CP)— Great Britain should "strike some violent blows against Italy now" with whatever sea and air power she can spare from the defence of the homeland, Admiral of the Fleet Lord Chatfield urged.

"Italy's' object," the former Minister for Co-ordination of Defence said in a broadcast, "may be to divide our military forces and so weaken our resistance in Egypt.

"But sea and air power will be of more valuable help to Greece than a large army sent to Salonika with all that means in transport and supply."

Citing the navy's work in countering German invasion preparations, he disclosed that last Oct. 12 "nearly 1,000 shells of varying calibre were poured into Cherbourg during a bombardment lasting less than twenty minutes."

"The laws of strategy teach you" he said, "to strike your enemy's weak spot with your utmost force. Italy is the enemy's weak spot . . ."

He expressed a conviction that the British Mediterranean Fleet, under command of Admiral Sir Andrew Cunningham, would be able to handle the Italian fleet, hold Gibraltar and protect the Suez Canal.

"Fighting in the narrow waters of the Mediterranean," he said, "the fleet has gradually taken the measure of its Italian opponent.

"It is quite true that never before has a fleet had more complicated tactical responsibilities than has ours today in the Mediterranean.

"Italy, by invading Greece through Albania, can maintain her armies by a short sea route across the Adriatic—not an easy sea for our fleet to operate in—but always there are possibilities of night action.

"If Italy plans to extend her operations by sea to the Greek islands, our fleet may be given that opportunity to strike that it has waited for."

Italians Admit Bombs Fall On Industrial Suburbs

Bagnoli, Centre of Italy's Biggest Steel Works and Rolling Mills and Pomigliano d'Arco, Site of New Airplane Factories With Testing Fields and Laboratories Visited by British Bombers, Rome Reports

London, Nov. 1 (CP)—Royal Air Force bombers attacked the great industrial centre of Naples last night.

An Air Ministry communique today announced "a successful attack on oil tanks and other objectives" at the Italian port but did not disclose the base of the British bombers. However, since it specified that they were of the bomber command, naval planes were ruled out.

Malta, 350 miles from Naples, is the nearest base for land planes.

(British bombing of the Italian mainland previously has been centred on such northern industrial cities as Milan and Turin, carried out by bombers crossing the Alps from Britain.

Naples, however, is about 1,000 miles from England and slightly more than that from Gibraltar.

(The Italian high command said "slight damage" was caused in the Naples suburbs of Bagnoli and Pomiggiano D'Arco. The former is the site of some of Italy's largest steel plants and the latter of airplane factories, testing fields and laboratories.)

In a flight over southern Norway coastal waters Hudson bombers scored a direct hit yesterday on a camouflaged 3,000-ton German supply ship, the Air Ministry news service stated. After a direct hit amidship white smoke poured out of the vessel and part of its cargo was seen in the water.

Ground defences on the German-held coast and Nazi fighters resisted the British pilots, the news service declared, and one bomber failed to return after it went on to attack a German anti-aircraft vessel.

Germany to Release Million Fr. Prisoners By Recent Agreement

(By Charles S. Foltz, Jr.)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Berne, Switzerland, Nov. 1—(AP) — Gradual release of 1,000,000 French prisoners by the Germans is provided in an "agreement in principle" reached with Nazi leaders by Vice-Premier Laval of the Vichy Regime Diplomatic sources said today.

This agreement, these sources asserted, is Laval's ace-in-the-hole with which he hopes to win at least temporary approval and support of the mass of French people for the Vichy government's program of collaboration with the Axis powers' "new order".

That collaboration, with the means put over for later discussion, was agreed upon last week when Marshal Petain, Vichy Chief of State, conferred with Hitler.

(Petain on Wednesday foreshadowed some action affecting French prisoners when he told his people that, as part of France's deal with her conquerors, "in the new future the suffering of our country may be lightened, the fate of our prisoners ameliorated, the charges of occupation eased".)

Diplomatic sources said there was no doubt that Laval had obtained the release agreement during his recent Paris talks with German officials.

When he plans to play his ace card remains in doubt, it was said.

Every Family Affected

Almost every family in France has a son, brother, husband or close relative in the "vanished legion" of 1,500,000 or more prisoners now in internment camps in Germany or German-occupied parts of France.

Women Commentators Enliven Presidential Campaign Issue

NO PUNCHES PULLED

By R. J. ANDERSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Nov. 1 (CP)—A verbal hair-pulling match between acid-witted Clare Boothe, author of the satirical comedy "The Women," and columnist Dorothy Thompson today enlivened a United States presidential campaign that really didn't need those doughty feminists to give it fireworks.

While the political big guns opened up for the final week of a campaign that has proved one of the most heated in a country noted for its political warmth, the two feminine antagonists supplied a lighter touch. Miss Thompson is energetically pro-Roosevelt; Miss Boothe supports Wendell L. Willkie the Republican nominee.

8 SENTENCED TO BE SHOT

Moscow, Nov. 1 (AP)—Eight men were sentenced today in city court to death before a firing squad for theft after a mass trial of 45 freight handlers and delivery agents charged with organized stealing of 50,000 drubles worth of meat since 1937. Three others were acquitted and the rest were given prison sentences.

Tenant Not Required To Pay Increase Over Last Jan. 1st Rate

Ottawa, Nov. 1 (CP)—Several instances of landlords in controlled rent areas demanding payments in excess of those in effect last Jan. 2, the level at which rents in these areas were frozen, have come to the attention of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board "and the circumstances are under examination with a view to possible prosecution," the Board said today.

"Order No. 7 of the Board expressly prohibits this and violation of that order is an indictable offence, punishable to the extent of a $5,000 fine or two years' imprisonment or both," the Board said in a statement to the press.

"It is a violation of the Board order to give a tenant, furthermore, a notice, written or oral which expressly or impliedly requires him to pay a sum exceeding the fixed maximum rental even though it is accompanied by some such expression as 'subject to the approval of the Rentals Administration'."

The tenant should pay no increase over the Jan. 2 level unless he has received a written notice from the administrator, the Board added. If, without such notice, payment of an increase is demanded, the tenant should report that fact immediately to the Rentals Administrator or to a local committee where such has been named.

RAIDERS RETURN TO LONDON AREA AFTER QUIET NIGHT

Brief Alarm at Morning Rush Hours but R.A.F. Fighters Turn Back Invaders

VERY LIGHT ATTACKS

British Press Calls for Stronger Blows Against Italy and Praises Greek Navy

London, Nov. 1 (CP).—Axis bombing planes struck at London, Merseyside and other points in England and Scotland by daylight today.

London, after a comparatively quiet night, underwent two alarms before noon, but both were brief and British fighters in each case were reported to have turned back the attacking planes.

In a later raid several bombs were dropped on the capital's outskirts. One demolished a house, but all the occupants apparently had taken shelter.

Bombers were reported over Merseyside, dock and shipbuilding area of Liverpool, this afternoon.

Raiding planes also were reported at an east Scotland coast town. A solitary raider which dropped bombs near an east Anglia village, causing a number of casualties, was reported brought down at sea.

Another German plane was reported shot down over a southeast coast town by British fighters. The pilot descended by parachute.

The Germans made a third thrust at London early in the afternoon and defending fighter planes engaged formations of raiders high above the capital.

Thousands watched in the streets as the opposing planes manoeuvred, only to lose sight of them in the clouds. A little later the "all clear" signal sounded again.

In the two morning raids bombing was confined principally to the suburbs. These raids followed a night of comparatively light attacks.

A score of raiders participating in the afternoon raid were said by observers to be part of a flight of more than fifty which crossed the coast at Dungeness. The others, they said, were turned back before reaching London.

Engineer Blamed For Train Collision

Philadelphia, Nov. 1 (AP)—An engineman's alleged failure to heed a Stop signal was blamed by a Reading railroad official today for the collision of a suburban electric train and a steamdrawn express in which more than 75 persons were injured.

The six-car electric train, crowded with home-bound commuters at the peak of the evening rush hour, crashed into the rear of the express late yesterday on a bridge in North Philadelphia.

R. W. Brown, vice-president of the Reading, placed responsibility on the engineman of the electric train, Ira Showers, who was critically hurt.

'We Remain Loyal To Friendships, Obligations, Ties'

Turks Will Fight if Attacked Says Inonu —Situation Studied Along With U.K.—Russian Relations More Friendly

Ankara, Turkey, Nov. 1 (AP)—President Ismet Inonu informed the National Assembly today that Turkey will not enter the war now, but is studying the situation in the Mediterranean in collaboration with Great Britain.

The key of the decision seemed to observers to lie in the President's statement that Turkey's relations with Soviet Russia "are now taking a friendly turn" passing through a critical stage" at the time of the Finnish-Russian war.

Loyal to Friendships

He reiterated that Turkey will fight instantly if attacked and declared: "We remain loyal to our friendships, obligations and ties of collaboration."

"Our neighbors, the Greeks, unfortunately have been called into the war and we, with our Ally, Britain, are studying the situation," said President Inonu. "Our country has decided to defend our independence, security an land. This is the greatest pride of our nation and no change has been made in our foreign policy. We have no external ambitions...

"The war is spreading to a point where the whole world may be involved. Several countries are under foreign occupation and it appears that this phase may last a long time...

Youth of Turkey Heroic

"The youth of the Turkish nation of today will make the future wonder at its heroism...In an age in which it is possible for only heroes to live. The Turkish nation advances toward the future and security."

The speech was interrupted to mean that Turkey has decided to await developments before going to war. These developments might be a direct attack on Turkey or entrance of Bulgaria into the Greek-Italian war on the side of the Axis.

The President spoke warmly of Soviet Russia.

Soviet Policy "Greatest Security"

His speech, however, was interpreted as bearing out indications by authoritative sources that Turkey will remain out of the Greek-Italian war, at least until her own national interests are threatened or until Bulgaria, her northern neighbor, steps in.

Inonu told the assembly, nevertheless, that nothing is being spared to "complete the needs of the republic's army."

While he talked to Gen. Smith, the Turkish Premier, Refik Saydam, conferred with the Greek ambassador for half an hour.

Press Comment in Turkey

The Istanbul newspaper Vatan, commenting upon the situation, said the government knew it could count upon the Turkish people "to assume their great historical responsibility if the duty is imposed upon them."

Other sections of the Press emphasized that should the Italians succeed in capturing the Greek port of Salonika Yugoslavia would be the next Balkan nation to suffer dismemberment by the axis powers.

The newspaper Jeni Sabah said "Neither Yugoslavia nor Greece need fear a Bulgarian attack from the rear, because Turkey knows how to deal with adventurous Bulgaria."

The paper further declared "The Balkans face the duty of making their land the cemetery of Italian hopes. . . . This can be either our freedom or slavery, depending on the road the Balkans choose."

Forced by Japs Into Service, Chinese Revolt, Drive Back Invaders

Shanghai, Nov. 1—(AP)—Chinese soldiers forced into service by the Japanese revolted and drove the invaders from Shaohing, famed winemaking centre in northern Chekiang province which the Chinese announced they recaptured early this week, first foreign reports from the area said today.

Foreign missionary circles in both Shaohing and Hangchow gave this first independent confirmation of Chinese claims of uprising by "puppet" troops during intensification of hostilities in the last two weeks.

Chinese also reported a revolt in the Pootung region, across the Whangpoo river from Shanghai, where 600 soldiers were said to have deserted the Japanese and joined guerrillas attacking the invaders.

Mission sources in Shaohing said all missionaries were safe although the Japanese, before retreating after the short-lived occupation, burned large sections of the city, including the business district, local government buildings, telegraph, newspaper and bank buildings.

Foreign reports from Hangchow said the Japanese were withdrawing northward across the Chientang river into Hangchow, bringing "thousands of dead and wounded Japanese from the Shaohing area."

NAZI ACTIVITY IN RUMANIA STIRS BULGARIAN FEARS

HANDS-OFF POLICY

Sofia, Bulgaria, Nov. 1 (AP).—Indications of increasing German military activity in Rumania—nearest base for any Nazi attack upon Italian-invaded Greece — stirred fears here today of complications which might involve this country in the war.

As the Italian offensive against Greece entered its fifth day without evidence of notable success, unofficial reports from Rumania said the German armed forces there had

Storks Carry Messages From Dutch People

Johannesburg, South Africa, Nov. 1 (CP)—Boer farmers in this vicinity report that some of the storks arriving here in their annual 7,000-mile migration from the Netherlands are carrying written messages on the conditions under Nazi rule.

One farmer said he untied this scribbled message from the leg of a migrating stork:

"We inhabitants of Bergen-op-zoom tell you German occupation is just hell."

Another said:—

"The Dutch people are dying under injustice."

CHIEF WM. LYNCH ATTENDING COURSE

Chief William Lynch of the Belleville Fire Department, is in Toronto for a four-day course designed to bring the fire-fighting departments of Ontario more up-to-date. Fire chiefs and men from all parts of Ontario are receiving instructions in ways and means of handling new equipment and the handling of incendiary bombs and oil fires. Chief Lynch is one of 60 fire chiefs attending the course.

ONLY 1.27 INCHES OF RAIN IN OCTOBER

Belleville district was visited with more sunshine and less rainy weather during the month just closed than for October during 1939 it was revealed by officials of the Belleville Purification Plant this morning. During the month just completed only 1.27 inches of rain fell in this district as compared with the 2.13 inches for the same period one year ago, showing a decline in rainfall of .87 inches.

By the same token there was a considerable difference in the temperatures recorded as during October in 1939 the low temperature reading was 21.5 degrees Fahrenheit, while this year the mercury dropped to 18.9 degrees and was instrumental in the destruction of much farm produce intended for the canning factories. Lower maximum readings were also recorded this season with high for October being 72.2 degrees as compared with a reading of 74 degrees one year ago.

BLAZING PIPES CAUSE OF RUN

Blazing stovepipes at the residence of Mr. Bruce Simpson 292 Ann St., caused firemen a run to that address yesterday at the noon hour on Thursday with no damage being reported.

During the afternoon the attention of firemen was required to put out flames which were enveloping a farm tractor on the farm owned by Mrs. (Col.) W. N. Ponton, Trent Road. Upon the arrival of the firemen the flames were rolling out of the gas tank, having in some way become ignited, and damage to the wiring and soldering on tank and radiator suffered before the flames were extinguished.

CUSTOMS RETURNS SHOW BIG INCREASE

Custom returns at the Belleville Customs Office totalled $226,882.72 for the month of October during 1940 as compared with $161,458.79 for the same period last year, showing an increase of $65,234.93. This represented a general increase in custom returns for all departments of revenue stated customs officials.

LOCAL NIMRODS TAKE TO WOODS

Local nimrods will be trekking to the northlands, to their hunting lodges among the lakes and ridges with their dogs, their guns and other hunting paraphernalia over the coming week-end in preparedness for the opening of the hunting season for deer on November 4th.

Proof that the war hasn't dampened the spirits of the hunter and that generally they are just as eager as ever for their annual holiday in the woods is the fact that the sale of hunting licences and gun licences are at par with other years. "The general indication is that the season will at least be parallel with that of last year," was the comment this morning of Mr. George Finch, local issuer of licences.

Feast of All Saints Is Commemorated

The Feast of All Saints was commemorated in the Church of St. Michael the Archangel by Masses at 6, 7, and 9 o'clock this morning. Large congregations were present at all these services. A High Mass was celebrated at nine o'clock by Rt. Rev. J. F. Nicholson, V.G., who also delivered the significance of this feast. He pointed out that the Saints were not people who did extraordinary things well, but rather ordinary Christian people like ourselves who fulfilled their ordinary duties of life extraordinarily well. Tomorrow is the Feast of All Souls and Masses will be celebrated at 6, 7, 8, and 9 o'clock.

Hallowe'en Revelry Starts Early and Continues Unabated Until Early Morning Hours

SECURE HANDOUTS

Belleville residents awakened this morning to the aftermath of one of the most hilarious but generally harmless Hallowe'en celebrations ever experienced in the city. Pranksters kept their Hallowe'en jokes decidedly to the harmless tenure with only a few reports filtering in of vandalism of any serious nature.

Damage to city property was restricted to two "stop" signs broken off and one bent to the ground with City Engineer Charles Mott commenting that "altogether they were pretty good boys."

Sounds of Hallowe'en revelry started as early as seven o'clock as the youth of Belleville descended on a waiting city in a moving avalanche of grotesque costumes. From street and laneway they converged in the downtown sections of the city in a steady stream of miscellaneous costumes and makeups that ranged from the ridiculous to the sublime. From tiny tots as young as four and five years, in the company of older sisters or brothers, and arrayed in garments and costumes which were hand-me-downs from mother's wardrobe of yesteryear, to youths and maidens in their late teens, they raided front doors and back doors and other places of entry and egress in search of the traditional "handout" of candies and other sweets.

"Nigger" Make-up Popular

The realm of make-believe was evident in the costumes of a vast majority of the Hallowe'en funmakers with the children's creative ability standing out in their many fantastic get-ups. The inevitable "nigger," black of face and hands, of course proved the most popular with the traditional dilapitated "derby" being the favourite style of headgear.

Masquerading as members of the opposite sex likewise was chosen by many as a means of keeping identity secret, while others depended upon the traditional "funny-face" to obtain a like result. Indians, cowboys "beau brummels" and ubiquitous tramps all combined to form a colorful array of youthful invaders who enjoyed themselves to the full.

Minstrels Entertain Crowds

A group of minstrels carrying banjos and guitars drew considerable attention from a rather fantastic appearing audience on Front Street as they yodelled and played cowboy songs for the entertainment of their listeners. A young man dressed in the apparel of the "Shadow, silk cape and slouch hat complete, made his furtive way up the street while a giant of a man in loudly checked dress, with straggling hair and flowing black beard gave a good representation of "Man Mountain Dean."

Masquerade balls staged in many places throughout the district drew the attention of numbers of funseekers during the evening while in the city the younger children had their innings at the various schools where dress parties for the kindergarten pupils were held during the afternoon.

In all fairness to the majority of the city residents, it must be said, that they entered into the spirit of the fun in dispensing "treats" to the invaders with an abrupt refusal seldom being their greeting. And so another Hallowe'en with all its revelry and make-believe has passed.

YOUNG BELLEVILLE ENJOYS FROLIC GIVEN BY 'Y' CLUB

1,000 in Costume Swarm Into Y.M.C.A. After Parading Through Downtown Streets

PRIZES AWARDED

Young Belleville, bedecked in costumes of every conceivable manufacture and depicting story-book characters, swarmed the Y.M.C.A. last evening to enjoy the annual Y's Men's Club Hallowe'en Frolic. Upwards of 1,000 of young Belleville joined in the frivolities, that commenced with a parade through the main streets of downtown Belleville, the parade being headed by the "Y" Torch Club Band. It was the largest gathering in the history of the Frolic and at the conclusion of the frivolities each kiddie present was given a bag of candy and a luscious red apple, while prizes were awarded the winners in an impromptu program presented before a capacity gallery in the "Y" gymnasium.

The judging of costumes proved a tedious task before the judges as the parade proved the most intricate in the history of the Frolic. Master-of-ceremonies Joe Shortt handled the youthful pent-up and riotous mass in a most masterful manner to assure all of a glorious evening's entertainment. Fun, frivolity and hilariousness reigned supreme as the care-free band of energy was permitted to give vent to its feelings. The "Y" Torch Club band was composed of Bruce Cronk, R. Lancaster, Don Mason, Stan Wiggins, R. Knox and H. Rouse.

MRS. GEORGE WILKES
(Marmora)

Marmora —(Special)— Quite a shock was felt in the district on Wednesday as residents learned of the death in Belleville of Mrs. Wilkes of Marmora. Deceased, who was in her forty-ninth year, was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Rowan of Sidney Township, her maiden name being Margaret Ellen Rowan. She was well respected for many fine qualities. She was of a friendly disposition and a good neighbor both in the village and in the township where in turn she resided.

Wide sympathy is extended to her husband and three children, Pearl (Mrs. W. G. Chrysler), John and Earl. She is also survived by one sister, Mrs. William Wickson of Sidney Township.

LATE MRS. MARY J. (BENNETT) SMITH

The funeral of Mrs. Mary Jane (Bennett) Smith, widow of George Smith, took place from the Thomas C. Thompson Funeral Home, 38 Everett Street, Thursday afternoon and was largely attended. The service in the chapel and at the graveside in Elmwood Cemetery was conducted by the Rev. D. T. McClintock, pastor of the Tabernacle United Church.

The late Mrs. Smith was a Past Noble Grand of Quintena Rebekah Lodge No. 133, and had received the degree of Chivalry. She was also a member of the Ladies' Auxiliary of Patriarch Militant, and a life member and Past Chaplain of Lydia Lodge L.O.B.A. No. 350.

In the funeral home the last rites of the Quintena Rebekah Lodge were conducted by Noble Grand Eva Turvey, Vice Grand Mary Plumpton, Chaplain Mary Bray and Marshal Irene Aman, and at the graveside the last rites of Lydia Lodge L.O.B.A. were conducted by Worthy Mistress Mrs. William Kennedy and Chaplain Mrs. Edgar Stapley.

Police Charges Follow Hallowe'en Pranks

Picton, Ont., (Special)—Two alleged vandals who gave their addresses as Napanee will likely face charges in police court here this week after their Hallowe'en pranks turned into occurrences of a serious nature.

According to police and private citizens who reported the matter, three men were found causing extensive damage to verandahs and other property during the height of the evening's fun. One irate householder who discovered the men in the act of demolishing his verandah, yelled a protest and the trio fled.

He followed them in his car and chased them until they sought the safety of a nearby millyard. "Come out", he shouted, "I have you covered". Constable Harry Palen arrived on the scene but one of the men had succeeded in making his getaway.

The constable took the names and addresses of the remaining two men who said they came from Napanee. Queried they stated "We were just out for a night's fun" Charges are pending the officer stated.

POLICE REPORT A QUIET NIGHT FOR HALLOWE'EN

ALL HAD GOOD TIME

"It was undoubtedly the most orderly Hallowe'en night in the history of the city of Belleville, the willful and wanton destruction of property being at a minimum and I can truthfully say that the credit can be attributed to the parents of Belleville children for this splendid and unique record", Chief Kidd told The Ontario Intelligencer today after reviewing last night's Hallowe'en activities.

There were only six complaints received by the police during the entire evening, the most serious being the tearing down of a fence near the corner of Queen and William Streets, shortly before ten p.m. The first call of the evening, as recorded by Sergeant Arthur Booth came at exactly 8.22 p.m. when complaints relative to boys throwing stones at street lights on Queen Street were investigated. Similar reports were investigated on Highland Ave., and Grove St., while the watchman of a construction company operating on Pinnacle St., told police a motor car had struck a street barricade and broke a lantern and the driver failed to stop. The football uprights at the Belleville Collegiate were lowered to the ground, but no reports received regarding this matter.

"Too much credit cannot be given the parents of Belleville for their thoughtfulness in issuing warnings to their children pertaining to the refraining of wilful destruction of property. The children all seemed to have a good time and plenty of clean fun was enjoyed and to the boys and girls also should go much credit for the orderly manner in which they behaved last night, but I am convinced that it was through the efforts of the parents, that the usual destruction of property was kept to the minimum last night", stated Chief Kidd as he acknowledged the assistance of all on Hallowe'en, a night that hobgobblins didn't run ruche and riot in 1940 in Belleville.

No Opposition To Two-Year Council Term

Trenton (Special)—Town Council accepted the ruling of the Provincial Extension Act, stating that the council elected for 1941 will remain in power for two years. Only a very few persons turned out for the meeting and council decided that the lack of interest in the meeting indicated that the townspeople do not care whether the council remains in power for one year or two years.

The Mayor and Council offered no opposition to the scheme. The electorate could have demanded a vote on the by-law but it is too late now.

"Trenton is under government supervision," stated Mayor Alyea. "It is better under this supervision even though the time has come when it can be freed at any time. The general feeling is that the town is better under supervision for a while longer."

Col. Bywater Chairman Rental Enquiry Committee

A Rental Enquiry Committee of Col. A. E. Bywater, as Chairman, Wing Commander W. S. Duncan and W. B. McClung, was appointed Thursday by Mr. Justice W. M Martin, Rental Controller for the War Time Prices and Trades Board. Mr. Justice Martin received the complaints from the tenants regarding their increases in rent since January 1940 during the Court Session held here Wednesday and Thursday. The committee will consider the 35 complaints lodged with the Court.

'Things Look So Good,' Says La Guardia Of Roosevelt Campaign

New York, Nov. 1 (AP)—Mayor La Guardia returned today from a four-day midwestern speaking tour in behalf of the Roosevelt campaign and exclaimed as he alighted from a plane, "things look so good!"

"Everyone I saw was optimistic," he said.

The Mayor predicted Michigan, Illinois and Missouri would be in the Roosevelt column, and that Ohio probably would be there, too. He addressed rallies in those states.

Stirling and District

Stirling — Previous to the Martin-Pyear nuptials which were solemnized recently in St. Paul's United Church, Stirling, the couple were honoured at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Pyear when a large number of people gathered for a surprise party and shower. Rev. A. M. Laverty acted as chairman for the evening and began the program with some lively community singing. Mr. and Mrs. Harry Brown offered a vocal duet and Wm. Reynolds a baritone solo. Master Neal Hubble also sang one of his fine songs with his mother presiding at the piano. Mr. Chas. Smith contributed an accordian solo. Two addresses were read to the honoured couple, one from the community by Mrs. Rita Wilson and the other from Carmel W. A. was read by Mrs. Ashley Brooks. Each of the guests of honour made suitable response and expressed their gratitude for the kindly gesture on the part of their many friends of the district.

St. Paul's W. A.

The regular monthly meeting of St. Paul's Women's Association took place on Tuesday, Oct. 29th, at the home of Mrs. Roy Woodbeck. The president, Mrs. F. N. McKee was in charge of the devotional period and the meeting began with the use of the theme song and prayer by Mrs. Girdwood. Mrs. Nora Wescott presented the secretary's report and also read several letters of appreciation and acknowledgment for cards and letters sent forth to shut-ins. A complete financial statement prepared by Mrs. R. Duffin revealed the organization to be in an excellent state financially. Also during the business portion of the meeting it was decided to accept the invitation extended to attend the open meeting sponsored by the Grace United Church W. A., Trenton. Mrs. Girdwood and Mrs. D. Utman reporting for the visiting committee reported 13 calls made during the month, Mrs. Luery and Mrs. M. Airhart were appointed to this committee for November. Final arrangements were also made for the Presbytery dinner to be served to the ministers and laymen of the Belleville Presbytery when it meets in Stirling for its fall session.

Mrs. A. Campion is Speaker

Mrs. A. Scott, convener of the program committee directed the program. After the use of hymn 519, the Scripture lesson was read by Mrs. H. David and Mrs. H. Hulin led in prayer. Mrs. Scott presented an interesting paper. and a musical contribution of interest was a piano solo "Glory Song, with Variations", offered by Mrs. David. Great interest was taken in the address of day delivered by Mrs. A. Campion, speaking on the timely subject "Patience, Perseverance and Pluck". Mrs. Campion stated, "All human progress was based on these three qualities, raising the intellectual standard of the human race to its present high place. But now in the face of the present struggle there was even greater need for them." Man has gone far in combatting the forces of disease, but there still remains the evil of war, "there must follow this present conflict not only an armistice and the accompanying treaties for peace but the universal desire for peace among all men". Mrs. Sidney A. Murphy directed an interesting nut contest and the meeting closed with the Benediction.

Expressions of gratitude to the hostess, the speaker of the day and the committee in charge were expressed by Mrs. G. Luery and luncheon consisting of fresh pumpkin pie and doughnuts was served by the committee, Mrs. A. Scott, Mrs. H. David, Mrs. William Wallace, Mrs. H. Hulin. Mrs. S. Murphy, Mrs. H. McCutcheon and Mrs. A. Campion.

DEPOSITS

WHOSE MONEY IS it?

WHAT money? Why—the money in the banks! The money carefully put away by you and your neighbours in savings accounts. The money you could have spent today but wanted to keep safely against some future need. The businessman's money for use in his normal operations. There are more than 4,846,000 bank deposit accounts, savings and current. Within these two classes the great majority of deposits are small or of moderate amount. ¶ But you'd be wrong if you assumed from this, that the rest of the deposits are owned by the few! Quite the contrary! The railways, for instance, have deposits in the chartered banks—and that indirectly includes the whole population of the Dominion. The trade unions have deposits. Millions of policy-holders share in the ownership of insurance companies' deposits. ¶ And don't overlook the deposits of wheat pools; farm co-operatives; churches; municipalities and municipal hydro commissions, school districts; school children's penny bank savings deposited with the chartered banks; and commercial and mining corporations with very wide lists of shareholders, large and small, all over Canada. Truly, money on deposit in Canada's chartered banks is owned, in fact, by you and your fellow-Canadians.

In war, as in peace, Canada's Chartered Banks maintain, uninterrupted, their useful services — safeguarding depositors' funds; facilitating the nation's business — looking forward to peace with freedom as the only sure basis of enduring prosperity.

BRITISH STEADFASTNESS

The endurance of the British people is one of the wonders of the world. They are not cracking under the Nazi raids and are bearing their task without murmur.

The civilian morale has been magnificent, the civil defence organizations have acted in the spirit of the bravest soldiers. The work of the armed services has been a glorious achievement.

They have shaken off the enemy in the Battle of Britain, so that even Hitler and his vaunted air force have tired of the attempt.

This heroic spirit has its roots in the mental and moral make-up of the British people, in the nobleness of their cause and their will power.

The people are willing to endure hardship and sacrifice, they go down into shelters, rich and poor alike, to make the best of the shelter which is provided. Every effort is made to bring them comfort and now it is announced by the general manager of the London subways or underground railway tubes that meals will be served and sleeping accommodation given the people who seek shelter in the tubes. Trains will carry trailers with food to the stations in the tubes and 1,000 waitresses will move from place to place over the tube lines to serve the food to the thousands who use the shelters.

It is this which brings victory to Britain. It is this which breaks the spirit of the enemy. The Nazis tire of pounding at those who won't yield.

This much Britain does for the sake of herself and of the world. These people deserve the praise of all mankind for the great example they have shown—an example which reveals itself in action.

ARTHUR HEMING, ARTIST, WRITER

Arthur Heming, famed Canadian artist, is dead.

To him belongs the distinction of having been prominent in two fields of effort, literature and art, a rare attainment. That he achieved a high place in both fields gave him pre-eminence.

His greatest fame as an artist came in his portrayal of wild life and the early Canadian voyageurs. In early life he was an illustrator. More than thirty years ago he was sent into the woods to illustrate for a writer who accompanied him but the writer failed to do the story and Heming wrote so that his illustrations would not be wasted. That gave him his start as a writer of woodland tales.

He had begun to travel in the wilderness at the age of sixteen to study frontier life. He was in the Arctic as a youth.

One of the tragic events in his life was the fact that a colleague at art school told him nearly fifty years ago that he was color blind and as he believed this might be so he devoted himself to work in black and white. But ten years ago at the age of sixty he went back to color painting and his use of deep purple and blue tints to paint vivid impressions of shadows on snow became famous throughout Europe.

He made many a trip into the Canadian North and travelled by canoe, ox-cart, prairie schooner, dog team, horseback and snow shoes. He touched many phases of Canadian life which are completely unknown to the average Canadian. These enriched his life in such a way that he developed as a great artist and writer.

UNREST IN LANDS UNDER HUN HEEL

News that all is not well for the Nazi German invaders of European countries is shown in stories which come through of stubborn opposition by the people left in the states under the heel of the Germans. The Poles, first in the war because Poland was invaded by Hitler's men, have the spirit of liberty in their hearts and it is told how the Germans have ordered the execution of Poles for keeping weapons and ammunition contrary to the invaders' orders. The Poles will find a way to circumvent the Nazis' robot efforts to quell the souls of these folk. In Norway the Nazi sway over this bright gem of Scandinavian liberty is resented by the people and and this stand is not hidden. Even in Nazi-held France in the face of German threats to close theatres French crowds attending the movies cheer anything that is flashed on the screen showing British effort.

Nor are the Fascists of Italy popular among the lovers of liberty in Albania, the invasion of which on Good Friday indicated the foulness of the Duce regime. It is said the Italian intruders run the risk of revolts among the tribesmen who will never take to the Fascist yoke.

It may be taken for certain that in Belgium and the Netherlands the people do their utmost to frustrate the Germans' work and pray for British victory that will bring their liberty.

These peoples and the Czechs and the Danes see no liberty for them until Britain smashes Hun militarism and lays low Italian Fascism.

That is what happens when men like Hitler and Mussolini strive to make slaves of free peoples.

The peoples who have been overrun see the brutal Huns as they are today—thieves of the stocks of food and materials and the wealth which rightly belong to these people. But property rights do not exist where the dull-minded Nazi and Fascist robots are moved forward by Hitler.

What these peoples are enduring under the foot of the cruel despot helps to nerve Britain's arm to her great task of liberating the world from the Nazi and Fascist curse.

Drake's Message To Britain

(Montreal Star)

The Navy has given us every reason so far to retain unabated our faith in its ability to hold the seas. The lesson taught by Drake and Nelson and the other great Admirals of the past, who laid the foundation of the Empire of today has not been forgotten. It may not be inopportune, in this hour of testing, to recall the words of Drake three and one-half centuries ago. They were quoted on Sunday night in the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation's "Carry On Canada,"—a series, by the way, upon which the C.B.C. is to be heartily congratulated, for it is a great factor in sustaining Canadian morale and pride in this Dominion's achievement. These are the words Sir Francis Drake wrote to his Queen after he had completed his historic voyage round the world and had smashed again and again against the mighty forces of Spain: "We have opened the gates of the sea. We have given you the keys of the world. The little spot ye stand on has become the centre of the earth. From this day forward the British merchant can rove whither he will, and no man shall say him nay. Our labour is done. Yours is to begin. Men pass away, but the people abide. See that ye hold fast the heritage we leave you. Yea, teach your children its value, that never in the coming centuries their hearts may fail them or their hands grow weak. Hitherto we have been too much afraid. Henceforth we will fear only God."

France and Its Leaders

A returned army officer, writing to the New York Herald Tribune, describes the systematic misleading of the people of France by her leaders. Recently, he writes, I landed in New York after more than half a year as an officer in the French Army. Due to the vicissitudes of the war, I recovered considerable ground in France, Algeria and Morocco.

The French people today are divided and constitute for the rest of the world a puzzle that is difficult to understand. However, if one goes to the hard facts one realizes that many of the changes occurring are in line with the heart-rending defeat and humiliation which the French nation has had to suffer.

When the armistice was signed the French Government comprised old soldiers like Petain and Weygand and several political leaders, all of whom had a strong touch of Fascism. These men were convinced of a quick German victory over Europe and therefore came to the conclusion that a policy of complaisance toward the victor would enable them to obtain better conditions. The French people were completely stunned and ready to accept any government planning to clean house and adopt a true nationalistic policy of reconstruction. The French people have been greatly deceived in their life hopes and beyond words surprised by the events. Most likely they are deceived anew.

Some events that I have witnessed, as well as some reports I have received from authoritative sources, prevent my believing that the Vichy Government is looking toward the reconstruction and political peace of the country, as is often claimed. I was in Oran, Algeria, when the shelling of the French fleet occurred.

In the British ultimatum it was stated that the French fleet had the opportunity of going to the French West Indies in order to escape German capture. Even today, however, nobody in France knows that the British offered this alternative. The Vichy government has given the people an incomplete story of the British ultimatum. By means of a dishonest press campaign, systematically distorting the facts about this already unlucky episode, the French Government has been able to alienate the French people from the British cause.

The population in North Africa understands very well that the English blockade cannot harm the French more than they are already harmed. Only a meagre percentage of food will be given to the people, and the remainder will go to the enemy. Should more food be sent to France (by North Africa, French colonies, America or otherwise), the Germans will simply tighten the screws on the occupied region of France. In other words, the French allotment will not change.

On this side of the ocean we can be surprised by the change in the opinion of the French. A lot of mistakes and blunders before and during the war have been made by both France and England. The Vichy Government has done its utmost to put the blame on Britain for all mistakes. They have told the people, for instance, that the defeat was caused by the lack of English soldiers on French soil. In one of the first Petain broadcasts this was especially stressed. Nothing is said, however, about the fact that the French high command was responsible for such a situation. When I arrived in France early in 1940 I tried to become a liaison officer with the British Army. I discussed my application with a major in the intelligence service (Deuxieme Bureau).

I was told that it would be extremely difficult to become a liaison officer because British divisions were scarce in France. I was naturally surprised at this answer, and he explained to me that the French high command did not want any more English divisions on French soil, and that they would have plenty of time to call them in case of need. (In fact, at that time, the feeling was prevalent that nothing serious would happen before 1941. The French high command was thinking of a war along the 1914-18 lines and thought that a battle of a duration of several months would be in order.

I think the French people will realize more every day that the Vichy Government is not in its present form qualified to deal with the interests of the country. Unfortunately I think that the French people are not free to do as they please about the matter. All the personnel of the administration in Continental France, as well as in the Colonies, has been swiftly reshuffled, and only men serving the present government are in command. The Army and Navy also are under the Vichy Government, and this may explain why de Gaulle failed to be recognized in Dakar, even though the civil population may have supported him. And we have the astounding fact that censorship is more rigorous in France at peace than it was when the whole French people was aligned against Germany.

To this must be added the clever propaganda in which the Germans indulge with success. The fact is emphasized every day that France will not lose anything by a German victory, that everything will be safe within the German orbit, and that the only enemy is England.

I am sure, however, that when the time comes France will again be on the side of democracy, for which she has been a good exponent for such a long time in her history. The French people may be down at the moment, incapable of expressing themselves, but they will awaken.

More Than One Appendix May Be Present

Most of us have heard the story of the man injured in an automobile accident who was found, on examination, at the hospital, to have tatooed on his abdomen these words, "In case of accident do not remove my appendix as it has been removed three times already."

Most of us have always believed that man had only one appendix, but Dr. D. F. Robertson, Toronto, in the Canadian Medical Association Journal, tells us that cases are on record in which the individual had two appendices. Three specimens, one in Boston, one in London, and one described from Glasgow, furnish the proof that more than one appendix may be present. Further, each appendix may be complete or perfect in itself, not an incomplete or partial appendix.

In addition to the three specimens above mentioned, Dr. Robertson records cases of double appendix reported by Drs. H. N. Pratt, A. B. Aitkens, A. J. E. Cave, F. Berthold, L. Schooler, W. G. Young, E. O. Prentiss, J. Boulanger and others.

I am mentioning these instances of double appendix because there have been cases where patients whose appendix has been removed have later had attacks in the region of the appendix and wondered if the appendix had really been removed. In the great majority of these cases the pain of the attack is due to gas trying to get round the double or S curve in the appendix region and in other cases the pain is due to adhesions—sticking together of two surfaces of the bowel—which sometimes follow operation.

There are, however, as pointed out by Dr. Robertson, occasional cases where more than one appendix exists and after the affected one has been removed by operation, the other may give trouble at a later date. Another condition which, while rare, sometimes occurs, is where a patient undergoing operation for some abdominal condition is found to have not even one appendix.

I believe that if we keep these facts in mind we can understand why second operations for appendicitis may sometimes be necessary.

The above facts pointed out by Dr. Robertson will keep surgeons during operation to be ever on the lookout for the possibility of a second appendix being present.

Table Manners

(Letter to New York Times)

—Sir:—When did the fork replace the knife as an instrument for carrying food to the mouth?

In the region within a radius of 50 miles around Harrisburg, Pa., the knife was commonly, but not always used by men over 50, but rarely by those under 50, or by women, among "genteel people," up to about 1875.

The change may have been due to a regard for the niceties of social usage. About the same period these older men stopped pouring coffee into the saucer, and also removed the spoon from the cup when they drank.

That conditions varied in other parts of the country and later seems indicated by the usage on steamers on the Great Lakes early in this century. At a certain stage the steward put his head between the double doors from the kitchen and advised: "Keep your knives, gents; there's pie."

It is interesting that in an early guide of etiquette, prepared by Christopher Dock, "the pious schoolmaster of the Skippack," for his pupils, about the time of the Revolution, they were urged not to convey food to their mouths with their knives or fingers, but only with forks or spoons.

Farming By the Book

(Windsor Star)

No one is ever going to become a successful and efficient farmer through book-learning. Nevertheless, Hon. P. M. Dewan, Ontario Minister of Agriculture, has made a valuable suggestion to the farmers in advising them to devote a certain proportion of their time regularly to reading and study.

Agriculture is a progressive industry. The same influences which brought it from the scythe and flail era to the present age of combines and threshing machines are still at work. The farmer who clings to outmoded methods simply because they were good enough for his father is courting failure. He simply cannot keep up.

The most successful farmer is the one who strikes a proper balance between practical work and study. He needs the many valuable printed works on his calling which are available to him, and then, of course, he has to put his learning to practical application in the field.

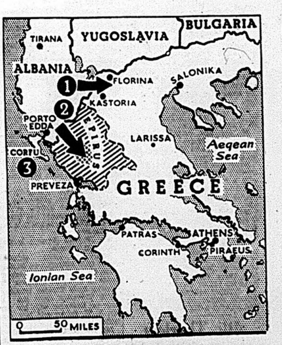
WHERE GREEKS AND ITALIANS FIGHT



Italian troops claim to have pierced the Greek border (1) on the line to Salonika and in the Epirus region (2). The Greek high command have acknowledged that the Italian forces were striking hard in the Epirus region but did not confirm Italian claims of advances. Reports from Greece indicate that British forces have not seized Corfu (3), as reported several times, and are unlikely to occupy the island because of its vulnerability from Italian air attacks.

'WE'LL HOLD ON', SAYS MORRISON

Civil Defence Has Shown Heroism of Best Soldiers, Morale Magnificent

U.S. IS PRAISED

London, Oct. 31 (CP)—Herbert Morrison, Minister of Home Security, said today that while Britain has "no cause for complacency" he detected "no sign of cracking under the strain of night bombings and overcrowded shelters."

"We'll hold on," Mr. Morrison said. "We are grateful to the American people (for supplies) and when the time comes for the British army to strike, we can thank the efforts, courage and guts of our people and the cooperation, good fellowship and friendship of the United States."

The minister said the civil defence organizaton, derided before the aerial siege of Britain began, had shown "heroism worthy of the best soldiers in the line in London, Liverpool, Birmingham and various parts of the country."

The morale of the civil population, he said, was "magnificent."

He called the daytime defences against air raids "extraordinarily good" and predicted that night bombing defences would steadily improve.

FREDERICK THAIN

Asked by the judge if he had anything to say why sentence should not be passed, Thain, erect, and a ghost of the now famous smile playing over his features, replied, "Before God, I am not guilty".

"Have you anything else to say?" asked Justice MacKay.

"I say it in front of everyone here—if none on earth will believe me, then God above will be my witness. I wish to thank your Lordship, witnesses and court officials for a fair trial. I have nothing else to say", Thain replied.

Told He Had Fair Trial

In his address to the prisoner, prior to passing of sentence, Justice MacKay told Thain, "after a fair trial and able defence, you have been found guilty of the wilful murder of Arnold Wellman. It is not for me to say anything to aggravate the terrible position in which you are placed. It was a cruel, brutal and inhuman murder".

"I beseech you, Frederick Thain, to make your peace with the Omnipotent God, the Great Judge, whose mercy is everlasting. There remains for me to pass upon you the dreadful sentence of the law".

"You will be taken to the place whence you came and on Tuesday, January 14th., taken to a place of execution and there hanged by the neck until you are dead. 'And may God have mercy on your soul".

Jury Retires at 1.30

The jury retired to consider its verdict a few minutes before one-thirty o'clock yesterday afternoon, after R. D. McCulloch, counsel for the defence and Assistant Attorney-General C. L. Synder, prosecuting attorney had delivered their addresses and Mr. Justice MacKay his eloquent charge to them.

From ten-thirty in the morning, the crowded courtroom was enveloped in a hushed atmosphere, a silence dramatic with portent, broken only by the voices of counsel and the intermittent coughing of spectators. Outside in the corridors, crowds waited the opportunity to obtain a coveted seat.

The court did not rise after the jury had filed out and Justice MacKay retired to his chambers. The crowded courtroom seats retained their quota of curious county residents. The noon-hour meal was forgotten. Those unfortunate enough to leave the room found their seats quickly occupied by others awaiting the opportunity to secure entrance to the courtroom.

Many Awaited the Verdict

In offices and in corridors, police, lawyers and newspapermen gathered, awaiting the appearance of the jury. In the courtroom, curious eyes consistently strayed to the door of the jury room behind which twelve of his peers held the fate of Frederick Thain in their hands.

A minute or so after four o'clock the door of the jury room opened. The word was passed that the jury had arrived at their verdict. A quick hum of excited conversation broke out in the courtroom but was quickly hushed by attendants. People moved in their seats. Eyes again turned to the jury room door. Outside in the corridors, people moved toward the court room doors in an effort to hear and see as much as possible.

Sobs Choked Back

Officials of the court entered the room and moved to their places. Newspapermen filed in and sat at their desks. Counsel, dignified in their robes of office took their places at desks in front of the bench. Again that hush, portentous in its silence fell over the crowded room, a woman, white-faced choked back a sob.

Men sat erect in their seats. A few fidgeted nervously with their neckties. A commotion at the south door of the room caused all eyes to turn in that direction. A uniformed officer entered, followed immediately by the accused man and another officer. One could have heard a feather drop in the utter silence that prevailed.

Thain entered the crowded courtroom with the ever-present smile on his face. He glanced quickly about the room as he walked to the prisoner's dock, took his seat and leaned back with his arms folded across his breast. He appeared to lapse into brief periods of thought, staring absently at an object in front of him. At times he moistened his lips with his tongue. Later, his glance swept quickly over the members of the jury as they filed into their seats.

Judge Takes Bench

The court rose as Mr. Justice MacKay took his place at the bench. At his order the jury moved from a place at the rear of the courtroom into their places in the jury seats.

Sheriff J. D. O'Flynn arose. "Gentlemen of the jury, have you arrived at a verdict," he asked.

Foreman Robert Wickham rose to his feet. He looked at his fellow members in the front row of the jury box, then turned and slowly glanced at those in the rear seats.

"Your Lordship," he began in a low voice, "from the evidence which has been placed before us, we find the prisoner Guilty of the murder of Arnold Wellman." He handed the findings of the jury to Sheriff O'Flynn.

Addressing Counsel, Mr. Justice MacKay asked if they had anything further to say. Mr. Snyder immediately moved that sentence be passed.

Defence Counsel McCulloch rose to his feet. "I have very little to say, my Lord," he said. "The jury has found its verdict and your Lordship must pass sentence. It is now out of my hands."

Expression Did Not Change

When the fateful word "Guilty" rang out in the crowded courtroom, Thain closed his eyes for a fraction of a second, but his expression did not change. His hands dropped to his lap and remained clasped there. Again he moistened his lips, and a fleeting glance as if of pain flashed over his face. He quickly regained his composure, and again he glanced at the jury, this time smiling.

He stood firm and erect as sentence was passed. He left the courtroom with a quick steady step. The smile was still on his features as he disappeared from view.

The death-sentence was the finale to a dramatic sequence of events, that followed one of the most shocking crimes ever committed in Hastings County. Assistant Attorney-General Cecil L. Snyder, Toronto, conducted the prosecution with Robert D. McCulloch, Belleville, representing the accused Thain. The dramatic story of the theft of grain, established by the Crown to be the motive for the murder, the double killings, the purchase of shotgun shells at a nearby country store, and the uncovering of other important facts were some of the highlights of the brief trial.

Thain's boast of the killing of Arnold Wellman to fellow prisoners in the gaol here; his statement of confession to provincial police officers and his admission of the killing and theft to an officer of the law were threads in a dramatic pattern, that finally wove the dread sentence of death about the accused man.

Arrested at His Home

The convicted murderer was arrested at his home on the eighth concession of Rawdon Township on Feb. 2nd., the day following the gruesome discovery of the shattered bodies of the aged Wellman couple , on a charge of theft of grain.

An intensive investigation by police officers under Inspector Albert Ward, of the Criminal Investigation Department, and Sergeant Harry Thompson, Provincial police in which the work of former Police Constable Everett Smith was outstanding, brought to light clues, which led to the eventual charging of the accused man of the murder of his elderly neighbors.

Police officers followed the slim trail relentlessly. They plunged through fields fence-high with snow along clue-tracks, many of which proved to be of no value. After hours of tireless investigation handicapped by mid-winter weather, they finally were rewarded with evidence, that led to the arrest of Thain. A story-book sequence of events followed, that eventually brought to light the facts surrounding one of the most callous murders ever committed in this district and which culminated yesterday in the passing of the death sentence upon the convicted man.

Thain was placed in the death-cell in the Hastings County jail after his sentence yesterday. He will be guarded by stalwart police officers day and night until the dawn of the fateful January 14th, when he will pay his debt to society with his life.

Boy, Is He Moving!

To the wistful boys, as the silver ship thunders swiftly overhead, air travel seems pure adventure. But the airlines know that commercial flying, far from being adventure, is business—the highly responsible business of public transportation.

To help maintain their fast schedules, the airlines use instruments — marvels of modern science—that go far to eliminate guesswork and danger due to weather. Much of the modern airplane's equipment is electrically operated with the help of storage batteries. For this vital service, it is not surprising that so many airlines rely on Exide batteries. Experience, throughout aviation history, has shown that Exides are worthy of this trust.

With facts like these to guide you, it is easy to avoid guesswork when buying a new battery for your car. Is there any other battery which so thoroughly merits your confidence?

If you are hard on a battery; if you start and stop a lot; if you have a radio, heater and defroster, ask to see the Exide Hycap battery. The Hycap is made especially for such conditions. It has ample power to take care of these extras, together with plenty of reserve for starting in any weather.

The Exide dealer in your community has been carefully chosen for his ability to give good battery service. Look for the daily weather forecast at his gas pump. To avoid starting trouble, have him check your battery now. This service is free.

WESTINGHOUSE GAVE THE WORLD ITS FIRST BROADCASTING STATION

On November 2nd, 1920, the world's first broadcasting station went "on the air" for the first time.

The first broadcast was the report of the Presidential election of Warren G. Harding. The station was K D K A, founded and operated ever since by Westinghouse.

Tomorrow thus marks the Twentieth Birthday of radio broadcasting . . . the most potent force in all the history of communication and entertainment.

In celebrating its Twentieth Radio Anniversary, Westinghouse pays tribute to all who, following this humble beginning, have contributed to the technique of modern broadcasting and our great broadcasting systems.

During these twenty years, Westinghouse has continued to pioneer in radio development—not only in the field of broadcasting, but in the creation of new and better means of reception.

The development of the now universally used Superheterodyne Circuit, the first AC radio tube and the first International Short Wave Broadcast are among the important results of Westinghouse research.

Today, Westinghouse pioneers again in the creation of new and better world wide radio receivers and the latest radio-phonograph design. These outstanding scientific achievements are now available through Westinghouse dealers everywhere.

PERSONALS

Mrs. Robert Bateman, George St. has returned home from Belleville General Hospital where she has been a patient.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence B. Morgan formerly of Toronto, are now residents of this city, at 240 Bridge Street East.

Mrs. Hugh McCorquodale (Barbara Cartland), was in town today to address the annual luncheon of the Women's Canadian Club.

Prize winners at the card party held on Tuesday evening in St. George's Sunday School Hall were Mrs. Parry, ladies' first, Mrs. Lazenby, second, Mrs. St. Louis, third, Mr. Rainbird, men's first, Mr. Dewey, second, and Mr. Exley, third. The travellin glone hand prize was won by Mrs. Babcock.

Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Duffy and family of Trenton, have taken up residence in this city. Miss Nadine Duffy was honored at a farewell party at the home of Miss Helen Pfeifer previous to her departure from Trenton.

The staff of the city hall and other city departments honored Miss Blanche Lloyd of the treasurers' office and bride-to-be, at a presentation yesterday afternoon. On behalf of the gathering, Mr. H. B. Stock presented the gift of a Kenwood blanket, and Wabasso linens, and in a brief address expressed good wishes for her future happiness. Miss Lloyd made a gracious reply thanking her friends for their lovely gifts and kind wishes.

Tabernacle church choir entertained the choir of Holloway Street Church at a delightful social evening held in the Sunday School auditorium last night. The guests came in masquerade costume, the prize winner being Mrs. H. Poste. A very pleasant evening was spent by the group, and a dainty lunch was served.

Residents of Rednersville entertained at a costume party in the Community Hall last evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. R. Smith and family, popular members of the community who are now living in Belleville. Prizes were given for the most interesting costumes. During the evening an address was read by Mrs. Simpson expressing the sentiments of the gathering and the presentation of a three-way floor lamp was made. Mr. and Mrs. M. Thompson were presented with a handsome set of dishes. The recipients expressed sincere appreciation for the kindness shown them. After the enjoyable evening refreshments were served.

WEDDINGS

THOMPSON—McMULLEN

Rawdon, (Special)—A very pretty wedding ceremony was solemnized at Rawdon United church parsonage on Tuesday morning, October 29th, with Rev. J. E. Beckel officiating when Lettie Pearl, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John McMullen, Fifth Concession of Rawdon, became the bride of Vernon O. Thompson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Thompson of Stockdale.

The bride was charmingly gowned in a frock of Empire chiffon velvet and carried a bouquet of pink roses.

Mr. Earl McMullen assisted the groom.

After the ceremony the young couple left on a motor trip to Toronto and Niagara and were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Asa Lloyd at Belleville.

Galveston, Tex., Nov. 1.—(AP)—The Badgett quadruplets— as coy a batch of girls as ever smashed a toy—are nearing their second birthday in perfect trim, despite the absence of any unusual precautions to safeguard their health.

The Badgetts—Joan, Joyce, Jeraldine and Jeanette — are being reared in simple fashion. That's the way, Mrs. W. Ellis Badgett, 38-year-old mother of the youngest quads in the United States wants it.

The girls, born February 1, 1939, are housed in one light, airy room of the Badgetts' bungalow. Their four trundle beds take up most of the room's space.

There is no nurse, no governess for the children— Mrs. Badgett takes care of them herself.

"And that is a full-time job; trying to look after four wild little girls keeps me on the jump," she says.

"They are rough; sometime they get into fights. I can't let them have toys very much; they'll hit each other with them".

Joan is the heavyweight of the quartet and occasionally takes advantage of her bulk, bullying the others about. She tips the scales at 29 pounds; the others weigh in the neighborhood of 23.

The quads' physical and mental development has been so swift that Mrs. Badgett decided she would enter them in dancing school this winter.

The city of Galveston, in an effort to repay the Badgetts for the publicity they have brought the island resort, is endeavoring to raise $10,000 for the purchase of a home for the quadruplets.

The process is slow, but in less than a year the Badgetts are expected to be in their new domicile.

When Mirror Plays Tricks

By HELEN FOLLETT

Watch out that you don't sob and groan about beauty's griefs that are just in your mind and don't exist at all or, if they do, are so unnoticeable that nobody ever sees them. Young girls do a lot of unnecessary worrying, being supersensitive about appearance.

Take, for instance, a soft down on the cheeks. This growth never develops into a real blemish; it is only on the lip and chin that bristles will appear; that is, as a rule. A girl takes a mirror to a strong light, the mirror exaggerates, and she falls into a panic, visualizing herself as a bearded lady.

Few Figures are Perfect

Girls are forever asking about measurements of the perfect figure. If they don't qualify they are unhappy. Few feminine shapes are according to standard weights and measurements, there will be some variation somewhere. What does it matter? If the figure is normal in outline, is carried gracefully, has flair and distinction a few inches or pounds more or less are of no consequence.

As far as all this goes, there are many women blessed with intelligence, humor and pleasing manners, but lacking in perfect features, and outline who walk away with popularity prizes.

x x x

We do wish that the poor darling who has reached the age when she won't divulge the number of her birthdays and whose face has been touched by Time's mean fingers, would not sleek her hair straight back front and sides, wear a hat that is harsh and severe. All her beauty defects are advertised. Why call attention to them?

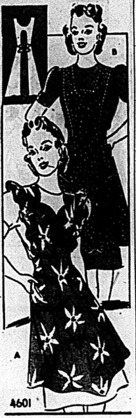
A soft fluff bang—and this mode is popular — will hide the frown lines and the little railroad tracks that travel across the forehead.

No figure worries for Ruth Terry.

Gay, Attractive Apron Style

By ANNE ADAMS

Pattern 4601



What a pity that Pattern 4601 is just an apron — it's far too good looking a style to keep at home! Anne Adams offers it in two versions that would both make lovely gifts. You'll want to make them for yourself too. The long front panel which may contrast, and the one-piece back bodice, are easy-to-make features. Apron B is the more practical one, with its square neckline and simple useful pockets. It looks colorful with ric-rac or ruffling. Apron A is the lighter side of the picture—perfect for tea-time or to prettily greet a home-coming husband. Its neckline is a demure heart-shape, its skirt is pointed.

Pattern 4601 is available in sizes small (32-34), medium (36-38), large (40-42) and extra large (44-46). Small size, apron A, takes 2 1-4 yards 35-inch fabric; apron B, 2 5-8 yards 35-inch fabric.

Send twenty cents (20c), in coins (stamps cannot be accepted) for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly SIZE, NAME, ADDRESS and STYLE NUMBER.

The Stars Say

For Saturday, November 2

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

WITH concentrated energies focused upon the preparation, plans and launching of new projects on this day there is forecast for fair success according to the lunar transits. The endorsement of those in power and standing will further accelerate quickened energies, sustaining faculties of initiative and productive ambitions.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is should respond to high stimuli of the creative forces and faculties, probably entering into new propositions with vim and determination to succeed and route a few discordant or annoying situations The cooperation or endorsement of those in place and power should greatly advance those ambitious projects pursued with progressive ideas and concentrated and practical effort.

A child born on this day should be energetic, enterprising, probably aggressive and strenuous in pursuit of its progressive objectives. It will overcome obstacles by its determination or indomitable will.

Fashion Flashes

THE WOMAN IN WHITE walks abroad this year, as white becomes more and more popular for evening. A charming dinner dress and jacket is done in white woolen, the trimming bands of pearl leafs and tiny rhinestones used for the jacket pockets and for the bodice of the dress.

PONT UP your untrimmed coat with good-looking fur accessories. Shops are showing hats, belts and fur-trimmed bags and gloves done with mink, fox, leopard and civet cat, the latest favorite.

YOU'LL ADMIRE the picturesque quality of some of the new evening frocks. A stately beauty is done in gold brocaded palest beige damask, the off-shoulder neckline trimmed with sable-dyed baum marten. Worn with a tiny marten bolero lined with the dress fabric.

Look about and you'll see grand casual clothes, right all day for any but formal events. A good ensemble has a simple frock of light caramel-colored woolen worn with a fitted jacket in darker brown woolen closed with big gilt hooks and eyes.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Stepmother Should Have Consideration

Dear Miss Fairfax:

When my little girl was two years old, I married a widow with two daughters so that little Clara should have a pleasant home. But my child has grown up to be the waiting maid for her stepsisters. I can't say that my wife has been brutal to my child, but Clara has had to do more than her share of household drudgery while my wife and her girls took it easy.

The situation came to a head last week when my wife left for the World's Fair in New York and declined to take Clara with her and her daughters, though I offered to pay every penny of my girl's expenses. My wife said ,"Don't you think it would make Clara discontented with her home if she took to flying around?" That got me on the raw.

I make a very good salary, as the foreman of a successful manufacturing plant. I'm thinking of sending my daughter, now 14 years old, to stay with her mother's people, who have a lovely home and are well educated.

Disillusioned

The trouble with you, my dear sir, is accepting this Cinderella situation as long as you have done. You should have exerted your authority, if any, when your daughter was made to play the waiting maid to her stepsisters. Don't waste a week before sending her to her mother's family, putting her in the best school you can afford and giving her some accomplishments in the bargain.

Goes Out With Girls, Fiance Objects

Dear Miss Fairman:

I still have a year in high school, am 17 years old, and engaged to a young man who is out of town and will not be back until the first of the year. Before he left he made me promise not to cheat on him or run around with any girls.

Since he left I've been very lonely and want to go places with the girls, but I dislike going "stag" with other couples, and my parents will not allow me to go with other boys.

I'm terribly in love with my fiance, but do you think I should just stay around the house waiting for him to return? He's the kind of person who will be faithful to the girl he marries, and right now is away getting a better job.

Should I settle down now, or wait a couple of years to get all this running around out of my system?

Worried

As this column has frequently pointed out, 'teen age is pretty young to assume the responsibilities of marriage. Girls who marry at 17 and 18 and have not, as you say, got "all this running around out of the system", are ape to make a sorry job of matrimony. They see other girls in their 'teens and twenties having a delightful time and the "early married" girls feel defrauded of their playtime.

It's too bad that your fiance objects to your going around with girls of your own age. Doesn't this seem to indicate that he has the makings of a pretty jealous husband? Please think the situation over carefully if you intend to marry immediately on your graduation from high school.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECHMAN

Card-Leaving Varies with Community.

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

Recently I attended an afternoon reception given for a very distinguished woman. The next day I found out everyone had left cards —except me. Since this reception was held in a hotel, I did not think that it was necessary for me to leave my card.

So that I won't ever make this faux pas again, will you please answer some questions for me?

1. Is it necessary to leave cards when one attends a reception? Even when it is given in a hotel?

2. Does one leave a card when arriving or leaving a reception?

3. Where does one put the card, at either a hotel or a home reception?

4. When leaving, is it necessary to tell the guest of honor that you enjoyed meeting her or isn't that approved of?

5. Does one wear a hat at an informal evening reception?

6. How should my card read: Miss Dorothy Brown, Dorothy Brown or Dorothy Walker Brown?

DOROTHY.

1. The point of view toward the formalities of card-leaving vary with different communities. Some communities abide by the gracious ceremony of leaving cards, while other communities have an informal attitude to these customs of "the good old days."

Since apparently your community does consider the leaving of cards important, you too should make it your graceful habit to adhere to these conventions. I am sure that you are proud to live in a place that pays honor to these pleasant conventions, and will be proud to keep in step with the formalities that are honored by your friends.

So if I were you, I'd always take visiting cards with me when I went to a formal occasion.

2. Visiting cards are usually left when one arrives at a reception.

3. If it is expected that cards will be left, you will find a card tray, probably on a table near the entrance.

4. When you are ready to leave the reception, you go first to your hostess to say good-bye to her, to thank her for her hospitality, and to tell her what a happy time you have had at her party. Then you say good-bye to the guest of honor and tell her what a pleasure it was to meet her.

5. If the evening party is really informal—the word "reception" is customarily used for a formal party — informal clothes would be worn and herefore a hat might properly be worn. But there are degrees of informality and to some informal evening parties a woman guest wears a dinner dress or ensemble (floor-length dress and short matching or harmonizing jacket) and either no hat or one of the now-so-fashionable wisps of hats.

6. Your visiting card should have Miss engraved before your name: Miss Dorothy Brown. You may or may not use your middle name. It isn't necessary, and it is entirely a matter of your own preference. But if you do use it, it should be spelled in full, not indicated by an initial.

Our Commonest Ailment

Have you had your first cold yet? If you haven't, you're lucky, for we are now well into the half of the year during which man's most persistent enemy ravages the land. In homes where there are children of school age parents are in for a never-ending fight, for while this enemy attacks all ages, its most numerous victims are children of school age.

It is easy to understand why this is so for during fall, winter and spring, it would be hard to find a school room anywhere that doesn't have at least one pupil with a cough or the sniffles. It requires only one such focus of infection in a room to spread the cold to the whole class. Whenever cold invades any home in the community in which there is a child of school age, the child can become a carrier spreading it via the school bus, schoolroom or playground to many other homes. But the carrier's cold isn't always brought from home. He or she may be the cold-breeder. Every parent know how difficult it is to keep Johnny from getting his feet wet or his body chilled. And while colds are strictly infections, they are brought on by chills and wet feet. The cause of the chill often is over-dressing rather than under dressing. The temperature maintained in modern homes and schools and in heated autos in which the children do most their travelling, makes it unnecessary for the child of today to be wrapped up as thoroughly as children were when father and mother were young, but parents often overlook this fact. The best rule in dressing children is to keep the feet dry and warm and adapt the rest of the clothing to the surrounding temperature.

But it is virtually hopeless for parents to try to protect children from cold infection. What they must do is to keep the body in shape to fight infection. They can arrange his or her daily schedule to insure adequate rest and see that the diet is well-balanced and includes fresh fruit juices, milk and cod liver oil. They should not let the child come to the table for his meals over-tired or over-excited. A rest, lying down, before meals is an excellent idea for the growing child. Much can be done to combat colds for the whole family by keeping the house properly aired and at the right temperature. I find that many houses are over-heated in winter, and the humidity in them is too low.

Often when I talk along this line to mothers, they reply: "But Johnny gets colds even when he is in the best of health". Quite true, perhaps. What they should keep in mind is how much more severe the cold's effects would be if he didn't have this husky resistance all built up, ready for the fight. The truth is that child and adult alike suffer from a cold to an extent in direct ratio to the condition of the health. And a cold is always dangerous, for it can lower the resistance of the body to a great many serious diseases.

U. K'S REQUEST FOR MORE CHEESE IS BEING MET

Canada Has Shipped to Britain More Than the 92 Million Pounds Since Last May

STRICT REGULATIONS

By R. K. CARNEGIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, Nov. 1 —(CP)— The United Kingdom's request for more Canadian cheese is being met and by Nov. 30 Canada will have exported more than 92,000,000 pounds to Britain since the cheese agreement between the two countries went into effect last May 23, agricultural department officials said today.

The agreement called for 78,400,000 pounds up to Nov. 30 at 14 cents a pound at Montreal. Later a request came to increase the weekly shipments and in response exports will be stepped up about 14,000,000 pounds during the lifetime of the agreement.

Exports for all of last year were only 90,000,000 pounds.

Clothed with wartime powers, the Dairy Products Board under chairmanship of J. E. Singleton has been able to take drastic steps to improve facilities for handling Canada's cheese exports. Cheese is now moved under strict governmental regulations from the time it is being made in the factory until it reaches the United Kingdom consumer.

These are the temperatures at which cheese matures most rapidly without deteriorating and authorities here are determined that everything be done to provide United Kingdom customers with as good cheese in war time as they got from Canada during peace. The improved methods of handling will make up to a considerable extent for the shortage of time for properly curing the product.

The Canadian Government gives a bonus of two cents a pound when cheese grades 94 per cent perfect or better and this year grading returns so far show four times as much cheese was entitled to the bonus as last year. Cheese grading 93 per cent gets a one-cent bonus.

Throughout the summer cheese production was somewhat more profitable than butter. It takes approximately twice as much milk to make a pound of butter as a pound of cheese. With cheese fetching 14 cents, plus the possibility of two cents bonus, it paid better than butter selling at around 21 cents. However, butter has moved up to 29 cents and for the first time in a year the two products bring about equal returns to the farmer.

Many factories in eastern Ontario and Quebec, where most of Canada's cheese is produced, expect to operate all this winter.

ITALIANS CLAIM SEIZURE OF LARGE AREA IN GREECE

Northern District in Ioannina Sector Said to be Conquered

OFFENSIVE RESUMED

Rome, Nov. 1 (AP)—Fascist sources claimed today the seizure of a populous area of Greece 35 miles within the country and reported an apparent resumption of Italy's offensive in Egypt.

Stefani, the Italian News and Propaganda Agency, claimed the Italians in the Ioannina sector had conquered a northern district containing 79 villages.

(The Greeks maintained all Italian attempts to advance had been stopped.)

The High Command merely said the invaders of Epirus, extreme northwest Greece, had reached a cross-road at Kalibaki, an unmapped village which was not precisely located.

About 100 miles inside Egypt's western desert, Italian motorized columns aided by planes attacked British forces, the High Command claimed. Fascist sources said this could be interpreted "unofficially" as a resumption of the Italian offensive which has been stalled for weeks inside Egypt.

(As Ioannina, also known as Janina, is only 35 miles from the border in a straight line, the Stefani claim would indicate either that the city now is under Fascist siege or that the Italians are not advancing on the shortest line.)

The Stefani report said that the area so far in Italian hands is known as the sub-prefecture of Silati and contained 35,000 inhabitants.

Policeman Fractures Ribs Falling 14 Feet Down Stairway

Runs to Extinguish Fire Allegedly Set in House by Hallowe'en Pranksters

FIRE IN CHESTERFIELD

Toronto, Nov. 1 (CP)—Police Constable William Cummins suffered fractured ribs and possible spinal injuries when he fell 14 feet down a stairway while running to extinguish a blaze allegedly set in a house last night by Hallowe'en pranksters.

A citizen called the officer off his beat in northwest Toronto when he saw the fire, set in a chesterfield chair.

The war is believed to have had a sobering effect on Hallowe'en pranksters. Police and fire department officials reported the quietest night in years, with a minimum of property destruction. However, two citizens complained to police they had involuntarily "shelled out" to pickpockets.

Officers Entertained In Bermuda Homes

Hamilton, Burmuda, Nov. 1 (CP Cable)—Six officers among the 34 survivors from H.M.C.S. Margaree, lost in a collision at sea, basked in Bermuda's famed sunshine today and learned to ride "Bermuda steeds," popular island bicycles.

Recovering from the harrowing experience of the collision which cost the lives of 142 officers and ratings, the six were entertained at Bermuda homes last night. The 28 ratings landed with them were quartered at the dockyard until passage to Canada can be arranged.

Spanish Air Mission Invited to London to 'Watch England Under Attack'

Lisbon, Nov. 1—(CP)—A Spanish air mission headed by Lt.-Col. Juan Ansaldo flew to London today on the British Government's invitation to "watch England under German attacks."

Air Commander James A. Dixon, British Air Attache at Madrid, accompanied the mission, which included two Spanish Air Force Captains.

240-Pound Councillor Carried Out by Police On Mayor's Order

Port of Spain, Trinidad, Nov. 1—(CP Cable)—Five police constables carried City Councillor Albert Gomes, who weighs about 240 pounds, from the City Council chamber last night on the order of Mayor A. A. Cipriani.

The councillor had refused to take his seat when ordered by the mayor and insisted on speaking on a motion which had been ruled out of order.

SEVEN INJURED, $10,000 DAMAGE IN THREE CRASHES

Accidents Occur on Queen Elizabeth Way West of Toronto

ONE ARRESTED

Toronto, Nov. 1.— (CP)— Seven persons were injured and damage to motor vehicles was estimated at $10,000 in three highway accidents which occurred on the Queen Elizabeth Way west of here early today. Eight motor cars and a provincial constable motorcycle were wrecked in the mishaps. The injured were brought to the hospital here.

One driver was arrested. Police said three persons involved "disappeared" during the confusion of the accidents, which took place on a short stretch of road.

Hilton King, 23, of Toronto, was taken to the hospital with serious head injuries after he collided with a westbound vehicle. A passenger in King's car, Mrs. Betty Newman, 30, of Toronto, is in a serious condition with head and back injuries. Two passengers in the other car, Rose Oporroski, and her sister, Elizabeth, both of Toronto, received cut about the head and arms. Name of the car's driver was not learned.

Struck Motorcycle

While the wreckage was being removed, a third car, proceeding west, swerved to avoid one of the machines still on the highway, and struck Provincial Constable Stanley Batt's motorcycle, parked ten feet from the pavement, then continued along the shoulder of the road to collide with a parked car. The motorcycle, a new one, was tossed to the other side of the highway and reduced to a pile of scrap.

Private Fred Battersby of London, a member of the R.C.O.C. sustained cut on the head and ear in the second accident.

Provincial Constable J. K. Smith later arrested James Guy Bell, 33, Mimico, charging him with reckless driving and being intoxicated while in charge of a car.

LAVAL RETURNS TO VICHY

Vichy, Nov. 1 (AP)—Premier Pierre Laval returned to Vichy today from Paris, where he has been conferring with German officials. A cabinet meeting was reported scheduled for later today, presumably to hear his report.

GAYDA ACCUSES U. S. PRESIDENT OF DEFAMATIONS

Declares Roosevelt Concerning Self With Internal Affairs of Axis Powers

'MENACE INVENTED'

Rome, Nov. 1 (AP)—Virginio Gayda accused President Roosevelt and his supporters today of creating an "ideological political conflict which is skidding toward belligerency between the United States and the Axis."

The editor of Il Giornale D'Italia, who often reflects official Fascist opinion, said he was answering a recent speech of the United States Secretary of State, Cordell Hull.

Mr. Hull's speech, he said, "pretended again to change the elementary truth of the facts, inventing an Axis menace to America." He invited "these bellicose Americans" to furnish "one single, concrete, documented proof" of this menace.

Says Italy Not Interested in U.S. Election

He claimed, however, that Italy was not interested in the outcome of the United States' presidential election.

(Mr. Hull, speaking last Saturday night, described the rulers of Germany, Italy and Japan as "would-be conquerors" engaged in a relentless attempt to reduce mankind to "a master-and-slave relationship among nations and individuals, maintained by brute force."

(They "adhere to no geographic lines . . .On their programs of invasion" and "there can be nothing more dangerous for our nation than for us to assume that the avalanche of conquest could under no circumstances reach any vital portion of this hemisphere," Mr. Hull asserted.)

Gayda Quotes Speeches

Gayda followed these charges with citations of speeches and actions of Mr. Hull, President Roosevelt, Henry Morgenthau, Secretary of the Treasury; William Bullitt, Ambassador to France; William Allen White, editor of the Emporia (Kas.) Gazette, Senator and other leaders.

President Roosevelt, he charged, concerned himself with the internal affairs of Italy and Germany, including "public defamations of their political systems".

Gayda's citations began with the Presidents' Chicago ("quarantine") speech in 1937 and continued down to the Free French attack on Dakar. He said a Spanish diplomat, inquiring at "a Foreign office" was told the expedition against that French West African port had been made on American suggestion.

His editorial cited what was purported to be a secret report by Count Jerzy Potocki, Polish Ambassador to the United States, May 7, 1939, which attributed to President Roosevelt "constant preparation of American public opinion to hate everything which savors of Totalitarianism or Fascism".

Claims Actions Non-Neutral

Gayda cited these actions as particularly non-neutral:

Alleged routing of Atlantic Clipper planes by way of Bermuda (where there is British censorship) "to keep Italians and Germans from using this means of communication."

Alleged application particularly to Germans and Italians of alien surveillance in the United States.

Export bans on various mineral products.

The trade of 50 destroyers—which he said were good warships — for British bases in the Western Atlantic.

Co-ordination of United States and British airplane manufacture to help Britain.

His reference to "fighting men" apparently meant the "Eagle Squadron," a unit of American fliers who as individuals have joined the Royal Air Force and who, Gayda said, already are fighting in England.

No Newspaper Favored Says Navy Minister

Ottawa, Nov. 1 (CP)—Information on naval losses is given to newspapers and news agencies simultaneously and no newspaper is favored, Navy Minister Macdonald said at his press conference today.

He referred to an "editorial in a Toronto paper (Globe and Mail) suggesting that other papers had been given access in advance to the list of men serving on the Bras d'Or which was long overdue on a voyage from Clarke City, Que., to Sydney, N.C."

"It can be said," said Mr. Macdonald, "that a release was given out to The Canadian Press and to the Press Gallery simultaneously between 5 and 6 p.m. on the evening of Oct. 29. The release was headed not to be published or broadcast before 2.15 p.m. E.D.T. on Oct. 30.

"This injunction was laid down in order that next of kin of those serving on the ship might receive official notification from the Department before any newspaper stories were carried or broadcasts made. It was done out of consideration for the feelings of men lost or presumed lost. Telegrams were sent to the next of kin of the men on the Bras d'Or between 4 and 6 p.m. on Oct. 29.

"All releases are given at the same time and no newspaper is favored more than any other. All releases are subject to regulations made by the Department."

WARY PHEASANTS KEEP TO BUSH

Second Day's Shoot on Pelee Island Not as Productive as First Day

Pelee Island, Ont., Nov. 1—(CP)—Wary pheasants kept to the underbrush and residents stayed close to home today as the annual pheasant shoot on this Lake Erie island entered its second day.

The birds flushed easily yesterday in perfect weather conditions and many of the 800 hunters from many parts of Canada and the United States had their day's quota of five within a few hours. The heavy fire slackened slightly today as the birds became wise to the ways of the men and women with guns and their natural camouflage worked against their detection.

Farmers and other residents, veteran bystanders of many shoots, kept close to their homes lest they wander into the line of fire. Also as a safety measure, the island's schools were closed and most youngsters were kept indoors.

Ben Wilson of Ridgetown earned $35 with one shot that didn't hit a pheasant but did put an end to a pheasant menace.

Wilson was hunting in a farmer's field when an animal that he mistook for a small dog ran in front of him. The farmers told him it was a red fox. Wilson took a shot—and today will claim a $35 bounty offered by the island council when the animal came here over the ice from the mainland last winter.

A A Fire Downs Messerschmitt Flying Nearly 5 Miles High

London, Nov. 1—(CP)—A German Messerschmitt fighter plane was shot down by British anti-aircraft fire while flying at a height of nearly five miles above Dover today, the Air Ministry announced.

3 NEW UNIFORMS FOR RED GENERALS

Moscow, Nov. 1 (AP)—Three new uniforms for Red Army Generals were created today—complete in details from earlaps to overshoes — by order of the commissariat of defence. They are khaki for the field, khaki and blue for everyday wear and gray and blue for dress and parade wear.

50,000 Planes a Year Goal of United States

Washington, Nov. 1 (AP) —President Roosevelt said today there may be a new production program for United States military planes as soon as Congress reassembles.

He told a press conference that such a program was probable and, replying to a question, said it was based on the objective of pushing United States plane production capacity to 50,000.

Mr. Roosevelt previously had said that an annual production of 50,000 planes was the goal.

A proposed British order for 12,000 additional planes recently was passed on to the defence commission by the President with an expression of hope for favorable action.

Mr. Roosevelt was asked to say whether published stories were true that the Sperry Manufacturing Company was making the United States secret bomb sight for Britain and soon would start shipments across the Atlantic.

Mr. Roosevelt replied that he had not the faintest idea whether the story was correct. If it's like other stories, he added, it isn't.

Asked also for comment on stories that automobile manufacturing plants would make aircraft parts for assembly at other points, the President said that was entirely possible and that it was one of the things the defence commission and William S. Knudsen, a member, have been studying.

Bomb Splinters From Battle of Britain

By D. E. Burritt, Canadian Press Staff Writer.

London, Nov. 1 (CP)—It was a regular "stripper" that bomb that tumbled in front of a young lady and her male companion near a London hotel. When the girl regained her feet she found herself dressed only in stockings and bloomers. Someone came to the rescue with a trench coat.

Tribulations of an A.R.P. warden are mirrored in the report of one of them who wrote: "It is six weeks since I undressed to sleep. In that time I've taken them off pretty often, of course, but only for a bath. We always sleep in our clothes.

Now, see what the war has started. All kinds of people are helping to revive the centuries-old pastime and art of tapestry stitching while waiting in air raid shelters. Lady Smith-Dorrien, principal of the Royal School of Needlework, "which is remaining in London despite the war," says "there has been a great revival" of the work which dates back to medieval days when the women used to pass the hours awaiting the return of their men from battle.

Three youths aiding in rescue work in South London crouched as a bomb crashed beside a neighboring factory wall. But there was no explosion so the trio of unofficial wardens grabbed a sack, shoved the 250-pound bomb inside and carted it away to an open churchyard where it later was defused by experts. Alongside the factory wall was a shelter protecting several hundred persons.

Able Seaman Thomas Coxon, Belleville Native, is Missing

Was Member of Ill-Fated Margaree and is Feared Lost—He Hitch-Hiked to Halifax to Join Canadian Navy—Followed Family Tradition in Going to Sea

Able Seaman Thomas Coxon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Coxon of this city, is one of the members of the crew reported missing and believed lost when the ill-fated Canadian destroyer Margaree sank in the Atlantic Ocean in a wartime collision with a freighter. The sad news was sent to his wife who lives at Halifax who has sent word to his parents. His casualty is the second local casualty since the outbreak of war. Upwards of 140 officers and men were announced as missing and believed lost with the sinking of the H.M.C.S. Margaree.

Able Seaman Thomas Coxon followed the family traditions in going to sea. He joined the Royal Canadian Navy six years ago, coming of a family of sea-going Englishmen. His family came from Lancashire, England and the Coxons from the time of the famous Admiral Sir Francis Drake, who smashed the Spanish Armada in 1588, have followed the traditions of the sea and have grown up in its traditions.

Hitch-hiked to Halifax

"Tommy hitch-hiked to Halifax to join the navy six years ago. He was always interested in naval activities, even as a child and was extremely fond of the Bay of Quinte," said his father, Thomas Coxon, Sr., janitor of Queen Victoria School, to The Ontario Intelligencer today. The first knowledge his parents had that their 26-year-old son was numbered with the missing came with a telegram from their daughter-in-law in Halifax.

His Boyhood

Tommy Coxon as a teen-aged boy, was always interested in either naval or military efforts, being commander of the school cadets at Queen Victoria School. Later he became affiliated with a local group of Boy Scouts, following which he joined the Belleville Sea Cadets as a Sub-Lieutenant under Captain George Griffin. He learned signalling as a member of the Argyll Light Infantry Battalion eight years ago, and hitch-hiked to New Brunswick to join the Royal Canadian Reserves two years before joining the Canadian Navy.

Survived Loss of Destroyer Fraser

Able Seaman Coxon was a survivor of the ill-fated H.M.C.S. Fraser at Boulogne, France, in June of this year when that ship was also sunk in collision in the Bay of Biscay.

He married a Nova Scotia girl two years ago and established residence in Halifax. Two brothers are now serving with the C.A.S.F. in England, Jack and Roy, both members of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment. There are no other members of the family, Mr. Coxon told The Ontario Intelligencer, as he squared his shoulders and was justly proud that his three sons had been serving the Empire in its fight for freedom and right.

On Saguenay at Coronation Ceremonies

Able Seaman Coxon joined the Royal Canadian Navy in time to be aboard H.M.C.S. Saguenay, one of the two Canadian destroyers present at the ceremonies attending the coronation of King George VI in 1937 when he took part in the coronation ceremony representing Canada.

Tommy Coxon received his education in Belleville, attending Queen Victoria School, where he became Commander of the School Cadet Corps one year before graduating to the Belleville Collegiate Institute, where he received two years of secondary school education. It was after leaving the Collegiate that the late Thomas Coxon went to Nova Scotia and joined the Royal Canadian Naval Reserves.

'Special Device' To be Studied

Algeciras, Spain, Nov. 1 (AP)—A peculiar, torpedo-shaped apparatus used by the Italians Wednesday in an attempt to destroy shipping at Gibraltar was taken to the Spanish naval arsenal at San Fernando today for further study.

The "special device," as the British authorities called it, was equipped with a seat on either side a little more than halfway back. It was driven by a propeller in the nose.

The apparatus was found on the Spanish coast near Gibraltar, but there was no trace of persons who might have manipulated it.

First reports said a submarine fired the "torpedo" that exploded in the harbor entrance. Later it was described as a "motor launch."

Richard Hart Of Belleville in Training in England

Ottawa, Nov. 1 (CP)—Men who sailed on Canadian lakes and nearby seas for pleasure now are preparing to sail bigger, duller ships in the grim business of war.

At Navy Minister Macdonald's press conference today it was announced that 50 experienced yachtsmen from yacht clubs in all parts of Canada now are in the United Kingdom undergoing training prior to service with the Royal Navy.

They are all between the ages of 26 and 45 years and left Canada recently in two drafts.

One draft was under the command of Lt.-Cmdr. A. D. MacLean of Toronto and the other of Lt.-Cmdr. H. Bell-Irving of Vancouver.

Others in the drafts, all lieutenants included: R. H. Corbold, Scarborough Junction, Ont.; R. F. Wilson, A. A. Evans, T. C. Skelton, G. D. Cook, K. W. With, E. B. Pearce, W. S. S. Fowler, J. A. Bennet, G. M. Wadds, J. W, Braidwood, F. A. Beck, R. C. Taylor, D. H. MacKay, B. Hynes, all of Toronto; R. Hart, Belleville, Ont.; T. G. Fuller, Ottawa; S. T. Hill, H. K. Hill, Kingston, Ont.

Bruins, Rangers and Leafs Called in That Order as N.H.L. Opens on Saturday

Rangers Will be Hard to Dislodge as Champions of the World

AN 'OPEN SEASON'

Leafs Should Show to Better Advantage Than Last Year

By Robert Clarke Canadian Press Staff Writer.

The audience is ready, the players know their lines, and the curtain is about to be rung up on act 1, scene 1 of winter's favorite dramatic offering titled "the National Hockey League capers."

The production, which has a guaranteed run of a little more than five months, has its premiere tomorrow night in Toronto with New York Rangers and Toronto Maple Leafs holding the stage.

The first-nighters should get plenty of action, for scene-stealing is an art with producer Lester Patrick's Rangers as well as with showman Conny Smythe's Leafs. Their meeting under the bright lights of Maple Leaf Gardens provides a fitting opener to the big show.

Four other members of the seven troupe league take the stage the following night, a Sunday. At Montreal in the Forum, Canadiens will play opposite Boston Bruins while at the Olympia in Detroit the Red Wings will be featured with New York Americans. Last of the cast to see action, Chicago Black Hawks make their debut at their stadium Nov. 7 against the Americans.

Second Wartime Season

This is the second war-time season for the N.H.L., which was a bit apprehensive last season about whether the dollars would roll in as freely as in peacetime. The magnates apparently were satisfied with the success of the 1939-40 season for there has been no great retrenching moves this season.

Basing their judgment of past performances, the customers and the critics seem to be agreed that the Bruins, Rangers and Leafs will grab most of the applause during the season, possibly finishing the schedule in that order.

In any talk about the team likely to finish in first place, however, it is pretty hard to forget the Rangers' feat of winning the Stanley Cup last season, defeating Bruins and Leafs along the way, as well as the great record-making run of 19 straight games without defeat compiled by the New Yorkers.

So far it has been "open season" on predictions about which team is likely to finish in fourth place. Paul Thompson's Hawks get the call in most quarters, although Dick Irvin says the Canadiens are aiming for the spot. Jack Adams undoubtedly would be exceedingly happy if his Red Wings finished in that position, and the same goes for Mervyn (Red) Dutton, whose Americans wound up in sixth place last season.

B. C. I. JUNIORS STILL UNBEATEN IN 6-MAN LOOP

2 TOUCHES FOR MOTT

High-Scoring Player Ruled Out of Game for Alleged Threatening

Cliff Yerex's Belleville Collegiate six-man junior football squad remained undefeated in the City Interscholastic rugby group as they chalked up their third consecutive win, in as many games played, versus Albert College on the home grid iron yesterday when the B.C.I. sextette won 17 to 5 over the Albert team.

The players turned loose on both squads drove hard toward victory but the ultimate winners moved brilliantly into a first half advantage and were leading 11 to 5 at the halfway mark. Doug Mott put the Yerex-led sextette out in front as he skirted left end for a touchdown early in the game and converted it for six points. "Buster" Donnan, the fleet-footed Albert back all but knotted the count, when he skipped over the Collegiate line for a try, that was not converted and the count stood at 6 to 5 for the Collegiate when Cunningham went over the Albert goal line for a try and the halfway whistle found the score 11 to 5 on the side of the Collegiate.

Early in the second half Mott again carried for a major score and converted to terminate the scoring of the day at 17 to 5 for B.C.I., as they chalked up their third consecutive win in as many starts. Mott was later ruled out of the game by Refereee "Red" Townsend for alleged threatening and henceforth the squads played at practically even terms.

The line-ups:

Albert — Snap, Pringle; wings, Bailey and Hazlewood; quarter, Anderson; halves, Donnan and Dobbin; subs, Orr, Wright, Caldwell and Christian.

ATTENDANCE DOWN

Ottawa, Nov. 1 (CP)—Canadians sent $21,355,037 whirling around the Dominion's race tracks with the thoroughbreds during the 1940 racing season, the Department of Agriculture announced today.

This was a decrease of $340,486 or slightly more than 1 1-2 per cent from the $21,695,523 wagered on Canadian horse races in 1939.

The Agriculture Department supervises pari-mutuel betting at tracks of 26 racing associations which held 35 race meetings this season.

It reported gate receipts this year were $605,095, compared with $626,023 a year ago, a decrease of $20,922—but it added "gate receipts do not show a true picture of the attendance as some tracks have several ladies' day on which the ladies are admitted on payment of the provincial tax only, while some tracks are quite liberal with free passes."

Prize money paid this year showed a decrease of $18,946, amounting to $1,051,824 instead of $1,070,770.

There was one day less of racing this summer because the two Edmonton meetings totalled only 14 days, compared with 15 last year. There were four less races—2,057 compared with 2,061—and 400 less starters—16,674 compared with 17,074.

Dufferin Holds Record

The largest amount wagered at any one meeting was at the fall meeting at Dufferin Park, Toronto, $1,263,742. The smallest amount was the $464 wagered at the one-day meeting at Claresholm, Alta.

By cities, wagering increased at at three Prairie racing centres — Calgary, Regina, and Saskatoon — and at Vancouver, Victoria, Hamilton, Ont., and Niagara Falls, Ont. Elsewhere it declined.

Toronto—Tracks 4 (4), racing days 56 (56), amount wagered $8,509,797 ($8,590,500), prize money $336,000 ($351,000).

Fort Erie, Ont.—Tracks 1 (1), racing days 14 (14), amount wagered $1,465330 ($1,543,570), prize money $70,000 ($72,100).

Niagara Falls, Ont.—Tracks 1 (1), racing days 14 (14), amount wagered $1,057,462 ($1,004,774), prize money $47,300 ($47,000).

CALLING 'EM

Between the Lines

Ken J. Colling

Trying to outguess the opposition sometimes proves drastic and also a boomerang in sporting circles. For instance in this year's world series comes a story of some inside baseball that changed the entire picture of the 1940 world series. You will remember in the last game after McCormick led off in the seventh with a double for the Reds, the Detroit board of strategy, having Cincinnati one run down, naturally looked for a sacrifice from Jimmy Ripple, the Red's next hitter, simply because the Reds had been laying down bunts all season under similar circumstances. Accordingly Newsom dished up a high fast ball to Ripple, as the toughest kind of a ball to bunt. And Ripple promptly slapped the horsehide up against the right field wall for a double counter. Detroit knew that Ripple murdered that kind of ball but they played the batter for a sacrifice. McKechnie, the Reds' manager, had doped out the play in advance and had instructed Ripple to take a cut on the first ball, figuring it would be right where the batter loved them. It was and the Reds are world champions as a result.

Veteran sport fans will remember Harvey Pulford, who died in Ottawa yesterday at the age of 65 years. The late Harvey Pulford was termed as the greatest all-round athlete ever produced in the Ottawa Valley sector. Commencing his sporting prowess at the early age of 13, when he was declared the all-round school champion of Ottawa, Harvey Pulford continued to rise in athletic endeavors until even at the age of 50 he won the squash racket championship of Ottawa in 1923-24. Of course his fame as an oarsman and hockey player were dominate in his life. He was a great defence player with the old Ottawa "Silver Seven," nearly 40 years ago, and he rowed as a sculler in many countries with Canadian rowing clubs; he stroked the Ottawa crew to win the English Henley in 1911 for his greatest thrill, but generally sportsmen remember the late Harvey Pulford for his thrilling exploits on the ice lanes of other days. He starred in virtually every line of sport.

Pulford's sports career, in brief, was:

All-round champion, Ottawa Model School, 1888.

Hockey: Ottawa Hockey Club, 1892-1909. Rated Canada's greatest defence player on the famous old Silver Seven, World Champions and Stanley Cup holders, 1902, 1904, 1905.

Football: Ottawa Rough Riders, 1893-1909. Champions of Canada, 1898, 1899, 1900, 1902.

Squash Racquets Champion of Ottawa, 1923-24.

We hear the management of the Belleville Junior Hockey Club is giving away ducats for all N.H.L. games played in Toronto this season. Sounds too good to be true, but perhaps it would be better to let Bill Cook, Jack Yanover or Toots Holway explain the picture personally.

Do you remember when George Lott, Jr., of Chicago, co-holder with Helen Jacobs of the United States outdoor doubles tennis championship in 1933, turned professional six years ago today? Member of six U.S. Davis Cup teams, Lott teamed up with Bill Tilden in a barnstorming tour.

SPORT HASH: Western Canada football heads are keen for Freddie Hamilton's charity rugby game between the east and the west at Toronto . . . Alf Williams of Calgary, suggests all-star teams compete from the two sections and adds the western rules might be tried instead of "the antiquated eastern play," which is well taken also . . . The deadline for O.H.A. moves is supposed to be tonight at midnight, but we wouldn't pay too much attention to that . . . We hear a couple of "down east" pucksters are slated to take up residence here today . . . The fourth placed Pittsburg Pirates shared $10,110 from the world series loot, realizing $301 to the thirty-one players and team officials . . . McCreedy, Kowcinak, and Bellinger, the classy forward line with the Kirkland Lake Blue Devils last year, rejected professional offers to play with the Leafs . . . The former two are headed towards Sydney, N.S., while Bellinger goes to Niagara Falls . . . Must be big potatoes in the "shamateur" leagues this year.

DICK KOWCINAK AND McCREEDY TO JOIN SYDNEY

Both Players Reject Offer of Connie Smythe to Turn Professional

TOURED EUROPE

Boys Make Good in Training With Leafs but Like Amateur Game

By DICK SHERIDAN

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Nov. 1 (CP).—If precedent means anything in hockey, it's Bill Gill's Sydney Millionaires against the field for the Allan Cup this coming season. For the Maritime champions have Dick Kowcinak and Johnny McCreedy back in the fold.

During the past three weeks the Damon and Pythias of the amateur ice lanes have been trying for a berth with Toronto Leafs of the National League. Always there was a possibility one or the other would get a contract, ending a partnership established when Kowcinak and McCreedy played shinny on Winnipeg's streets eleven years ago.

At last night's game between two picked squads of the Leafs, Manager Conn Smythe revealed Kowcinak had rejected his offer of a contract. Thus the two buddies who have been on successive championship teams during the past four seasons will be shooting for their fifth title with the Millionaires.

Kowcinak and McCreedy won their first major championship crests playing for Winnipeg in 1937, the year the Monarchs won the Memorial Cup and national junior honors. The next season they helped Trail Smoke Eaters bring the Allan Cup to British Columbia.

Pair Toured Europe.

In 1939 Smoke Eaters toured Europe and won a world's amateur tournament there, and last season as members of Kirkland Lake's classy Blue Devils, Kowcinak and McCreedy were stars in that club's drive to the Allan Cup.

Kowcinak wouldn't comment last night on his rejection of Smythe's offer. But he seemed happy about the prospect of serving up goal-scoring passes for McCreedy for another season.

Mel Snowden, captain of the Blue Devils last season, is already located at Sydney while Blink Bellinger, a fourth member of the Kirkland Lake club is endeavoring to get his release from Niagara Falls of the Senior Ontario Hockey Association in order to join the Millionaires.

Bellinger was also with the Leafs in training, and played on the same line with Kowcinak and McCreedy during the practice games.

Whether it means anything, the three amateurs played for Hap Day's Whites in the intra-club games against Eddie Power's Blues and the Whites took both games of the series.

And as usual McCreedy got a goal—the first of a game which the Whites won 4-2. Broached about his uncanny knack of scoring, Johnny shook his head in semi-bewilderment.

HAMILTON TIGERS TO MEET ARGOS

Art Masucci Builds Squad Up for Giant-Killing Job on Saturday

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Having been shown that there is to be no totalitarian rule this season, the east focuses its football attention this week on the Hamilton Tigers, who have been built up to do a giant-killing job on Toronto Argonauts just as the Argos did to Ottawa last Saturday.

There is about as much reason to believe that the Tigers can beat Argos as there was to think Argos could beat the champion Rough Riders. But Argos did it, 11-9 in that thrilling fourth quarter, and the slow but steady improvement of the Tigers lends this Hamilton game some added spice.

They met once before this year, with Argos the Victors 17-5. But that was no true indication of the play. Tigers led most of the first half and they were in front 5-3 early in the third quarter. The Tigers folded and Argos got hot suddenly in the last 15 minutes to decide the issue.

Generally, tomorrow's card appears to be a cinch to call in comparison with last week's. Argos should be good enough to take the Tigers; Ottawa look to be much too good for Montreal, even in Montreal; Toronto Balmy Beach entertain Camp Borden and should win going away, while Sarnia should come back after two beatings to defeat Hamilton Alerts in Sarnia.

Sports Roundup

(By Eddie Brietz, Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, Nov. 1—(AP)—Buffalo fans would like to get Charley Gehringer as manager next season if Charley decides he's through with the big time. Charlie McPhail, Syracuse end, is no relation to Brooklyn's Larry, but they look enough alike to be brothers. To add to the coincidence, the Dodgers are scouting the youngster as an outfield prospect.

Today's guess star:

Jere Hayes, Dallas Times-Herald: "On the theory that the farther I get away from the unpredictable southwest conference, the better my chances are to nail a winner, I'll take a flyer on U.C.L.A. to thump Stanford this week—and then retire to my bomb shelter."

Chitter chatter:

If he's feeling good, Ken Overlin should be much too cute for Steve Belloise tonight. . . . Horse racing may be back in Texas in a big way next year. . . . Congratulations to Freddie Fitzsimmons who has been voted the "veteran of the year" in a contest conducted by the "Sporting News."

Mail box:

"Wouldn't it be nice if they could cook up a deal in which Kimbrough, Harmon, Christman and Reagan would be caught in first draft and assigned to West Point for the duration—of the season?"

Collegiate News

B.C.I.V.S., November 1: On Thursday noon a very successful candy sale was held by the John White Red Cross group—Girl Cadettes are all very satisfied with the new plan for work which was placed before them last Monday afternoon in the auditorium by Miss Allison and Miss Merry. The 216 senior girls in the Cadettes were divided into four groups of fifty-four each. These groups rotate, and one period a day they take either drill on the campus—weather permitting—exercises in the gym, motor mechanics, Red Cross knitting or—as soon as possible—St. John's Ambulance Corps work in the auditorium. Such a varied course is pleasing, not only because it is instructive and interesting but because it is different!

We notice that certain industrious people are carrying home stacks of books every night and after much surreptitious guessing we finally discover that they have started to study for the Christmas exams, which—so it is rumoured—begin about the end of next month. And here—with an eye to future Christmas festivities—we had completely forgotten about them—or at least the majority of us had! We'll all have to labour soon.

The Tea Dance we prophesied last week occurs today and a large crowd is expected.—Red Cross and other war work is being emphasized this year and nearly all the girls are busy "knitting socks for soldiers."—We've all been admiring the cases in which Grade 9 and 10 girls carry their gym uniforms—They are certainly very nice!—The Library Club seems to have a very competent committee to look after the cases outside the library which are changed regularly now—orchids to the deserving!

And So On!

During the past week the War Saving Stamp campaign in the school has been heavily emphasized and the sale of stamps has been steadily increasing. The school has already sold over four thousand dollars worth and it looks as if we shall overreach our objective of twenty thousand dollars worth before next summer....Practice for the coming school play "What a Life" goes on regularly behind the shuttered doors of the auditorium, and all the Collegiate's well-known actors may be seen (through the cracks) in attitudes of intense concentration as they go through their parts....The Glee Club met last Tuesday evening and sounds of voices raised in song echoed through the corridors for several hours....An Elevator meeting was held on Tuesday, too, in order to obtain members of the staff other than those already picked by the judicious hand of Mr. Jury who is the power behind the scenes.... Wednesday which was very nasty day the team went to Cobourg but the cheering section which was vaguely expected to go had to postpone its attendance for that game....The Stamp Club, which was not expected to shake out the moth balls and reorganize, after a meeting of the prominent members, decided to do so....All stamp collectors interested in trading....and aren't they all? ...are invited to attend a meeting in the board room next Monday after four....they will be welcomed with open arms!.... Thursday was Hallowe'en and a huge number of students gave up all thoughts of homework and paraded around the streets in very strange costumes holding bags, conspicuously displayed, which were full when they retired that night.... Some (who certainly seized by a brilliant idea) turned the evening into a profitable journey by selling War Saving Stamps to the people whose homes they visited....Last Tuesday Group D of the Girl Cadettes had there first lesson in Motor Mechanics and when the fifty odd fell out of room 110 at four their faces bore varied expressions....some were very confused after a sever mental struggle with the internal workings of a four cylinder motor car while others engaged in an overwhelming conversation about exhausts and valves and pistons... It was very interesting but had the familiar flavour of a busy housewife (who had lost madam's best tablecloth) trying to converse with a Chinese laundryman....But we expect that in several weeks we'll be stringing off terms now unknown, as readily as any of the boys.

POLICE COURT

Belleville's post-Hallowe'en police court held before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., today was productive of only one case arising out of last night's hilarious Hallowe'en frivolities. Leonard Bishop of the R.C.A.F. appeared before the court today charged that he did assault John Cook and cause the latter actual bodily harm last night.

In costume with his wife, Cook told the court that Bishop had stopped his wife and when reprimanded by Mr. Cook, Bishop is alleged to have struck him with his fist in the eye. Bishop pleaded not guilty and told the court he was convinced he had not struck Cook and "I don't recall any such incident," Bishop said. His Worship enlarged the case for one week at which time Mrs. Cook will be called as a witness. K. Martin, Belleville, substantiated Cook's testimony, Mr. Martin being in company with the Cooks. The alleged assault took place late last night on Front St.

Bishop and a companion, Lloyd Hess, also of the Air Force, both pleaded guilty to charges of intoxication and paid the conventional "ten and costs" previous to the assault charge being read. "It appears to me that you don't recall what did happen last night" suggested Chief Kidd after Bishop denied the assault charge today.

As the sequel to a prank, when a highway sign was removed and abandoned in Belleville last week, Herbert Breeze and Gerald Whalen of Napanee, today pleaded guilty to a charge of intoxication, and also promised to return the sign to its proper place.

Only one of three other inebriates were able to pay his fine today, the other two being sent to jail in default thereof.

Margaree Cut Amidships by Heavy Freighter

Hamilton, Bermuda, Nov. 1—The 34 men who clung to life when H.M.C.S. Margaree went down with 142 of their shipmates in an Atlantic convoy collision were safe in this British port tonight, bound for Canada to rejoin the ranks of the Canadian and British navies.

All uninjured despite the swift thrust of death in the night hours of Oct. 22, the six officers and twenty-eight ratings came to Hamilton aboard the merchant ship that knifed into the destroyer while she was escorting a convoy across the Atlantic after taking up service with the Royal Canadian Navy as replacement for the sunken destroyer Fraser.

With them came the disclosure that the Margaree, recently acquired from the Royal Navy, was sliced in two by the bow of the colliding freighter when they met in the darkness as they travelled without lights. Apparently the warcraft's halves plummetted under the Atlantic's combers like stones, giving most of her crew no chance to escape.

Inquiry to Be Held

The rescued men—thirty-two from the Canadian Navy and two from the Royal Navy—were to be take into Canada as soon as transportation could be arranged, it was announced. Meanwhile, a court of inquiry was to be held here.

Belief was expressed here it would be difficult to determine the exact cause of the collision, since all the survivors were said to have been asleep when it came and were awakened only by the death throes of the trim Margaree.

A Royal Canadian Naval Officer, it was announced, was being brought to Bermuda to help authorities here in the investigation. He was not identified. Officials said the report on the inquiry would not be made public, following the usual custom.

The extent of damage suffered by the vessel that struck the Margaree was not disclosed here. It was assumed she had not been damaged seriously, since she was able to pick up survivors and bring them to port.

The destroyer, which joined the Dominion's Navy as the thirteenth ship of that type, was commanded by Commander J. W. R. Roy of Ottawa, who was lost. Five of the surviving officers arriving here were of the Canadian Navy; the other was attached to the Royal Navy.

NEW QUICK LUX WON'T SHRINK WOOLLENS

"THE GORGON'S MASK"

by F. Van Wyck Mason

CHAPTER THREE

Phedre Renoire abruptly turned her beautifully coiffured head towards Nevins, and when his eyes met hers, slim white shoulders rose in a Gallic shrug.

"Voila!" She made a pathetic little face, and her eyes, which somehow seemed older than the rest of her face, flickered to where the Japanese, coldly reserved, and the artillery officer, red and ruffled, stood glaring at each other. "That is how a war begins, no?" she queried. "Someone brings in a piece of paper with black marks on it and then—war!"

"Yes, mademoiselle, that is the worst of it. I suppose that all over the United States and Japan people will be wishing they could kill somebody. W'd better break this seance up," he added. "Judging by the way our friend Clark and the Japanese gentleman are glaring at each other, Mr. Polk will have to buy a new grass rug tomorrow."

"Then in the interests of peace we are allies?" asked the French girl gravely. When Nevins nodded, her yellow-clad figure moved swiftly over to where Mr. Hideyo Kanamura was smiling mechanically but with dangerous glints in his dark eyes.

"Come," she said gently, "I want you to see that famous garden of Mr. Polk's—I've always been told that the Japanese are passionately fond of flowers and gardens."

Nevins, his face an emotional blank, said in a low voice to Lieutenant Clark, "Drop it!" then in a louder tone, "I wish you'd advise me as to where I can get the best fishing. You see, I've come all the way out from the mainland to enjoy it."

Darkly the artillery officer regarded the rich Japanese ship chandler's retreating form before replying. "Oh, you'll get lots of mahamahi, swordfish and tuna."

Nevins' pleased laugh formed an effective anodyne for the recent hostility.

"Talking fish?" broke in Abner Polk. "Then Lord help you, Lieutenant. On the Malolo he wouldn't talk of anything else."

"You seem to know Mr. Nevins quite well," observed Baron von Rentner heavily, and it seemed that the thought was not entirely pleasing.

Polk's head with its crest of stiff gray hair inclined carelessly.

"Oh, yes. On the Malolo we had many pleasant conversations."

"About what?"

"About fishing, my dear Baron, about fishing. Speaking of amusements, I hear that Honolulu's got you."

Baron von Rentner stared. "'Got me'? Please speak sensibly."

"I mean that while I was away you fell in love with a fair lady—a very interesting lady." Malice was in every note of the speaker's bland voice.

Nevins grinned as he realized that the steel king had adroitly put his forbidding friend on the defensive, and he was amazed to watch the appearance of a furious blush which crept into the German's harsh features and made the two faint scars along his left cheek glow with sudden color as he said:

"Really, Polk, I must beg you to leave Miss—." He checked himself just in time to clip off the girl's name; the Japanese was standing nearby.

"Oh, sure, Mr. Polk, I know all about her," Lieutenant Clark broke in with all the blundering good nature of a muddy-pawed puppy at a lawn party. "She's a swell girl. And say, Nevins, you ought to see her in a one-piece bathing suit!"

The German flushed still more and drew his square body into an almost menacing attitude. "She is a most charming lady, and I prefer—"

"Okay," agreed Lieutenant Clark with undeniable enthusiasm. "I think she's swell, too. You should have heard the boys down at the Officers' Club. If she stays here any longer on Oahu she'll have about ninety per cent of the officers shot to blazes!"

Nevins eyed the strangely enthusiastic young man almost coldly and said: "Queer, but I know personally of two such officers—"

Unaware that Lieutenant Clark had suddenly turned pale, Abner Polk went on: "I'd like to meet such a fascinating lady—I've a weakness for 'em."

Baron von Rentner smiled thinly as he placed a cigar between his pale, thin lips and stated: "You will have that pleasure before very long, lieber freund. Tomorrow night I am bringing her here for the dinner."

Polk flicked the ash from his cigar and, eyeing the Prussian steadily, asked: "She doesn't happen to be the same girl Armand Dunant was having about in Paris last year? What was her name?" Impatiently he snapped his fingers. "Ah, I've got it—Stefan! That was it, Nadia Stefan."

There sounded a tiny crash of shattered glass, and Kanamura promptly burst into profuse apologies.

"How very careless of me! Please permit that I replace it—"

"Oh, that's all right. What is it, Felipe?"

"Misser Bruce Kilgour," announced the owlish Filipino butler just as there appeared in the doorway a man dressed in gray flannels, with a red face and hair and close-clipped moustache of sandy red.

"Hello, Mr. Polk—found your chit at the club," he drawled. "Fancy I'm a little early—what?"

"Glad you could make it, Kilgour," said Polk. "This is Mr. Kilgour, gentlemen. He's droppin in for a rubber of bridge." Mr. Polk's muscular right hand included the entire company. "Those of you who don't know him will have to introduce yourselves."

The newcomer looked swiftly around the table, and his alert searching eyes paused an instant when they encountered the tall white figure of the big game hunter smiling broadly as he talked to von Rentner. Then he turned to acknowledge the artillery officer's greeting.

"Hullo, Kilgour," Clark said and held out his hand. "Any more excitement in the old burg?"

The Englishman's reddish head inclined solemnly.

"Ra-ther. I don't like the look of things at all." He paused, and silence spread like a widening ripple over that glittering room. "There are crowds in every bloomin' street; and the Times is postin' bulletins every half-hour. I say, Mr. Polk, I hope your people will keep their heads."

"Oh, we will; we're not so excitable as we Americans once were," Abner Polk muttered irritably. "And now let's forget about it—as long as we can." He strode heavily forward and jerked aside the great black-and-red batik curtains at the far end of the dining room. "We'll have our liqueurs and bridge down on the float with the ladies—it's cooler there."

Von Rentner agreed, "That is a very good idea."

NEW YORK STOCKS

New York, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Profits looked good to many traders in today's stock market after yesterday's sharp upswing.

The result was that an early extension of the drive failed to follow through the gains of fractions to a point or so for Steels, Utilities, Rails and an assortment of Industrial specialties were shaded near the fourth hour. Dealings, fast on the initial move, slowed as prices slipped.

Among stocks making new tops for the year in the forenoon were U.S. Steel, Bethlehem, Crucible, Great Northern and Chesapeake & Ohio.

Canadian issues improved slightly. Dome Mines, Canadian Pacific and Hiram Walker rose fractions. Canada 4s, in the Bond Market, gained 5-8 point.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Nov. 1—(CP)—Mining and Industrial Stocks worked higher on Toronto Exchange today. Turnover totalled 129,000 shares.

Interlisted industrial leaders were inclined to trail New York's advance in the early period and narrow gains were netted by Ford A, International Petroleum, Dominion Bridge, Walkers, Canadian Dredge and a few others.

Kerr-Addison, MacLeod - Cockshutt, Preston, Little Long Lac and Macassa were among the gold gainers. Smelters, Noranda, Nickel, Sherritt and Steep Rock were the bright spots in the base metals.

Top-Grade Eggs Continue Scarce

Toronto — Small arrivals of fresh receipts, which were readily absorbed continued to send top-grade egg prices higher on the Toronto open produce market yesterday. Butter held unchanged.

Advances of 1 cent to 2 cents a dozen occurred on top grades on the egg market. This strength was derived from prevailing light offerings and improved inquiry. Lower grades were steady and unchanged.

The butter market displayed a featureless session. Prices were at previous levels, with buying quiet and holders not pressing for sales. The first grade Ontario product sold at 29c a pound in wholesale channels. Prints to the retail trade moved at 30 1-2c to 31c a pound.

Montreal Produce

Butter: First grade creamery prints, jobbing price, 30c to 30 1-2c; first grade solids, jobbing price, 29 1-2c to 30c.

Eggs: Graded shipments in used free cases, selling price, A-large, 42c; A-medium, 40c; A-pullets, 30c; B, 27c to 28c; C, 19 1-2c to 20c. Receipts: 1,514 cases.

Hog Quotations

Toronto, Nov. 1—(CP) — Hog prices were unchanged at Brantford and Stratford, Bacon Hog Markets reporting early today.

Dressedweight: Brantford $11.35 plus transportation, Stratford $11.40 plus transportation.

Chatham later reported liveweight down 25 cents there at $8.10 and dressedweight down 40 cents at $10.90. Prices were unchanged at London at $11.25 plus transportation.

2 AIR ALARMS IN ATHENS

London, Nov. 1 (CP)—Reuters News Agency reported from Athens today that an air raid alarm sounded in the Greek Capital at 10:40 a.m. (4:40 a.m. EDT) and five Italian planes were seen circling in clear skies west of the city.

It said a second alarm sounded at 11.50 a.m. (5.50 a.m. EDT). Anti-aircraft guns went into action during both alarms.

THRILL DIVER KILLED

Milford, Del., Nov. 1 (AP)— A clown in a water diving "thrill act" died today of injuries received when hurled 120 feet from the top of a ladder during dismantling of the act's equipment after a Hallowe'en celebration last night.

Thrown from the ladder, Walter Caldrell, 35, of Raleigh, N.C., hit another member of the crew standing on the ground below. Both were taken to a hospital, where Caldrell died.

Police said the accident occurred when an automobile struck a guy wire. The driver was held in $5,000 bail for a hearing.

ALLEGED

Told of Injuries

Dr. H. A. Boyce, Deseronto physician, attended Mrs. Mary Maracle at 10 o'clock August 31. He found patient with severe bruises to left eye and what appeared a fracture of the left collarbone, a fractured nose, fractured rib, bruises on forehead, extensive bruises both knees and hips. She had been placed in bed for five days. The injuries, he said, were not the result of blows from a hard object. They would be consistent with the blows from a fist.

"Is it true this woman bears a bad reputation in your town?" Defence Counsel asked.

"I wouldn't say that. I will not repeat hearsay in this court," Dr. Boyce replied.

Separated From Husband

Visibly affected, Mrs. Maracle entered the witness box. She had been married three years, but had separated from her husband in February, 1940. Since then she had been living in Deseronto.

Witness, with her brother and his girl friend, had gone to the Arlington Hotel at 10.30 p.m. Friday, August 30. They had some beer and later her brother secured the accused to drive his girl friend, Peggy Sero, home. The four had driven off in Storms' car Witness' brother and his friend got out of the car after driving four blocks.

Recovering from emotion, witness told the court Storms had driven along the Bay Shore road about a half mile. He had made improper advances, she resisted and "he pulled me out of the car and attempted to pull my clothes off."

Struck in Face is Claim

"He struck me in the face, and shoulder with his fist", Mrs. Maracle said.

"I passed out and came to lying on the ground, practically naked".

She pulled some clothes about her and struggled across fields to a farmhouse owned by a family named Joyce. It was between 4 and 4.30 a.m.

Mrs. Joyce gave her a raincoat and her husband had driven witness home. She had been unable to talk until 9 o'clock next morning when she told her sister, "Bennie beat me up".

Denies Being Drunk

Under cross-examination Mrs. Maracle denied she was drunk on the night of the alleged assault. She admitted the quartette had decided to get "something more to drink" after they had driven from the hotel in the car.

She had never been threatened to be beaten up by any one she said. Witness denied having any trouble with "soldiers or airmen" recently.

Defence Counsel Simpson produced documents stating witness had been sent to an institution after character charges had been proven. Mrs. Maracle admitted being in the institution but vehemently denied the other allegations.

CHAMBERLAIN NOT LEAVING ENGLAND SAYS SECRETARY

Former Premier Has No Intention of Going to California for Health

SUFFERS GOUT

London, Nov. 1 —(CP)— Widely circulated reports that Neville Chamberlain was on his way to California in hopes of regaining his health brought from the former prime minister's secretary today the assertion that he "has not left this country and has no intention of doing so."

Mr. Chamberlain himself, the secretary added, regarded the reports as "such rubbish that he does not consider them worthy of a formal denial."

Reports emanating previously from Chamberlain's home city of Birmingham were to the effect that he and his wife had been on the high seas for about 10 days.

The 71-year-old former prime minister, under whom Britain entered the war against Germany, resigned from the cabinet of his successor, Winston Churchill, Oct. 3, because of failing health.

He underwent an abdominal operation last July 29 and has suffered also from gout. During the last two months of German raids on London, he has been unable to get proper rest, it was said.

ITALIANS ADMIT

Text of the Air Ministry's Friday communique:—

"Last night a small force of aircraft of the bomber command made a successful attack on oil tanks and other objectives at Naples. All our aircraft have returned safely.

"No operations were carried out over Western and Central Germany because of bad weather.

"During daylight operations yesterday aircraft of the coastal command scored a direct hit on a merchant ship off the Norwegian coast. One of these aircraft is missing."

Rome, Nov. 1 (AP)—British warplanes, striking at Southern Italy, roared over Naples during the night and unloaded explosive and incendiary bombs some of which, the Italian High Command acknowledged, fell in two of the city's great industrial suburbs.

(The British Air Ministry said the raiders scored hits on oil tanks and "other objectives" at Naples.)

Several bombs fell at Bagnoli, four miles west of the city, and at Pomigliano D'Arco, eight miles to the northeast, the High Command said. Some of Italy's biggest blast furnaces and steel mills are located in this region.

The communique did not indicate from what direction the raids were launched.

(The London communique merely said the raiders were "a small detachment of the bomber command." Naples is nearly 1,000 air line miles from England, nearly twice as far as Milan, Genoa and other North Italy cities hitherto bombed by R.A.F. planes flying from home bases.)

In Bagnoli are some of Italy's biggest steel works and rolling mills, while new airplane factories with testing fields and laboratories are at Pomigliano D'Arco.

WOMEN

Miss Boothe started things. Wife of Henry R. Luce, publisher of Time, Life and Fortune magazines, she took the air to assert that Miss Thompson was showing "silly signs of hysteria" at the possibility of Willkie's election.

Miss Thompson countered by terming Miss Boothe the campaign's "snob-appeal," the "Brenda Frazier of the great crusade (for Willkie.)" She had "torn herself loose from the Stork Club to serve her country." Miss Thompson hit a high note when she described the publisher's wife as "the body by Fisher in this campaign."

But the columnist was only warming up. She went on: "Miss Boothe has everything to pull in the orders, the Powers model face, the recommendation of Lady Whoosis who, whether from her lovely apartment in the super Ritz or from the exquisite little yacht that was a gift from Lord Peevish, says to you: 'I use only Willkie.'

The Lady Kingmaker

"I've met you before, Clare—in various costumes and under various hats. I met your type in the Cliveden set.... and the last time I saw you, the eternally repeating type of you, the Lady Kingmaker, was in the apartment of the last Prime Minister of France."

However, the by-play between the ruffled feminine campaigners was only one of the lighter touches of the week as the campaign reached new heights of intensity preparatory to the Nov. 5 voting. The main barrage was laid down by the candidates as President Roosevelt took personal issue with the Republican nominee.

Nearing the end of his swing around the country, Willkie yesterday campaigned in the factory towns of New Jersey and Delaware with the assertion that "when a man becomes too absolute in power, he always takes the people to the shambles of war." At Camden, N.J., last night he maintained that the United States "is sick of the type of government that treats our Constitution like a scrap of paper."

Mr. Roosevelt will have an opportunity to reply tonight when he speaks in Brooklyn in the third of the five major speeches he has scheduled for the closing days of the election fight. The President returned to Washington yesterday from a speech-making excursion to Boston where, among other things, he denied he is leading the country into war and said he had urged "sympathetic consideration" for a British request for 12,000 additional airplanes.

Willkie Would Also Aid Britain

Willkie, who has maintained he would be able to give more aid to Great Britain than could Mr. Roosevelt, commented on this during one of his talks yesterday. He said that if he were elected a request for such a number of planes would be "insignificant" because American production would be geared to a new high.

As the campaign entered its last four days, political observers were keeping a close watch on these 11 States: New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Ohio, Texas, California, Michigan, Massachusetts, New Jersey, Missouri and Indiana. For if either candidate wins these States and any other single state, he will have enough electoral votes to give him victory.

The chief prize is densely-populated industrial New York. New York's 47 electoral college votes have gone to the winning candidate in every election except three since the Civil War.

GERMANY

Announcement that two-thirds of these men soon would be back home certainly would bring joy to millions.

About 500,000 prisoners, diplomatic sources said, will be forced to stay in these camps until the end of the war.

Some still will be held because they sympathize with the Free French movement of Gen. Charles de Gaulle, it was said, and others because their homes are in zones along the English Channel and northern Brittany now restricted to German military operations.

Release of 1,000,000 is reported to be planned as a gradual operation partially to enable smoothest possible reabsorption into civil life.

Their return, however, may well bring with it a tremendous economic problem of employment to dormant French industry, which is only beginning to stir again under encouragement of the Vichy regime it was said.

According to Vichy figures, there now are 1,100,000 unemployed in France, without counting prisoners —including 300,000 jobless in the Paris region alone.

However, French industrialists who travel into the German-occupied zone assert that the Germans are trying to get French industry back into at least partial production, especially when the output is of interest to Germany.

Limit Production

Generally the Germans are reported to have limited production to 50 per cent, declaring that normal production would bring the French plants into competition with their German counterparts.

One French Industrialist said his firm—one of the largest in Europe making automobile tires — stopped production after the armistice.

Later a German trade commission asked what raw materials were needed. The plant director said he had rubber stocks for a year but lacked cotton fibre. The Germans then delivered the fibre at the world market price and guaranteed to purchase half the factory's output, but limited it to half its normal production. It is operating at half speed today.

Similar instances have been reported throughout France.

How to absorb released prisoners into an industry is so limited, economists say, will be Laval's greatest problem.

The Germans, it is said, have declined to import French labor—as they have Italian, Polish and Slav workers—because they say French unskilled laborers are too "undisciplined" and independent to work under German direction.

Laval, however, is reported willing to risk the labor problem for an immediate rise in his prestige, while the Germans are said to be unwilling to keep French prisoners in their territory indefinitely.

FREIGHTER SUNK

Officials here said next of kin of the missing men have been notified, but Mr. Teakle did not issue a list of those believed lost when he gave out the survivors' names.

However, a few hours later shipping officials at Halifax disclosed the names of seventeen seamen—at least twelve of them Canadians—who signed on the St. Malo last month and were not listed as rescued by Mr. Teakle.

List of Names.

It was pointed out that some of the men who joined the freighter's crew Sept. 17 before she started for Britain for the last time before her loss may not have sailed with the ship.

Twenty-one names were included in the Halifax list. Only four of them appeared in the survivors' list released at Montreal. Relatives of three others — one Newfoundland man and two Nova Scotians — are known to have been notified they are missing.

One of the names given out at Halifax was that of Capt. Charles E. Finlay, believed from Toronto. He was not listed by Mr. Teakle as being among the survivors

The 17 sailors indicated by the Halifax list to be missing included besides Capt Finlay another Toronto seaman, five Nova Scotians, three Montrealers, two who gave their address merely as "Canada", one each from Scotland, Wales and Newfoundland, and two who have no home address.

Republican Leaders Become Nervous as Joe Talks Economics

New York, Nov. 1.—(CP)— Joe Louis began a campaign through the eastern United States Thursday on behalf of Wendell Willkie with a gruelling all-day jaunt through New York preparatory to a series of addresses last night.

Republican leaders discovered that the support of the heavyweight boxing champion was not entirely an unmixed blessing. Some obviously became nervous when Louis started discussing economics in an interview.

The champion arrived from Chicago by plane. His managers had forgotten to provide an interlude for luncheon and Louis, a large eater had to get through the day with nothing more sustaining than a bar of peanut brittle. As he got hungrier, his visits at various places in the city became more perfunctory, his face more impassive and his answers monosyllabic. By 5 p.m. he was famished and almost silent.

Louis' most difficult moment came in an interview when he said he blamed President Roosevelt for the fact that most of "my people" were on relief. He gave his reasons: "Well, when they come out with the N.R.A. a janitor who was getting $19, he got $22. Then, when a janitor gets $22, a white man say 'I'll take the job', and the colored folks has to go on relief".

At this point Joseph W. Martin Jr., chairman of the Republic National Committee, interjected: "I don't think you mean quite that, Joe."

"Yes, I do," said Louis.

He went on to say that the Democrats had promised an anti-lynching bill and then had done nothing about it.

"Mr. Roosevelt has made a lot of lazy people out of my people", he said. "They sit around in Harlem with nothing to do. That's why most of 'em are Democrats".

Martin coughed. "I think that's enough," he said. "I think its unfair to ask him all these questions. I've got a lot of telegrams here that I'm sure you reporters will be interested in. . . . ."

KNOWS WHEN TO QUIT

Ottawa, Oct. 31. — (CP)—It's a great thing to know when to quit. Take the chief of the General Staff Maj.-Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, for instance. He knows the time to stop.

For the first time in his life Gen. Crerar bowled last night. Opening the General Staff Branch Bowling League the General sent the first ball down the alley after protesting he hadn't the "vaguest idea" how to bowl.

All five pins went down for a strike.

"I'm never going to bowl again", announced the chief of staff. "A perfect record is a perfect record".

RAIDERS RETURN

During a pre-dawn raid, four persons were killed and a number injured by a bomb which fell in a London residential district where several houses were demolished.

Demand Stronger Blows

A large part of the British Press, meanwhile, demanded stronger blows against Italy and cheered the Greek navy for shelling Italian positions along the Albanian border.

With a long rest in the middle of the night, London underwent one of the lightest after-dark attacks of the war on the 55th consecutive night of bombings.

Two explanations were suggested for the lessening of air raids during the last week—first, bad weather, with ground mists and boggy fields in France; second, the assertion that many German bombing pilots have gone to southeastern Europe and Italians who have moved into French bases are just getting their bearings over England.

The few bombs which were reported during the night fell mainly in London, East Anglia and and a town in the Midlands. The government said these caused little damage and few casualties.

A small number of bombs also dropped at one point on the north-east coast of Scotland—"with little effect", a communique said.

Echo Call of Admiral

Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express echoing the call of Admiral of the Fleet Lord Chatfield for violent blows against Italy, said:—

"Living women and children matter more to us than the antiquities of Rome. If bombing Rome is to mean an earlier victory for the Greeks and ourselves, we should begin it tomorrow and continue it until the Italians see sense."

The Daily Herald declared "We have got to hit Mussolini and hit him so hard that we leave our mark upon him".

The News Chronicle commented: "Italy, it cannot too often be said, is the weakest link in the Axis. Smash it and more than half the battle is won".

NAZI ACTIVITY

reached a new high level of strength.

Although given no credence by government officials, rumors persisted that "German troops may go through here within ten days" en route to the Greek border.

Sharing attention with the rumors of possible German intervention in the Italian-Greek conflict was Turkey's attitude toward the struggle, which President Ismet Inonu was expected to clarify today in an address opening the Turkish national assembly.

Balkan observers generally believed that Inonu would affirm Turkey's non-belligerency, although the Istanbul newspaper Vatan said the Turkish people "will not hesitate to assume their great historical responsibility if the duty is imposed upon them."

The Bulgarian government itself adhered strictly to a hands-off policy, making no move to take advantage of the Greek plight by pressing its long-standing claims for territorial revisions.

Bulgaria long has sought to obtain from Greece an outlet to the Aegean Sea, which she claims she was promised in settlements after the first great war.

Coincident with reports of German troops movements over railways in the western Rumanian province of Banat came advices that Yugoslavia was stationing garrisons opposite Rumania along what once was described as the nation's "only undefended frontier".

Banat is virtually a backdoor to Belgrade, whose attitude toward the Italian invasion of Greece is believed here to depend largely upon whether Yugoslavian territory goes unmenaced.

Turkish newspapers predicted that if the Italians succeeded in capturing the Greek port of Salonika, Yugoslavia would be next on the axis list for dismemberment.

SMALL GREEK

(A frontier correspondent of Stefani, Italian news agency, reported Albanian formations were included in the Fascist invasion columns.

(The Stefani correspondent also claimed Italian troops had penetrated Greece from the sea as well as from Albania but he did not elaborate.)

Continued Italian air raids yesterday on the port of Patras were reported officially and the toll of Monday's opening raid on the city reached 100 dead and 250 injured as Premier John Metaxas addressed a message of sympathy to the city.

Civilians Machine-Gunned.

"A formation of raiders attacked an open town in a cowardly manner and the civilian population was bombed and machine-gunned from 600 feet," Metaxas declared.

"The innocent blood shed galvanizes our faith in the sanctity of the struggle and affords to the eyes of the civilized world a measure of the manliness and honesty of our enemy, who believes that with known murderous means he will intimidate a brave people. . . .

"The blood of the dead citizens of Patras will be revenged by the nation."

Aristides Demetratos, undersecretary of labor and general secretary of the Greek National Labor Federation, called on workers throughout the world in a broadcast last night to come to the aid of Greece in her struggle against Italy.

Appeal To U.S.

The text of his appeal was sent to United States labor organizations.

He suggested a boycott of Italian products and urged that workers demand that their governments ban exports of raw materials and munitions to Italy.

King George II conferred yesterday with Metaxas and Gen. Alexander Papagos, chief of staff, on the war situation.

Effective tomorrow, Greek newspapers will be reduced to two pages to save paper.

Under other new war measures foreign nationals now are forbidden to spend the night away from their homes and no mail will be accepted for foreign nations except Turkey, the British Empire and the Americas.

Greek Communique

Athens, Nov. 1 (AP)—Text of a Greek High Command communique issued Friday:-

"In the Epirus district, enemy activities by infantry and tanks have been repulsed everywhere. The enemy sustained losses. Prisoners were taken. Irregulars are collaborating with the enemy.

"Yesterday our aviation bombed and machine-gunned enemy sections from a low altitude. In an air fight an enemy plane was brought down and another was hit and sighted falling irregularly.

"Today, despite continuous bad weather, our aviation's operations were repeated. An enemy reconnaissance plane was driven away by our fighters and was pursued and hit.

"Our naval forces shelled successfully the right wing of the enemy front for over an hour."

Weekly Livestock Report

Appetizing Oven Dinners Demonstrated at Last Session Of Cooking School in City

Miss Muir Gracious Hostess to Many Belleville Women During the School

Oven dinners, the economical method of preparing meals using an electric range, was the theme of the concluding session of the Moffat cooking school yesterday afternoon. Miss Edithemma Muir, home economist of the Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario directed the school held by the Belleville Public Utilities under the auspices of St. Andrew's Women's Guild.

Miss Muir, in her artistically arranged stage kitchen, with its decorations of huge white and yellow chrysanthemums, was a gracious hostess to the many Belleville women who filled the Hall. She prepared in skilful manner the many dishes arranged for yesterday's program stressing oven meals and meals that can be prepared in a well cooker.

Economical Methods

Dinners which can be completely cooked in the oven at one time eliminate the over usage of top elements and so are not as expensive. The meat must be a tender cut. The sample meal had a meat basis of finely ground round steak and pork rolled up in jelly-roll fashion over a filling of previous cooked and chopped carrots mixed with sauted onions. Scalloped potatoes, baked squash and for dessert, a coffee cake, which could be served with whipped cream or a fruit juice sauce, completed the oven dinner. Baked potatoes might be substituted or steamed vegetables peeled and sliced and cooked with a very small amount of water in a covered casserole, while another dessert would be any batter topped pudding.

In the well cooker was placed a round steak with a dressing of bread crumbs, potatoes to be steamed also string beans, and a pudding. A very small amount of water is added after the meat is seared and the cooker is then placed on the element turned to "simmer" and cooked for an hour and a quarter.

Color in Meals

Many miscellaneous recipes were added by Miss Muir who also had many suggestions for the well balanced day's menu, urging the women to buy as much as possible of the food products of their own district, especially, and of Canada. Colour and texture as well as correct food combinations should be considered in the planning of every meal. Some dainty individual salads that illustrated perfectly the idea of color were made by director.

In her parting words to her audience Miss Muir complimented St. Andrew's Church ladies on the fine spacious hall and perfectly appointed kitchen in which it was a pleasure to work. She thanked the ladies for their welcome and interested attention. Today as never before women treasure their homes and a happy home life. A well arranged and modern kitchen contributed to a happy home atmosphere and more leisure for war work.

Mr. Everett Smith of the Belleville Public Utilities, reminded the women that Belleville hydro users have the lowest rate for electricity in Ontario and explained in an interesting manner how the city is able to enjoy that privilege. To hold this rate down and to share in further benefits it is necessary to sell more electricity. Thus those who now enjoy the advantages of electric cooking should advocate it to their friends, wasteful use of electricity and water should be avoided.

Wallbridge

Wallbridge — On Thursday evening last between seventy-five and one hundred neighbors and friends of Mr. and Mrs. G. S. Martin gathered at the Town Hall here to spend a social evening with them prior to their departure for Frankford, where they intend to reside.

Mr. S. M. Nicolson was master of ceremonies and after a short time spent in community singing, he called Mr. and Mrs. Martin to the front of the hall and Mrs. Jas. Sine read a most appropriate address and Mr. W. Johnson and Mr. E. Lane presented Mr. and Mrs. Martin with an electric floor lamp.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin both responded, thanking the friends for their gift and assuring them of a welcome in their new home in Frankford. Several prominent men gave speeches and Rev. L. W. Scott favored with a humorous recitation. Lunch was served and a most social time was spent.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin have spent five years in our neighborhood and have proved to be first class citizens, ready to help in any social or church work. They will be missed from the community and friends wish them every success in their new home.

Friends were glad to have Mr. Lawrence Ketcheson at Sunday School again last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Hinchliffe are moving into the house lately vacated by Mr. and Mrs. Martin.

Mrs. Geo. Christopher and daughter, Shirley, of Belleville, spent Sunday with Mrs. A. Clare.

'QUAKE AT LOS ANGELES

Los Angeles, Nov. 1 (AP).—The Los Angeles metropolitan area felt a jolting earthquake at 11:26 o'clock last night (12:26 a.m. Friday, EDT). The temblor laster several seconds and came in a rolling motion. No damage was reported. In Glendale, sleepers were awakened and windows rattled. Santa Monica residents felt the shock, as did other beach cities in the West Bay area.

Belleville Chapter, No. 55, O. E. S. Has Fine War Work Record

Since the beginning of their war work project in October of 1939, members of Belleville Chapter No. 55, Order of the Eastern Star, under their Patriotic Committee, have made a splendid contribution to the war efforts undertaken by the women of Canada. Through card parties and entertainments they have raised the necessary funds to purchase their own wool for the work and to make donations to various war charities.

The Patriotic Committee, of which Mrs. L. Law is convener, has handed in from the period of November 1939 to June 30th, 1940, 136 pairs sox, 34 sweaters, 19 scarves, 13 binders, 36 slings, 10 pairs wristlets, 18 handkerchiefs, 32 packages of tobacco, 32 packages of cigarette papers. These were distributed to the Salvation Army, the Red Cross, the I.O.D.E. Finnish Relief work, and to the Grand Chapter Patriotic Committee which is assuming the responsibility of assisting to look after the Royal Engineers in Toronto and Ottawa. Cash donations were made to the Canadian Legion, $25 and to the Salvation Army $25. Seventeen parcels were sent overseas.

The fourteen chapters which comprise District No. 12 for which Mrs. Essie Nayler is District Convener, of the Grand Chapter Patriotic Committee, have also done outstanding war work for the same period. Seven chapter shared in the donation of 602 pairs sox, 175 sweaters, 94 wristlets, 52 scarves, 33 pairs of pyjamas, 23 pairs wool blankets, 38 quilts, 32 handkerchiefs, 38 slings, 13 binders; 56 pies (for the 14th Batterymen near Cobourg), 35 packages of gum, 20 packages of razor blades, 31 wash cloths, soap, etc. The other seven chapters raised money for war purposes. The sum of $307 was realized for the Red Cross, Salvation Army and Grand Chapter Patriotic Association. One small Chapter raised $414.62 to carry on their patriotic activities.

The Grand Chapter of Ontario has already made the presentation of four ambulances as part of their war work.

Bancroft and District

Ben Bruce, Hermon, Suffers Loss of Farm Home by Fire

Bancroft, Nov. 1 (Special).—The farm home of Benjamin Bruce of Hermon, seventeen miles east of Bancroft, was completely destroyed by fire early Monday morning. Mr. Bruce and Jack Mackay got up quite early and after lighting a fire Mr. Bruce went on to the barn to do the chores. Shortly afterwards Mr. Mackay heard Mrs. Bruce calling for help and running into the home and upstairs managed to carry the woman to safety though the smoke by that time was very dense. Contents of the home were all lost and Mackay, brother of Mrs. Bruce, is said to have lost considerable money which was left in his clothes upstairs.

Three Inches of Snow.

The weatherman played quite a prank on Bancroft and vicinity on Wednesday afternoon in the form of a snowstorm which lasted all afternoon and well into the night. About three inches of snow fell and motoring was quite hazardous. The winter appearance though was quite localized for ten miles north of Bancroft just a skimmer of snow could be seen and east of Maynooth no snow was visible. The trees, telephone lines and cars got a real heavy coating which from an artist's view was very picturesque.

Hermon Home Destroyed.

Fire destroyed the home of Cecil Bruce of Hermon Wednesday morning. Mr. Bruce got up early, lit a fire and seeing that the day was disagreeable for going to the woods decided to go back to bed for awhile only to be awakened later to find his home on fire. He was able to save the contents of the house but lost the building which was covered by insurance.

The funeral of the late James Linn who passed away in Bancroft Sunday morning was held at the Brethren Hall Tuesday afternoon. The service was conducted by the Rev. F. Peer of Belleville and interment took place at Hillcrest Cemetery north of the village.

The annual bazaar of "Our Lady of Mercy" Church, Bancroft, was held Tuesday and Wednesday of this week in the Community Hall under the supervision of the Rev. J. L. Kennedy, parish priest.

Harold Gallagher Dies.

Harold Gallagher, nineteen-year-old son of Mrs. K. Gallagher and the late Leo Gallagher, who has been confined to hospital in Pembroke for the past five weeks passed away Tuesday evening at the hospital. The remains were brought to his home at Bird's Creek Thursday morning. The late Harold Gallagher is survived by his mother, Mrs. K. Gallagher, two sisters, Doreen and Reta an done brother Leo.

WOMAN HUNTER GETS BEAR

Tellico Plains, Tenn., Nov. 1 (AP). —A 24-year-old woman made the first kill in the bear and wild boar hunt held annually in the rugged mountains of the Cherokee National Forest. Mrs. Editth Hass Padgett, wife of Tellico Plains postmaster, bagged a 400-pound black bear with a rifle yesterday, bringing it down with two shots at 65 yards.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Spring Parade"

Presenting a more grown-up Deanna Durbin, the star's eight picture, Universal's "Spring Parade" comes to the Capitol theatre next.

For the past few years, the advent of each new Deanna Durbin picture has been one of the outstanding events of the cinema season. Each pictured the young star in another phase of her growing-up process. The current offering presents her in one of the most grown-up roles and in the most romantic story in which she has yet appeared.

In the story Deanna is cast as a young peasant girl who goes to the city of her dreams and meets adventure and romance.

Popular Leading Man

Robert Cummings, who was the star's leading man in "Three Smart Girls Grow Up," is seen as her sweetheart in "Spring Parade." The supporting cast, the finest ever assembled in any of her pictures, features Micha Auer, Henry Stephenson, Butch and Buddy, Anne Gwynne, Walter Catlett, S. Z. Sakall, Samuel S. Hinds, Allyn Joslyn, Reginald Denny, Franklin Pangborn and Peggy Moran.

Deanna's voice will be heard in four song selections in the picture. Music for three of these was written by the famous Viennese composer, Robert Stolz, with lyrics by Gus Kahn. The songs are "Its Foolish But It's Fun," "Waltzing in the Clouds" and "When April Sings." The fourth number, "Blue Danube Dream," is an arrangement by Hans Salter, with lyrics by Gus Kahn.

Successful Director

The picture was directed by Henry Koster, his fifth with this star. Joe Pasternak is the producer. The subject is from an original story by Ernst Marischka, with screenplay by Bruce Manning and Felix Jackson.

AT THE McCARTHY

"STAGE TO CHINO"

A super-western! One of the finest pictures George O'Brien ever made . . . and one of the finest westerns you'll see this year . . . or any year, is now playing at the McCarthy Theatre. The ace of cowboy stars, George O'Brien in 'Stage to Chino", his most exciting western. Come and see how thrilling a really good action drama can be. "Black Diamonds" co-starring Richard Arlen and Andy Devine, their newest feature production that tops "Mutiny on the Blackhawk" is also now showing at the McCarthy Theatre with "Stage To Chino", in addition to "Terry And The Pirates", the chapter play that is presented each week.

"Sing, Dance, Plenty Hot."

"Whatcha Going To Do When There Ain't No Swing", "I'm Just a Weakie", "When a Fella's Got a Girl", "What Fools These Mortals Be", "Tequila" and "Too Toy" are a few of the new hit tunes which will be heard in the next attraction coming to the McCarthy Theatre, "Sing, Dance, Plenty Hot" featuring Ruth Terry, Johnny Downs, Billy Gilbert and Vera Vague. The first of what may turn out to be a new screen detective series, "The Secret Seven" featuring Florence Rice and Barton MacLane, with popular Bruce Bennett in the role of the "detective" will be the companion feature shown with "Sing, Dance, Plenty Hot".

AT THE BELLE

"Strike Up the Band"

Streamlined song hits and ancient ditties that evoke hilarious laughter, comedy, romance of youth and heart-throbs are all combined in "Strike Up the Band," merry musical with Mickey Rooney, Judy Garland, Paul Whitman and orchestra and clever youngsters, many of whom appeared in "Babes in Arms." It comes as the next feature attraction at the Belle Theatre.

Mickey and Judy, high school pals, organize a modern swing band in the school. Paul Whiteman announces a national radio contest for school bands. They proceed to raise money to make the trip to Chicago to compete. They stage a comical travesty on old time stage melodrama, with such song gems as "The Curse of an Aching Heart," "Heaven Will Protect a Working Girl" and others. Mickey manages to give Paul Whiteman an idea of the band's proficiency when they "borrow" the Whiteman band instruments.

Dramatic moments include Mickey's scenes with his mother and the episode in which Mickey and Judy find one of their pals near death and use the band money to save his life. Whiteman and his orchestra in action, the big broadcast and other thrills mark the action. Modren song hits such as "Nobody" and "Our Love Affair" contrast with June Preisser's Anna Held imitation with "I Just Can't Make My Eyes Behave" and "Ta Ra Ra Boom-de-ay."

The cast includes such clever juveniles as William Tracy of "Shop Around the Corner" fame, Larry Nunn, from the Irene Rich radio show, and Margaret Early of "Forty Little Mothers." Other prominent in the proceedings include Ann Shoemaker, Francis Pierlot, Virginia Brissac, Elliott Carpenter, George Lessey, Enid Bennett, Harlan Briggs, Sarah Edwards, Milton Kibbee and Helen Jerome Eddy.

Basby Berkeley, who directed "Babes in Arms" and "Forty Little Mothers" directed the new picture. The dramatic climax in the radio station is marked by a lavish musical finale, featuring Gershwin's "Strike Up the Band" with specialties by Judy and June Preisser, a spectacular drum solo by Mickey in the "Drummer Boy" number, and many other comical embellishments.

"A Rainy Day," is the title of a funny comicolor cartoon to be exhibited on the same program with the popular Belle Newsreel.

With Gordon Jones, popular action hero, in the title role, Universal's "The Green Hornet," famous crime war serial of radio, will be exhibited at the Belle Theatre on the week-end.

Free Comic Books

At the Saturday matinee show the new Universal comic weekly will be given free to every boy and girl. A new issue of the free comic books will be given away every week-end matinee.

Excellent Show

Fun, romance and mystery abound in the excellent program now at the Belle. George Murphy and Brenda Joyce are featured in the uproarious romantic comedy "Public Deb. No. 1." "Charlie Chan's Murder Cruise" with Sidney Toler in the title role. Marjorie Weaver and Robert Lowery are the romantic interests in the story. "Vacation Time in Florida," in technicolor will also be exhibited.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was watching ma sewing on her electric sewing machine, and I said, Hay ma.

If you have anything to ask me, ask me, ma said.

Meaning she still doesn't enjoy being called Hay, and I said, Do I have to go to school whatever happens, ma?

Now dont ask mythological questions, your school was put there at great expense for your convenience and profit, and you ought to thank your lucky stars you live in an age of free education, ma said, and I said, Sure, ma, that's a way I do feel about it only I mean supposing in case of a flood, where houses were being washed away and everything, would you make me go even then, ma?

Now you know I'm not so unreasonable that you have to ask me a question like that, ma said. But a condition like that is scarcely in the realm of the possible, so I hardly think we need to let it bother our useless heads, she said, and I said, Well supposing it wasn't quite a flood, ma supposing the water was just high enough so I had to wear my gum boots, and supposing even then it leeked in over the top, would you make me go in that case, ma?

Naturelly I'd hardly allow you to endanger your permanent health for the sake of a day's education, ma said, and I watched her a while longer, saying, Well hay, ma, I mean gosh supposing the water was just high enough to come in over the tops of my rubbers what then, ma?

Now that's the end of supposing, just make up your mind that you're going to keep on going to school as usual and stop drowning yourself in such a fool's paradise for land sakes, ma said, and I said, Well anyways, ma, I just looked at the paper and it said rain tomorrow.

Wich it did being a pretty weak hope to look fallward to.

Station KDKA Celebrates 20th Birthday Nov. 2

Twenty years ago, on that date, the world's first broadcasting station, KDKA, was inaugurated in Pittsburgh by Westinghouse.

Although amateur and private transmissions had been "on the air" prior to that time, there had been no planned schedule of broadcasts suitable for general reception and no broadcasting station of a permanent or commercial character.

Dr. Frank Conrad, assistant chief engineer of Westinghouse, who may be considered the father of modern broadcasting, developed the idea from playing records over the air to friends and acquaintances. Scarcely aware of the far-reaching importance of the event, Westinghouse engineers carried out his ideas and created Station KDKA.

The first broadcast, which went on the air at midnight November 2nd, 1920, covered the election reports of President Warren G. Harding, interspersed with music supplied from phonograph records.

Many and vital have been the improvements made in the field of broadcasting since that time, but the entire industry and the public generally has reason to remember with gratitude the pioneering efforts which brought about the begining of radio broadcasting.

Italians Unleash Widespread Raids On Civilians

Strategic City of Salonika Hardest Hit With 59 Killed—No Military Targets Hit

Athens, Nov. 2.—(AP)— Italy, apparently making slow headway in her invasion of Greece, was reported today to have unleashed her air force on this little kingdom in a widespread series of raids which the Greek government said had killed or wounded almost 300 civilians.

The strategic city of Salonika was reported hardest hit in the sudden burst of aerial warfare, with 59 killed and 84 injured in four raids yesterday. The government said "generally, no military target was hit" and charged that "all the raids were directed against civilians".

Why The Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

Precipitations! Since rain or snow evaporates in part while falling, it is natural to suppose that precipitation increases with elevation. This is so up to the level where rain or snow first begins to fall, and that level varies, being higher in summer than in winter. Above that level precipitation decreases with altitude. In some places, like the British Isles, the highest mountains are not high enough for the maximum precipitation. On the other hand, some mountains extend much higher than the maximum level. There, grass will grow for grazing, but there is not enough water for forests. Such places receive enough rainfall in summer to tide them over the winter, when considerably less falls.

KENSINGTON PALACE BOMBED

Royal Residence Since Time of William III Was Recently Damaged, No One Injured

London, Nov. 2—(CP)—Authorities today allowed announcement that Kensington Palace, a royal residence from the time of William III, was damaged recently by incendiary bombs, but no members of the Royal family were there and no casualties resulted.

Princess Beatrice, Queen Victoria's daughter, also has quarters in the palace.

Lord Athlone was born there.

The palace was remodeled by Sir Christopher Wren after King William III acquired it. Formerly it had been known as Nottingham House. Queen Victoria was born in the palace in 1819.

Earl of Athlone Hears News

Ottawa, Nov. 2—(CP)—The Governor-General and Princess Alice learned some time ago from a friend in London of the damage to Kensington Palace by incendiary bombs, it was said at Government House today.

"Damage was not nearly as much as might have been expected," said a Government House spokesman.

Best news was that nobody was hurt, the spokesman said, adding "It seems to have been a lucky escape."

U. S. Election Result May be in Doubt Until Late Hour

New York, Nov. 2 (CP)—If Tuesday's presidential election turns out to be close, the result may be in doubt until late that night—possibly until early Wednesday morning—it was indicated today in a survey of vote-closing times across the United States.

In the 1936 election first returns showed such a pronounced trend toward President Roosevelt that as early as 9.15 p.m. newspapers began to come out with confident predictions that he had swept the country. Later returns only emphasized that a landslide was taking place and the President finally swept 46 of the 48 States.

However, even the most confident Democrats are not predicting a sweep of that nature this time. Consequently much attention centred upon the times that a positive trend may be expected.

If the election is close, the New York State vote will be of vital importance. But the New York polls will not close until 10 p.m. EDT and as much as two hours may be needed to establish the trend throughout the State.

Poll closings vary in time all over the country, but within comparatively minor limits. Generally speaking, the polls close between six and eight p.m. local time.

Germans Bomb British Convoy but Ships Emerge From Rising Mist Unharmed

London, Nov. 2 —(CP)— A bomb struck a crowded bus and probably killed several persons in a night raid on London, it was reported today as Britain's fighters beat off three day attacks on the capital.

The raiders, including some Italians, were pounced upon and scattered by patrols of Royal Air Force Spitfires which swooped from high cloud ambushes along the southeast coast.

The Air Ministry said seven raiders were shot down before noon, in addition to five downed by anti-aircraft gunners overnight.

In a morning air battle over Hythe, on the coast, two raiding planes were shot down, one crashing on land and the other in the sea.

NEW RULING IS PUT INTO EFFECT

Applications for Postponement of Training Must be Made Within Eight Days of Notification to Report

A new ruling whereby all applications for postponement of military training must be received within eight days of receipt of notification to report for medical examination was announced by headquarters of Division "C" National War Services recently.

The regulation was passed because of the large number of last-minute application during the first call, which disrupted the work of the divisional offices.

A total of 4,000 letters have been sent out to men of the 22-year-old class in Division "C" to report for medical examinations, this number being somewhat larger than 3,850 similar notifications which were sent out in the first group called. Of this number the 2,250 men called up will have to report at one of the three training centres in Division "C" by November 22nd.

It is not expected that there will be as many applications for postponement as when the first class was called up, because most of the farmer's sons have completed fall work.

Men who have reached the age of 21 since July 1, 1940 are not liable to immediate call, it was announced as their cases will not be dealt with until further instructions.

Berne, Nov. 2 (AP)—Land-locked Switzerland's entire sea-going merchant marine, totalling 17 freighters, found itself harborbound today because of the Italian-Greek war.

The Swiss chartered the freighters about a year ago for operation under the then-neutral Greek flag. They had British permission to pass Gibraltar and Italian permission to unload cargo at Genoa for rail transportation to Switzerland. Now Greece is a belligerent.

The Swiss war transport office announced that 'due to recent events" and "until further notice" the freighters plying between New York and Genoa must remain idle.

Negotiations are under way with Britain and Italy, however, for special treatment for these ships.

3 Planes, 14 Airmen Lost by Nazis for Each British Plane, Airman

Over 6,000 German Pilots, Observers, and Gunners Killed or Taken Prisoners, Air Ministry News Service Estimates, in Past 12 Weeks—Britain Lost Only 353 Pilots—'Gradual Weakening of German Effort in Spite of Continuously Changed Tactics'

London, Nov. 2 (CP).—In the past twelve weeks the Germans have lost three planes and fourteen airmen for every British plane and airman lost, the Air Ministry News Service said today and put Nazi losses at 2,433 bombers and fighters since Aug. 8.

The Germans' fighter and bomber losses habe been about equal, it said.

"If we allow the usual number of pilots, observers and gunners to the various types destroyed, over 6,000 German airmen have been killed or taken prisoners," the service said.

"The Fighter Command has lost only 353 pilots. The weekly figures reveal a gradual weakening of German effort in spite of continuously changed tactics.

In an attempt to crush British defences Sept. 15 the Germans lost 185 planes, the report stated, pointing to this as the record for a single day's fighting.

The next mass German attack was Sept. 27, it said, and on that day 133 planes, 91 of them fighters, were shot down. The proportion of German fighter escorts to bombers was four to one.

At that point the Germans changed their tactics, the Air Ministry report declared, gradually abandoning the use of Junkers dive bombers. Few such planes were seen until yesterday's raids on three British convoys.

472 Nazis Downed In Week.

The Germans launched a particularly heavy air attack on Oct. 7, sending over 1,000 bombers and fighters, it said, but 180 planes were bagged that day and the total for the week was 472, a record for seven days.

"Bombers visiting these shores during the daytime now are few and far between," the report said, "but in their place the Nazis are sending high-flying Messerschmitt 109 fighters carrying only a small bomb load. The fighter command now is defeating this menace.

"Even by sneaking across the coast at great height, usually five or six miles, only one or two during the day beat the gunners and fighters and reached London."

New York, Nov. 2 (AP).—A German language broadcast by the British Broadcasting Corporation today said a German expedition of fifty men had been captured in an unsuccessful attempt to seize the meteorological observation station at Greenland. The Norwegian patrol boat Fritjof Nansen made them prisoners ,the broadcast said.

(There was no immediate comment from any other sources on the incident.)

The broadcast, quoting a report from Stockholm, Sweden, said "for a long time the German air force has been experiencing the lack of exact weather forecasts, hindering successful air operations because Berlin did not get much support from the Danish and Norwegian personnel of the weather bureau at Greenland.

"Therefore it decided upon the capture of the wireless station in Greenland, or the erection of a new station under German control.

"An armed German expedition left Norway for Greenland, but was intercepted by the Fritjof Nansen when it reached the ice zone. The Germans are said to have offered no resistance."

(There are no Canadian troops stationed in Greenland, a Danish possession. The United States established a consular office there after Germany occupied Denmark.

'No Evidence of Panic' in Either Disaster Says Survivor

PO. Steward G. M. Kenny of Quebec Was on Fraser and Margaree When They Sank

HEARD BIG BANG

Hamilton, Bermuda, Nov. 1 (delayed) (CP).—Po. Steward G. M. McKenny of Quebec, survivor of the sinking of two Canadian destroyers, said today he saw "absolutely no evidence of panic" in either disaster.

McKenny was aboard H.M.C.S. Fraser when she went down off Bordeaux, France, last June with about 45 officers and men. He escaped death again in the sinking Oct. 22 of the destroyer Margaree, with 142 officers and men.

"I had just turned in and was sound asleep," he told interviewers, describing the Margaree sinking. "I heard a big bang and fell off my billet. Lockers fell all over me and Jim Wickes (leading officers' cook James Edward Wickes of Victoria) who slept over me landed on top of everything.

Diary Written By Washington Sold at $10,500

New York, Nov. 2 (AP).—A 4,880-word diary written by George Washington in Philadelphia in 1779 has been sold for $10,500 from the literary collection of the late John Gribbel of Philadelphia.

A 1776 bill for mustering troops under the command of Col. Henry Jones, signed by Button Gwinnett, Speaker of the Assembly of Georgia, and signer of the constitution, $5,500.

A two volume history of Rome by the Rev. J. Adams, published in Dublin in 1792 and bearing George Washington's signature, $1,500.

A 1,475 letter written by Americus Vespucius, for whom America was named, $1,200.

George Washington's 500-word plan for an attack on New York, written July 13, 1781, $1,150.

Total receipts for all three days of the sale, ending last night, were $144,239.

RAILWAY LINES IN CITY OF BERLIN HEAVILY BOMBED

Germany Says British Planes Bomb German-Held Amsterdam

London, Nov. 2 (CP)—Royal Air orce bombers last night carried out a "sustained and successful" attack on railway communications in Berlin, the Air Ministry reported today.

At the same time other bombers struck anew at the Krupp Armament Works in Essen, synthetic oil plants in Magdeburg and an industrial factory near Gelsenkirchen, the Air Ministry said.

Surprise Attack Say Nazis

Berlin, Nov. 2 (AP)—A surprise attack on Berlin by Royal Air Force raiders shortly after other British planes had bombed German-held Amsterdam, caught thousands of Berliners in cafes and on the streets last night and set the capital's defence guns thundering in a volume not often equalled here.

A communique today alleged at least 25 persons were killed in Amsterdam while "several" Berlin civilians were killed and injured.

The extent of damage in Berlin was not immediately disclosed.

At some points the surprise was so complete that numbers of Berliners were turned away from public refugees jammed to overflowing and had to take shelter in doorways until a lull permitted them to seek safer quarters or hurry home.

At one time early in the attack a British plane was caught in the searchlights and held there for a minute or so of harrowing fire, but apparently escaped. The official communique made no mention of any plane being shot down.

The communique claimed a military hospital at Amsterdam was damaged and 19 wounded German soldiers undergoing treatment there were allegedly killed, together with seven Netherlanders, residents in other parts of the city.

Ciano Leads Italian Fliers Says Report

Rome, Nov. 2 (AP)—The Stefani News and Propaganda Agency reported today that Italian air attacks on Greece are being led by Foreign Minister Ciano.

The Agency said Ciano headed the planes which bombed the Greek naval base of Salonika, the Fascist fliers dropping "many tons of explosives" on military and naval objectives which were "completely destroyed."

(A Greek communique said 59 persons were killed and 84 injured in Salonika. A church was hit and five fires started, but there was no military damage.)

Traffic Officer Saved From River By Motorist Probing Car Tracks

Owen Sound, Ont., Nov. 2 (CP)— Provincial Highway Traffic Officer William A. Melbourne might have drowned in the Indian River three miles north of here if Reuben Kirk, orchestra leader, had not obeyed an impulse to investigate automobile tracks leading off an embankment.

Melbourne was taken from the river late last night by a human chain, formed by Mr. and Mrs. Kirk and one of Kirk's players, Harry Parker, after investigation revealed him sitting on the side of his overturned car in the icy, swirling water.

The policeman, returning to Owen Sound on patrol work had swerved to avoid hitting a dog. His car skidded over the embankment into the river.

"It was pitch black and terribly cold," he said. "My first thought was that I was trapped and no one would ever know how it happened. Things looked pretty black until my shoulder came up against the window and I was able to smash my way clear."

Hindered by heavy clothes and chilled by the river, Melbourne managed to clamber onto the side of his car where he balanced himself until found by Kirk.

Kirk said the skid marks looked bad to him and he parked his car and took a flashlight to investigate.

Sliced-off Section Goes to Bottom In a Few Seconds

After Part of Margaree Had to be Sunk by Gunfire

(By Ford Baxter, Canadian Press Correspondent)

Hamilton, Bermuda, Nov. 1—(Delayed)—(CP)—All but one of the 142 men lost with the Canadian destroyer Margaree went down when the fore part of the ship dropped to the ocean floor, survivors told newspapermen today.

Those on the forward section, sliced from the after part by a merchantman the Margaree was escorting through the stormy north Atlantic night of Oct. 2, had virtually no chance.

Almost immediately after the Canadian destroyer, replacement for the collision-sunk Fraser, was hit about midnight, the high seas closed over the forward part of the boat, taking to the bottom the men of the Margaree who were sleeping or on duty there.

Among them was Cmdr. J. W. R. Roy of Ottawa, believed to have been on the bridge.

Everybody in the after section, tossed about in the Atlantic's combers, gained the safety of the unnamed merchant ship's broad deck except young Alfred Jones of

London Press Gives Much Space to Election

London, Nov. 2—(CP)—News of the United States presidential campaign completed today with war reports for the attention of a public eagerly watching the politics of a nation to which they look for planes and guns.

Although British commentators frequently say "no matter which side wins it's all right for us", the Press features news of the campaign second only to war developments.

A prominent headline in the News Chronicle informed readers today that "odds on Roosevelt are now 5 to 4", while a Daily Mail heading said: "Roosevelt and Willkie neck and neck".

The Times used 3,000 words to explain to readers the issues of the campaign in which, it said, "sordid and ignoble thing are being said and done".

Rabbit Tries to Kill Black Snake

Topeka, Kas., Nov. 2 (AP)—State game protector Art Benander noticed a rabbit jumping up and down and not getting anywhere. Investigation disclosed the little animal was trying to kill a black snake by kicking it. Benander finished the job and found Bunny had inflicted several cuts in the reptile's hide.

CONFERENCE CONSIDERED

Ottawa, Nov. 2.—(CP)—Possibilities of an Interprovincial Labor Conference to consider labor regulations with a view to obtaining greater production for war needs are being considered, well informed labor department sources said today.

Kingston Twp. May be Placed In Pegged Area

Kingston, Ont., Nov. 2.—(CP)—Possibility the township of Kingston might be included in the rent pegged areas now under consideration was indicated here today by Mr. Justice W. M. Martin, rental administrator of the Wartimes Prices and Trade Board.

Justice Martin heard a complaint from S. J. Burns, who said his rent had been raised from $20 to $25 a month but found the man lived outside the city.

"I will consider your case", said Justice Martin, "but I don't believe I have the authority to have your rent lowered". He said he would investigate rentals in the township and if increased rents are general, he might recommended that municipality to be included in the pegged districts.

Of the more than 30 cases heard yesterday, only one of "grossly increased" rent was revealed. That was the case of a woman living in a house where the rent was raised from $18 to $30. The rent was set at $18 pending an investigation.

JAP REPORTER GIVEN JAIL TERM

Singapore, Nov. 2 (CP)—Kitsuji Kashiwabara, Japanese newspaper reporter, was sentenced today to two months' imprisonment after pleading guilty to charges of receiving and recording information on the movements of British troops and planes. He denied, however, that he relayed such information to a Japanese press attache.

KHAKI UNIFORMS ISSUED TO UNIT

The conventional winter khaki battle dress uniforms worn by members of the Canadian Active Service Force were issued to the local N.P.A.M. unit on Friday evening. The khaki dress issued to the local unit during the summer was turned in by local members, when they were issued their new uniforms.

2 ALARMS ANSWERED BY FIRE DEPARTMENT

Two alarms were answered by the local fire department on Friday evening, both, however, for minor blazes. The first call came at 7.30 from the residence of Mr. A. Boudreau at 381 1-2 Front Street where the chimney was ablaze and the second alarm was rung in from the Reliance Machine and Tool Company Ltd., where an oil stove suddenly flared up and the workers, taking no chances on a serious blaze developing, called the firemen. No damage was reported as the result of either alarm.

KITTEN IS PLACED IN POSTAL BOX

A rather heartless prank on the part of callous youths who evidently considered it a timely Hallowe'en trick was brought to light yesterday, when a postal employee reported finding a kitten in a parcel box at the corner of Bleecker and Pine Streets on the night previous. Just how long the kitten had been in the box before the collector made his rounds and set it free is not known but to say the least it was a heartless trick calling for a stiff reprimand had the offenders been caught in the act.

THUMB IS CUT BY CIRCULAR SAW

While cutting wood with a circular saw, Thomas Anderson, 10 East Bridge St., sustained painful injuries to the thumb on his hand yesterday. The injured man was taken to the hospital and attended by Dr. Matheson. Mr. Anderson was operating a circular saw when his hand slipped and came in direct contact with the teeth, the thumb being severely lacerated.

LEFT HAND FINGERS ARE AMPUTATED

SCHOOL BOOKS AT MOUNTAIN VIEW ARE DESTROYED

As the result of wilful destruction of property at the Mountain View school on Hallowe'en the students were given an unexpected holiday yesterday. When the school was opened Friday morning to resume studies officials were greeted with the most malicious destruction of property in the history of the district, Provincial Police learned yesterday. Practically every copy and text book in the classroom had been tattered and torn beyond future use and the rooms were literally strewn with fragments of paper. Studies were abandoned for the day. Provincial Constables Robinson and Grayling investigated and later obtained the names of several boys, who will be charged with the malicious destruction of school property in a subsequent police court. Two of the ringleaders are said by police to be older boys attending Collegiate studies in Belleville.

MARLEY CLARKE, STIRLING SCHOOL WINS SCHOLARSHIP

Garland McKeown Awarded Third Prize in Same Scholarship

RECORD ESTABLISHED

Stirling, November 2,—(Special)—When word reached Principal John I. L. Good of Stirling High School this morning, that two Stirling candidates for the Carter scholarship had been successful, it was believed that Stirling High School had established a provincial record of winners in the competition for the past four years. During which period Stirling has produced three first prize winners, one second and one third.

1940 Winners Popular Students

Marley G. Clarke, announced as first prize winner for the County of Hastings, this year is one of the most popular students of the school. Brilliant in all branches of his studies he is also active in the many social activities of the school and an accomplished musician. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Clarke of Stirling. Second prize winner is Earl J. Varity of Tweed and Garland McKeown of Stirling High school is awarded third prize winner, the later being the son of John McKeown of Springbrook.

Merit Required

The Carter scholarship named under the will of the donor provides for the continuing of the award of three scholarships in each of twenty-five counties.

Provincial Record Established

With the official announcement of two more winners from the Stirling High school there is in the belief of local school board officials a provincial record set up for the past four years. During this time three first prize winners, one second and one third have come from the Stirling school. Ralph Campbell was 1st in 1937; Douglas Scott gained second in 1938, Richard Chard, first in 1930 and this year, Marley Clarke and Garland McKeown both of Stirling gained first and third honours respectively.

School Pride Justified.

No one in the Stirling district is more pleased with this fine showing than Principal John L. Good, B.A., who in thoroughness has directed the activities at the school during that time. The addition of the new wing housing the shopwork division and the household science rooms as well as the fine new gymnasium has also been completed in that time. Through the diligent work of a capable Board of Education, Stirling is now seeing the results of complete educational facilities and carefully selected teachers. The teaching staff of the Stirling High School included Mr. John L. Good, B.A., principal and teacher af mathematics and physics; Elgin R. Munday, B.S.A., graduate of Toronto University specialist in agriculture and teacher of biology, chemistry and boys' physical education; Miss Gladys Kippen, B.A., graduate of Toronto University, teaching English, modern history, girls' physical education; Miss Helen Lacey, B.H.Sc., graduate of Toronto University, specialist in home economics, art, Canadian and ancient history; Miss Margaret Walt, B.A., graduate of Queen's University, teaching French and Latin; Miss Jeanette Workman, B.A.; A.T.C.M., graduate of Queen's University, Toronto Conservatory of Music, specialist in vocal music, teaching music, French and general subjects; Mr. C. A. Wells, principal of Stirling Public School, holder of general shopwork certificate, teaches shopwork for boys.

P.S. Achievements Prominent.

Not in the least overshadowed by the excellent results shown in the high school, Stirling public school under Principal C. A. Wells have achievements to their credit for which they are justly proud. The warden's medal for the high school entrance pupil of highest standing for the County of Hastings has been awarded to Stirling pupils for two years in succession. Last year this honor was gained by Catherine Wright, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Wright and this year the medal goes to Betty Lucas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Lucas. In directing the public school study course Mr. Wells is capably assisted by Miss Madeline Grey, Miss Nellie Montgomery, Miss Gertrude Poynter and Mrs. C. A. Wells. The progress of the pupils and the promotion lists give evidence of thoroughness in this branch of school work.

All credit is due to the fine school board of the village under whose jurisdiction this work is carried on and the parents are more than pleased with the care taken in the selection of teachers for their children.

Toronto Scottish Band Grateful

'We Have Never Played to a More Appreciative Audience as Those Present at Different Services,' Says Band Sergeant Wood

October 30, 1940.

To the Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.
Dear Sir:

On behalf of the Toronto Scottish Regimental Band I am writing you requesting that space be given in your paper allowing us to express our very sincere thanks to the people of Belleville for the reception given us last week end during our series of concerts at the Tabernacle United Church.

We venture to say that we have never played to a more appreciative audience as those present at the different services. We also wish to congratulate Mr Reg Hinchey on his arrangement of "There'll Always Be An England" which was featured during the week-end and which will be used extensively by us in Toronto.

There is no question in our minds but that the people of Belleville are a very friendly group of people and the kind friends of Tabernacle United Church certainly demonstrated that fact.

Once again we say, thank you.

Yours truly,
Toronto Scottish Regimental Band.

VICTORIAN ORDER OF NURSES
Annual Membership Campaign and Appeal for Funds
HOUSE-TO-HOUSE CANVASS
November 4th to 9th

The Victorian Order of Nurses is a visiting nursing organization offering skilled nursing service to the sick in their own homes at moderate cost. It is a Community Service. No case is refused because of inability to pay.

OUR LAST YEAR'S RECORD IN BELLEVILLE
1142 Patients cared for
6623 Visits to patients
3682 Free bedside nursing visits
2410 Visits to Mothers and Babies

HELP STRENGTHEN CANADA'S SECOND LINE OF DEFENSE THROUGH PROTECTING THE HEALTH OF THE HOME AND THE COMMUNITY.

All monies raised are for the benefit of Belleville Citizens.

HELP SEND THE NURSE TO ALL WHO NEED HER.

$1,000 Needed By V.O.N. to Continue Work

Annual Membership Campaign and Appeal for Funds Will Start on Monday

GIVE GENEROUSLY

During the coming week, members of the Belleville branch of the Victorian Order of Nurses, together with other interested citizens, will be at work throughout the city in the annual membership campaign and appeal for funds for the order. Volunteer workers will assist in a house-to-house canvass and the V.O.N. is counting on public generosity to reach the 1940 objective of $1,000.

The cost of a nursing visit to the home is $1, but no case is refused because of inability to pay. In 1939, in Belleville, 1142 patients were cared for. 6623 visits were made, 3682 of which were free and 2119 with partial fee. Contributions provide veritable sickness insurance and care for those who are unable to provide for themselves in time of need. An appeal to the citizens of Belleville to assist in this worthy cause is now being made. It belongs to the community and everyone is privileged to use its services.

Provides Many Services

Through the services and efforts of the Victorian Order of Nurses, working in co-operation with the medical officer of health, the Belleville medical association and other interested bodies, Belleville is provided with a free well-baby clinic, and there has been established during the past year a pre-school immunization clinic where children of pre-school age can be inoculated against diptheria and whooping cough. A beginning has been made in the field of providing dental care for those who otherwise are unable to obtain it. All these humanitarian community projects will be continued and will continue to grow with your help.

Need Generous Response

The committee appeals earnestly to the citizens of Belleville to make their contribution to this great community nursing service as generous as their circumstances will permit. If the canvasser fails to contact you, your donation may be sent to the V.O.N. office, City Hall, or telephone 2360 and it will be called for.

V. O. N. Campaign Gets Under Way

A meeting of all volunteer canvassers for the coming V.O.N. campaign was held in the ladies' parlor at the Y.M.C.A. last evening. Despite the inclement weather there was a good attendance.

Chairman Taylor Franklin outlined plans to the canvassers. The city has been divided into four districts with the following group captains, Mrs. Charles Cameron, Mrs. Douglas Cleland, Mrs. A. Gilroy and Mrs. F. Foley heading their respective districts. An objective of one thousand dollars has been set which with other sources of revenue will be needed to properly carry on the work of the coming year. Canvassers will make a house to house canvass next week.

Mr. P. C. McGuire, president of the local branch of the V.O.N., complimented the assembled group on the enthusiasm displayed which augurs well for the success of the campaign. Miss Bessie Soutar, nurse in charge, in a brief address brought a few case histories to the attention of the group, illustrating the work of the nursing service.

Canvassers were asked to report to their group captains promptly at the close of the campaign.

(Niagara Falls, N.Y.)

Word received in the city today announced the death of Marvel C. Haight, 2960 Macoon Ave., Niagara Falls, N.Y., in that city on Friday evening. Mr. Haight was a former resident of Belleville but has resided in the United States for many years. He was a life member of Eureka Lodge A. F. & A. M. No. 283 of this city and will be buried Monday under Masonic direction of La Salle Lodge No. 1049, Niagara Falls, N.Y.

OIL BARGAINING CONTINUES

Tokyo, Nov. 2 (AP)—Ichizo Kobayashi, special Japanese envoy to the Netherlands East Indies, asserted today on his return here from Batavia, Java, that a "certain understanding" had been reached in discussions by which Japan seeks to obtain East Indian oil. He added, however, that there was "no final conclusion."

Kobayashi said in an interview that Netherlands bargaining was being conducted on a purely business basis.

Police Blotter

A motor accident on Front Street early this morning resulted in the arrest of William Hill, Shannonville, who is being held without bail on charges of violation of the L.C.A.

Police allege a motor car driven by Hill collided with another automobile, being driven in the opposite direction by Harold Reid, 20 East Moira Street, causing considerable property damage to both vehicles.

Malcom Carson, Trent Road, procured the loan of a bicycle from a school chum yesterday and parked the bike on Station Street while making a nearby call. When he returned the bicycle had completely disappeared, the lad anxiously told police.

Peterborough police reported the theft of a 1936 model Ford coupe bearing Ontario licence plates number 134-U-9.

Detective Fred Isard was busied today investigating several post-Hallowe'en reports of petty damage to local property. Broken window panes in a vacant house proved the most serious, however.

LONDON PLEASED

London, Nov. 2 (CP)—Authorized sources said today that a speech by President Ismet Inonu of Turkey yesterday was welcomed warmly in official British circles, which "noted with profound satisfaction" the re-affirmation of Turkey's alliance with Britain.

English Women Meet Wartime Problems With Faith and Courage Speaker Tells Canadian Club

Radiating that optimism and confidence which typify the indomitable spirit of the women of England in any hour of crisis, Barbara Cartland, distinguished writer, playwright and commentator, who is in Canada for a short time with her three children, addressed the annual luncheon meeting of the Women's Canadian Club at the Queens Hotel yesterday and her words will be an inspiration and a goal for all who had the pleasure of hearing her. Miss Cartland, who is in private life Mrs. Hugh McCorquodale, comes from a family which has served the Empire in the army, in the diplomatic field and in the ranks of the government. Her uncle is in command of the British forces in Malta, her cousin is Minister to Greece, her brothers and her husband have had distinguished careers in the army. Miss Cartland has played her part in public life and war service and in speaking to the women of Canada about war time problems she has the resources of wide experience, training and study from which to draw.

Thrilled with Spirit Here

Her tour of Canada has thrilled her with the realization of the extraordinary spirit of endeavour and of really hard work that she has encountered throughout the Dominion. It has made her feel, as the women in England feel, a sense of intimacy, of going to victory hand in hand, not with "lovely neighbours" as Canadians have seemed to the people of England, but as one with them.

Women in Canada may feel that theirs is the duller part, the knitting and sewing and sending of comforts. But this, the speaker assured her audience, was a very vital factor in war, keeping the women and children happy and busy and the men comfortable. When she returns to England in a few weeks' time she will be proud to tell the people there of the magnificent work of the Canadian women.

"On behalf of England," the speaker said, "I say 'thank you very much.' Please go on with what you are doing and don't relax."

Yesterday and Today

In her address on the theme "Yesterday and Today," Miss Cartland showed the role the Englishwoman has played in her country's development in the past ten years. The patience and adaptability of the women of the country have done a great part in carrying England through, the post war difficulties, the false boom, the depression period, when England seemed to some to be on the verge of collapse, and through the trying days of the housing project.

Referring to the housing plan she pointed out that on the surface the principle of moving the people of the slum areas into model homes in newly erected blocks accommodating fifteen to twenty thousand establishments, seemed a good thing. In reality it left the women, who in villages turned to the lady of the "big house" for help and counsel in time of need, or to town organizations, dependent upon themselves and their neighbours who were of their own status for aid in an emergency. The women were very lonely, they missed their churches, for in many cases they were living in these areas for five years before a church was built, and they had to struggle along on the very tiny income of about twelve dollars a week.

"The courage of these women was amazing," Miss Cartland said. "They found a new strength within themselves to stand up to the loneliness and the difficulties confronting them. Visiting them, one was ashamed of ever having grumbled. The same women who could stand up and take these new conditions are now standing up and taking the bombing. They have faith within themselves and they have that firm belief that some one can be found to save them; that the hour always breeds the man."

Man of the Hour

In August of 1931 when disaster following depression faced England, it was a quiet little man travelling down in a coach as an ordinary passenger from Scotland who sought out Ramsay MacDonald to form a National Government, who saved England in that hour. He was King George V. who proved himself not a figurehead but a real man who knew the needs of his people and had their interests very much at heart. He was the man of that hour and when the history of this war is written," the speaker added, "his son, who also works quietly and in the background, will be credited with a great part in looking after the people of his Empire."

Once again the faith of the people of Britain is justified for today's hour has bred Winston Churchill.

"I have known Winston Churchill for many years," continued Miss Cartland. "He will see us through. He is victory personified. Even to look at him, to meet him, makes one realize there will never be defeat, not till the last man, woman and child has gone down fighting. We are very confident now of victory. We believe that the tide has turned. We are certain in England that is only a question of how long now before victory is achieved."

Time of Waiting

Miss Cartland told of the keen interest the women of England have always taken in politics and world affairs. They watched the developments of Munich with apprehension. Women felt it was a false triumph. They went from crisis to crisis until war was declared. Here they had to face a difficult task that of sending their children to safety zones in the country. This done they were confronted with the hardest task of all, waiting. Waiting night after night for months, in the uniforms of their defence organizations, they were ready for action that did not come. But the women of England have been waiting for many years and they know how to do it. They stuck to this hard task relentlessly. Then followed the ghastly drive into Belgium and its sinister aspect and events speeded up until Dunkirk. Once again women had to wait, this time for a telephone message or a doorbell announcing the safe arrival home of their loved ones, or the silence that brought it own grim message.

Miracle of Dunkirk

"It was a miracle that saved the British army at Dunkirk and don't let anyone ever try to tell you differently. It was a miracle direct from God, that dead, calm sea never before experienced in the Channel. After Dunkirk we can never doubt that God is with us, and that we will win in the end."

As an added sorrowful task for the women of England came the parting with their children who were bound for overseas. They appreciated the fine gesture of the people here who were so generous, hospitable and kind to receive their tiny children in their homes. They will further appreciate it when they hear of the marvellous way in which the children are treated, and of their happiness. Yet mothers felt that inevitable wrench of parting, that every mother can understand.

"Perhaps some of you women say we are too strict in the discipline of our children," commented Miss Cartland. "But I beg of you not to relax that discipline of our children and of yours. It was just that discipline and the obedience it developed that made it possible for so many children to be saved from the City of Benares, as they instinctively obeyed the command of their elders. The same discipline takes the children down in perfect order to the bomb shelters, the babies singing as they go. Our discipline calls out what is within. Hitler's is superimposed.

"And now let me tell you what you can really do in this war, what is of vital importance," concluded the speaker. "The women of the world today cannot only help end the war but help build up years of peace and reconstruction ahead by treasuring the faith, that is them and giving it as a heritage to the next generation. We think of our religion as deep and sacred, even secret, yet we know that it is faith and faith alone that has carried us through. We are fighting with God. We must give to children faith that will make them stand up to the future. You who have a real desire to be certain that this torture, this agony and horror will never be on us again and are at this time doing wonderful work for the Empire, will fail us now if you do not teach your children faith in God. Give them that faith which will triumph over all adversities; that will bring not only victory over Hitler, but peace, dignity and love of God."

Mrs. C. E. Argue, president of the Club, who introduced the speaker in a very charming manner, expressed the appreciation of her audience for her moving message. Mrs. Argue explained for the new members present the war work of the Women's Canadian Club which in its national fees contributed to the fund which would provide speakers to entertain and educate the men in training camps and in the defence forces. Belleville Club was particularly active in the work of the Red Cross, having the responsibility of handling and distributing the wool, inspecting, packing and shipping all Red Cross material.

The luncheon proved a most successful function and concluded with the singing of the National Anthem, Mrs. Leo B. Riggs acting as accompanist in the absence of Mrs. McColl.

Nursing care is given to Medical, Surgical and Chronic Cases on a visit basis, by the Victorian Order Nurse and this care is always given under the direction of the family physician. So far this year 2,044 medical and surgical visits have been made to Belleville patients.

NO ONE IS REFUSED CARE BECAUSE OF INABILITY TO PAY.

V. O. N. CAMPAIGN DATES ARE: November 4th. to 9th.

All contributions for the Membership Campaign are greatly appreciated by the organization.

A. C. Dixon, Field Secretary, Outlines Red Cross Program

Bonarlaw, Nov. 2.—At a meeting of the Rawdon Red Cross Society held at Harold Town Hall on Wednesday evening of this week Mr. A. C. Dixon, Field Secretary of the Canadian Red Cross Society of Toronto, guest speaker, urged his listeners to make every dollar go as far as possible in this great work. To a fairly large and representative audience he outlined in detail various phases of the work of the Canadian Red Cross explaining exactly how the comforts for soldiers were delivered to the commanding officers of army and by them through the various channels until they were received by the men who most needed them. No soldier can get anything from the Red Cross except in this way and it is impossible for any soldier to buy anything. He branded as fifth column activities the lie that has been circulated to the effect that some soldiers have bought Red Cross socks. Answering a question from one of the audience Mr. Dixon stated that we are absolutely certain than comforts sent to prisoners of war in Germany are actually received by those for whom they are intended. This is one agreement the Germans have not torn up as a scrap of paper. A neutral committee inspects concentration camps and reports on food, clothing, comforts and hospitalization treatment.

Mr. Dixon believes this war will last through 1943 or longer and this Red Cross work is just beginning. He also spoke of their work during the post-war period, the looking after an expected two hundred and fifty thousand evacuees, the sending of anti-tetanus units overseas by bomber, and many other interesting details.

At the request of Mrs. G. E. Thompson, president of Rawdon Red Cross, Mr. Bert Bedford, Reeve of Rawdon, acted as chairman. Rev. Canon W. G. Swayne opened the meeting with prayer and after the National Anthem, Mr. Bedford outlined the purpose of the meeting. Although called for the purpose of receiving reports and election of officers upon learning from Mr. Dixon that the fiscal year of the Red Cross Society ends Dec. 31, a resolution was adopted that the present officers carry on the work until that date and that a meeting be called early in January for receiving reports and elections, and any other business that might arise. The present officers, Mrs. Geo. E. Thompson, president; Mrs. Carl Clancy, vice-president; Mrs. W. J. Barlow, secretary, and Mrs. J. B. Thompson, treasurer, kindly consented to continue until such meeting is held. Mr. J. P. Baker contributed a solo accompanied by Mrs. W. G. Swayne at the piano the song naturally being "There'll Always Be An England", and the audience joined heartily in the chorus.

$300,000 WORTH EQUIPMENT LOST

Montreal, Nov. 1—(CP) — The Salvation Army lost more than $300,000 worth of equipment and supplies in its withdrawal from France after the German invasion, Col. George Walter Peacock, Chief Secretary of the Salvation Army in Canada, said today on his arrival here from a tour of the Maritime Provinces.

OTHER NEWS

Picton, November 2.—Mrs. David Young has part of an incendiary bomb as a souvenir of the present conflict. It is in the form of a piece of molten lead and was sent by her husband, Cpl. Young, of Hastings and Prince Edward regiment.

The bomb fell near the Medical Corps' tent and exploded but did no damage.

The Mission Church is a busy place these days as fall activities are in full swing under the direction of Mrs. C. Ball, Reg.N.

Last night the mothers of the Mission held a Hallowe'en party. On Wednesday next, the L.T.L., Maple Leaves and Cubs will have such a party.

On October 23, a joint meeting of the 4th Picton Troop Boy Scouts and Cubs was held under Scout Master Donald Walters and Lady Cub Master, Mrs. Ball. Two boys, who had been chums, were promoted to Cubs, the growing up exercises being held. A pot luck lunch was enjoyed.

This week, the pipes of the Mission fell down and thirteen sections will be needed at a cost of $8.45 and a bazaar on Saturday will help raise funds for this.

IS MAIN ISSUE IN U.S. CLOUDED?

Political Observers Wonder Whether Mass of Incalculable Factors Will Weigh Heavily

'STRANGE CAMPAIGN'

By R. J. ANDERSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Nov. 2 (CP).—Political observers wonder whether a mass of incalculable factors is beclouding the main issues in the United States presidential election and the possibility developed today that victory may go to the side most efficiently organized to get its supporters to the polls.

Some of the campaign sideshows are these: Throwing of eggs, tomatoes and other missiles at the Republican nominee, Wendell Willkie, charges and counter-charges of "smear" tactics, the "kneeing" of a negro policeman in New York City. These are only side issues but are held likely by veteran observers to cause many voters to lose sight of the main election controversy, the third term and foreign policy.

Willkie's Whirlwind Tour.

Capitalizing every "break", Willkie has conducted a whirlwind tour of the country, making more than 500 speeches, travelling some 18,000 miles by train, 8,000 by plane and 1,500 by automobile. His last major address will be given in Madison Square Garden tonight.

Republicans say the Willkie cause undoubtedly has benefited by the incidents in which irresponsible persons threw vegetables in his direction. Both he and his wife were struck by eggs in Chicago. But the extent of the Republican swing caused by such incidents is imponderable.

James Sloan, negro policeman, suffered a groin injury last Monday night in an altercation that developed when police attempted to prevent Stephen Early, presidential secretary and a group of newspapermen from boarding the presidential train. Sloan alleged he was kicked. Early said he "gave the knee" to one of a group of officers who shoved him.

Early has apologized but whether the incident will affect any part of the large negro vote is another unpredictable factor.

J. L. Lewis' Advocacy.

Also uncertain is the extent to which John L. Lewis' advocacy of Mr. Willkie will affect the vote of his Committee of Industrial Organizations, which claims 4,000,000 members. The C.I.O. supported President Roosevelt in 1936 when he swept all but two states.

The President has yet to reply to Lewis. Last night, speaking in the high-ceilinged hall of the Brooklyn Academy of Music, Mr. Roosevelt charged that an "unholy alliance" has been formed in the Republican party by "the extreme reactionary and the extreme radical elements in this country," they having no common ground except to "produce dictatorial ends".

Strange Campaign, Says Roosevelt.

Starting a final, intensive 24-hour campaign through vital New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio, Mr. Roosevelt said this was "a strange campaign" in which, on "almost the day of election", it was "still impossible to determine what are the principles of the opposition party". He declared "vast quantities of Republican campaign literature are distributed by organizations which make no secret of their admiration for the dictatorship form of government."

Earlier, speaking from his campaign train parked overnight in New Jersey, Mr. Willkie accused the President of "deceptive optimism" in declaring at Boston that the United States is making "very rapid progress" toward a goal of 50,000 planes a year. He contended that "anybody who knows anything about production will understand that after years of neglect and abuse of industry by the new deal that goal cannot be reached short of a period of years."

BEAVER DRIVE FARMER OFF FARM

Deputy Minister D. J. Taylor Says He Has a Problem on His Hands

Toronto, Nov. 1 — Harried by complaints of beavers cutting this and damming that, David J. Taylor, Deputy Minister of Fish and Game, yesterday offered a monument from a grateful government to the person who invents some simple way of controlling their actions on private property.

Funds for the monument, he intimated, would be drafted from the annual sale of seized beaver pelts, which yesterday brought in some $18,000 to the department. Last year's sale of illegally trapped pelts amounted to about $20,000. The pelts are sold to the highest bid received in a sealed tender.

"Mind you," said Mr. Taylor, "we are not against beavers. They represent the backbone of Ontario's fur trade, and besides a beaver is a Canadian emblem—busy as a beaver and all that, you know."

But here is a sample of the trouble beavers cause. Recently a couple, wandering from no one knows where, got into Premier Hepburn's private little lake on his farm near St. Thomas and chawed down some willows on which he placed considerable value.

The wife of a Toronto lawyer, with fire in her eyes, not so long ago declared beavers were cutting down every tree at their summer place, which is situated in a closed area.

"We thought she had something," recalled Mr. Taylor. "She was painting and she said she stuck some of the paint on a half-chewed-down tree. The beavers didn't come after that tree, so she painted the trunks of more trees. Then she advised us about the paint and we shipped in more paint and one of our observers painted the trunks of all the trees he could find. We thought she was going to get the monument, because the beavers wouldn't eat the painted bark.

"But then the beavers got smart and they cut down the trees as usual, spitting out the painted bark, and then when the trees were lying flat they went along and ate the bark where it wasn't painted."

On Thursday the Deputy Minister received a plaintive note from a Northern Ontario farmer. Two years ago, wrote the farmer, two beavers came along a small river which bisects his farm. He thought that was wonderful, and he guarded them from trappers.

But in two years they multiplied exceedingly. "They have made several dams, flooded out my pasture fields, made the river so wide and deep that I can neither drive through it nor make a bridge over it, and I can't even plant a crop on my land across the river, which is the best land I have," he wrote.

"This fellow," explained Mr. Taylor, "two years ago thought he had a pair of swell pets. Now they are chasing him off his farm."

He said an overseer would be sent in to the farm next spring with a pack of dynamite. "He will blow down the dams every day until the beavers get tired of building them up and go away. It's all we can do," said the Deputy Minister.

Barbara Allen (Vera Vague) Billy Gilbert and Elizabeth Risdon as they appear in the musical comedy "Sing, Dance, Plenty Hot," which opens next at the McCarthy Theatre. "The Secret Seven" featuring Florence Rice, will be the co-feature.

Would Refuse Licences To Those Declining to Conform With Statutes

Victoria, Nov. 2 (CP)—Legislation which would permit the Government to refuse Provincial licences to any person declining to conform with Dominion or Provincial statutes is being drafted for presentation to the British Columbia Legislature, it was learned yesterday.

The measure would force aliens or disaffected groups to comply with existing laws such as National Registration and registration of firearms.

A company is being organized under government supervision to develop the nitrogen fixation industry in Spain to supply that country with agricultural fertilizers.

SURPRISE BLOW TO ITALY

The Royal Air Force delivered a smashing blow at the Italian war industry when bombers roared over the great industrial centre of Naples in the far south of Italy on Thursday night and hit the railroad station, oil tanks and refineries according to the official communique by the British Air Ministry.

The Italian military authorities must have been surprised by the invasion of their southland by British bombers for the work was most effectively done. The planes were able to 'pin-point" their targets as the bombers came over in three waves and swooped down as low as two thousand feet of the city rooftops. The surprise is indicated by the "slight and ineffective" ground defence the Italians brought into play.

The British blows were heavy, the first attackers concentrated on the oil refinery and group of storage tanks at Poggia Reale, on the southern outskirts of the city, the second on the railroad station and junction and the third on anti-aircraft batteries and searchlights, silencing one battery.

The brilliant manoeuvre which took place a thousand miles farther from Britain than the raids which have been made on Northern Italy contrasts sharply with the Italian bombing of Malta since Italy entered the war. Though the Italians have attacked the place again and again from the air as far as is known they have left no important marks of their visits.

Whence the British bombers came is not disclosed. It is said that the nearest base is this very Malta which Italy has labored so strenuously and so ineffectively to blot out.

The attack on the Naples objectives is an achievement which has caused very heavy damage and serves to give the Fascists an uneasy feeling in knowing that their country is so accessible to attack from the air.

Italy is, of course, particularly vulnerable to attack from the sea on account of its immensely long and deeply indented coastline which creates a vast problem of defence.

MUSIC IS ESSENTIAL

Music is especially desired by the people in war time. Those who attend the concerts in aid of war effort of various organizations realize how potent is martial music and music that is not so martial. The visit of the Toronto Scottish band to the city last week-end for services in the Tabernacle United Church was welcomed by musical lovers in great numbers.

Windsor Star says of music: "Music is one of the great influences of mankind. The life of it is inherent in all humanity. It throbs from the tom-toms of the jungle and it rings from the mighty symphonies of our great cities. It sounds the joys and sorrows, the hopes and despairs of the race.

"In times of darkness, it becomes an even more potent force. It can exert a great moralizing effect, and those who would let it die because there is more serious business at hand have a false viewpoint towards life. By all means let us continue to have music in our lives, to help us over the rough and sad places."

Many smaller centres have bands and those communities are fortunate to possess men musically trained who are willing to give their time to practice and to public appearances for the sake of music and its inspiring influence upon the people.

Music is a food of the spirit and mind of the people. It creates strength, restores flagging spirits and interest. It builds up. It is shown when a band plays in a procession or when the organ and the choir participate in a church service, or when the people sing. Music has its place in societies and clubs. Without it they would not have nearly as much interest as they have when music is on the program.

HALLOWE'EN SANELY OBSERVED

This year there was a sane and happy Hallowe'en observance in Belleville. Hundreds upon hundreds of the younger people and youngsters participated, followed the custom of visiting homes and receiving gifts of candy and nuts, many wore costumes in which some care had been taken and everywhere was the spirit of good will, not of destructiveness.

This is a very happy result. Everyone is happier, those who kept up the high festivities of the night and those whose homes were visited by the masquerading guests. It seemed this year that there was the spirit of a spontaneous movement towards a saner Hallowe'en than had been. Parents had advised the young to conduct themselves with restraint, and the young and the older exercised the best judgment and avoided causing damage or destruction.

As if by instinct everyone felt that this year there was going to be a saner celebration than usual. And so it turned out to be. The property owner did not need to fear a havoc of devastation. Wartime sanity is credited with the improvement.

The idea of a feast of wild disorder and licence to commit offences against property rights did not manifest itself, but a mood of genial enjoyment was manifest. There were pleasant indoor parties for children and for their elders, there was festivity to mark the time of the ancient pagan festival. But the ghosts that walked the city streets and knocked at the doors were good natured ghosts who were getting a great deal of pleasure out of being pleasant and happy ghosts or masqueraders instead of mean ghosts.

Most of the offences in the past have been due to thoughtlessness rather than a will to destroy, is the general view. Thursday night's "Hallowe'en jokes" were good natured "jokes", not inspired by malice or ill-will.

October 31st., 1940, will be remembered as a night when Belleville folk showed that they realized that democracy and good citizenship about which so much has been said in these war days forbid unlawful and violent acts and destruction of property.

And everyone was happier.

Neutrality Speaks

(Windsor Star)

If Hitler and Mussolini are capable of giving their attention to the significant utterances of public men in the democracies, they have much to ponder in the speech delivered by Secretary of State Cordell Hull of the United States to the National Press Club at Washington. Thinly hidden in the middle of that address was a definite notice served on the aggressive tyrants which indicates that the United States is ready for action whenever it becomes appropriate.

The Axis leaders probably have found some comfort in the renewed assurance of President Roosevelt, that the United States will not engage in war unless attacked. To them, this probably indicated that, until they actually laid siege to American shores, the United States would not come into the fight.

Mr. Hull's words should show them them how wrong they are. He plainly intimated what the American Government would consider "attack."

"They proceed," said Mr. Hull, referring to the dictator nations, "to warn all peaceful nations they must remain strictly neutral until an invading force is actually crossing their borders."

The very saying of it indicates that Mr. Hull—and he, of course, speaks for the Administration —refuses to accept this concept of neutrality. It is open notice that Hitler and Mussolini cannot do anything they choose to do, short of actually attacking the Amedican coast, and still expect the United States to consider her neutrality respected. There are ways in which that country can be attacked without a direct assault-at-arms upon her coast, and Mr. Hull plainly warns that he realizes this.

Whether the United States comes into the war is her own business, but this frank utterance by the Secretary of State certainly shows that she is not going to wait and be a second Czecho-Slovakia or Rumania.

A PRAYER

A PRAYER Niaga - EDITOR

Prayer that the worst calamity of all may be averted was uttered by one of the little English guests, the six-year-old daughter of a British soldier, who is with a Montreal family, reports The Fort William Times-Journal. She prays every night:

"Dear God, bless mummy and daddy and all the soldiers and sailors and airmen. And, dear God, please take good care of Yourself because if YOU are bombed, we are all sunk."

Bathing Customs

Bathing customs vary the world over, says the Moose Jaw Times-Herald. North America has more bathtubs than all the rest of the world put together. Ninety-five per cent of all these utilities are found in the western continent.

But the Finns have their sauna, one room for dressing and another for bathing. They heat stones in a big stove, then splash the water on the stones, raising a great steam. They sit in this steam, rub themselves with epsom salts or whip themselves with the branches of trees and then take a plunge into a snowbank.

The Japanese are daily bathers in water at 120 deg. F. Cold baths are only for patients. The private bathtub of a Jap family is in full view of the street, and the public baths accommodate both sexes without any embarrassment.

Bathing in Rome has fallen off from the days of the Emperor Diocletian. Gone are the days when a Roman bath occupied 50 or 60 acres with marble tubs and modern conveniences. Nowadays it takes 15 minutes to half an hour to get the water heated while the tubber sits shivering in an icy atmosphere.

Rough Tubs in Germany

The Germans are away behind in bathing facilities. The older German houses are lacking in modern conveniences. The tubs often have corrugated bottoms, which give the sitter-down a surprise. There are plenty of public baths in the larger cities but soap is non-existent. The towels are large enough for the mainsail of a yacht.

The Lapps and Eskimos save themselves a lot of trouble; they never bathe. They are on a similar footing with the Lamas and Buddhist priests of India. The latter never bathe nor wash their faces, so that in the course of life they are clothed in a strata of filth.

In India the average native bathes in the nearest river, bathing being a part of his religion. The better class bathe under primitive conditions, and if there is a bathroom one must watch out for the venomous snakes which conceal themselves in sponges.

The Arab eschews water; he rubs himself with the sand of the desert. When the native Ethiopian desires a bath he drives the cows, goats and sheep out of the river and takes possession. The European living in that country contents himself with the historic bowl and pitcher.

In dry places of southwest Africa bathing is expensive. A four-gallon tin of water costs $1 and each additional one 25 cents. The water is not wasted; it is used to satisfy the thirst of the plants about.

In Belgium, the rentier of an apartment is obliged to instal his own fixtures, and when he bails out he takes them with him.

In the old houses of the English water is lugged in cans from the basement to the attic and after used is carried down again. The newer houses have baths, and 4,000 of the better hotels have bathrooms, either adjacent to rooms or on each floor. But they are scrupulously clean and well-appointed. The average Englishman would sooner go without his breakfast than his morning cold bath.

Every 18 months in Russia

Russia is an expensive place for the bather. A bathtub costs 2,000 roubles—the cost of a grand piano. Soap is unheard of, and the average Russian bathes once in 18 months. In apartment houses the tub is commonly used as a convenient receptacle for coal or vegetables. Sanitary conditions in Spain are abominable. They spend too much money on revolutions to have any left for modern conveniences.

In Paris, only 25 per cent of the population have private baths, but there are over 100 public baths, each with 20 or more tubs. The average Parisian takes three baths a year, but statistics say that Paris is one of the cleanest cities on the continent. As matters stand at present the major portion of the world's population is an unwashed army.

Retreat From Nanning Emphasizes Jap's Weakness in China War

Japan's easy victories in Indo-China have obscured an apparently growing weakness in the face of a more resolute foe. The Chinese recapture of Nanning emphasizes this weakness.

Nanning, a strategically important city in Kwangsi, northwest of Indi-China is the first provincial capital which the forces of Chiang Kai-shek have been able to reclaim from the invader. When the Japanese captured it a year ago they predicted an immediate westward drive deep into the vital province of Yunnan and the eventual destruction of China's Burma Road. They never got beyond Pinyang, a few miles north of Nanning, and have since held the capital only with the greatest difficulty. Now, in announcing their withdrawal, they declare its further occupation is "meaningless" in view of their entrenchment on French territory. Paradoxically, they threaten to return and destroy the city if the Chinese "hamper their operations" which apparently cover a general retreat to the Indo-Chinese border.

It is weariness, sickness, attrition, the Chinese "scorched earth" policy and never-ending swift attack which have driven the Japanese back. The truth is that nowhere on the perimeter of their advance are they solidly established except at their railheads, while back of them lie precarious communications and great open areas which they never have controlled. (New York Times.)

Letter to the Editor

To The Editor,

Ontario Intelligencer.

A Day With The 32-34th

The sound of a bugle comes faintly over a hill and intermingles with the sounds of snoring in B. Troup hut as an N.C.O. warily pokes his head in and shouts "Rise and shine" for it is time for Revellie and another days' training is coming up in Petawawa camp.

Fifteen minutes have passed, some have turned over, some want to know why we must get up in the middle of the night and the main topic is will we get up or will we have roll call in bed when the Sergent's head shows in the door again and this time its a sharp "All Out."

Then comes the scramble for pants, boots and anything else we may have time to get into. Some, the less fortunate ones appear to answer their names "Ghandi" style which is not very appropriate for weather conditions.

The roll is called, the Sergeant satisfies himself, no one has gone A.W.O.L. since lights out the night before and marches the boys off for their P. T. and next can be heard a series of sounds like a Friday night wrestling bout in the Hume Arena.

The boys have now spent a half hour removing kinks and cramps and return to the hut to huddle around the fire which is kept going by the room "Buck" who is appointed in turn each day.

Some-one remembers that today is duty day for B. Troup and every-one rushes to see if their name is on the duty roster and what they are selected for. Someone is heard to shout "I'm down for kitchen fatigue and I was in the kitchen last time, what do they thing they're pulling." While someone else is lamenting over a pass spoiled by guard duty coming up.

The remainder by this time have hurried over to the wash room and the lucky ones shave and clean up while the others wait at their elbow for their place.

The boys have another session around the fire, someone starts an argument and it is carried on until the bugle sounds for breakfast and then with knife, fork and spoon we make for the kitchen where Sgt. Cook Jim Bly has prepared steaming hot mush, bacon and eggs and coffee which starts the day off pretty good.

With appetites under control and the world looking brighter we again storm the hut to get dressed and ready for battery parade.

The bugle sounds again, the Battery is on parade, the Sgt. Majors call the roll, the officers fall in and after inspecting the troups they are turned over to the Battery Commanders for training.

It is now 12.30, the morning training is over and we are ready for another meal. We are in the mess hall again and we find roast beef, mashed potatoes, soup and apple sauce confronting us. It quickly disappears, the dishes washed and we are back in the huts, some take advantage of a little spare time to have a nap, others continue the argument where they left off in the morning and some find games to interest them while Gnr. J. Hall plays a selection of wails on a sweet potato and Gnr. VanAllen runs opposition to Gene Autry with some western songs.

Time rolls around for afternoon parade and the boys are back on duty at their various work. Some are out on gun drill, some doing gas drill, others are out on a map reading scheme.

The afternoon quickly passes and another meal is waiting, but is not forced to wait long before it falls prey to a bunch of healthy appetites.

With the third and final meal over the boys are back in the hut, some are writing letters to sweethearts and wives, some are getting ready to go to Pembroke, others are outside playing ball while down in the corner we see Bdr. Halsey doing a barber job on Gunner Bob Kennedy who needs a hair cut and is not so fussy where he gets it.

Everything is going smoothly when a sergeant appears and calls for the guard to fall in, for a long night ahead which gives you a chance to use your imagination, when each stump becomes a moving animal and each shadow becomes a human being.

Someone suggests going to a show at one of the various canteens and most of the fellows string out in twos or threes, while some go over to the wet canteen to pass the time away.

A few of the boys remain in the huts satisfied to lie down and rest and the time soon passes and it's time to turn in for another night. The boys straggle in, some singing and talking, beds are soon made up, the call "Lights Out" is heard and something resembling a hush falls over the camp.

After an argument in which the three M's take the leading role, which is backed up by successions of snores the hut finally settles down to get a night's rest.

Outside the sound of a sentrie's occasional "Who Goes There" can be heard and another day ends in "Petawawa Military Camp".

Bombs and Beauty In Athens

Having read that Italian airplanes were flying over Athens, one sorrowing correspondent writes, "I suppose it will be the Parthenon next." As it happens, the first flight of Mussolini's airplanes over Athens dropped no bombs, but who shall say what tomorrow will bring? It may be Mussolini's decision that the Parthenon is a military objective, like the churches and hospitals in London.

In that case one can already compile an impressive list of military objectives bombarded by the Axis, as so many obstacles in the path of the new European order: the cathedral at Amiens (second time); and, if memory serves, at Rheims; the library at Louvain (second time); the high altar at St. Paul's; the edges of Westminster Abbey; the Temple; University of London; British Museum.

If British bombs have damaged historic Axis buildings or monuments, their identity has not been disclosed. The only high-explosive casualty of which we have heard is the historic Munich beer hall a few minutes after Hitler departed, and that was an inside job. Some people say it was very much of an inside job.

Two hundred and fifty years ago the parthenon was a legitimate military objective. It was then being used as a powder magazine by the Turks, who were then masters of Greece, and it was bombarded by the Venetians, who dropped a shell into it. The beautiful structure was reduced to the condition in which many generations of men have known it. School children must have grown up with the idea that the Parthenon was originally designed by the Athenians 2,400 years ago without a roof and many of its columns shattered on the ground.

Furore Italico diruta, dono Americano restituta. Under the inspiration of the late John H. Finley and with financial aid from this country, the work of restoring the northern facade of the Parthenon was begun in 1923 and by 1930 the restoration of twelve columns on that side was completed. It now remains to be seen what Premier Mussolini, as successor to Doge Morosini of Venice in 1687, proposes to do about it all.—New York Times.

How the injection method of curing Hernia Stands in Opinion of Surgeons

There are so many individuals with hernia (rupture) unwilling to undergo operation that the injection method of treatment has become very popular this past five years. That the injection method should be popular is natural since it does away with entering hospital, taking an anaesthetic, being "cut" with a "knife", remaining in hospital for two to three weeks, and loss of employment for this time and perhaps for some weeks longer.

To simply go to a surgeon's office once or twice a week for a few weeks, lose no time from work, no hospital stay, no anaesthetic, no knife, seems almost too good to be true.

As a matter of fact, the injection treatment is still too good to be true in the majority of cases, but the fact still remain that in carefully selected cases it is as effective as surgery.

The American Medical Association in an attempt to find out the extent to which the injection treatment is being used in hospitals sent out questionnaires to hospitals in 1936 and again in 1940. The replies show that with the exception of one hospital, all the hospitals that were using the injection method four years ago are still using it but most of the hospitals are now more careful in selecting the cases they consider suitable for the injection method. Most surgeons believe that the injection method will never take the place of surgery and except in certain cases do not give as good a permanent result as surgery.

Some idea of the difference of opinion among surgeons as to the injection method is shown by the fact that in some hospitals 90 per cent of hernia patients are treated by the injection method, some 50 per cent, and some as low as only 5 per cent (1 in twenty).

What cases are considered suitable for the injection method and what considerations are necessary?

1.—Thin young muscular adults are suitable. Fat and old patients are not suitable.

2.—Cases where hernia has recently occurred and which can be reduced easily.

3.—Cases which can be readily held by a well fitting truss, before and after the injections.

4.—Surgeons who are familiar with both methods of treatment.

5.—The selection of the hardening solution used for the injection is of the utmost importance.

6.—Repeated examinations for from six months to three years after the injections.

With a shortage of tanning extracts for leather manufacture in unoccupied France chemical engineers are experimenting with tannin obtained from the mimosa trees in Morocco.

Intended chiefly for photographers' use in dark rooms, an apron has been invented with a gutter at the bottom to prevent stray drops of chemicals staining clothing and shoes.

Stewart Says—

By CHARLES P. STEWART

Central Press Canadian Columnist

Chas. P. Stewart

Washington — Some time ago, when semi-official straw polling, on a countrywide scale, was overwhelmingly Roosevelt, I estimated, in print, that a separate poll of Washington's National Press Club, which I considerably infest, would show our membership about 80 per cent the other way.

I didn't say that the newspaper boys, at that juncture, expected Willkie's election. I was convinced that they didn't. I was speaking only of what I believed to be their preference. Neither did I think that they were 80 per cent pro-Willkie. Rather, my judgment was that they were 80 per cent pro-Willkie. Rather, my opinion upon talks I'd had with them, by the dozens and scores.

It struck me as odd that our people out in the sticks should be, as indicated by straw investigators, so strongly pro-F. D. R., whereas the capital's own press gang impressed me as so decidedly anti. We represent newspapers all over the United States. Why, I asked myself, didn't we reflect the sentiments of the numerous communities we hail from? Furthermore, we all see the president a couple of times weekly at his regular conferences with the correspondents. Had a large majority of us, I queried internally, taken a dislike to him personally?

Anyway, I disseminated my 80 per cent guess.

It was much resented by the other 20 per cent of club members. They said it was perfectly ridiculous.

Hull to the Rescue

The New Deal management, however, took sufficient notice of it to decide that it was desirable to send a pretty competent missionary up to the club to convert us. The president wasn't available but they hit on State Secretary Cordell Hull.

Well, we like to have big men address us. Cordell's very popular, too. He isn't an impressive orator—too squeaky. He's authoritative, though. And he chose as his subject, "American Foreign Policy," concerning which Wendell Willkie says he's more of an adept than President Roosevelt himself. The board of governors jumped at getting him.

He was scheduled to spellbind the club at a dinner in the big auditorium Saturday evening, October 26.

Generally members are allowed to bring guests to these functions, but in this instance it was reckoned that there wouldn't be room even for all the members, so guests were barred. Indeed, the governors were fearful that a lot of members would not be able to get in; thus that many would be sore. There was talk of putting a loud speaker to enable the overflow to hear the address out in the lounge, the restaurant, the lobby and the bar. Admission was fixed at $3. The ordinary rate is 75 cents. Black neckties were specified. Ticket seekers were urged to come early and avoid the rush.

They didn't come—not in formidable numbers.

Presently the entertainment committee members began to wring their hands. Then they sent out notices to the effect that they had a lot of tickets left over. Oh, yes, they said, guests would be admitted, after all. Come in, for gosh sake, and buy tickets for 'em.

Why So Indifferent?

Now, why were the members so clammy?

For one thing, as I surmised, they've been 80 per cent anti-Roosevelt and they've figured that this was a pro-Roosevelt occasion.

Furthermore they're privileged to listen to Secretary Hull at his regular press conferences, for nothing, and haven't particularly fancied the notion of hearing him say the same things at $3 per shot.

Finally, I'm convinced that they drew the line on black neckties. A newspaperman, after working hard all day, doesn't take to the idea of going home and changing into a black tie, for an evening's blowout that he isn't materially interested in.

I know this for a fact. Scores of the boys made a compact in advance to show up at the Press club bar in flamboyant neckwear with the explanation that they couldn't attend the Cordell Hull gathering because they haven't got black ties.

DEEP ENOUGH FOR HUNS

(Manchester Guardian)

One of the things about the Channel front, along which we are lined up against the hordes of Hitler strung out along the French coast, that few people realize is the shallowness of our "moat". The depth of the Strait of Dover is merely two or three times the length of a cricket-pitch, varying from 30 to 60 yards. Lower St. Paul's Cathedral into the deepest part of it and more than half the building, including all the dome, would be above water.

Between Newhaven and Dieppe it is hardly less shallow, though there is a hole about half-way over that is 24 feet deep. Between the Isle of Wight and Le Havre you need another five-and-twenty feet to take a sounding at the deepest spot. Not until you get to near Alderney do you find a hole in which St. Paul's would be completely submerged; but within three miles of that the water shallows again to 76 yards.

The whole waterway is, however, quite deep enough to drown in, as some of the German bargees must have already discovered.

Cloverdale, B.C., boy seaman and a hero of the Fraser disaster which cost 45 lives.

Boy Hero Dies

Jones was lost, survivors said, as the men transferred from their half-a-ship to the merchantman, using three ladders and some ropes tossed from the merchant vessel.

Leading Stoker Ernest Parsons of Vancouver said he was right behind the boy seaman when the two of them tried to gain the merchant vessel's deck. "Al got hold of the wrong end of a rope as he tried to pull himself up and fell into the sea," Parsons said.

Ab. John A. McKinnon of Wadena, Sask., also told of seeing young Jones lost. Clustered about him as he talked to newspapermen were several others who survived both the Fraser and Margaree.

All survivors praised the rescue work of the merchant seamen. There was plenty of time to leave their hulk of the vessel—it had to be sunk by gunfire—but the tossing seas and inky blackness called for every possible bit of skill.

Anxiously, not knowing how long their portion of the destroyer would stay afloat, they watched the merchant vessel draw near. They aided it and themselves by pulling on lines tossed down to them from the boat's decks.

No Sign of Panic.

There was no sign of any panic—just every man working to help himself and his mate. First the floating part of the Margaree, her funnels belching black smoke, keeled upward at a sharp angle after the bow was sheared away. Then she settled back in the trough of the waves.

One after another, without the aid of lights, thirty of the survivors climbed to safety, using the ladders tossed down to them—"shaky ladders" to quote Steward Earl Brown of Halifax, a Fraser survivor.

"I knew we were hit," said Brown. "It was similar to the Fraser. When everything started falling that was the first thing that came to my mind. I waited there and didn't say a word.

"I heard someone shout 'where's a flashlight?' I didn't get a flashlight. I just grabbed some cigarettes and a lifebelt. Then I went up the ladder to the merchant ship.

"Believe me, I wasn't waiting for any flashlight."

In addition to those who transferred by ladders and ropes, the last four to leave the remains slipped into the sea aboard a raft, the high seas having forced the merchantman away from the destroyer.

These men, three officers and able seaman Victor Hardwick Holman of Duncan, B.C., were in the water for about an hour before being picked up.

Thought is Was Torpedo

The survivors of the Fraser sinking who gained the warm safety of this Bermuda port after the Margaree disaster said they knew their vessel had been hit by something but at the time they thought it might be anything from a torpedo to another vessel.

Those who had not experienced the Fraser sinking thought the jolt was just the impact of the high seas.

"I was on the Fraser and I knew we'd been hit again," said leading cook James Edward Wickers of Victoria. He was in the aft room asleep. "I found my lifebelt and one for Martell (Steward Gordon Martell of Halifax) and then I climbed aboard the merchantman."

Ab. Stan Meddings of Toronto, not a veteran of the Fraser, was on duty with the depth charge crew and said until he realized the extent of the collision he wasn't much concerned with it.

"I didn't think much of it at all," he said. "As a matter of fact I thought it was just a graze."

Even after they were safe aboard the merchant vessel the survivors worried over the Margaree and the danger her floating remains might be to shipping.

Cpo. Writer Paul Dubois of Montreal said Lieut. Patrick F. X. Russell of Victoria, Lieut. William Landymore of Brantford, Ont., and Lieut. E. J. Sawdy, the latter a Royal navy officer, requested the merchant vessel go back and sink what remained of the destroyer.

The merchant captain at first would not grant the request but when morning came Lieut. Russell with Ab. Holman, Ls. Harry F. Leggett of Halifax and Victoria and some of the merchant crew, lowered a boat and attempted to get alongside the Margaree.

Abandon Salvage Attempt

"The sea was running too high," said Dubois.

Eventually the attempt to board the wreckage was abandoned and the after section of the destroyer went down under gunfire from the merchant vessel to remove a menace to navigation.

Stoker George Proulx of Melville, Sask., said he was down in the engine room when the crash occurred. The jolt threw him against a compressor. He was told to get up top and once on the Margaree deck he saw the merchant vessel looming alongside and he hoisted himself aboard.

"Tons of smoke" belched from the vessel's innards as the bow was severed, Os. Don Snelgrove of Regina, said.

Os. Doug. Watson of Toronto said he was between the funnels up forward doing duty watch when the vessels struck.

"The ship keeled up and I climbed on the depth charge throwers and waited until the ship came down. Then I got aboard the Merchantman—and fast."

Grand Jury Requests Purchase of New Flag For County Building

Recommendations that a new flag be purchased for the county court house; redecoration of offices in the county buildings and a fire escape for the boys' section of the Ontario School for the Deaf, were brought in by the Hastings County Grand Jury in their report to Mr. Justice Keiller MacKay prior to their discharge in Supreme Court yesterday afternoon.

The report presented by the foreman revealed the county jail to be in a very satisfactory condition. The prisoners all seemed to be satisfied with conditions and there were no complaints.

The Grand Jury had found the County Home in a clean, neat sanitary condition. They had paid special attention to fire escape equipment and the 91 inmates were satisfied. They paid tribute to the abilities of Superintendent and Matron, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Sandercock.

They were impressed with the trades being taught the boy students at the Ontario School for the Deaf, also the sewing, domestic science and other subjects being taught the girls. They had watched the children at study and at play and the entire student personnel were quite happy with their lot.

All institutions visited, the report stated, were under careful efficient management.

Mr. Justice MacKay before discharging the jury thanked them for the personal reference to himself in the report and congratulated them on the fine manner in which they had executed their obligations during their period as Grand Jurymen.

Increases Shown In Principal Species Of Canadian Livestock

Ottawa, Nov. 2 (CP)—Increases were shown in all the principal species of livestock on Canadian farms, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics said today in a report based on a survey made on June 1, 1940.

Converted to grain-consuming animal units, numbers of all species of livestock and poultry on June 1 were the highest on record. Units totalled 17,676,000, compared with an average of 16,084,000 units from 1931 to 1935.

Greatest increase was shown in the number of hogs which reached a record high of approximately 5,882,000, a gain of 37 per cent from the 4,294,000 reported in the June 1, 1939, survey.

Number of cattle was estimated at 8,565,000, one per cent. higher than in 1939 when the estimate was 8,474,000. This was the first increase in cattle on farms at June 1 since 1934 when the high point in the cattle number cycle was reached.

"Unless serious feed shortages develop, cattle numbers are expected to increase over the next few years," the Bureau reported.

Number of horses on Canadian farms was estimated at 2,858,000, an increase of 34,000 over the 1939 estimate. "Further increases are anticipated," the Bureau said.

All species of poultry were greater than a year ago. Hens and chickens increased from 58,509,800 to 60,201,300 and turkeys from 2,476,000 to 2,508,300. Ducks and geese also showed increases, but figures were not given.

"The increase in livestock numbers has followed two years of adequate feed supplies and relatively favorable prices for livestock and animal products," the report said. "The increases in numbers have been most pronounced in those species consuming large amounts of grain.

PARTY WAS IN DESERONTO HOTEL SAYS WITNESS

Conflicting Evidence Given in Alleged Assault Case Now Before Supreme Court

CONSTABLE HEARD

Evidence that Chief Constable E. R. Beatty, Deseronto, had talked with a motorcar driver who produced a driver's licence bearing the name "Henry Storms", and that a few minutes later, Mrs. Storms left a house with other women and entered the car about 1 a.m. August 30 was adduced by Defence Counsel J. M. Simpson at Friday's Supreme Court hearing of charges of attempted rape and assault against Storms alleged by Mrs. Mary Maracle, Deseronto, to have taken place about midnight August 30.

Mrs. Maracle, in previous evidence alleged that Storms had taken her in a motor car and administered a severe beating that necessitated medical attention, "between 11.30 and the time she came to" on the same date.

The alleged assault took place in a driveway a short distance from Deseronto on the night of August 30 "about 11:30 p.m.". Mrs. Maracle had "come to" in a naked condition and staggered across fields to the home of a farmer named Joyce at approximately 4:30 in the morning.

Chief Constable Beatty in his evidence told the court that he had ascertained the owner of the motor car through communication with the Department of Highways. Mrs. Maracle's reputation was "not considered good", he said, in answer to a question by Deputy Assistant Attorney-General Walter Martin. "She had been seen by witness in the company of several men individually from time to time."

He had stopped a car that was blowing its horn on Thomas street, Deseronto, and ascertained by the driver's licence that the driver was "Benny" Storms. A few minutes later "a crowd of women had come out of the house later identified as that of a family named Hilditch. Among them was Mrs. Storms. The array of women had got into the car and driven away.

Were in Hotel

Evidence that Mrs. Maracle, her brother, Frank McVicker, Peggy Sero and Benny Storms had been in the Arlington Hotel, Deseronto about 10.30 o'clock on the night of August 30th., was brought out by the Crown.

They had driven, according to evidence given by the quartettes to a house in Deseronto for "something to drink".

Evidence as to the condition of Mrs. Maracle when she was brought home by Mr. Joyce was adduced by the defence. Her sister Mrs. Margaret Munday sat up with her "while she was in a hysterical condition". Mrs. Maracle was unable to speak on account of her injuries until the next morning".

Joseph Cavanagh, Arlington Hotel tapman, told the Crown, he had gone to a home owned by a man named Hildritch one night, there he saw Bennie Storms and wife but he could not remember what date it was.

Frank McVicker, returned veteran of the present war, and a brother of the complainant supplemented his sister's evidence regarding the meeting with storms in the hotel and the subsequent ride to the house five blocks away where he and Miss Peggy Sero got out of the car to get something to drink.

Found Car is Gone

Unable to get in the house the couple had returned to the car to find it gone. He and Miss Sero walked five miles to her home and he had returned home about four a.m.

He saw his sister about nine and nine-thirty the next morning.

He had gone for a walk downstreet after he arrived home after a ten mile walk, he said. He just went for the walk. He denied going with intention of picking a brawl with soldiers, also that he had heard threats made against his sister. Mrs. Maracle had made no reference to him about the assault while he was home on leave from Kingston.

Her Black Eye is Claimed

He and Miss Peggy Sero, had walked to the latter's home, five miles in the country. He arrived home at 4 a.m., and saw his sister who had a black eye and a bruised face.

McVicker told defence counsel, Simpson, that the foursome was not drunk. Miss Sero and himself were sober.

"Do you always tell the truth"?

"I used to".

"Don't you now?"

"I'm in the army, sir".

"I was a lance-corporal once myself. It didn't change me", said Mr. Simpson.

"I always tell the truth, when I am sworn", witness said.

Corroborated Evidence

Peggy Sero, McVicker's girl-friend corroborated his evidence regarding the hotel drinking and the subsequent ride in the car. After considerable examination and cross-examination she identified the accused as the man, who drove the car.

Bruce Joyce, farmer, residing one-half mile west of Deseronto, told of the arrival of the scantily-clad Mrs. Maracle at his home between 4.15 and 4.30 a.m. August 30. "She had a black eye and a bruised lip and in a nervous condition". His wife gave her a raincoat and he took her to her father's home in Deseronto".

"She was badly beaten up, and talked in a way" he said.

Mrs. Joyce corroborated her husband's testimony. Both witnesses identified torn garments produced by the Crown as those worn by Mrs. Maracle on the early morning of August 30.

Motion to Traverse Other Indictment Against Thain Granted

A motion by Deputy Assistant Attorney-General Walter Martin, prosecuting attorney in the present sitting of the Supreme Court of Ontario to traverse the indictment of The King versus Frederick Thain to the next assize of the Supreme Court, was endorsed by Mr. Justice MacKay prior to the opening of the afternoon session yesterday.

The indictment is a true bill returned by the Grand Jury charging Thain with the murder of Nancy Wellman on January 31st, 1940.

The accused was found guilty by a jury of the murder of Arnold Wellman, during the present sitting of the court, and sentenced to be hanged on January 14th, 1941.

The Stars Say

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, November 3

SUNDAY'S horoscope holds presage of brilliant successes and much personal gratification, especially in all pertaining to church, social or friendly contacts or affiliations. And while affairs should move at a lively pace yet there may be rather serious and perplexing problems to cope with.

Those whose birthday it is may enjoy some very alluring and promising opportunities for attaining their heart's desire "in a big way." However in such ambitious and expansive situations it would be wise to have attention to schemes, plots and all manner of intriguing, deceitful or glamorous entanglements. Sound methods based on industry and merit may be lucrative. For the young and eligible there is forecast of much pleasure in romance.

A child born on this day although it has sound aims, efficiency and ambition may be carried away by lures, treachery and suspicious entangelements.

For Monday, November 4

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is for a rather successful and propitious day, with important projects and aims responding to an expansive and productive impetus, although there are irawbacks and limitations to be dealt with. Also there may be the menace of fraud, duplicity and subtle situations, in connection with superiors or those in power. Re sist strife and impetuosity.

Those whose birthday it is may have a promising and profitable year, with ambitious objectives under expansive influence, despite static, tricky or dismonest situations to dispose of. This treatens from high places, although generally results and cooperation may come from influential sources.

A child born on this day should be ambitious and capable, with sound ideas backed up by much initiative, energy and determination. The danger is in eveceases in this direction, as well as from some subtle opposition.

Bonarlaw

Bonarlaw — The annual social evening and euchre of St. Mark's W. A. was held in the Sunday school rooms on Tuesday Oct. 29, with a splendid attendance, 12 tables of progressive euchre being played. The ladies' prize went to Miss Jean McInroy and the gent's prize to Mr. Chas. Burkitt. Close seconds were Mrs. John E. Brown and Mr. Claude Tucker.

The beautiful quilt made by the W. A. and on which tickets were sold was won by Mrs. Jas. Barber of Ameliasburg, Prince Edward County.

SMARTLY SIMPLE best describes the new frocks. We like the idea of a slim, long tunic frock of fine black crepe trimmed only with bands of simulated seed pearls at the high round throat and at the wrists of the long tight sleeves.

New Hair-Do Fine Reviver

By HELEN FOLLETT

There comes a moment in every woman's life when she can't stand the sight of her own head. She is weary of the hairdress and her tresses seem tired of it too, won't stay put and throw a fine fit of tantrums. In that event it is wisdom to go to a beauty shop, tell the operator to proceed according to her own sweet fancy. The result may not be precisely satisfactory, but it will give one an idea to work upon.

Hairdressers, who have done so much to make the modern woman the glamor girl that she is, are possessed of rare gifts, blessed with deft fingers. Better still, they have the seeing eye. They note profiles and features of cash customers, play up good points, shade down the bad ones if they are present.

Soft Pompadours

The present mode of soft pompadours, long ends, ringlets and rolls offers a variety of arrangements. It is youthful beyond any style that we have ever had. Hair swept away at the sides gives that nice clean fresh look that is so important. The wearing of ribbons adds a touch of gaiety.

Don't forget that the hair must have softness, glitter and fluff. You get that by frequent, thorough shampoos, daily brushing, a light friction of the scalp now and then. When hair is neglected it looks sick abed and no matter how beautifully it is dressed it does not qualify.

Girls with plenty of leisure find it a pleasant diversion to glamorize their feet. They get rid of calloused spots by using cuticle remover that is made for use on the finger nails. Then the toilet pumice stone comes into action. Callouses are horrid defects, and they can hurt like anything.

Red banana is a new shade used for little pink toe shells. There are rosy red polishes and golden ones; you pays your money and you takes your choice.

To counteract foot strain wring your feet; place the palms of the hands on the soles, fingers on the top of the foot and wring like all get out.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Had to Mend Her Uniform

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a boy 20 years of age and have been going "steady" with a girl for eleven months. I gave her a watch, a ring and other gifts. I take her out anywhere she wants to go, and we always have a good time.

She works in a mill. Four weeks ago she told me she could not date me on Saturday as she wanted to mend her uniform. This occurred three times, and then I happened to be passing her house on one of these nights, and she was leaving in a car with another man. I asked her about it when I saw her again, and she said she wanted to go out with other men as well as me.

Please, Miss Fairfax, tell me what to do.

S.P.

The situation depends on what you mean by going "steady." If it means with you and the girl friend actually being engaged, she should not have been "mending her uniform," on three successive Saturdays. If, however, going "steady" means, as it does with young people, just a pleasant association, then she was at liberty to go out with whom she pleased. However, telling fibs isn't an estimable quality, and if she's given to that sort of thing you've suffered no great loss now that she's taken to "uniform mending."

If She Returns Watch He'll Throw It Away

Dear Miss Fairfax:

This past summer I met a young man who became deeply infatuated with me. He knows I don't love him and I don't think I can ever care for him in spite of the fact that he has told me that he loves me.

Although my parents have forbidden me to go with him, they know the affair is continuing. I have tried in many ways to discourage him, but haven't been successful. Recently he bought me a beautiful and expensive watch. Is it proper for me to accept it or shall I return it? When I mention returning it he gets angry and says he will throw it in the gutter before he'd return it to the jeweler's. I don't know what to do.

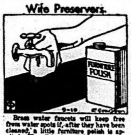
How can I discourage him, as I feel he is much too serious for the short time I have known him?

Perplexed.

These won't-take-no young men are a terrible problem to girls. They have been known, by sheer peristency, to wear down actual dislike on the girl's part and marry her.

In a case of this sort, the only sensible plan is to say "no" and mean it, and as long as you have your parents to back you up in their disapproval of the persistent suitor, it should make things easier.

If you don't intend to accept the young man, it's bad form to take expensive presents from him.



Brass water faucets will keep free from water spots if, after they have been cleaned, a little furniture polish is applied. The oil in the polish will prevent chemical action from splashing water.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

PROPER USE OF CLOTH

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Would you please be so kind as to tell me if it is considered proper to use an ecru lace table cloth for a dinner party?

"It was always my impression that this kind of table cloth should be used only as a cover when the table is not in use. However, my friends tell me that it is entirely proper to use it in place of the regular linen cloth. to give a festive air to the dinner party. Will you please give me your advice?

2. If you tell me it is proper to use this table cloth, will you also tell me if I could use plain linen napkins with it?

Hostess.

1. Your friends are right. This type of lace cloth is entirely appropriate to use for the more or less informal dinner parties that most of us give. They are right, too, in telling you that this kind of lace cloth (the ecru is apt to be softer in effect than the white) does add a "festive air" to a party. Usually there is an interesting central decoration or panel that lends itself to an effective background for your center decorations. In other words, "play up", dramatically, the design on the cloth.

Also, if your dining-room table has a good-looking top, you may let the wood show through the cloth. Or you may like to put the cloth over a lining (also ecru).

It isn't either smart or in good taste to use any kind of linen or lace cloth as a "covering" for your dining-room table when it is not in use. Clear off the cloth, and use something interesting on it, such as a silver or glass or pottery center bowl or vase, or a pair of vases, with flowers. if this is possible.

2. I do wish that all makers of this type of lace cloth would provide with them sets of matching napkins. Some do — but usually we have to add them ourselves. If you are buying such a cloth, try to find one that has napkins with linen centers of the same shade as the cloth, of course) and edging of lace in the same design as the lace of the cloth.

If this isn't possible, the only alternative is to use plain linen napkins, as nearly as possible the shade of the cloth (or they can be "dipped" to match. If you are very lucky you can find ecru-colored Italian linen napkins, with a simple hemstitched border. This is an excellent solution.

ESTABLISH RELATIONSHIPS ON FRIENDLY BASIS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

My daughter is engaged to be married. Her fiance's mother called on me at once after her son told her of the engagement. I returned her call but, unfortunately, found no one at home. I left my visiting-card.

Now I want to know if I did the proper thing. Should I call again or wait for an invitation?

Mother

Yes, both you and the mother of your daughter's fiance did the proper thing. I am glad you left your visiting-card, to register your return visit.

What is to be done next depends on your own choice, and on your way of life. Although the first bow of hospitality may properly come from the young man's mother, it may just as properly come from you. So, if it is convenient and agreeable to you to invite guests to your home, it would be gracious for you to write a note to the fiance's mother, and invite her and her husband and son to your home, for a definite day. Your invitation might be to tea on Saturday or Sunday afternoon, or to Sunday lunch or dinner, or for any other occasion.

The desirable point is to establish the relationship between the two families on a pleasant and thriving social basis!

Fashion Flashes

CHANGE OVER your basic frocks with smart accessories. A good buy is one of those fitted jerkins in soft suede or velvet in beautiful colors, deep shades or pale pastels.

BE RICH when it comes to evening clothes and choose at least one magnificent frock. White satin makes a truly lovely mode when done with a heart-shaped yoke of finest white chiffon trimmed with bands of big ruby-colored stones. Worn with matching ruby red velvet jacket.

IT'S IMPOSSIBLE to get away from spotted furs. A nice town coat in black, red or green nubby wool is on slim princess lines with a high-laced leopard collar buttoned snugly to the throat. Big pouch pockets of leopard with pointed wool flaps.

MAYBE YOU WON'T want to go in for scads of dinner things. Then investigate the idea of a velvet or crepe dinner skirt with different blouses. The shops are filled with 'em.

Shannonville

Shannonville — Mr. and Mrs. F. Garrison were Saturday evening visitors at Mr. and Mrs. Stanley MacDonald's.

MORE ABOUT COLDS

One reason why so many adults catch cold so readily is that they were coddled too much in babyhood and childhood. How much better off they would be now, if they hadn't been made afraid of winter air and caused to form habits of living that make them a perfect prey for colds. I'm sure the growing popularity of such winter sports as skiing, ice-skating, etc. is going to be a great thing for our national healths, by overcoming these fears of winter, hangovers from their over coddled childhoods, that make a lot of persons stove or radiator-huggers.

I do not advocate any extreme measures of so-called "hardening" or "toughening" for infants, but I do feel that in every season of the year they should have their quota of real outdoor air and sunshine. The Dionne Quintuplets, in their first and second winters, napped outdoors even during snow storms, and since they were properly dressed and were in the lee of the wind, it didn't hurt them. Indeed, it built up their health.

Of course, as I said yesterday. there is no sure way of protecting either a child or an adult from colds. What we can do is build up the resistance to them, so that we are less susceptible to taking them or suffer from them less when we do get them.

The common cold now is about the only illness that hits the Quintuplets hard enough to send them to their beds. But since they have had their tonsils out, and have built up their resistance in ways I referred to here yesterday, their colds have become more and more infrequent. When they do get one, it isn't nearly as serious a matter as it used to be.

Of course we have at the Dafoe Nursery almost ideal conditions for protecting the Quintuplets. If there is an epidemic around, we can isolate them from outside contacts. In the first years of their lives, no outsider went near them at any time without putting on a surgical gown and a mask. Of course, you can give much of the same protection surrounding the Quins to the baby in your own home. But when the child gets of school age, there isn't much you can do about keeping him from coming in contact with other children who have colds.

I described yesterday means of building up the child's stamina to resist colds. But even with this highly developed children are still apt to get a cold sometime in the winter. When this happens, I strongly advise that the child be put to bed and made to rest. It is one of the best cold treatments for either child or adult. Give him as much food to eat as he wants, but don't force him to eat. We have outgrown the old idea: "Feed a cold and starve a fever", for we found it to be wrong. Between meals it is a good idea to see that he gets plenty of fluids — water and fruit juice. He should also have an occasional glass of boiled, cooled water in which a teaspoon of bicarbonate of soda has been dissolved.

These are all things to do for your child to make him feel better. They won't necessarily cure him. If the cold seems worse than usual, or if it hangs on, you'd better call your doctor.

I have one more tip for mothers that may save a child a lot of pain and illness. If he contracts a cold, see to it that he blows his nose properly. I am sure you have seen or rather have heard, persons blowing the nose with all their strength. I have seen them become red in the face with the effort. They were foolish. The nose should be blown softly; first one nostril should be blown, and then the other, not both at once. The mouth ought to be kept open, meanwhile. Warn your child that if he blows too violently he is more than likely to force some of the infection up into an ear tube, or into a sinus. Then there is more infection, more pain, more trouble.

Library Corner

(By K. G.)

A variety of outstanding new books was added to the Library shelves this week, covering such differing subjects as current events, opera singers and Yankee clippers.

Nordhoff, Charles. In Yankee Windjammers.

This record of a boy's life at sea a hundred years ago in a man-o'-war and a whaler was first published in '50. It has now been edited by the author's grandson and namesake who has inherited the same love of the sea.

Wagner, C. L. Seeing Stars

Emerging from this life story of an impressario are vivid accounts of such personalities as Galli-Curci, John McCormack, Mary Garden, and many others. The glitter of Broadway and the life of the theatre, with its fortunes made and lost, will make this book enjoyable for many readers.

Millis, Walter. Why Europe Fights

The author to whom we owe tribute for his splendid editorials on foreign policy in the New York Herald Tribune, has written a splendid survey of the background of Europe for the twenty one years which intervened from the last Great War to today.

Lewis, Elizabeth, F. Portraits from a Chinese Scroll

Long outstanding for distinguished fiction in children's literature, the author turns for the first time to the adult field. She has introduced on her pages stories of ten character types of men and women who might be found on any one of China's crowded streets. This book is profusely illustrated, an unusual feature in a volume of adult short stories.

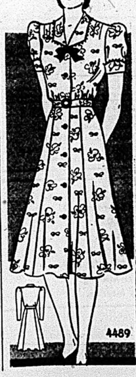
Shute, Nevil. Landfall. A Channel Story

The author whose former novels Ordeal, Kindling and An Old Captivity, won such high acclaim in the New York Times and Herald Tribune, has written a new novel with background of the Royal Air Force. An expert in the field of aviation, Mr. Shute has written an exciting romance of rare charm.

CROSSING THE CAMPUS you meet good-looking woolens. A swell number is a buttoned-down-the-front shirtwaist classic in soft beige woolen. Two flap pockets on the bodice and two on the skirt, each with a big gilt safety pin for trimming.

A Button Down Front Dress

By ANNE ADAMS



Pattern 4489

These mornings of early rising and getting the family off to school and work leave a minimum amount of time for dressing. That's why Pattern 4489 by Anne Adams is such a lucky find! Its front buttoning makes it easy to slip on—yet its tailored, trim lines assure you of a neat appearance always. The skirt has fine action-freedom, with panels at both the back and the front. There's soft blousing through the bodice, too, held trim by above-the-waist gathers and shoulder darts. Isn't the collar youthful and becoming? Make it in light contrast, if you like, with nicely shaped cuffs to match. Long sleeves are also included in this useful pattern. Do use ric-rac and a ribbon bow-tie.

Pattern 4489 is available in misses' and women's sizes 16, 18, 20, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 36 takes 4 5-8 yards 35 inch fabric.

Send TWENTY CENTS (20c) in coins (stamps cannot be accepted) for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly SIZE, NAME, ADDRESS and STYLE NUMBER.

NEW FASHIONS APPEAR ON STYLE HORIZON

Formally Speaking

By ALICE ALDEN

THERE are some fashions that seem to endure, dateless dresses that can appear with aplomb at the most important date. These dresses take little from current fads but rely implicitly on line and fabric and beautiful draping.

Ann Sheridan is keen on such frocks and wears her favorites constantly. Here is a recent mode made for early autumn galas. It is a simply styled model fashioned of heavy silk chiffon vivid turquoise blue.

Soft folds across the bodice are caught into a smooth section where the full skirt is cut to a point in front, falling in soft folds from the high waist. Necklace and clip are of gold set with multi-colored stones.

Autumn Plaids

By ALICE ALDEN

FASHION goes in for a big dash of Scotch in the form of plaids, many of them the authentic tartars of the clans. Plaided wools are nice for casual coats and are the thing on college campuses right through the country. And plaids go to high school too.

A touch of plaid combined with a solid color is nice as an alternative to an all-plaid design. Milo Anderson designed a smart coat dress for Brenda Marshall. It is in navy wool in a dull textured weave with a front panel of plaid wool in red and blue. The matching navy blue visor brimmed hat has a gold cord trim. Gloves, shoes, bag in navy blue suede.

Graceful Drapery

By ALICE ALDEN

DESPITE trends in other directions, the long-torso silhouette and the graceful front drape continue to mark many of the smartest new models. Lynn Carver models a Balenciaga frock that typifies this aspect of the mode.

It is a striking afternoon dress of dull black crepe cleverly cut in one-piece with a graceful front drape section. The long, tight sleeves and the dressmaker neckline give this frock added distinction as does the touch of white in the form of ivory buttons. Skull cap, gloves and shoes in dull black antelope.

Marking Time

By ALICE ALDEN

SOME gals rush the season and wear velvet while the rest of us are still taking our two weeks' vacation with play. But by the same token, other girls like to defer wearing autumn fashions until the mode has crystalized and trends have been established.

Anne Gwynne has chosen a frock that strikes a nice balance for present wear. The frock is of brown silk crepe with tiny attached tucks on the bodice and sleeves.

The dainty collar and cuffs are fashioned of the palest beige chiffon. Setting off this pretty frock is a large hat of beige felt the same shade as the collar and cuff set. Kid gloves also in beige.

A Fighting Chance For Every Child

By LOGAN CLENDENNING, M.D.

I AM sometimes chided for writing every year about this time in favor of diphtheria immunization for the child who is entering school for the first time. It is argued that in many cities such immunization is practically compulsory and that my arguments are pointless and unnecessary. But I do not desist because I think it is the highest duty that a column like this can obey to attempt to spread the gospel of immunization.

If I no longer have to try to persuade parents to undertake voluntarily the immunization of their children, as I had to fifteen years ago, at least I can advance the arguments which seem to me to make compulsory diphtheria vaccination necessary.

There is probably no single health conquest in the history of mankind that ranks with the elimination of diphtheria. Once among the deadliest and most contagious of diseases, it ravaged young people at the most promising period of their youth. Whole families of children—yea, even whole schoolrooms—were wiped out. It ran through whole neighborhoods, leaving death in its wake.

Rare Disease Now

Now barely twenty years after diphtheria immunization was made possible, it is a rare disease. In cities in the United States, whose combined population is over 38,000,000 people, barely one death per 100,000 population occurred in 1939. In thirty-two cities there were no deaths from diphtheria in 1939. In twenty cities in the United States there have been no diphtheria deaths in 1938 and '39.

This result is all the more remarkable because every person who becomes immune to diphtheria does so by making a voluntary individual effort. Diphtheria cannot be eliminated by broad hygienic methods such as are applicable to typhoid fever by purifying the water supply. The person who is rendered immune to diphtheria must be persuaded by the logic of the evidence—this is often the hardest part of the battle—and they must allow themselves to be examined and undergo a hypodermic injection.

The Schick Test

Selection of proper cases is accomplished by applying what is known as the Schick skin test. This consists in putting some diphtheria toxin in a small scratch in the skin. If at the end of twenty-four hours the skin around this scratch is red it means that the toxin has awakened a reaction in the chemical forces of the body and that the person will catch diphtheria if exposed. Immunization is done to susceptible people by using a form of diphtheria toxin that has become detoxicated. It is called toxoid.

The age at which this procedure should be carried out is during the young years when diptheria is prevalent. Some authorities think that at the end of the first year is none too soon. All agree it should be done before the end of the second year.

Questions and Answers

L. S. S.—"(1) Is undulant fever acquired only from the milk of the infected animal, or does it come also from the flesh, as, for instance, from rare beef? (2) Are any individuals so strong and in such good condition that they do not catch it, even when subjected to the bacteria in milk or meat? (3) Is it transmissible from one person in a family to another?"

Answer—(1) Undulant fever has occurred in a rather high proportion in packing house employees so apparently it may be acquired directly from raw flesh, but I know of no cases in which it has followed the ingestion of rare beef as rather small amounts of heat will destroy the germ. (2) Undoubtedly there are many people who have immunity to undulant fever. (3) It is not transmissible directly from human being to human being.

Monogram Fad Gains Impetus

By ALICE DENHOFF

IT'S monogramania, this practice of marking everything with initials, but like the horseless carriage it is evidently here to stay. No one knows just how and when it started, this idea of marking everything from soup plates to nut picks with one's own initials, but we like it. We think that it is all to the good. It confers that personal distinction that means so much, and what's more it helps to prevent loss.

The bride assembling her linen trousseau takes it for granted that every article of linen is to be marked. She likes to combine the practical with the pretty by making the marking as decorative as possible. With linen marked, laundry losses are minimized and arguments are settled. Laundry markings are all very well for detectives when they are out for clues, but that's about all. Those strange hieroglyphics that laundries use look like part of an espionage code and a complicated one at that.

With the revival of so many whims of yesterday has come a demand for cross-stitch work. It is an easy stitch, even for the amateur, and it would be an easy affair to do a monogram in cross-stitch. If the novice will try it out on a dish cloth first she'll soon be working pillowslips and sheets.

When embroidered initials aren't in order the name tape offers a prompt way of personal marking. Tapes can be purchased in initial form and full names ordered from firms who have specialized in name tapes for many, many years. Inexpensive, easy to apply and a sure thing.

Ensemble Notion

It is the fashion these days when linen-trousseau shopping to buy as much as possible to conform to one pattern, style or color. That's another method of helping to keep track of one's linen during its journeyings to and from the laundry.

A bit of this in one style and color, something else in another pattern and color combination not only gives a patchy look to the linen closet but it makes it harder to identify too. The shops are featuring sets of towels in various sizes with linen towels bordered to match the terry towels, plus face cloths and bath mats to match. The majority of these sets are open stock, so that additions and replacements can be made when necessary.

Late Snack Right Off The Shelf

By BETSY NEWMAN

FOR THE late snack and the quick meal, fresh made toast or a box of prepared toast or rusks is a big help. Suppose you have an unexpected guest for lunch. See how quickly you can prepare these dishes with materials from your shelves.

Cheese Delights

Spread each rusk or slice of toast with a generous slice of American cheese, place a strip of bacon on top of cheese, place on broiler or grill close to heat, and broil until bacon is crisp, turning when one side is brown, to brown the other.

Caraway Seed Cookies

3 cups flour
1 tsp. baking powder
¼ tsp. salt
1 cup butter or substitute
2 cups sugar
½ cup water
3 eggs
2 tbsps. caraway seed

Sift flour, measure and sift with baking powder and salt. Cream butter until fluffy, add sugar gradually, creaming with butter. Add water and mix in. Beat eggs until thick and mix with creamed mixture. Add caraway seeds. Add part of the flour, mix in well, and continue adding until all is used. Turn out onto a lightly-floured board, roll out, cut with a scalloped cookie cutter, sprinkle with sugar and bake in a moderate oven 375 degrees F., until a delicate brown, about 10 minutes.

Peanut Butter Cookies

1 cup flour
2 tsps. baking powder
¼ tsp. salt
¼ cup butter
½ cup peanut butter
½ cup sugar
2 eggs
½ cup milk

Sift flour, measure and sift with baking powder and salt. Cream butter and peanut butter together, add sugar and continue creaming, add 1 egg, beat it in well, then beat in the other egg. Add part of flour mixture, stir in and then add part of milk, alternating them until all are added. Drop from tip of spoon on greased cookie sheet. Bake in 500 degree oven for about 10 minutes. If you prefer less of the peanut butter flavor, use ¼ cup peanut butter and ½ cup butter instead of the recipe as given above.

Cabbage and Cucumber Salad

2 cups cabbage
Salad dressing
1 cup diced cucumber

Shred or chop cabbage, add cucumber and moisten with mayonnaise or any preferred salad dressing. Serve cold. A bit of onion may be added, or grated raw carrot or chopped green pepper to give it color.

Baked Tomatoes

Tomatoes
Salt
Sugar
Breadcrumbs

Butter baking dish, peel whole tomatoes and put in dish. Sprinkle with salt, sugar and fine breadcrumbs. Bake for 40 minutes, basting occasionally with liquor in pan.

Cookie Crumb Cake

½ cup shortening
1 cup sugar
3 eggs
2 tsps. baking powder
¾ cup milk
2 cups cookie crumbs
1 cup flour
1 tsp. vanilla

Cream butter and sugar. Add egg yolks. Add cookie crumbs, ground fine, and baking powder, then milk and vanilla. Fold in beaten egg whites. Bake in eight-inch pans, put together and frost, or bake in sheet pan and serve with whipped cream.

Problems About Sorority Bids

Membership Not Necessary Label of Social Success

Mamas who are worried sick for fear their college-freshman daughters won't get sorority bids may be interested in what the dean of women of one of the large U.S. universities has to say on the subject, says Ruth Millett.

This dean has found that membership in a sorority doesn't lessen a girl's social problems in the least.

In fact, she says, the socially-slow girl who does join a sorority finds every one of her shortcomings emphasized. She actually suffers more than the girl who lands in a dormitory without any sorority connections.

Finds Own Level

The girl who doesn't pledge a sorority becomes part of a large group—rather than part of a small, closely-knit group that tends to be snobbish.

In the large group she finds friends among girls who are interested in the same things she is interested in. If she doesn't go over big with boys, or gets small recognition in extra-curricular activities, she needn't be apologetic or embarrassed about it. For in a large group, every girl isn't expected to be a howling success.

But the sorority girl who doesn't have many dates and doesn't land any campus offices to compensate for them is made to feel pretty useless.

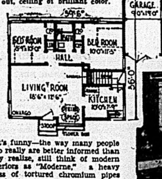
Inferiority Feeling

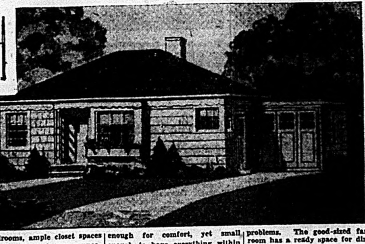
Most of the girls in the house date a great deal. In comparison she is a dud. Most of them get themselves known on the campus. If she doesn't, she is made to feel she isn't doing her part to make dear Alpha the best sorority on the campus.

This feeling of shame at not being a social success often becomes extremely intense. The dean of women I am quoting says that in one house at her college girls who don't have dates Friday and Saturday nights go without their dinners rather than go downstairs in front of the men who are waiting for other girls. The dateless girls are ashamed to let the men see they haven't been invited out.

A House In The Modern Manner

A fresh, modern treatment for this house would be white walls inside and out, ceiling of brilliant color.





It's funny—the way many people who really are better informed than they realize, still think of modern interiors as "Moderne," a heavy mass of tortured chromium pipes and leatherette, carved carpeting of shiny linoleum floor covering, all in rather shocking colors.

Here is a small house which could be a gem of the newest in living quarters; take a tour through the best shops and the best magazines in your neighborhood, and try out some of the smooth, latter-day ideas.

Two bedrooms, ample closet spaces and a bath, with their own connection hall, are skilfully cut off from the living space of this small, pretty house. The kitchen is just large enough for comfort, yet small enough to have everything within reach to save steps. The door to cellar and to garage front are off the kitchen, facilitating service problems. The good-sized family room has a ready space for dining, near the kitchen, and a recessed wall which can be used for built-in bookshelves. The flower box is pretty.

Cosmetics Won't Conceal Age

Better to Take it Calmly And Not Try To Hide it

By Caroline Chatfield

Mr. SOMERSET MAUGHAN, who loves to write about oldish women that frequent resorts, is rather contemptuous of the sisters of the setting sun. Among other things he employs the cosmetics method to smear them. They are pictured with cheeks too pink, lips too red, touched up locks and talon nails. At any pause in his tale he has the old girls take time out to apply more rouge and lipstick.

Yes, some of the old girls have a fatal weakness for the contents of the vanity case. Whether it's failing eyesight that trips them or a mistaken belief that plenty of paint saves the surface and therefore saves all, I wouldn't know. But giving them credit for reasonable intelligence, let's say they make up in dim lighted boudoirs and can't see as they once could.

Bidding farewell to youth is a gruesome business to a woman unless she has a packet of something worth while to take the place of the things she's parting with. A pot of paint, a deck of cards, tickets to far away places and a mouthful of gossip are not enough. The worthwhile things are less expensive and easier to come by. In fact they are free.

If Eyes Are Merry

Crows feet around the eyes needn't be disfiguring if they frame eyes that are kindly or merry, or even keenly aware. The thin sisters that are shrivelling up and the fat ones that are getting fatter can make us forget their figures if they have something to offer beyond their household problems, including calories.

The wrinkles, the brown spots, the knotty knuckles, the misshapen feet, the ridged nails and the fading hair can't be covered up by cosmetics but they will be skipped by the onlookers if the wearers of the service stripes are not forever reminding us that they once wore size three shoes, size four glove, were famed for the satin texture of their skin, and the sheen of their hair.

Verily a woman is vain and her youth is fleeting and she's open to any suggestion supposed to aid her in convincing her public that some vestige of youth remains. It's not surprising that some of the old girls are decoyed.

Rangers and Leafs Open NHL Season Tonight in Toronto; League Looking for Good Year

Every Team in the Loop Has Been Strengthened for Long Schedule

MANY ROOKIES

Canadiens and Detroit Rebuild From Ground Up While Leafs, Rangers and Bruins Stand Pat

By SYDNEY GRUSON

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

If the pre-season claims of every National Hockey League manager were laid end to end, there would be a Stanley Cup in every city, a prize rookie on every front door and a league championship in every backyard.

Having been filled for several weeks with nothing but words of praise about the teams, the fans can toss it all aside and begin to see for themselves just what is what. The N.H.L. opens its 1940-41 season tonight.

The schedule makers have thrown a "natural" on their first roll, picking up the new season just where the old left off. Finalists for the Stanley Cup, New York Rangers and Toronto Maple Leafs kick the opening gong in Toronto — where the Rangers were crowned world champions a short seven months ago.

The rest of the league will swing into action swiftly after the opening, and by next Tuesday night all seven clubs will have had their baptism of fire. Canadiens play Boston Bruins at Montreal and New York Americans visit Detroit Red Wings Sunday night. Chicago opens in its home arena against the Americans Tuesday.

Hope Is High.

Hope is high and promise is abundant with every club. The league has been strengthened where strengthening was needed; its solid foundations show no signs of cracking and the combination should enable the circuit to operate through a banner year despite the war.

The known quantities, as usual, are the old perennials, the Leafs, Rangers and Boston Bruins. These are machines tested by time, blends of youth and veteran to make their challenges as strong as ever. And it is because of their known quantities that the early-season interest lies in seeing just what the reinforced tail-enders can do.

For instance, there are the Canadiens so radically different from last year's cellar club that no one can honestly say just what will happen to them. They can be no worse than the season gone by, and there is every indication they may be a whole sight better. They've scrapped the old machine, brought in new mechanics to turn wheels and given the mechanics new wheels to turn.

Johnny Quilty, Jack Adams, Bert Gardiner, Elmer Lach — these are only a few of the new faces on the Canadien roster. It is the same with Red Dutton's Americans, no longer an ancient vehicle but a streamlined model with a whole new forward line among the five amateurs who will start with the club.

Detroit Rebuilt.

Detroit, too, have rebuilt, aiming a notch or two higher than fifth place, which they gained only because the Canadiens and Americans were so weak. They have brought in a young goalkeeper, Johnny Mowers, from the amateur ranks to replace the retired Tiny Thompson. They are gambling with Jud McAtee, a junior last season.

Paul Thompson's Chicago Black Hawks remain almost as they were in their surprising run to fourth place last season. They have several fellows such as Doug Bentley, Bill Carse, Johnny Chad and Phil Hergesheimer starting their second year. If they continue to improve they will make the Hawks a tough lot.

There isn't a single new player with the Rangers, or the Bruins or the Leafs. But they have such fine collections of experienced men that to go out on a limb and say they won't finish one-two-three, with any one of them liable to be on top, would be silly.

SOFTBALL SEASON CLOSED WITH FINE BANQUET

R.C.A.F. Fliers Presented With O.A.S.A. Trophy While League Awards Prizes

TROPHIES PRESENTED

Splendid Program and Smoker Concludes Congenial Affair

Trenton, Nov. 2.—Climaxing the most successful season in softball history in Trenton, members of the various softball teams, coaches and officials of the softball circles in the district attended the annual smoker and presentation of prizes in the Moose Hall here last night.

The R.C.A.F. Flyers walked off with the majority of the prizes and trophies. Harry Rollins, member of the O.A.S.A. executive, presented the intermediate "B" O.A.S.A. trophy to the Flyers who captured the title from the Lampton-Kent Creameries in two straight games.

The Flyers moved into the first round of the playoffs by defeating the Wooler intermediates in the best two-out-of-three series in this town. From that time on the champions lost but one game throughout the playoffs. Meeting the Creameries in the finals, the Flyers defeated their opponents 7 to 6 in a ten inning game and then returned to Trenton where they handed them their second defeat 3 to 1.

George Cobley also presented the R.C.A.F. softball team with the Cobley Trophy which was donated by Mr. Cobley to the champions of the Trenton and District League. During this league, the Flyers also maintained an enviable record by losing only one game throughout the season and that to the Woolerites.

Harry Farr, ace hurler of the Flyers, was acclaimed the most valuable player in the Trenton and District League and was presented with the trophy by Art Black, the donor. Farr not only hurled his teammates to many a victory but also was one of the strongest men at bat for the champions. In the final game, Farr hurled an outstanding game and topped it off with a homer with one man on base to win the ball game and the championship.

The Trenton and District Softball League had a most successful year financially. In spite of the fact that fewer games were played this year, the gates were larger and a considerable bank balance is left for next year's league.

Red Cross Benefits

The Red Cross Society was given $75.00 by the league officials, to aid the society in its war work. The money was raised through a game played between the R.C.A.F. Flyers and the Woolerites for which the league officials sold a great number of tickets.

Jess Baker, president of the local softball league, during 1940, was reelected to handle the job for another year. During the past season, Mr. Baker elevated softball in the minds of the Trenton fans considerably and was highly praised for his untiring efforts.

Other officers elected for 1941 were J. Anderson, Secretary; B. McKew, Treasurer, and B. House and A. Black members of the executive.

During the past season, the Trenton teams were weakened by the players enlisting for active service. A number of the players from the juniors, the Donuts and the Benedicts enlisted with the Hastings and Prince Edward regiment, on the outbreak of war.

Entertainment at the smoker was provided by Aircraftman G. St. Vincent of the R.C.A.F., who astonished the boys with many sleight-of-hand tricks.

Today's Guest Star—

Jack Durkin, Syracuse Herald-Journal: "The Georgetown football team is a 'W.P.A.' job—weight plus ambition...... Jack Hagerty's charges are undefeated in two seasons...... They are in favor of a third term at the Washington seat of learning."

WILL TAKE THE ICE WITH AMERICANS THIS SUNDAY

Tommy Anderson, Earl Robertson and Hooley Smith are three of Red Dutton's veterans who will make sure that the Americans are in there fighting when they open their 1940-41 season at Detroit this Sunday. Manager Dutton has also added a flock of promising youngsters to his squad this season and they may prove a stumbling block to some of their veteran opponents.

ST. MICHAEL'S IN SECOND PLACE

6-Man Squad Defeats O.S.D. 6-5 Both Teams Scoring Touches but St. Michael's Converted for Extra Point

Jack Doran's St. Michael's Academy sextette fortified their second position stand in the city six-man interscholastic football group with a 6-5 win over Jim Rickaby's O.S.D. team on the latter's gridiron yesterday. The St. Mikes abbreviated football squad have won two of their three games played and trail the group-leading B.C.I. by one game, while O.S.D. have yet to win a game. The fourth member of the group, Albert College, has chalked up one win in three starts.

Both squads scored touchdowns yesterday at the O.S.D. campus, but the "Irish" converted their try to gain the extra point and victory, as the "deaf lads" failed to notch the extra point after the major score.

Mike Callaghan scored for St. Michael's early in the initial quarter when he leaped high to spear a forward pass and run it over. The touchdown was converted and St. Mikes were still leading 6-0 as the second half opened.

Conlon picked up a loose ball, following an Irish fumble and ran it 25 yards for a touchdown making the score 6 to 5 and there was no subsequent scoring. Vern Goyer's power plays always proved dangerous for St. Mike's while Conlon stood out for the losers.

St. Michael's—Snap, M. Callaghan, wings, Shepherd and Power; quarter, Goyer; halves, McQuaid and Wilson; subs, Pigeon, Bunton, D. Callaghan and Forrester.

Referee—Frank Cunningham of O.S.D.

CALGARY BRONKS ON TITLE TRAIL

Will Clash in Three Game Series With Winnipeg for Western Title

Calgary, Nov. 2 (CP)—The Calgary Bronks start down the trail today that may lead them to the western Canada football championship.

They meet the Dominion champions, the Winnipeg Blue Bombers at Metawa stadium this afternoon in the opening game of the best-of-three for the western title.

The Bombers arrived from Winnipeg this morning, welcomed by local club officials and fans to the foothills city.

Coach Reg Threlfall brought 25 players with him, while the Bronks' mentor, Larry Haynes, has 23 ready for the field.

Rainy weather played havoc with the bombers training schedule this week and they had only one outdoor workout.

Asked his chances, Threlfall said: "Well, we've had just one practice in a week, haven't we?"

The Bronks have had 10 days of strenuous practice, and are reported in perfect trim and ready for some hard, and fast plays today.

Second game will be played at Winnipeg Nov. 8 and a third, if necessary, Nov. 11 at Winnipeg.

LEAVES UNDER CONSIDERATION

Ottawa, Nov. 2 (CP). — Arrangements for Christmas and New Year's Day leaves for members of the Canadian Active Service Force in Canada are under consideration at the National Defence Department.

It appeared probable that some system of granting leave to some men for Christmas and to others for New Year's would be worked out through officers commanding the various military districts.

WHY THE TREE, CHAMP?

We can find no reason for middleweight champ Ken Overlin climbing this tree at Summit, N.J., where he is training for a defence of his title, Nov. 1, against Steve Belloise, of New York. Perhaps the cameraman ran out of ideas for posing his subject or maybe it strengthens Ken's legs to clamber the wood.

PERFORMING HER SPECIALTY

Here's the way Luverne Wise, 18, boots a point after touchdown for her team, the undefeated Atmore, Ala., high school eleven. She's a senior and this is her second season on the 17-player squad. Red Vickrey the team's star back who has scored 111 points, held the ball for her. She has scored two points by placements and has passed for two others. She doesn't play the rough part of game, but she's there as "pinch-kicker" when needed.

Brockville Collegiate Scores First Win Over Kingston 15-0

Brockville, Ont., Nov. 2—(CP)—Brockville Collegiate Institute for the first time in three years yesterday beat Kingston Collegiate 15-0 in an Interscholastic football game.

Although the Kingston squad was superior in weight, the Brockville boys proved too fast as they continually gained yards on their opponents. Tait, big Brockville backfielder, plunged for successive gains in the first quarter to place his team in position for the first touchdown which was scored by Burnsell, hefty middle, who crashed through the line for the points. Kingston blocked the kick for the extra point.

The second major score was made in the second quarter by Markell who picked a forward pass from Tait out of the hands of several Kingston men, and ran 15 yards for a touchdown. Kingston again blocked the attempt to convert.

The final score came in the last quarter when Tait made a 30-yard run to put the team in scoring position on the 10-yard line. After two plunges Tait crossed the line to make the score 15-0.

STEVE BELLOISE DROPS OVERLIN IN TORRID BOUT

Knocks Middleweight Title Holder Down in Sixth but Could Not Finish Him Off

CROWD BOOS VERDICT

Belloise is Promised Another Shot at Champion in Near Future

By GAYLE TALBOT

(Associated Press Sport Writer)

New York, Nov. 2 (AP)—Young Steve Belloise still doesn't own a single one of the various middleweight boxing titles, but the boy from the Bronx staked a claim on one in his losing fight against wily Ken Overlin in the Garden last night.

For a 21-year-old engaging in only his 33rd bout, Steve made a great showing against the veteran who holds the 160-pound crown (New York and California variety), and the crowd of 13,000 rewarded him by booing the verdict for a good five minutes.

The youngster with the big punch knocked Overlin down with a terrific right in the sixth round and gave the champ an awful going-over in that heat. But he punched himself out, let Overlin get away and recover, and in the end the decision was the only one it could have been.

Promoter Mike Jacobs liked Steve's fight so well that he crowded into the dressing room to offer him another shot at Overlin. Steve was more than willing, but Chris Dundee, Overlin's manager, said he wanted time to think it over thoroughly.

Referee Voted a Draw

And well he might. The referee last night thought Belloise earned a draw. The two judges, however, voted in a solid bloc of Overlin, one of them awarding him 11 rounds to Steve's four.

Overlin, this time, was just a little too cute for Belloise. Whether he will be six months from now is doubtful. Overlin made him look like a sap for rounds at a time, but the Bronx boy never became discouraged and never ceased to be dangerous. As late as the 12th round he caught Overlin a couple that staggered the veteran and had him in trouble.

Overlin appeared to be a goner in the sixth. When he hopped right up without taking a count after being clipped, he ran into terrible punishment. Belloise must have measured him with 30 clean shots on the jaw as he reeled around, helpless. But he wouldn't go down again, and with 30 seconds of the round still to go Belloise suddenly ran out of steam.

That was his last chance to win the crown last night.

JOE LOUIS TAKES BOOS LIKE CHAMP

New York, Nov. 1 (AP)—Joe Louis, heavyweight champion of the world, was booed at a Republican political rally in the heart of Harlem last night, but he took it like a champ.

"You boys," said the imperturbable Brown Bomber, "can boo 'till you get blue in the face . . . but I'll just keep on talking."

Looking down at his hecklers, he declared, "I'm used to boos—and I win anyway."

This brought a wave of cheers.

He was up there to urge the election of Wendell L. Willkie. Police estimated 3,500 to 4,000 negroes jammed into a ballroom to hear him, and that 3,000 to 4,000 waited outside.

Louis was booed by some of his listeners when he said, "I endorse Mr. Willkie because he knows what $15 a week will do."

He waited until the booing subsided.

The champ said, "you boys who are booing are boys under 21 who don't know...You don't know what your mothers went through."

"If Mr. Willkie is elected," said Louis, "he has promised in writing to put over the anti-lynching bill. Roosevelt has been in office for eight years and done nothing about that. The people in the north don't know how long is eight years."

Before walking off the platform, he concluded, "if some of you people don't appreciate what I am saying, I'm sorry."

New York, Nov. 2 (AP)—Joe Louis has dropped six pounds since taking the stump...... La Marble would do her fans a favor if she'd spike or confirm those reports she's all set to turn pro...... Ted Williams still is sore at the papers one of the Boston sheets wired the Boston players for their draft numbers. Only guy who didn't reply was Theodore, the problem child.

If Sacramento hadn't grabbed Pepper Martin, he would have been more than welcome as manager of Col. Al Banister's Columbus Red Birds....add umpires: Steamboat Johnson, the Southern Association veteran, spoke to a Chattanooga knife and fork club the other day and exhibited the scars he received when the Wolves hurled pop bottles at him.

Down in Kingston they are moving towards a strong hockey team to work out in the Van Horne series and then advance into the intermediate ranks of the O.H.A. However, the Limestone City moguls are counting upon the puck efforts of two of their former players perhaps too much. We refer to Tabby Gow and Bill Hastie, two forwards who played with Ed. Thomas' Redmen in the Van Horne series last year. As we understand things both Gow and Hastie may be playing hockey with a local team this winter. Actually bringing facts to the point Belleville may have a strong O.H.A. team iced. We say this in reservation—if the Air Force do not enter O.H.A. competition the local sextette will have Hastie, Gow and another forward to work with whatever Air Force players available. However, if the "Flyers" ice a team we understand more players will be imported to build a team around the few pucksters now available locally. But, we hope to have more detailed news next week when the St. Louis-Watt combination enter their squad into the Van Horne series.

At least two former Belleville pucksters will be given a trial with Kingston hockey teams this winter. Reg Pringle, who finished the season with the Redmen, is slated for a trial with the new Kingston Hockey Club, while Leo Goyer, who played juvenile and junior with the Quintes here, has changed his puck affections and is residing in the Limestone City now. Leo is being counted on by Coach Wally Elmer to star on the Kingston Lions' defence. The Kingston puck interests have launched upon a concerted drive to revive the winter pastime in the Limestone City this winter. Ted Johnson was named manager of the Kingston intermediates, while Yip Radley will be coach, assisted by Flat Walsh and Tip Roberts. The Kingston club reverted back to the old Kingston colors of blue and white, the uniforms being light blue with a large block letter "K" on the front of the jerseys. The greater Kingston pucksters are aiming to try their luck in the Van Horne series and if they reach any degree of success (of which there's little doubt) they'll continue in the O.H.A. wars, which is again another story.

With no outside competitive sports being permitted at either Queen's University or the Royal Military College this year, the Kingston interests are counting strongly on the use of Queen's pucksters at least, which should give them an augmented team strong enough to just about win the Eastern Ontario end of the intermediate O.H.A. picture. However, the Limestone City team will be seeking a grouping with outside clubs, after years of isolation in a compact city grouping. Gananoque cannot be expected to cope with the strong Kingston squad, so perhaps we may yet see a Peterboro - Belleville - Kingston O.H.A. group in action next January. Both Peterboro and Kingston are assured of strong squads, but what of Belleville? Before a local O.H.A. entry is even so much as contemplated the local hockey powers-to-be should seek additional playing strength and with Sandy Burrows on the provincial hockey executive surely he should have some firsthand knowledge of a few wandering pucksters of ability.

We received an anonymous letter yesterday informing us that Harry McGuire, former Belleville junior puckster, has enlisted with the Canadian Navy and is seeking a berth on the Middies' junior puck squad this winter at Halifax. Other members of Toots Holway's juniors now in the service of the Empire are Goalie Gerd Cook, now somewhere in England with the C.A.S.F. and Perry Everett, with Royal Canadian Ordnance Corps stationed at Kingston. Actually the only junior players left from last year's Quinte squad are Ted Clarke, spare goalie last year, Bonnie Gerow, Arnold Ethier, Ross Clare, Wagar of Tweed and Armstrong of Stirling. Frank Butler and Mark Storms are over the junior age, while the rest of the team is spread over the province hither and yon.

Do you remember when John A. Heydler, for fifteen years president of the National Baseball League, resigned six years ago today because of ill-health. Ford Frick, sports writer, was named president Nov. 8 and still holds the post.

We doff our chapeau to the Trenton Softball Association. Last night the Trent "mushball" moguls honored their league and provincial champions at a social evening unequalled in the annals of sportsdom in the Eastern Ontario area in years. President Jess Baker and his cohorts deserve more credit than can be printed in this small column. Actually the success of the Trenton Softball League this past season was merely the result of years of effort, but it took men like Geo. Cobley, Jess Baker, Jim Anderson, Bill McKewen, Art Black and many others to put their untiring efforts into a project that last night paid dividends. Of course the feature of the evening was the presentation of the O.A.S.A. trophy to the champion R.C.A.F. softball squad and incidentally Pitcher Harry Farr, of the Flyers, was awarded the Art Black Cup as the most valuable player in the loop. Harry Rollins, our own good Belleville softball Ex. on the provincial body made the principal speech and presentation.

As a token of their appreciation the R.C.A.F. championship softball squad presented their manager, Captain Moffatt, with a combined cigarette case and lighter. The case was suitably engraved with the names of every player on the 1940 champion O.A.S.A. team from the R.C.A.F. and presented to Captain Moffatt by Sergeant Laurie Gibson, veteran player and coach of the team. The feature entertainment of the evening was also supplied by the Air Force, while honors were passed out to the Wooler team, but insofar as this corner was concerned — the Trenton Softball Association can show the way to many such organizations from the larger areas.

SPORT SPICE—Last season's Stanley Cup finalists will pry off the N. H. L. lid tonight in Toronto when the Maple Leafs and Rangers square off and Foster Hewitt opens his initial barrage of the long five month season with—"Heeeee shoots......Heeee scores"...... Ask Jack Hall how to get free tickets for every N. H. L. game in Toronto. John knows because he got a quartette yesterday...... Those who talk of Bing (Radio, and Movie) Crosby purchasing the Boston Bees franchise in the National League...... However, Bing thought it better to stick to crooning and race horses and leave eastern baseball to itself.. ......After all Judge Landis has no place in his heart for horse racing........ It didn't take long—see where McGill is seeking permission to play hockey, which about proves the folly of the Intercollegiate decision to abandon sport for the duration.......

Roosevelt Says Reactionaries Back of Willkie

Brooklyn, N.Y., Nov. 2 (AP)—President Roosevelt declared Friday night that the Republican Party is being backed by an "unholy alliance" of extreme reactionaries and extreme reactionaries and extreme radical seeking "dictatorial ends."

He made the statement in an address broadcast nationally from the Brooklyn Academy of Music, opening a final 24-hour campaign in New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio.

Saying every one knew the fable about the "unfortunate chameleon" who "died a tragic death when they put him on a Scotch plaid," Mr. Roosevelt added:

"We all know what would happen to government if it tried to fulfill all the secret understandings and promises made between the conflicting groups which are now backing the Republican Party."

The President said he felt certain that the rank and file of "patriotic Republicans" did not "realize the nature of this threat."

"They should remember," he added, "and we must remember, what the collaborative understanding between communism and nazism has done to the processes of democracy abroad."

The President contended that "something evil" is happening in the country "when a full-page advertisement against this Administration, paid for by Republican supporters, appears—where, of all places?—in the Daily Worker, the newspaper of the Communist Party."

Mr. Roosevelt continued:

"Something evil is happening in this country when vast quantities of Republican campaign literature are distributed by organizations which make no secret of their admiration for the dictatorship form of government.

"These forces hate democracy and Christianity as two phases of the same civilization. They oppose democracy because it is Christian. They oppose Christianity because it preaches democracy.

"Their objective is to prevent democracy from becoming strong and purposeful. We are strong and purposeful now."

Mr. Roosevelt said that the "true sentiment of the Republican leadership" had been disclosed by "a prominent leader of the Philadelphia bar," who, he added, said in a Republican campaign speech the other day that the President's only supporters were "paupers, those who earn less than $1,200 a year and aren't worth that, and the Roosevelt family."

"Can the Republican leaders deny," he asked, "that this all-too-prevailing Republican sentiment is a direct vicious appeal to class class hatred, and continued:

Fighting For Little Man.

The President said he is fighting "with all my heart and soul" against hatred, to class contempt?"

"I am fighting for a free America—for a country in which all men and women have equal rights to liberty and justice.

"I am fighting against the revival of government by special privilege—government by lobbyists—government vested in the hands of those who favor and who would have us imitate the foreign dictatorships.

"I am fighting, as I have always fought, for the rights of the little man as well as the big man, for the weak as well as the strong, for those who are helpless as well as for those who can help themselves.

"I am fighting to keep this nation prosperous and at peace. I am fighting to keep our people out of foreign wars, and to keep foreign conceptions of government out of our own United States.

"I am fighting for these great and good causes. I am fighting to defend them against the power and might of those who now rise up to challenge them.

"And I shall not stop fighting!"

Re-election of Roosevelt Needed For Peace, Says Hull

Washington, (AP)—Secretary of State Cordell Hull declared Friday night that the re-election of President Roosevelt could "in the fullest possible measure assure the security and safeguard the peace of this country."

Hull urged a "continuity of national leadership" and declared that "President Roosevelt's record of unremitting labor for peace, of ceaseless efforts to keep war away from this country and this hemisphere can not be blacked out by any attacks on his sincerity and good faith."

Vigorously defending Roosevelt's foreign policy, he declared it would "be a tragedy" for the election to "turn on spurious and counterfeit ......artificially created to mislead the voters."

"Outstanding is the wholly unwarranted and utterly vicious charge that the President is 'leading us into war,' " he said. On the contrary, he declared, "this country is being entrenched against war."

"We are creating the weapons and the organization needed, first, to discourage would-be assailants, and, second, should we be assailed, to repel assaults," he continued.

"We are warning our people of danger to this country should other nations which are under assault go down. We are making available access to the resources and the products of this country to countries under assault whose survival is important to our own security."

The Secretary of State declared that the "conquering nations" had "fixed no limits for their program of conquest," and were "desperately struggling to seize control of the oceans as an essential means of conquest of the other continents."

CARD OF THANKS

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Young of Watertown, N.Y., desire to express their sincere appreciation of the many acts of kindness which were so generously manifested by friends during the illness and at the time of the passing of Mr. Young's sister, the late Mrs. Cecil Hulley. To Dr. R. W. Tennent, the nurses at the Belleville General Hospital, and the Rev. Dr. James Semple, they feel grateful for their sympathy and kind consideration. The many beautiful floral tributes were also much appreciated. N2

IN MEMORIAM

NAYLOR—In loving memory of Thomas Naylor, a kind, and thoughtful husband and father who passed to his eternal reward two years ago, November 3rd., 1938.

I never shall forget his face,
His honest heart so true,
The sympathetic thought he had
For all he ever knew.
His life's work here is ended
He's gone to the Better Land.
Where sin and sorrow are known no more,
There to sing in the "White Robed Band."

—Sadly missed by wife and son.

Allan's Mills

Allan Mills—Dr. and Mrs. Wellman have returned to Whitby after spending the past week with Mr. and Mrs. Dave Wellman.

The home of Mrs. Jack Reid was filled on Friday evening when friends and neighbors met in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Watson, (nee Marjorie Reid) and tendered the newly weds a miscellaneous shower. The beautiful gifts showed the high esteem in which the young couple are held.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred McKeown visited Mr. and Mrs. Thos. McKeown on Sunday.

Friends were shocked to hear of the sudden death on Friday morning of Mrs. John Mason of Springbrook. Mrs. Mason was stricken with a heart attack and passed away in a few minutes. Left to mourn her loss are two sons, Mr. Morley and Mr. Murney Mason and one granddaughter.

"THE GORGON'S MASK"

by Van Wyck Mason

CHAPTER FOUR.

A few minutes later the men were descending a broad flight of stairs cut into the blackness of the lava rock. From below came the soprano notes of women's voices and high-pitched little gusts of amusement.

"A lovely spot, eh, Baron?" remarked Nevins as they advanced across a broad, mat-carpeted float which rose a scant two feet above the phosphorescent water.

"Ja," the other said quickly. "Neffer haff I seen stars like these." And he tilted his face skywards to look through those rattling palm fronds which swept gracefully low over the float. "Sehr schon—wunderbar."

"Ah, better late than never," Catherine Lloyd called to them as they came in sight. "That you, Bruce, old dear?"

The women, their presence marked by the jewel-like glow of cigarettes, had seated themselves, but when servants began to set up a number of card tables, they arose and wandered to the edge of the float to exclaim over the phosphorus which sparkled on the waves.

"Oh, boy!" cried Catherine Lloyd, stretching out her long, tawny arms. "What a swell night for a swim. How's the water?"

Nevins silently turned and dropped on one knee at the edge of the float. Halfway to the phosphorescent surface his hand paused, and he gazed sharply at the water.

"It's a little cold," he said and then strolled across the float with the obvious intention of speaking to Abner Polk. Then he spun about as he saw that one of the swarm of servants was in the act of reaching for the float's light switch.

"Leave that alone!" he snapped.

His command was an instant too late, for the Filipino's wrist had turned, a pitiless white radiance flooding float, beach, and water.

"Oh-h-h!" A girl screamed while she cried, "Look! At that!"

Floating in the clear, pale green water was a long, white shape that cast a black shadow on the sand of the bottom. Every detail of the body could be seen, for the light, striking on the white sand below, cast upwards a reflected glow, which lit the body's under side. Lieutenant Clark cried hoarsely, "Look! It—it's a girl!"

Frozen by horror, they stood at the float's edge, staring at the superbly modelled naked body which, face upwards, was drifting peacefully by, trailing behind a bright mass of yellow hair that stirred in the faint current.

Lieutenant Clark dove from the float and, expertly sliding an arm under the chin of the motionless girl, towed her nearer. Like cornsilk her long yellow hair swirled, now veiling, now revealing the beautiful face.

The big game hunter stooped and, reaching into the water, passed a hand under one of the girl's arms. It was cold and firm—almost as if rigor mortis had set in. Promptly Kilgour caught at the other.

"Now!" With a quick heave the two men pulled the limp, long-legged girl onto the broad white boards of the float while the men and women crowded about them, staring wide-eyed as the visitor came to them so mysteriously out of the sea.

"Oh, the poor, pretty thing!" gulped Miss Lloyd. "See? There's a scratch on her neck!"

While Clark hauled himself onto the float and pushed a long strand of blonde hair from his eyes, Nevins expertly tested the pallid figure's pulse, and all the while stared at that scratch which marred the purity of that satin-smooth neck like a red letter drawn on a clean white page.

"Is—is there any sign of life?" queried Phedre Renoire with breathless intensity.

Nevins' narrow black head jerked upwards to face the speaker. "There is no pulse I can feel." Then he pressed his ear to the glistening silver of the girl's chest for an instant. The flesh was wet and cold; but he realized that the chill of death had not long ago taken possession of this beautiful stranger. Her limbs were still entirely lax and supple. She could not have been dead much more than ten minutes.

Politely, yet firmly, Hideyo Kanamura pushed his way to the front where, sharply revealed by the float lights, he bent over the pallid figure with an agitated air that almost suggested anxiety.

"Then she is not alive? Please, please!" The Japanese seemed very much upset. "Perhaps if you try to —what you call it?—respire her?"

"No use," Nevins said and, getting to his feet, stripped off his coat to prepare to cover the silvery outlines at his feet, but Kanamura almost desperately caught at his arm.

"Please, she may still be alive."

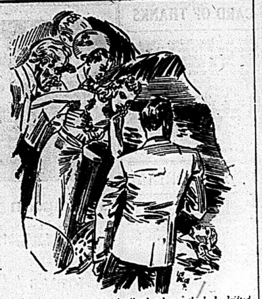
"Okay, let's try respiration," suggested Clark, peeling off his sodden uniform coat and letting it fall with a dull squelch.

So, on the rough brown matting of the springboard, Clark began methodic attempts at resuscitation while the women, big-eyed with horror, looked on, and the manse on the bluff above awoke to a feverish activity expressed in ringing bells and dozens of lights.

"I say, Nevins, have you noticed?" Kilgour muttered in an undertone as he stood at his elbow. "It's deuced queer."

"What's queer?"

"Queer that she should have floated like this." His bright blue eyes sought the American's. "You know as well as I do that when people drown they don't come to the surface until—until later."



Frozen by horror, they stood at the float's edge as the body drifted towards it in the phosphorescent sea . . .

Nevins, whose eyes were wandering over the now wildly conversational crowd, nodded. "Um, that's true." Then, most irrationally, he started forward. "Here, Clark, better let me have a go at it." And kneeling, he took up that slow, hopeless flexing of the girl's limply wet arms. Once his hand wandered to the nape of the neck, and for a moment he tested the damp, pale yellow hair at that point.

"Why do you do that?" Kanamura demanded sharply.

Nevins glanced up as though startled. "To see if she'd been slugged—stunned, you know."

"And she is not?"

"No."

"Well," Abner Polk observed in strained and unnatural tones, "that's quite a bad scratch on her neck."

"I'll say so," Catherine Lloyd agreed. "It looks as if a cat had clawed her."

There was a general craning of necks, and in silence the onlookers peered down at that series of scratches which looked like red silk embroidery done on glistening satin.

Kanamura suddenly knelt and held a lighter close to the scraped spot.

"Ah, the poor girl!" sighed Phedre Renoire, turning suddenly away with sorrow on her lips and a very different emotion shining in her eyes. "What a terrible way to die!"

Guard Rail Posts Sheared Off by Car

TRENTON, Nov. 2 (Special) — After shearing off four highway guard rail posts, an Austin car, driven by John C. Perry, university student residing at 100 Barrie Street, Kingston, crashed into a large tree east of the Bay of Quinte Country Club on the Belleville road early today. Perry was found in a semi-conscious condition and rushed to the Belleville General Hospital, where Dr. J. J. Robertson attended.

Motorcycle Patrolman J. J. Hatch investigated the accident and was of the opinion that Perry must have fallen asleep at the wheel of his small car, as eye witnesses stated that the vehicle was seen to veer across the highway before hitting the guard rail posts. The front of the small car was damaged almost beyond repair, while Perry sustained serious internal injuries.

TORONTO STOCKS CLOSE

Toronto, Nov. 2 (CP)—Mining shares were dull and steady and industrials were narrowly higher in the final session of the Toronto stock exchange. Only about 50,000 shares changed hands in the first two hours, the smallest Saturday turnover in a month or more.

English Electric A advanced a point to 28 and Steel of Canada 7 1-2 points higher at 75. Dominion Stores went to a new high for the year at 6 3-8 and Fanny Farmer added 1-4.

Golds showed light turnover with Preston, Rancoeur, Aunor and Chesterville down: 2 to 3 cents and MacLeod-Cockshutt, Wright Hargreaves and McKenzie slightly stronger.

Losses of small fractions were posted for Nickel and Noranda while Falconbridge firmed 10 cents to 2.85.

Hog Quotations

Toronto, Nov. 2 (CP)—Dressed-weight were down 65 cents at Stratford and 40 cents at Hull in bacon-hog markets reporting early today.

Dressedweight—Stratford $10.75 plus transportation, Hull $10.60.

JAP AIR FORCE BELIEVED BETTER THAN THAT OF U.S.

GOOD QUALITY

New York, Nov. 2 (AP).—Charles Healy Day, aircraft plant manager who has lived through 35 Japanese bombing raids in China, has brought back to the United States a belief that the Japanese air force is better than that of the United States "in quantity and quality".

"We have consistently under-rated the Japanese in the air," he said today in an interview. "They have splendid airplanes and lots of them. In China alone they are operating between 800 and 900 first-line planes."

He added he had no doubt the United States has better designs on drawing boards than the Japanese actually have in service.

"Americans are too supine in their belief that the Japanese copy occidental airplanes," Day said.

"I examined one Japanese pursuit plane shot down in the Chinese war. It resembled nothing made abroad. It had been designed by the Japanese themselves and was good for 315 miles an hour. It did not have a Japanese adaptation of an American engine."

Day went to Canton, China, in 1934 at the invitation of the Cantonese government to take charge of an aircraft plant. When the Japanese armies moved south in 1937 to extend their conquest of China, he transported his entire factory 700 miles inland. It is operating now somewhere in Yunnan province."

Sharp Advance in Eggs During Week

Toronto, Nov. 2—Sharp recovery by eggs from the previous week's decline featured this week's session of the Toronto open produce market. Price advances ranged to 6c a dozen on top grades because of light receipts and improved trading while the lower grades maintained a steady tone as supplies moved satisfactorily under good local consumer demand. These lower grades enjoyed the better enquiry in the last two days. Government inspected shipments, for which a one cent premium prevailed all week, went forward in normal volume to Northern Ontario and some l.c.l. lots were shipped to Eastern points. One car was reported sent to seaboard for shipment overseas, and another car was being assembled for shipment at a later date.

The butter market during the current week regained the 1-2 cent lost last week-end, although buying was not aggresive. Back of the firmer prices was the fact of continued small available supplies, with fresh receipts showing the seasonal shrinkings, and holders of storage stocks not offering freely. The market closed yesterday with small-scale buying in Ontario No. 1 creamery solids at 29c a pound.

Supplies of live and dressed poultry exceeded demand this week, reflecting the slow movement through retail channels. Some medium weight chickens were packed for storage. The few broilers that arrived met good demand, however.

Fore Part of Margaree Would Sink Rapidly State Navy Experts

Ottawa, Nov. 2 (CP)—Navy men, reconstructing from survivors' accounts, the sinking of the Canadian destroyer Margaree after the vessel was rammed by a merchantman, said today the forecastle apparently was sheared right off, leaving it in sinking condition because this section of the vessel is its most open part.

The forecastle contains the living quarters for most of the men. It is shell-like, not so heavily bulkheaded as that part of the ship from the bridge to the stern. Sheared off, it would fill with water rapidly.

Navy men explained the after section of the vessel which, according to survivors, floated for 12 hours until sunk by shellfire, is heavily bulkheaded as are all warships.

These bulkheads are to ensure that a vessel will remain afloat even after being hit in one or more places. There are water tight partitions, the doors of which can be closed to shut out inrushing water from any hole hammered in the ship by projectiles or collision or other damage.

All but one of the 142 men that went down with the Margaree when she was sliced in two in the north Atlantic during the night hours of Oct. 22 were in the forecastle, either on duty or sleeping. This part of the Margaree, according to survivors' accounts, sank quickly.

TEACHERS' ASSOC. HEARS PLAN OF SALE WAR SAVINGS STAMPS

At the regular meeting of the Belleville Teachers' Association held Friday at Queen Alexandra School, P. C. MacLaurin, W. J. Morrison and K. S. Hill of the Hastings War Savings Stamp Committee addressed the members on the plan for the sale of these stamps through the schools. They outlined the system which had been so effective with a number of schools and discussion of arrangements took place. The routine business of the meeting concluded the session.

EGGS ADVANCE TWO CENTS OVER LASTWEEK'SCLOSE

First Grade Eggs Quoted at 42 Cents a Dozen—Fowl Plentiful

Vegetables and apples were featured on Saturday's market with prices remaining practically at same levels as were quoted on last week's market with the exception of eggs which advanced two cents after a like decline one week ago.

Grade "A" large eggs were quoted at 42c per dozen, mediums at 40c and pullets at 35c. A fairly large offering of fowl was displayed at the usual price of 25c per pound for chicken. Large well-fleshed birds weighing six pounds were quoted at $1.50 each with lighter birds down to $1. Broilers were quoted at from 65c to $1 per pair. Butter sold at the usual price of straight 30c per pound.

On the fruit market, apples were displayed in profusion with Spys being offered for the first time this season. Ring packed hampers of this variety sold at $1.75 McIntosh, domestics, sold at $1.50 per hamper with No. 1 Snows at the same figure. Talman Sweets sold at $1.25 per hamper with most cooking varieties being quoted at $1 per hamper. Pears sold at 45c per basket or at 75c per peck. Grapes sold at 35c per basket.

Potatoes were plentiful at the usual price of 25c per peck, 85c per bushel and $1 per 75-pound bag. Carrots, parsnips, beets and onions sold at 30c per peck, cauliflower at 35c down to 5c each. Beans sold at 20c per quart while pumpkins, squash and citron sold at 5c up to 15c. Tomatoes sold at 25c and 35c per basket.

There was a large fish offering, with whitefish being quoted at 20c per lb., lake trout at 25c, pickerel at 20c, pike and mudcats at two pounds for 25c and lake mullets at two fish for 25c.

Young pigs were plentiful and buyers few with the prices remaining at the usual $4 to $5 each for "porkers" approximately eight weeks olds.

STORMS DENIES ASSAULT CHARGE

Tells Jury He Did Not See Complainant at Any Time of Night in Question

Vigorous denial that he saw Mrs. Mary Maracle, and that he assaulted her on the night of August 30th, was made by Henry "Benny" Storms, Napanee, charged with attempted rape and assault, in Supreme Court before Mr. Justice MacKay today.

Crown Case Closed

Crown Prosecutor Walter Martin closed the Crown's case after calling one witness Several witnesses were heard yesterday, who testified to the accused drinking with the complainant and two friends in the Arlington Hotel in Deseronto on the night of the assault. The charges were laid following complaints by Mrs. Maracle that Storms had allegedly attempted to rape her and had beaten her into unconsciousness shortly after midnight on Aug. 30th.

Constable J. G. Burton, O.P.P., told the jury that the accused told police after arrest and duly cautioned, "I did not see this woman that night."

Defence Counsel J. M. Simpson, K.C., called the accused Henry Storms as his first witness.

"I did not see Mary Maracle at any time that night," the accused told the court. "I was at a party at the home of Mrs. Hilditch in Deseronto that night."

He had left the party once about 8 o'clock to secure a violin string at a drug store. The witness had also gone to the Arlington Hotel where he had a glass of beer and came out. He had returned to the party about 8.30 and had not left it again. He had made coffee for the party about 11 o'clock.

He had left to go home about one in the morning with his wife and others. Previous to that, he said, he had driven around the block "to warm the car up."

"Warm up a car in August?" interjected Justice MacKay.

Storms Denies Charge

Storms denied beating Mrs. Maracle.

He vigorously denied to the Crown that he was in the Arlington Hotel with McVicker, Peggy Sero, and Mary Maracle on the night of the assault.

He admitted having a bottle of wine at the Hilditch party on the night of the alleged assault. He had drank about two glasses. He admitted to Crown Prosecutor Martin to driving around the block.

The accused admitted previous convictions of carrying a revolver, and theft, and also of assault.

Denies Seeing Persons

"Did you see McVicker, Peggy Sero, or Mary Maracle in the hotel on that night."

"No sir, I did not."

"Then they are not telling the truth when they say they saw you there."

"That is right."

Corroboration of Storms' evidence regarding his presence at the Hilditch party was made by the accused man's wife and other witnesses.

BELIEVE NEW GUN

factory fire brigade members were killed.

Apparently one German bomber crew was wiped out in the crash of their plane during the night on a North Yorkshire mooreland. One body was found beside the wreckage of the plane and three others were found a short distance away.

Another Nazi plane which crashed during the night struck an apartment house near Hornchurch, killing a man, his wife and their two-year-old daughter. The bodies of two Nazi airmen were found in the wreckage.

German long range guns on the French coast pounded away in a new bombardment of British shipping in the English Channel.

Residents on the English coast were awakened at dawn by the thunder of the German cross-channel firing, and many gathered along the shore to watch geysers of water sent up by bursting shells. Nazi planes joined in the attack on the convoy.

Watchers saw a dozen ships, with barrage balloons trailing overhead, emerge from the channel mist and steam slowly northward, apparently unharmed.

The unusual success of British anti-aircraft batteries, officially credited with shooting down five German raiders during the night, stirred speculation meanwhile that a new type of gun might have been perfected and added to the island's defences.

The "five down by dawn" score was regarded here as a feather in the gun crews' caps despite intensification of the overnight attack which made the raids the heaviest of the week for same sections.

R.A.F. Strikes at Berlin

At the same time, the Royal Air Force struck back through the night at widely scattered targets on the continent. The Air Ministry reported that Berlin and oil "targets" in central and western Germany were bombed heavily. (Reports from Berne indicated that other British fliers might have crossed Switzerland from new blows at industrial northern Italy.)

The German attacks were directed principally against London and southeastern England, a communique said, although the midlands, northeastern England and northwestern and southwestern England also reported bombings.

The communique said the raids, "while slightly more widespread than for some nights past, were not on a large scale."

There were some dead and injured but the number was described as not large.

In one town in the midlands an undisclosed number of persons was trapped in a shelter beneath a factory, and families were buried in the basements of four houses. In another midlands town 150 incendiary bombs rained down within a few minutes.

NO EVIDENCE

"We both scrambled up uninjured.

"I'm a Fraser survivor. When we got to deck I saw exactly the same things as when the Fraser sank, but to me it was much worse. It wasn't so dark this time as when the Fraser went down.

"But both times I saw absolutely no evidence of panic among any of the men."

After he came on deck when the Margaree was hit, McKenny went below again looking for a life belt and some clothes—but he couldn't find any because the lights were all out and everything was in a tangle.

So he went down to the captain's cabin (that of Cmdr. J. W. R. Roy who was lost with his ship) and found a parcel which he took aboard the rescue ship. Contents of the parcel is not known.

They met newspapermen today and told their stories of collision in the North Atlantic, of scrambling to safety from part of a stricken destroyer to the deck of a merchant vessel which rammed them, of battling the Atlantic's bristling combers. But their thoughts were of home and Christmas.

Steward Earl Brown of Halifax said the Bermuda sunshine was nice in its way, "but boy, I want to be back in Canada for Christmas."

Lounging at ease in the dockyard the rest of the Margaree survivors smilingly echoed his words.

Brown had informed his family in Halifax he was leaving British waters aboard the Margaree. When first word of the disaster was given out his name was not among casualties or survivors because of bad transmission conditions.

"That's the only way I can account for it," he said. "Anyway I'm safe and sound."

Was Asleep at Time

Brown, a survivor of the Fraser sinking, said he was asleep in the mess when the merchant vessel—still unnamed by the navy—rammed the destroyer, slicing away the fore section. He was one of 35 of the crew in the aft port, only one of whom failed to reach safety aboard the merchantman.

"I knew we were hit," he said. "It was similar to the Fraser. When everything started falling that was the first thing that came to my mind.

"I waited there and didn't say a word."

Amid the grinding of the Margaree's plates and the beating of the combers Brown said he heard somebody call out asking where there was a flashlight.

"I didn't get a flashlight," he declared. "I just crabbed some cigarettes and a lifebelt. Then I went up the ladder to the merchant ship.

"Believe me I wasn't waiting for any flashlight—but take it from me the ladder was shaky and the seas were running high."

Stoker Francis Stapley of Montreal, married in Halifax a week before he sailed from that port, was serving his first watch aboard a destroyer. Prior to his joining the Margaree he was in the Merchant Marine and when the collision occurred he was on duty in the stokehold.

"It didn't seem as if we were bumped," he said. "Water came down and the lights went out. As I had been in the Merchant service before and had taken some hard bumps I didn't think anything had happened.

"When the lights went out I felt for the ladders and once I'd got my hands onto them it was easy to grab and get out."

PO. Steward G. M. McKenny of Quebec had just turned in and was sound asleep. "I heard a big bang and fell off my billet onto the deck," he said.

McKenny said it was worse than the Fraser experience, "but I saw absolutely no evidence of panic."

When the ships struck a Toronto man, OS. Doug Watson, was up forward between the funnels on duty watch. The ship keeled up, he said, and he climbed on the depth charge throwers until she dropped down again.

"Then I got aboard the merchantman—and fast," he said with a grin.

AB. Stan Meddings of Toronto expressed a desire to get home now that the experience was all behind him "and get married some day." Meddings didn't get much of a jolt out of the collision—"I thought it was just a graze."

SIMPLICITY WILL MARK OPENING OF PARLIAMENT

Historic Ceremonies Stripped of Scarlet Tunics and Gold Braid for Duration

NO GUN SALUTE

Ottawa, Nov. 2 (CP)—Utmost simplicity will mark Parliament Hill ceremonies next Tuesday when Parliament reconvenes only to prorogue. The same wartime simplicity will feature the opening of a new session of Parliament two days later.

The historic ceremonies have been stripped of their scarlet tunics and gold braid for the duration. There will be no mounted escort for His Majesty's representative, no guard of honor, no salute of guns; merely an escort of five motorcycle officers.

Morning coats and service uniforms will take the place of the brilliant Windsor uniforms of government leaders and dress uniforms of the defence services. The few women attending will wear afternoon gowns, instead of rainbow-hued evening gowns. Honor of officiating at the two ceremonies is being shared by the Governor-General and his deputy, Chief Justice Sir Lyman Duff. The Chief Justice will preside at Tuesday's prorogation, and the Earl of Athlone at Thursday's opening. For prorogation, members of the Senate and the House of Commons will meet at 3 p.m. in their respective chambers. In the Commons the speaker will announce that four vacancies have been filled by by-elections since Parliament adjourned Aug. 7. The four new members will be introduced: Navy Minister MacDonald (Lib.-Kingston), Louis Breithaupt (Lib.-Wellington South), A. H. Bence (Con.-Saskatoon) and G. Russell Boucher (Con.-Carleton).

On being summoned to the Upper Chamber by the gentleman usher of the Black Rod, members of the Commons will proceed to the Senate to hear His Majesty's representative read the Speech from the Throne thanking members for their services during the past session. When they are dismissed there, they will not return to the Commons Chamber but disperse.

Attended by Field Officer

The Chief Justice of Canada, as Deputy Governor-General, will be attended only by a field officer in waiting, two aides and three members of the Governor-General's staff.

There will be no honorary aides. Sir Lyman, Prime Minister Mackenzie King and other members of the government will wear morning coats, not Windsor uniforms.

At Thursday's opening, the procedure will be practically the same. The Earl of Athlone, accompanied by Princess Alice, will arrive at the Parliament Buildings by automobile, escorted by five motorcycle officers, three in front, two behind, as the Chief Justice will do Tuesday.

The ceremonial in the chamber will be the same as for prorogation, except the Governor-General will have in his procession the headquarters staffs of the three defence services, officers commanding the various units in the capital and eight or nine honorary aides, in addition to his own full staff.

Instead of placing invited guests on the floor of the senate, the senators will occupy their regular desks, with members of the commons massed before the bar of the Upper House. Diplomatic and other guests will be placed in the south gallery.

Present plans are to admit the general public to the Parliament Buildings for these two events but admission to available public gallery seats to witness the ceremony will be only by ticket.

ITALIANS UNLEASH

Fourteen persons were killed and ten wounded at Larisa, while eight were killed and 87 injured in five raids on Corfu, where a communique said the Jewish quarter, an Italian school and clinics were bombed. A Catholic church was said to have been hit at Salonika.

Other cities which felt the Fascist raids were Canea, Crete, where six died; Piraeus, the Port of Athens; Corinth, Metsovon, Megara, Kastoria, Thebes, Miles, Perama and Retimo, Crete.

Over the Epirus district in the northwest the Italians dropped pamphlets declaring the invaders had "good dispositions" toward the Greeks and would respect their women, traditions and customs.

The Greek air force pitched in to aid the nation's hard-fighting ground forces, bombing and strafing Fascist troops whenever they could find them in the wild mountainous area along the Greek-Albanian border.

Fight With Bayonet

(Exchange Telegraph, British News agency, said Greek planes blasted at two Italian airdromes at Koritza, Albania, destroying one and damaging the other. The report added that Greek troops, fighting at close quarters with cold steel, had occupied a strategic height dominating Ktritza.

(Reuters, reporting a similar success, asserted the defenders had stormed and captured an important mountain and seized an Albanian area embracing several villages.)

In all sectors of the front where they have not actually succeeded in pushing the Italians back, the Greeks said, the defenders were holding firm.

(Stefani, the official Italian News agency, repeated the Fascist claim that the Greeks were retreating. The agency said, however that Italian troops have been "rudely surprised" at the lack of roads in conquered Greek territory and that engineers were having difficulty in replacing bridges blown up by the retreating Greeks.)

Operate From Two Sides

The Fascist air offensive apparently operated from two sides of Greece— from Albania and from the Dodecanese Islands in the Eastern Mediterranean.

(Reuters said British naval officers had arrived at Athens and a number of Greek Islands and were working swiftly to prepare cooperation with the Greeks.

(The British Press Association's naval correspondent in London hinted at coming action in the Mediterrean with the statement that England's Mediterranean fleet was "passing from its present phase of activity to a large-scale offensive.

(He pointed out that the Italian invasion of Greece gave the British navy "great opportunities of which naturally it is already availing itself. Indeed, he said, the moment appears to be approaching when powerful moves against the Italians might be expected.

Big Scale Offensive Expected

London, Nov. 2—(CP)—Authoritative military sources say they expect Italy to launch a big scale offensive against the Greek defence line on the southwest wing of the Albanian-Greek frontier battle line.

The Italians were reported to be moving up artillery along this coastal flank.

These sources said the fighting, after almost a week, still is a "battle of outposts."

On the Greek right (northeast) wing in the Phlorina sector the Greeks are reported to have advanced about five kilometres into Albania on the main Phlorina-Bilolj Road.

Farther southwest, in the Pindus mountain area, the Greeks yesterday gained a ridge which they lost the day before, it was reported.

The sources said the Greeks "are fighting well, and we believe they will continue to fight well."

One reason for the belief that the Italians are preparing for their main drive on the southeast battle wing is that the country there would be better adaptable for mechanized warfare.

Stand of Greeks Wins Admiration Of Entire World

(By Kirke L. Simpson)

Washington, Nov. 1—(AP) —The stand of little Greece, greatly outmatched in numbers and modern fighting gear by her Italian assailant, is doing more than stir world admiration. It is raising an imponderable question as to German-Italian strategy.

Just as their Spartan ancestors more than twenty-four centuries ago put up a brave defense against a Persian host at the pass of Thermopylae, Greeks of today are holding up Italy's advance. Every hour they can gain is of vital consequence. It brings British help that much nearer, and diminishes by that much Italian and Axis military prestige.

The same factors that temporarily balked Xerxes' Persian war chariots at Thermopylae in 480 B.C. and gave Leonida's handful of Spartans their undying fame is stalling Mussolini's modern steel-clad mechanized chariots in 1940 A.D.

They are mountains, mud and valor. Rome reports attribute the snail's pace advance of Fascist legions into Greece to torrential rains plus Greek resistance. Whether it is that or other influences which are prolonging the Italian slow-motion blitzkrieg remains to be seen.

The topography of the Greek-Albanian frontier necessarily channelizes the attack Only through four mountain passes can the Italians pour down to deploy eastward and southward to their strategic objectives.

There are indication that Rome was not prepared for tenacious Greek resistance. If the attack was not planned to test British resources as the ally of Greece, or the reactions of Russia and Turkey, the plain fact is that Greece already has further dimmed Italian prestige by her stand and may have influenced Balkan as well as Russian and Turkish policy

Any military setback to the Axis mates at this stage strikes at the vital element of their scheme for a "new order" in Europe. If little Greece can mar the legend of Axis military invincibility, Hitler and Mussolini may not easily win bloodless political and diplomatic victories elsewhere on the Continent.

Help Close at Hand

Ankara reports that Greece has told Turkey that she can hold out on her Albanian front without armed aid other than British. She looks to Turkey, it was said, to guard her Bulgarian border. From Balkan capitals under Axis sway come whispers that Greece may collapse internally within days, and Premier Metaxas be replaced by a pro-Axis regime.

Neither report seems convincing. The plight of Greece is desperate unless Britain can spare both fleet and air power from defence of her own shores and life lines to aid her. There is no reasonable probability of a political overturn of "Little John" Metaxas, because there is no important racial minority in Greece for the Axis to use as a lever.

Reported British naval occupation of unspecified Greek islands of strategic importance show that help is close at hand for Greek defenders. It makes the pretext on which Italy struck sound all the more ironic. It was to keep British forces out of those very key Greek bases, Rome said. Yet the immediate result of the stroke at Greece was to place them in British hands, at an undetermined ultimate cost to Italian and Axis prestige.

Bomb Splinters From Battle of Britain

By DOUGLAS AMARON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

"Not this time, Adolf!" reads a sign on the edge of a crater in front of a London store that two bombs missed by a couple of yards. The store staff put a big papier mache bulldog and a Union Jack on top of the rubble thrown up by the bombs.

Society Note—

A woman refugee billeted in the Swansea Valley always wears a new hat when she goes to the public shelter. She says she does it to take the minds of the other women off the war.

Classes for schoolchildren at Hove will end at 1 p.m. during the winter so that students will have plenty of time to get home before the air raids.

Douglas Stairs, 26, and Phyllis Evans, 24, had dinner together the night before they were to be married. A bomb scored a direct hit on the house where they were dining. They were buried on their wedding day.

A Lucky Escape—

Tommy's chief worry when his home was bombed was his pet gold fish left behind in the ruins. The next day the 12-year-old and a playmate turned over heaps of debris. After three hours' digging they found the fish bowl, half filled with plaster but intact, and three goldfish swimming around in shallow water.

"Is that so," said office boy Frank Backhouse of The Canadian Press when he received a message at the office that all the windows and two ceilings of his home had been blown out by a bomb. "Well, as long as they didn't knock my picture of Deanna Durbin off the wall it's O.K."

Welcoming Committee—

The night John R. Sturdy, Montreal newspaperman, arrived in London a bomb landed at the back of his hotel, blowing out all the windows. Another bomb landed in front of the hotel the second night. He didn't go home the third!

Belfast, Nov. 2 (CP Cable)—Douglas Lloyd Savery, professor of French language at Queen's University of Belfast for 30 years, today was returned by acclamation to the Queen's University seat in the British House of Commons. Prof. Savery succeeds Col. Thomas Sinclair, who resigned. Both are Conservatives. Col. Sinclair also was unopposed in the 1935 general election.

EMPRESS OF BRITAIN SURVIVORS LANDED IN ENGLAND

Sgt. Peaston, LEFT, reunited with his wife and daughter, is shown with other survivors from the Empress of Britain after they were landed by British warships in England. The warships rescued 598 of the 643 passengers and crew aboard the 42,000-ton liner sunk by a Nazi plane off the coast of Ireland.

NAZI FLIERS SHOT DOWN — RESCUED BY BRITISH

This photograph, made aboard a British destroyer on channel patrol, shows British sailors guarding a group of Nazi fliers. The fliers were shot down off the coast by aircraft of the R.A.F. coastal command and rescued from their shattered, sinking planes and rubber life-rafts by the men of the destroyer.

AT THE CAPITOL

"SPRING PARADE"

Hailed by critics as the best picture in which she has ever appeared, Deanna Durbin's eighth production, Universal's "Spring Parade", is coming next to the Capitol with a daily matinee.

Produced by Joe Pasternak and directed by Henry Koster, the picture presents a more mature Deanna than in any of her previous offerings, and a more romance-laden story than has been her lot in her first seven productions.

Colorful Role.

Presenting Deanna as a village maid who goes to the city in search of the destiny foretold her by a fortune teller, the story is based on an original by Ernst Marischka and involves the star in her first real romance of the screen. She meets and falls in love with Robert Cummings. Amid romantic surroundings, the story unfolds in an atmosphere and background more beautiful than any which have appeared in Deanna's pictures.

Songs Are Featured.

Deanna sings four numbers in the offering, three of them from the pen of the famous Viennese, Robert Stolz who composed, among other offerings, the famous "Two Hearts in Three-Quarter Time". The fourth, "Blue Danube Dream", is an adaptation, by Hans Salter.

Supporting the star are such players as Robert Cummings, Mischa Auer, Henry Stephenson, Butch and Buddy, Anne Gwynne, Walter Catlett, S. Z. Sakall and many others.

AT THE McCARTHY

"SING, DANCE, PLENTY HOT"

Honors for six tricky tunes in the Republic musical, "Sing, Dance, Plenty Hot, which opens at the McCarthy Theatre next week go to a trio whose background relegates them to top billing in musical fields. The team of Jule Styne, George Brown and Sol Meyer have created tunes and lyrics for "House Across the Bay", "Slightly Honorable", and a number of Fox Twentieth Century productions, where Styne was formerly under contract as music coach and composer.

The star number composed by the trio for the Republic musical, which co-stars Johnny Downs and Ruth Terry is "Tequila", a fiery Spanish number, to which the two stars dance and sing, with a chorus of twenty-four dancing a combination La Conga and rhumba routine. The finale of the show, the "Tequila" number is the most colorful in music, costume and background. The opening number written by the boys is "Too Toy", backgrounded by a chorus and featuring Johnny Downs in a modern rhythmic dance routine. A swing love ditty sung by Miss Terry and Downs, "When a Fella's Gotta Girl", and a solo by the contralto singer, "What Fools These Mortals Be", will undoubtedly be popular song hits. "I'm just a Weakie", is sung by Billy Gilbert and Vera Vague in their inimitable comical presentation, and a breezy swing tune, "Whatcha Gonna Do When There Ain't No Swing", is sung by Mary Lee, 14-year-old singer of the Ted Weems band.

"The Secret Seven."

Florence Rice, Barton MacLane and Bruce Bennett head a brilliant cast of screen favorites in a picture that is certain to set a new high for screen detective drama, "The Secret Seven", also coming next to the McCarthy Theatre as a select companion feature presentation to "Sing, Dance, Plenty Hot". Latest Fox News events will also be presented.

"Stage To Chino", "Black Diamonds"

A swell western, George O'Brien in "Stage to Chino" and also Richard Arlen and Andy (Hi-Ya Buck) Devine in an exciting newspaper drama "Black Diamonds" are both now playing at the McCarthy Theatre. "Terry and the Pirates", the popular chapter-play shown weekly, is also shown with the above features.

AT THE BELLE

"Strike up the Band"

Mirth and melody reign at the Belle Theatre where Mickey Rooney, Judy Garland and a group of clever youngsters, many of them seen with the youthful stars in "Babe in Arms" are regaling audiences with harmonies and comicalities.

Mickey and Judy organize a high school band in the story and that's when things begin to happen. Paul Whiteman has announced a radio contest for high school bands. They set out to raise funds for the trip to Chicago. They stage a travesty on old-time melodrama, with the buzz saw, heroine tied to the railroad tracks, and such ancient ditties as "Heaven Will Protect a Working Girl".

When Paul Whiteman appears in their town they borrow his orchestra's instruments during an intermission and give him an audition he never expected. They raise money for the trip, then one of the youngsters becomes ill and must be flown to a great surgeon. They sacrifice the money for the trip to save him but fate in the person of the town millionaire provides the train fare and they win the prize in a grand musical climax embellished by their comical specialties.

Mickey masters the drums and is irresistibly funny. He also does some appealing "straight" drama with Ann Shoemaker, playing his mother. Judy sings the catchy "Our Love Affair" and "Nobody", and burlesque such old-time numbers as "The Curse of an Aching Heart" fetchingly. She rises to comedy heights in the melodrama number. June Preisser, amazing little dancer, also imitates Anna Held singing "I Just Can't Make My Eyes Behave". Paul Whiteman not only conducts an orchestra but proves himself a very capable actor in his scenes with the youngsters.

The clever juvenile group includes William Tracy of "Shop Around the Corner" fame, Larry Nunn from the Irene Rich radio show, and Margaret Early, the little Southern girl of "Forty Little Mothers". Also scoring are Ann Shoemaker, Francis Pierlot, George Lessey, Virginia Brissac, Enid Bennett and Elliott Carpenter as the swing-minded school janitor.

The broadcast climax featuring Gershwin's "Strike up the Band" and a musical medley including Mickey's strenuous drum solo, brings the mirth to a close in a blaze of harmony. Busby Berkeley's deft direction of "Babes in Arms" repeats itself in "Strike up the Band". The popular Belle newsreel and a funny comicolour cartoon precede the feature attraction.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was walking along with Puds Simkins just walking along, and we started to go passed 2 tuff looking kids looking as if they were trying to feel even tuffer than they looed, and one of them said, Look what's going passed.

Meaning me and Puds, only we pretended we weren't even listening, and the other kid said, I could lick either one of them with one hand behind my back, and the first kid said, I could lick them both together just using my head and my knees without any hands.

Me and Puds just keeping on going, minding our own business, Puds saying, Those guys must think they're tuff, I wouldn't even give them the saddisfaction of noticing them.

Me neither, it's a lucky thing for them I had sense enough not to get mad, I said.

And we kept on going peaceful, and around the corner I happened to look up the back street, saying, G, look at that clothes prop somebody threw away.

And we quick went and got it and it was cracked in the middle, proving what was a matter with it, and we broke it all a ways in half, making 2 swell clubs and giving us a idea, and we pulled our caps down over our eyes and went back passed the 2 tuff kids waving our clubs, and the tuff kids said, Well look who's back, pass the mushmellows, have a ladyfinger, and I quick stopped and banged my club against the payment, saying, What's that? and Puds banged his club saying, What was that last remark, say that again.

Wich they didn't, one kid saying, Aw, who said anything, what's a matter? and the other one saying, I didn't hear anybody say anything.

Being an apology, and me and Puds kept on going feeling better instead of worse.

Proving the more weapons you have the easier you feel insulted.

London, Ont., Nov. 2—(CP)—In a letter to his wife here, Pte. Allan Wilson of the Canadian Active Service Force in England said he was a member of a rescue party which pulled the body of a 15-year-old Nazi pilot from the wreckage of his bomber plane after it had been shot down in southeastern England. He said the airman's age was established by papers he carried.

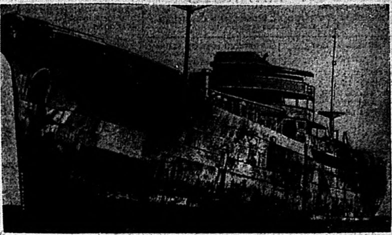
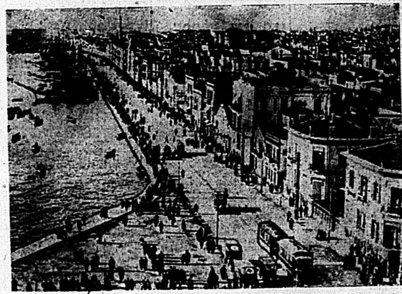
CANADIAN FREIGHTER TORPEDOED IN NORTH ATLANTIC



The freighter St. Malo, which was commandeered by Canada after the French capitulation has been torpedoed in the North Atlantic, carrying a crew of Canadians. Sixteen survivors have been landed in England and 28 members of the crew are feared lost. The Maurienne, a sister ship of the St. Malo, is shown above, shortly after it also was commendeered by Canada. Both vessels formerly were engaged in the West Indies fruit trade before the war.

SALONIKA REPORTED OCCUPIED BY BRITISH



A view of the port of Salonika, off the northeastern coast of Greece, which is reported to have been swiftly occupied by British naval forces as a result of the invasion of Greece by Italy, through Albania. England had promised aid to Greece if that kingdom should be attacked and the aid came swiftly enough to give heart to the troops fighting for every inch of their homeland.

KINGLY APPROVAL FOR LONDON'S GIRL FIRE-FIGHTERS

A smiling King George greets the A.F.S. girls at fire headquarters in London as he acknowledges the fine work being done by the lassies in augmenting the fire-fighting forces of the metropolis. London's fire-fighters are the most important body of men in London today, ceaselessly on the alert against fires caused by German incendiary bombs.

Greeks Threaten City of Koritza Inside Albania

Naval Battle of Corfu at Lower Flank of Greek-Albanian Frontier Reported

Athens, Nov. 4—(AP) — Greek troops, holding off Italian attacks in Epirus in fierce hand to hand fighting, were reported today to have won a second chain of hills in a counter drive into Albania to cut off the Italian supply route through Koritza.

The Greek High Command said a strong Italian thrust against the Greek left flank in the mountains of Epirus was repulsed with grenades and bayonet fighting.

Artillery roared from both sides of the battle line. The Greeks said they destroyed nine of the tanks which supported the Fascist onslaught.

A Greek communique said the Italian Air Force smashed at the Greek defence positions in 15 consecutive bomb raids that preceded the infantry attack.

Elsewhere, Greek cities were bombed. Homes were hit in Salonika, where Greek anti-aircraft gunners were credited with bringing down three Italian planes yesterday. Civilian casualties were reported.

Why The Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen

Science Service Meteorologist

Snow cover! Some amazing stories are told of people lying out in the open, covered with snow, and surviving. Several instances are recorded where people were found alive after being buried under snow several days; in one instance for 8 days. It seems that one important condition is that there be a small hole opening to the free air for breathing. While these people were numb from cold and inaction, they were not frozen stiff and lived to tell the tale. Snow cover is advantageous for fall-sown grain. The protection is due to the low heat conductivity of snow. Freshly fallen snow is best as it contains many air pockets.

OBSERVERS EXPECT EARLY NAZI DRIVE TO DARDANELLES

4-POINT OFFENSIVE

The Italian Invasion of Greece is But One Phase of Strategy

Berne, Switzerland, Nov. 4 (AP)—An early German drive to the east—toward the Suez Canal by way of Turkey's Dardanelles—was envisioned by foreign observers today as the result to be expected from an Axis conference in Germany.

Italian Foreign Minister Clano was reported to have left his active command of Fascist air forces attacking Greece to meet with German Foreign Minister Ribbentrop and Franz Von Papen, the Nazi ambassador to Turkey, said by Berlin to be grouse shooting in Moravia.

British and neutral observers both said they felt the conference was a final military discussion before Germany moves out from Rumania—into which diplomatic quarters in the Balkans said the Nazis were sending great masses of troops—toward the vital Dardanelles.

The troop movements, according to rumors emanating from Axis sources in Berne and heavily discounted by neutral observers, constituted part of Germany's preparations for an attack on Soviet Russia from Poland and Rumania.

FOUND HANGING IN BARN

Milton, Ont., Nov. 4 (CP)—The body of Scott Rosendale, a district farmhand who had been sought for a week, was found Sunday hanging from a rafter in a barn owned by his employer, J. J. Thompson. It was first believed that Rosendale perished in a fire which destroyed another barn owned by his employer a week ago. Provincial Police had been raking ashes of the destroyed barn in an attempt to locate his body.

Stethoscope to 'Listen in' On Time Bombs Given Capt. Davies

London, Nov. 4 (CP Cable)—Dr. George Neligan, one of the senior surgeons at the London Hospital, today presented Capt. Robert Davies of the Royal Engineers with a stethoscope.

The reason? The former resident of St. Catharines, Ont. who achieved fame in removing the St. Paul's time bomb, often has borrowed a stethoscope from the hospital in order to "listen in" to delayed action bombs before their removal.

The gift was in recognition of Capt. Davies' work in disposing of a bomb at the hospital.

WENT OUT OF CONTROL

Chain Attached to Rear Bumper and Car Raised Sufficiently to Extricate Bodies

Trenton, Nov. 4 (Special)—Two women and one girl lost their lives in an automobile accident at the north edge of this town, when their car plunged over a 25-foot embankment into fifteen feet of water in the Trent River last night, following a collision with another car.

The dead are Mrs. Vera Jackson and her daughter Velma, age 12, both of Hilton, Ont., and Mrs. Lee McMurter of Brighton.

The trio were driving southerly on Highway 33, about a half a mile south of the northern town limits, when their car came into collision with an automobile being driven in the opposite direction by Major T. Rupert of Madoc, Paymaster for the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, 2nd Battalion.

ELEVEN PERSONS SERIOUSLY HURT

Two Automobiles Collide Near Hawkesbury

Hawkesbury, Ont., Nov. 4 (CP)—Eleven persons were injured, one critically and two seriously, when two automobiles collided on the highway just outside this town near Ottawa Sunday night.

Mrs. Donat Girrard, 47, of Brownsburg, Que., is in hospital with critical injuries. She suffered several fractured ribs, one of which pierced her lung.

Gervaise Girrard, her 10-year-old daughter, is in serious condition with a badly smashed nose and bitten tongue. Miss Cyril McQuaid, 17, of Kirk Hill, Ont., suffered concussion and cuts.

The eight others, including Mrs. Girrard's husband, Donat, and four of their children, received cuts and scratches but did not require hospital treatment.

Charles Anderson of St. Eugene, Ont., was the driver of the other automobile. Both machines were wrecked.

DEPARTURE ACCELERATED

Hong Kong, Nov. 4 (CP)—Departure of Japanese residents from Hong Kong, proceeding for the last two months, was accelerated today with more than 50 persons boarding a Japanese liner bound for home.

S. Kumamoto, Hong Kong correspondent of the Tokyo newspaper Asahi, and families of employees of the Japanese consulate were among them. Japanese authorities insist the Japanese are leaving entirely on their own initiative and without official prompting.

Mountain Snows Handicap Italians

Weather Will Play Strong Part in Fighting Since Italians, Unable to Gain Few Roads, Are Forced to Use Mountainside Roads, Which Mechanized Equipment Cannot Travel

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Nov. 4 (AP)—Italian reinforcements were reported moving into the front line today on the Northern Greek border as the Greeks held steadfastly to their positions and snowfall in the steep mountain passes put another obstacle in the invaders' path toward Phlorina.

Greek artillery fire has closed the highway from Yugoslavia to Koritza, Italy's base in the northern sector, these frontier press reports said. On the southern front, nearer the coast, they said, the Italians have made some progress toward Ioannina.

British Military Mission

Meanwhile the new British military mission to Greece was reported conferring with the Greek General Staff on a co-ordinated plan for the defence of Greece.

The British mission is expected to serve as the link between the Greek Command and the British Near East General Staff at Cairo, Egypt.

The Belgrade newspaper Politica reported that the Italian minister and Legation personnel are planning to leave Athens today by train to return to Italy by way of Yugoslavia. This was taken as an indication the fighting has progressed beyond hope for mediation or compromise.

Greeks Announce British Arrive In Crete

Observers paid close attention to weather conditions, expected to play a strong part in the fighting because Italians, so far unable to gain control of the few good roads in the battle zone are being forced to operate on unimproved mountainside roads where even in dry weather mechanized equipment is of no value.

Snowfall would hamper operations seriously under such conditions.

Greek newspapers, now reduced to two pages, carried large displays on the landing of British forces on the island of Crete.

The papers also printed an appeal by Premier John Metaxas for financial and moral support from Greeks abroad.

The papers indicated that evidences of British assistance have aroused a feeling of enthusiasm and increased confidence on the part of the Greek public.

BRITISH TROOPS LANDED IN CRETE SAYS BULLETIN

British Official Sources Do Not Disclose Number Sent to Near East

GREEKS ADVANCE

London, Nov. 4 (CP)—British official circles confirmed today that British troops have landed in Crete.

The size of the force which occupied the strategic Greek island south of the Greek mainlands was not disclosed.

British military circles said it was reported that on the northern part of the Greek-Italian front from the Phlorina sector down to the Pindus Mountains the Greeks "generally speaking, advanced two or three kilometres."

They added that there was little information here from the left of the Greek line, which runs along the coast, from which a strong Italian attack is expected soon.

News from Egypt shows that Italians in Libya are building up stores and equipment, they said,

ITALIANS ADMIT GREEKS PUTTING UP STIFF FIGHT

Stefani Says it Would be "Ridiculous" to Believe Greeks Can Hold Out Indefinitely

OFFERS EXCUSES

Rome, Nov. 4—(AP)—Stefani, Italian news and propaganda agency, acknowledged today that Italian troops were meeting stiff Greek resistance in the Ioannina region, at the lower end of the Italian front.

It would be "ridiculous," however, to believe the Greeks could hold out indefinitely, one of the agency's war correspondents said.

He described the Greek army as armed with British and French artillery, rifles, ammunition and airplanes of various types but said there is "no comparison" between the Fascist and Greek armies in organization.

Italian troops have entered Greek territory "varying distances" along the entire front and have occupied objectives along the Kalamas River, Stefani reported.

Alice A. McFarland Judged Insane, Will Not Stand Trial On Charge of Murder Preferred

Special Jury Hears Evidence Given by Two Crown Psychiatrists Before Judgment Given

HUSBAND ON TRIAL

Alice Archer McFarland, pretty 18-year-old Frankford bride, was adjudged insane and incapable of standing trial for the murder of her 18-months'-old son, Gordon Archer, last July, by a special jury following government psychiatrists' evidence given at the opening of the trial before Justice MacKay in Supreme Court today.

Her youthful husband, Robert McFarland, was said to be normal and will go on trial today. Both were jointly indicted with the murder, which was affirmed by the Grand Jury's true bill brought in last Tuesday.

Police Convinced Man Meant No Harm

New York, Nov. 4 (AP).—A 78-year-old physician has convinced authorities he meant no harm when he moved toward Wendell Willkie Saturday night at Madison Square Garden with a loaded gun in his pocket.

The aged man, Dr. Union S. Ward who wore a large Willkie button when arrested, was released on $500 bail on a charge of violating the Sullivan Anti-Firearms Law yesterday. Bail was provided by a Republican district leader who said he had given Dr. Ward tickets for the Willkie rally.

Assistant District Attorney Jacob Rosenblum said police were satisfied the man was harmless. Detectives reported that his ancient 32-calibre revolver wouldn't fire because of a faulty firing pin.

LONDON PASSES FIRST RAIDLESS NIGHT IN WEEKS

However, Weather Clears and Raiders Reported Over East Anglia Today

CIVILIANS ATTACKED

Raiders Adopt "Hedge-Hopping" Tactics to Machine-Gun Civilians in Streets

London, Nov. 4 (CP)—Londoners heard the scream of air raid sirens, the bark of anti-aircraft fire and the explosive thud of bombs late this afternoon after an interlude in the Nazi aerial siege lasting almost 24 hours.

Throughout last night there was quiet. It lasted through most of the day, but at tea time an uproar broke the unaccustomed silence and a single raider swooped into the metropolitan area, dropping several bombs.

The Sunday night of quiet was the first London had enjoyed since September 7. There were reports of Nazi activity over East Anglia this morning.

Some raiders roared over the city yesterday, but the all-clear which ended the last daylight raid sounded at the time the night assaults usually begin. The only attacks during the night, the Government said, were in northeastern England and eastern Scotland.

New Bomber, Built For Britain, Has Range of 3,000 Miles

San Diego, Cal., Nov. 4.—(AP)—Consolidated Aircraft's B-24 bomber, marked with the insignia of the Royal Air Force, was given its initial test flights over San Diego Saturday.

This new, long-range bomber, the first of a fleet destined for Britain is powered with four 1,200-horsepower engines and has a wing span of 110 feet.

It is capable of carrying a load of four tons of bombs, along with a crew of nine, and has a cruising radius of 3,000 miles. Its top speed is believed to be somewhere around 300 miles an hour.

A novel feature of the bomber is the retractable landing gear. The front wheel folds back into the fuselage, while the rear wheel retracts into wing wells.

Officials of the Consolidated Aircraft Company declined to say how many of these ships are to be supplied to the R.A.F.

TRAVELLING COUPLE MISSED SINCE OCT. 4

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Nov. 4. (CP)—Provincial Police said today they were seeking trace of Mr. and Mrs. Earl D. Kirk of North Bay, missing since October 4, when they left their home for Winnipeg by way of Sudbury and this border point. The couple, travelling by automobile, was lat seen in Sudbury where they purchased gasoline and set out for this city. Police said investigation revealed they had not shipped their car by boat to the head of the lakes.

Kirk is employed as divisional sales manager with an oil company in North Bay.

Britain Will Pass Germany in Ships, Guns and Aircraft in Six Months

Rugby, England, Nov. 4 — (CP Cable)—Labor Minister Ernest Bevin declared today that "in another six months Britain will have passed Germany in aircraft, ships and guns."

(It was assumed that Mr. Bevin used the term "ships" in a very general sense, since Britain always has had a preponderance of ships over the enemy.)

"Then," he said "the ugly Nazi regime will crumble up in Hitler's hands."

He made the declaration in a speech to factory workers in which he called for a further stepping up in production.

Raids Carried Out In Spite of Bad Weather in Italy

Flushing in Holland Raided in Daylight—Airdrome at Soesterberg Attacked

London, Nov. 4 (CP)—Successful attacks by far-ranging Royal Air Force bombers last night in Kiel, Germany's great naval base, and Naples, port and industrial centre in Southern Italy, were announced today by the Air Ministry.

A brief communique said the raids were carried out "in spite of extremely difficult weather conditions" by planes of the bomber command.

It was the second raid on Naples in four days. The communique, like the announcement of the first raid, failed to indicate where the British bombers operated from.

In a later communique the Air Ministry said that "during daylight operations yesterday Flushing (Holland) and the airdrome at Soesterberg were attacked."

Two British planes did not return after these operations, the Ministry said.

Rome Admits Attack

Rome, Nov. 4 (AP)—British bombers caused Rome's first air raid alarm since July 24 early today as they carried the air war to Naples for the second time in four nights, but officials claimed they failed to reach the capital.

Rome's populace was awakened by the alarm at 3:45 a.m. (9:45 p.m. E.D.T. Sunday) and held under the alert for an hour and 45 minutes.

The high command claimed the fliers who raided Naples were met "by a barrage of anti-aircraft fire" which forced them to drop their missiles in open country.

Expect 60,000,000 To Vote Tuesday

Washington, Nov. 4 (AP)—Record - smashing registrations which qualify more than 60,000,000 persons to vote Tuesday have United States politicians guessing as to how these new voters will mark their ballots.

Allowing for the same ratio of stay-at-homes as in former general elections, it is estimated that roughly 50,000,000 may cast votes. In round numbers, 45,000,000 out of 55,000,000 eligibles voted in 1936, when President Roosevelt had a plurality of almost 11,000,000.

What party leaders won't know for sure until after the ballots are counted is why registrations are breaking all-time records in the large cities and even in smaller towns.

All down the line, but particularly in New York, Pennsylvania and California, voters in increasing numbers have signified their intention of exercising their historic right.

Normal population gains and more persons reaching voting age explain the increases in some instances, but the intensity of the campaign and unusual interest in issues appears to account for others.

For example, women voters are responsible for approximately 45 per cent. of the 3,388,741 registered in New York City, where the total registration is up 448,557 over 1936.

JUNIOR, PREP CLUBS PICK CAPTAINS

The Junior and Prep Clubs at the "Y" went into their club meetings with full ceremony Saturday morning and the air was full of whispered passwords, and blinds on doors were drawn and visitors excluded while the secret signs were being given.

The big business of the morning was the electing of captains to head up the teams for this winter's competition and choosing the teams. The point system on which these teams compete includes all club, gym, swim and social activities of the boys and the team winning the championship will be presented with crests especially designed for the purpose.

Other business included reports on the Christmas card selling competition between President and Vice-President teams, and on the membership drive competition. A quis contest concluded the meetings and both groups had their regular gym and swim periods.

Scoring commences with next Saturday's activities and any boys who were not at the Y. to be chosen should make an effort to be on hand.

GIRL'S LEG FRACTURED WHEN HIT BY CAR

Six-year-old Gloria Titterson, 110 Cannifton Road, sustained a fractured leg when hit by a motor car while playing in front of her home Saturday evening. The injured girl was removed to the Belleville General Hospital where the fracture was reduced by Dr. R. A. Flynn. With playmates six-year-old Gloria was playing along the curb of the street when, it is believed, she stepped from behind a parked car and directly into path of a motor car driven by George Thomas, Jr., of Cannifton. Mr. Thomas stopped immediately and rendered all assistance possible, later reporting the incident to police.

FINE SPANIEL DOG TAKEN TO POUND

CAR COLLIDES WITH HORSES ON HIGHWAY

One horse had to be destroyed and another sustained minor cuts when three horses, the property of Thomas E. Fleming, Ivanhoe, broke lose from their corral and were wandering on the highway when struck by a motor car driven by James Sopha of this city. Sopha was proceeding north about 2.45 a.m. Sunday morning when he suddenly came upon three horses wandering on the highway. Despite his efforts to avoid collision Sopha's car crashed into the animals, one being injured so badly it was necessary to destroy it. Provincial Constable Patterson revealed after investigating the matter at the scene.

MRS. FRED SERO DIES OF INJURIES

Believed to Have Sustained a Fracture of Neck in Car Accident a Week Ago

Believed to have sustained a fracture of the top vertebra of the neck in a motor accident one week ago, Mrs. Fred Sero, 41, of the Tyendinaga Reserve, died in the Belleville General Hospital on Sunday. A preliminary inquest was held before Chief Coroner Dr. J. J. Robertson at the hospital yesterday and following identification the proceedings were adjourned until Thursday of this week and the body released for burial.

Although not reported to the police at the time, Mrs. Sero is believed to have sustained the neck fracture when the motor car in which she was riding turned over on the "Slash Road," west of Deseronto last week. In the car at the time were her husband Fred Sero, one child and the driver said to be Mrs. Roma Henuin, also of Tyendinaga.

The injured woman is said to have been removed to her home following the accident and no medical assistance sought until over the weekend, when Dr. H. A. Boyce of Deseronto, was notified and immediately ordered the injured woman to the local hospital, where she died a few hours later presumably from the results of a broken neck. She was paralysed from the neck to her waist when Dr. Boyce was first called in for consultation, Provincial Police were informed today.

The jury impanelled by Sergeant Arthur Harman yesterday was composed of Messrs. F. Bird, foreman, Chas. Cochrane, I. Sills, Sam Munnings and H. P. Holway. Provincial Constable Patterson today opened an investigation into the circumstances surrounding the fatal accident.

Albert College Student Body, Faculty Attend

The faculty and student body of Albert College attended the Sunday evening service at Victoria Avenue Baptist Church where the minister, Rev. Claude Troupe Olmstead, sounded a strong evangelistic note in his address on "The Meaning and Power of The Cross". The minister was assisted by two of the students, Bryson Donnan, president of the Student Council, who read the Scripture lesson and Lorne Browne, President of the Student Christian Movement who offered the evening prayer.

"What do we mean by the Cross?" asked the minister. "It is not simply the piece of wood, nor even the physical suffering and painful, shameful death of Christ thereon. Not that alone. It is rather the consummation of that life of spotless holiness, of teaching, sympathy and healing of the outpouring of divine truth and love, that the breach between man and God might be healed. To do that, to make that finally possible, it is all summed up in this: Jesus died. That is the meaning of the Cross.

Power of Cross

"The power of the Cross comes into being first, when by the Cross, men are convinced what God's true meaning concerning them is and they see in it God's suffering love till He wins them back to Himself; second, that power becomes still greater when by God's love, thus revealed to them, they are constrained to love Him in return; and third, the power of the Cross is completely made manifest when the life which was and is in Jesus Christ enters into and takes possession of man's heart. There is the power of the Cross.

"The Cross, then, is the place of great awakening for sinners. There heaven and earth are met together, the sin of man and the love of God". The minister pointed out that many people when they first hear of the preaching of the Cross, think it foolishness and an offense. This is because they like to stand on their own merits and do not like to be reminded of their faults. If ever we men are to get at the true awfuness of sin, the wrongs we do against our own bodies and souls, the wrongs we do against our neighbors, then we, too must take our stand at the foot of the Cross. There only, from the light that streams from that majestic emblem shall we see our sins for what they really are.

People may find great principles and lofty ideals in the Sermon on the Mount and they may be melted to tears by the Parable of The Prodigal Son, but there is no awakening of the soul, tears will not help the vision. But when they stand at the foot of the Cross and lift their eyes to the crucified love of the Son of God, then do they see their sin as it is and what it has done.

"Let the glory and the sublimity of this supreme manifestation awe you into silence and repentance", concluded the minister. "Then from the depths of your soul let faith, hope, and answering love come forth. Then will the power of the Cross be made manifest in you. You shall know of a truth — the power of God which bringeth you unto salvation".

The choir rendered the anthem very pleasingly and Mr. John W. Deacon's splendid tenor was heard in the singing of "The Lord's Prayer".

Schoolchildren Contribute to Salvage Drive

In answer to the appeal of the Kiwanis Club the collection of salvage material began this morning with pupils en route to school conveying all the articles that they could carry. Magazines and old newspapers were favorite articles for the school goer and those having such evidently got in touch with the boys and girls early. Before nine this morning the children began to make their appearance in the schoolyards with strange cargoes, all of which will contribute to the war effort of the Dominion.

Other articles collected by the boys and girls were tires, tubes, rags, graniteware, bits of brass, lead, bronze and aluminumware. Citizens having heavier material brought them in cars to the Holgate Storage, while those not having cars left their addresses at schools and the material was called for.

The Kiwanis Club had trucks bring the collection of articles from each school-yard to the storage point. There they will be sorted and stored. The proceeds will be contributed in equal amounts to the Red Cross and the British War Relief Fund.

TWENTY KILLED IN TRAIN WRECK

Derailment of Locomotive and Several Coaches Near Taunton is Cause

London, Nov. 4 (CP). — Twenty persons were killed and about fifty injured today by derailment of the locomotive and several coaches of a London-Penzance passenger train in Somerset.

A Great Western Railway official said that "as far as we can tell, it was a straightforward railyay accident."

Most of the casualties were soldiers, sailors and airmen.

A breakdown gang after many hours of work had removed the 20 bodies from the wreckage. The dead included eight sailors and two women. A number of sleeping children escaped unhurt.

C. V. Barkwell, a passenger, said: "There was a terrific crash. At first everyone thought it was a bomb. The engine left the line, taking with it three carriages, mostly filled with sailors. The three coaches were smashed to splinters."

The wreck occurred about 4 a.m. (11 p.m. Sunday E.D.T.) near Taunton, about 120 miles west of London.

SPANISH EX-PRESIDENT DIES

He was 60 years old.

Azana became president in May, 1936, two months before the insurrection of Gen. Francisco Franco which overthrew the republic after nearly three years of war.

His role in the war was minor so far as the public was concerned. At the end, after the republic had asked Great Britain and France to negotiate peace with Franco on the sole basis of clemency, Azana resigned as president and urged his followers to yield.

By then, Franco's armies had swept northward through Catalonia to the French border and Azana was in exile at Collognes-Soussaleve, France. In a letter, Azana said his own efforts to re-establish peace had "achieved nothing."

Torch Club Holds 'Co-Education' Night

The Torch Club of the Y.M.C.A. recently held their monthly co-education night, and invited their friends. In the neighborhood of fifty young people gathered at the "Y" to go on a Scavenger Hunt, which had to be called off due to inclement weather. Nothing daunted, Social Chairman Frank Foley went into a huddle with Ed Shortt, of the "Y" staff, and came up with an entirely new program which included bowling, group games, mock athletic meet, where the shot put was done with an inflated balloon, and stunts. Refreshments, under the able hands of Betty Redfern, Gertrude Poste, and Jean Wannamaker, and dancing filled out a most happy evening, which might have lasted long after the 11.30 deadline without becoming at all tiring on those participating.

During refreshments, a short welcome was extended by Ben Ogilvie, President, on behalf of the Club and by Ed. Shortt, on behalf of the "Y" to the guests and visitors, a fitting reply being made by Gertrude Poste. Music for dancing was provided by Mrs. Grace Calvert.

Twenty years ago last Saturday Chief Alexander Kidd assumed the principal executive position as the head of the Belleville Police Department. It was on Nov. 2nd, 1920, following the retirement of the late Chief John Newton, that Chief Kidd took over the duties of re-organizing the Belleville Police Department. Over the week-end Chief Kidd received numerous congratulations upon the 20 years of splendid service he and his subordinates have rendered the City of Belleville.

"A lot of things have happened since I left Parry Sound twenty years ago to take over the position of Chief of Police in Belleville. Bicycles and an old Ford car were the only means of transportation to the scene of trouble in those days, but today we have fast police radio-equipped cruiser cars, speedy motorcycles and lastly an up-to-date police radio, installed by Sergeant Booth, that keeps our men police station at all times, when in direct communication with the they are patrolling the city," remarked Chief Kidd today as he reminisced over his fifth-of-a-century as head of the Belleville police department.

Others Celebrate

Sergeant Arthur Booth and Constable William T. Evans are also celebrating 20 years of service on the city police force, while Sergeant Arthur Harman has been affiliated with the police department for over 30 years of continued service.

"There was two inches of snow on the ground the first day I patrolled the streets of Belleville on Nov. 8th, 1920," P. C. Evans revealed today.

ALICE A. McFARLAND

intendent Ontario Hospital, Brockville, and Dr. Horne, of Orillia who testified this morning.

The McFarlands were arrested and charged with the murder of the infant son of the woman, whose wirebound body was found floating in the Trent River near a railway bridge in Trenton by a railway section hand last July, following an intensive investigation by Trenton police under Chief William Bain.

Couple in Court

The youthful couple entered the courtroom a few minutes before court convened. Mrs. McFarland, attractively garbed in a blue off-the-face hat and blue coat, sat nervously in the dock, biting her finger nails. She appeared to be deeply in thought and at intervals cast a quick, nervous glance about the courtroom.

McFarland appeared to be unperturbed, although he sat with his head slightly bowed, apparently thinking. Occasionally he glanced at his wife, but made no attempt to speak to her.

Gazed Intently at Judge

She gazed intently at Mr. Justice MacKay when he entered the crowded courtriom and took his place on the bench. She sat down after the official opening of the court, her head bowed in her hands. Tears rolled slowly down her cheeks.

Sobs shook her body, as she cried quietly, in her hands. A Salvation Army lady officer reached over the bar into the dock and stroked her hands in a comforting gesture.

Mrs. McFarland regained her composure, but remained with her head bowed in her hands. Later she cried quietly but made no outcry. Her husband maintained his outward composure.

Motion Granted

Motion by Defence Counsel Goodman for separate trials of the accused couple was granted by Justice MacKay on the grounds that evidence which may be admissible for one of the accused and not the other, would be advanced.

Robert McFarland was led from the courtroom. Sobs again shook Mrs. McFarland and tears filled her eyes as Sheriff J. D. O'Flynn read the indictment.

Defence Counsel Goodman made a motion to the court that accused is insane and not fit to stand trial and instruct counsel.

The jury empanelled to decide the accused's sanity includes: Wallace Bell, Belleville; W. Beare, Belleville; A. Gartlett, Deseronto; W. G. Burd, Hungerford; J. G. McAfee, Deseronto; J. Courneyea, Hungerford; Gordon A. Williams; D. O. Leavitt, Frankford; Norman Alexander, Huntingdon; Claude Goodwin, Bangor; W. Babcock, Belleville; Robert Wickham, Madoc.

Psychiatrist Testifies

Dr. C. S. Tennant, Ontario Hospital, Brockville, superintendent, had examined Alice Archer McFarland on August 6th, 1940. Since that time he had seen her three times, the last occurring yesterday (Sunday) afternoon.

"I am definitely of the opinion the accused is suffering from mental defect or natural imbecility which would classify her as a child," Dr. Tennant testified.

"Are you of the opinion that she is unable, by reason of such mental deficiency, to stand trial?" asked Defence Counsel Goodman.

"I am."

Crown Prosecutor Martin asked the witness if the accused at present was sane or insane.

"Insane," Dr. Tennant replied.

Unable to Plead

Dr. S. J. W. Horne, superintendent of the Ontario Hospital, Orillia, testified that "As a result of exhaustive examination, I believe she is laboring under natural imbecility to such an extent that she is unable to plead."

Dr. Horne told the Crown that in his opinion, the accused was at the present time insane.

The psychiatrists were the only witnesses called at this point.

Reviewing the evidence given by the witnesses, Justice MacKay pointed out to the jury, prior to their retirement, the qualifications of the doctors to pass such opinions. "It becomes my duty as a matter of law, to instruct you that the accused is now unfit, is now insane to such a degree, that she is unable to instruct her counsel, or unfit because of insanity and unable to stand trial.

Jury Out 5 Minutes

The jury returned after five minutes' deliberation, and through Foreman D. O. Leavitt, rendered a verdict of "Insane to such a degree that she is unable to conduct her defence."

The bench directed that the accused "shall be kept in custody awaiting the pleasure of the Lieutenant-Governor of the Province."

A written offer from the Ottawa headquarters of the Salvation Army to give the accused, Alice McFarland, any help or assistance she may need now or at any time, was announced to the court by Defence Counsel Goodman.

TWO BATTALIONS FROM CANADA LAND IN BRITAIN

One From Central Ontario and Other From Western Quebec

FIRST SINCE SEPTEMBER

By ROSS MUNRO
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Somewhere in England, Nov. 4 (CP Cable)—A contingent of Canadian troops today rejoined the 2nd Division after debarking at a Scottish port.

A Central Ontario Battalion and a Western Quebec Battalion swung down the road from the railway station to their barracks in the permanent camp where the Division is located.

Maj.-Gen. Victor Odlum, General Officer commanding the 2nd Division, met the newest Canadian arrivals to bolster his Division. The General said he was impressed by the bearing of the new battalions.

"It is better trained for field service than any unit in the 1st Canadian Division in the last war when it went to France. It has splendid experienced officers and in spirit I do not see how the Division could be excelled.

"I feel it could hold a line better than we held the line in the 2nd Battle of Ypres in 1915. In training and equipment the Division is ready to carry out an operational role with credit to itself and to Canada."

The new arrivals were the first Canadian soldiers to arrive in Britain since September when 11,500 troops were landed.

The confident and hardy troops moved into the camp area with the air of old campaigners. Platoon after platoon marched smartly through the camp lines in full kit, receiving a bosterous welcome from troops in the advance party.

As soon as one platoon was established in its new quarters a violin and a guitar were produced and an impromptu concert staged.

and that military dumps gradually are increasing, but there are no signs of immediate action there.

Patrols are being carried on continuously in Africa, they said, adding that the British were "particularly successful" in various encounters around Kassala, Anglo Egyptian Sudan.

In the Greek campaign, British military circles said, Italians are doing a "good deal of bombing," particularly of Salonika, where a "refugee camp was apparently deliberately bombed."

Bomb Splinters From Battle of Britain

By Douglas Amaron Canadian Press Staff Writer.

Ickey Rooney
Eets debutante

Said one old lady to another: It's all right now dearie. No need to worry any more about the bombs. Here comes one of those air raid prevention men."

Outside a public house partly demolished by a bomb, the licensee posted:

"Bombed out. Blasted out. But not sold out."

"Thanks to Hitler," says another sign in front of a large London shop, "you windows have been blown out, but here is what we normally would have on display." Articles usually found in the window are listed with advice that they can be seen inside.

The Briton's first consideration still is for the proprieties. Buried three hours in the debris of his bombed home, a man's first words to his rescurer were: "Don't forget I've got no trousers on, guv'nor."

Asked if he would contribute to a Spitfire fund, a Londoner replied:-

"No thanks, I married one!"

Graham Cunningham, who was Deputy Director-General of the Children's Overseas Reception Board, is one air raid warden who believes shelterers should be instructed as well as entertained. He inaugurated a series of lectures in Paddington shelters and suggested that other people do the same. His first lecture dealt with the use and care of gas masks.

All ranks of the Metropolitan Police joined in a drive for 20,000 pounds ($89,000) for Spitfires. One of the machines will be called "Robert Peel."

James Miller, 45, charged with the murder of his mother, was quoted by Detective-Inspector O'Sullivan as saying: "I did it to save her from being dragged around to the shelters. She was suffering." Miller, described as an A.R.P. worker from Bethnal Green, was remanded in custody.

L. Laurence was moving furniture from a house that was damaged slightly in an air raid. He carried two chairs a block down the street when another bomb put the finishing touches to the house he had just left. ....

ONTARIO'S DEATH TOLL THIRTEEN OVER WEEKEND

Two Triple Drowning Fatalities Headline Accidents in the Province

ONE HIT BY TRAIN

(By The Canadian Press)

Two triple drowning fatalities in widely separated districts headlined Ontario's week-end death toll of 13. Three Trenton district women were drowned when their automobile plunged over a 25-foot embankment into the Trent River, while in the Sudbury area three men were drowned when a rowboat used for ferrying sheep capsized.

Victims of the Trenton accident: Mrs. Vera Jackson, 41, of nearby Hilton, her 12-year-old daughter Velma, and Mrs. Lee McMurter of Brighton, also in Trenton district. The other drowning victims: Paul Oja, 19, Finnish farmer; Leo Moreau, 37, and Moreau's nine-year-old son, Aurel.

At Port Carling, the mutilated body of George Stone, 47, of King, was found lying across the Canadian National Railways tracks and it is believed that he fell from the back of a north-bound train.

Sudbury contributed another fatality when Raoul Lalonde, a logger, was injured fatally Saturday while felling a tree. His home was in St. Bernadine, Ont.

Three Die of Injuries

In Toronto, Charles O'Brien, 67, died of injuries received when he fell down a flight of stairs in his home Oct. 8 and George Tuftan, 70, died of injuries he received Oct. 21 when he was struck a street car.

Mrs. Mary Sero, 53, of the Mohawk Indian Reserve at Deseronto, died of injuries she received Oct. 28 in a car crash.

Ralph Stevenson, 16, of St. Thomas, was killed instantly Saturday night when he was struck from his bicycle by a car operated allegedly by Ivan Cushman, also of St. Thomas.

Hit by Truck

Three-year-old George McMillin of Hamilton was killed Saturday when struck by a heavy transport truck.

The car carrying the Trenton women collided with another machine driven by Major Thomas Rupert of Madoc, of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment. With him were Lieut. J. Kincaid and Lieut. Lloyd Blue. They were returning to Madoc after inspecting Trenton Airport in the afternoon.

Lieut. Blue dived to the rescue of the women when their machine plunged into the water but he was unable to open the car doors. An hour later the machine was pulled out by a derrick sufficiently far to retrieve the bodies. The three women were in the rear part.

The accident in the Vermillion River occurred 21 miles west of Sudbury. Albert St. Louis, Creighton miner, witnessed the accident from his automobile and waded into the river. After five minutes of diving he recovered Oja's body. He tried artificial respiration, but it appeared Oja's heart gave out after he showed some signs of life.

Operations Not Successful

Dragging operations for the other two bodies were not successful immediately.

At the time, the men were ferrying Moreau's sheep from an island where he had put them out to pasture last spring. He was taking them back to the mainland two at a time.

Stone's body was found 12 hours after he boarded a train that carried hunters into the north country. Although police are convinced that Stone fell from the train, the exact manner in which he died may not be determined for several days. The train crew, unaware of the accident, kept right on to Sudbury as did members of the Stone party.

Stone's injuries indicated that a train had passed over his body, but where it was the train he fell from or a second one was not determined. He was not missed by other members of the party until they reached their destination at South Magnetawan, an isolated northern station.

General De Gaulle Sends Message to People of Greece

London, Nov. 4 (CP)—Gen. Charles De Gaulle's headquarters for Free Frenchmen, announced Sunday he had sent the following telegram to Gen. John Metaxas, Greek Premier:-

"On behalf of all French people, of those who are still fighting the war and of those who are temporarily held in servitude by the enemy, I express to your Excellency and to the government and the people of Greece our admiration and our confidence that in safeguarding once more their independence the Greeks give to the world an example worthy of their ancient traditions. Together with the Allies, we shall beat our common enemy."

Premier Metaxas replied:

"I warmly thank you for your telegram. All Greece is convinced that in the present grave moment of our history the hearts of all French people, without exception, are beating for the success of our just cause. The great French nation, who have many times followed the noble example of our ancestors and who gallantly supported us at the time of our independence, could not but be with us once more."

VILLAGERS REQUEST REPRIEVE

London, Nov. 4 (CP)—The 5,000 villagers of Patchway, near Bristol, are petitioning Home Secretary Herbert Morrison to "reprieve and release" Corporal Frank Flintoft, 31, who shot his incurable invalid wife "to save her further physical suffering" and their baby "to spare her the possible misery of being left an orphan."

RUSSIA REJECTS BRITISH PROTEST

Molotoff's Reply to Protest Over Danube River Treaty With Axis Received Saturday

Moscow, Nov. 4.— (AP)—Soviet Russia has rejected an official British protest from Russian participation in the formation of a Danube River Commission along with Germany, Italy and Rumania, was a violation of neutrality, the Soviet News Agency, Tass, said today.

The British Ambassador to Moscow, Sir Stafford Cripps, addressed the note to Russia October 29, and stating Britain could not recognize any agreement which may violate existing treaties regarding the Danube River, the Agency said.

Premier Vyacheslaff Molotoff received Sir Stafford Saturday and gave him Russia's reply which called "incorrect" the British assertion of neutrality, Tass said.

Deep Air Raid Shelters for All Beyond Possibility

London, Nov. 4.— (CP)—Herbert Morrison, Minister of Home Security, told Britons in a broadcast Sunday that deep air raid shelters for all are "beyond the bounds of practical possibility" and appealed to them to maintain the will to "take risks in freedom's cause".

Mr. Morrison excused himself for reaching the same decision after three weeks in office as his predecessor, Sir John Anderson, on the ground of time, expense and the need for materials in "active defence".

A certain amount of deep shelter will be provided by extending the tunneling of London subways and elsewhere in the country where the terrain makes digging relatively easy, Mr. Morrison said. This, he added, will constitute only a fraction of the total shelter and in any event it cannot be finished until the end of winter.

No 100 Per Cent. Safety

Quoting a favorite phrase of his predecessor, who was moved to the Lord Presidency of the Council after criticism of measures taken to shelter Britain's millions, Mr. Morrison declared "in practice there is no 100 per cent safety".

He outlined this program:—

1.—Building of more Anderson shelters — inexpensive corrugated iron huts which critics assail because they are not proof against a direct hit.

2.—Opening of private basement shelters where feasible.

3.—Increasing use of floors above the ground as well as basements in certain types of strong modern buildings.

4.—Installation of nearly 1,750,000 bunks now on order for subways and inauguration of a ticket system to abolish queues.

Greek Communique

London, Nov. 4 (CP)—Reuters News Agency today quoted the Greek High Command as announcing capture of a new range of heights in Italian-held Albania and the destruction of nine Italian tanks in the repulse of an assault on the Epirus front.

The Monday communique said:

"On the Macedonian front our forces succeeded in occupying on Saturday a new range of heights in Albanian territory.

"On the Epirus front Sunday there was artillery fire on both sides. An enemy attack supported by tanks was repulsed. Nine tanks were destroyed.

"Heavy enemy attacks on the Phlorina sector were repulsed with grenades and at point of bayonet. The enemy suffered losses.

"A number of prisoners were captured.

"Intense enemy air attacks were made on the front with 15 bombing raids, mostly on positions taken from the enemy.

"Enemy planes bombed Salonika, causing a number of casualties, several of them fatal, among the civilian population. No military objective was hit. Some houses were destroyed.

"Three Italian planes were brought down by anti-aircraft fire and a fourth is believed to have been so badly damaged it crashed near Gevgheli.

"The enemy air force bombed several villages in the interior of the country."

British Communique

London, Nov. 4—(CP)—The Air Ministry of Home Security issued the following communique Monday:

"Only a few enemy aircraft crossed our coasts last night, and their activities were confined to northeast England and to east Scotland.

"Shortly after dark, bombs were dropped in each of these areas, but there were no casualties and only slight damage was done. A second attack was made on east Scotland in the early rounds of the morning, and high explosive bombs were dropped on one town. These demolished some tenement houses, and a small number of people was killed and injured."

OBSERVERS EXPECT

(Reports from Bucharest indicated Russia has 31 divisions and three mechanized brigades mobilized in Bessarabia and Bucovina on the borders of Rumania, while a British military expert estimated Germany was concentrating 70 divisions in the Balkans.

Other Factors

There were other factors interpreted as supporting the view Germany was planning early action in the Balkans.

The Nazi police chief, Heinrich Himmler was reported in some quarters to be in Rumania and German action often has coincided with his travels.

(The censored Bucharest Press carried the news that Himmler was in Rumania but a government official there denied it.)

Travellers and diplomats have reorted that many of the veteran Nazi motorized and infantry units have been pulled out of occupied France since Italy attacked Greece a week ago and Balkan sources intimated that these troops are the ones now moving into Rumania.

The Italian invasion of Greece, with Salonika and the Greek Isles as objectives was said by the observers here to be but one phase of a four-point axis offensive.

Other points included:

A German push through Bulgaria to aid Italy with a two-pronged thrust—one aimed at undermining Greek defences by striking at Macedonia.

A German smash toward the Dardanelles, opening the gate to neutral Turkey, Syria, Palestine and the Suez Canal.

WINDSORS SUPERVISE SCRAP IRON SHIPMENTS

The Duke of Windsor, governor of the Bahamas, and his duchess are shown with officials of the Bahamas war materials committee as they discussed the shipment of scrap iron from Nassau to England. Collection of scrap iron, valuable for the manufacture of sinews of war, is one of the methods whereby the Bahamas help the Mother Country.

TRUMPETERS WANTED FOR R.C.A.F.

This Royal Canadian Air Force trumpeter sounds the call for 80 trumpeters to serve at Royal Canadian Air Force stations throughout Canada. Boys of 18 or over with musical ability or experience with bugle bands are asked to apply at the nearest R.C.A.F. recruiting centre. They will be trained in the use of this E flat type of cavalry trumpet adopted by the air force. Sounding "station duty calls" is a full time job.

ARABS SUPPORT BRITISH FORCES IN NEAR EAST

A company of the Arab legion that is incorporated in the British army in the Near East, TOP, is shown in action on the desert, BOTTOM. Fierce and canny fighters, these men are at home in the desert, and are slated to play an important role in the defence of the Suez canal in the event that Germany and Italy attempt to cut that waterway by means of a pincer movement.

SCIENTIFIC FACTS ABOUT "B.O."

The adult skin has 2 to 3 million sweat glands which act as a cooling system, giving off from 1 to 3 pints of perspiration daily—even when we are sitting still. If perspiration stopped, we would die from hyper-pyrexia (heat stroke).

Because much of the water in perspiration evaporates, we do not see or feel it—especially in changeable weather. Heated rooms, lack of fresh air, and heavy clothes quickly decompose this sweat deposit—turn it stale—cause offensive "B.O. (Body Odor).

TOO bad to spend money trying to make a good impression—and then make a bad one! But that's exactly what Tom had done: NO ONE escapes this possibility, because we all perspire from a pint to three pints daily, and in changeable weather, stuffy, overheated rooms increase this perspiration. Left on the body, these sweat deposits soon turn stale—decompose. Then YOU have "B.O."

Careful people stop "B.O." before it starts, by using Lifebuoy. Lifebuoy contains an exclusive deodorizing ingredient not found in any other leading toilet soap. Used in your daily bath, Lifebuoy stops "B.O."; its peppy, purifying lather washes stale perspiration deposits away! Start playing safe—with Lifebuoy!

U.S. ELECTORS

proclaimed they will not lead the country into war, many of the estimated 50,000,000 Americans who will cast their ballots tomorrow feel they may be choosing between peace and war. Willkie has predicted re-election of the President would plunge the United States into war by next April.

Six Main Issues

Six main issues face the electors: war, defence, aid to Britain, employment, business recovery, social confusion of trivial incidents such as the throwing of missles at the candidates; occurrences that may affect the large negro vote; the army captaincy to Elliott Roosevelt at a time when 16,000,000 young men faced compulsory service . . .

In a category by itself stands the important question of a third term for President Roosevelt. Unwritten law decrees a President should serve at most two terms and the cry of "dictatorship" has caused many democrats to swing to the Republicans; conversely, some Republicans feel Mr. Roosevelt's years of experience justifys another term in a time of trial and uncertainty.

35 Senators to be Chosen

While choosing their President, Americans also will select a Vice-President, heir to the presidency should a White House vacancy occur. Henry A. Wallace, Democratic Vice-Presidential nominee, and nominee, and Senator Charles L. McNary, for the Republicans, have carried the burden of the campaigning on farm issues.

Thirty-five Senators, all but three House of Representatives and 33 Governors also will be chosen. Maine, holding its State election in September, already has picked its Governor, a Senator and three representatives. Maine went Republican but the saying "as Maine goes, so goes the nation," no longer holds good. It went Republican in 1936.

Minor-party slates include the Socialist ticket headed by Norman Thomas, running for the fourth time, Communist Earl Browder and Roger W. Babson, who heads the Prohibition party ticket. Court actions and the decisions of election Boards have ruled the Communist candidates from the ballots of more than a dozen states.

Both Endorse Aid to Britain

On election eve, two main issues stand out. On war, Mr. Willkie, while endorsing all possible material aid to Great Britain, contends a provocative attitude toward the Axis will lead to war if Mr. Roosevelt is re-elected The President has said that any charge he is heading toward war is contrary to the facts; he has vowed to continue his labors for peace.

Of the third term, Mr. Roosevelt said of his acceptance of the Democratic nomination: "The real decision . . . is not the acceptance of a nomination but rather an ultimate willingness to serve if chosen by the electorate." Mr. Willkie declared: "The third-term candidate has suggested that the third-term candidate is the only man who can protect America. We reject the fatal doctrine of indispensability."

The President has laid down a govermental policy of fullest aid to Britain short of war, a policy the country as a whole approves. Mr. Willkie also approves—but he maintains that if he were elected he would be able to give more aid, and faster, than can Mr. Roosevelt.

Roosevelt Stays Close to Home

Generally, the 1940 campaign followed the usual pattern but Mr. Roosevelt, because of a tense international situation, laid down the rule that he could not travel farther than an overnight journey from Washington. His first strictly political address was made Oct. 23 at Philadelphia, followed by five others.

Mr. Willkie came closer to conducting the traditional sort of electioneering. He stumped the country continuously, making more than 500 speeches in a 28,000-mile tour by train, airplane and automobile. He was seen by an estimated 12,000,000 persons. In the last weeks of the campaign he was under the care of a specialist for a sore throat.

Battling down the stretch, both candidates spoke Saturday night. At Cleveland, after a 24-hour tour through New York, Ohio and Pennsylvania, Mr. Roosevelt said the storm raging in the world is the reason he is seeking a third term and that when it is over "there will be another president."

Both Speak Tonight

Mr. Willkie, speaking at New York, assured Americans he wants to be the "the master of no man," seeking only to be the servant of the people. Last night, in a statement, he said his first act "when elected" would be to recommend to Congress a constitutional amendment limiting presidential terms to eight years or less.

The formal end of the battle comes tonight. The president speaks from Hyde Park, N.Y., at midnight, EDT, in his usual election-eve broadcast. The Republican nominee has the last word, he speaks at 1 a.m. EDT Tuesday from New York.

EMPEROR HAILE HAS NEVER YIELDED

Mussolini, who took Abyssinia from Haile Selassie, the Emperor, in one of the boldest robberies of history, has to face the same Selassie again. The Emperor is in the Sudan to lead his people against the Fascists.

The Ethiopians have never given up the fight. It goes on relentlessly for what have they under Italian subjection! The entry of Italy into the war has fanned the hopes and inspired the people and their chieftains to the utmost effort to shake off the Italians, who have squatted in their native land.

Haile Selassie has spoken. He says he knows of the treachery in methods used by the Italians in war but his place is with his people and he will fight to "help our ally Britain in our larger fight to liberate all nations enslaved by Fascist tyranny."

Everyone who loves liberty is confident that the Ethiopians will tell a story in battle that will be of great help in the war to down Fascism and Nazism. They wish the restoration of sovereignty to these brave people of Ethiopia and will applaud when that land is torn from the Fascist clutches.

It was in this war with Abyssinia that Duce showed the selfish material of which Fascism is made. Here Mussolini clearly revealed the calamity which had fallen upon the world when Fascism was born.

May the Ethiopians fan the flames of revolt and make occupation of their native state so miserable for the Italian usurpers that these will seek only too quickly to surrender their stolen gains.

'RULE BRITANNIA' 200 YEARS OLD

This year of war saw the two hundredth anniversary of the first hearing of one of the greatest national songs, "Rule Britannia." Today with the British navy greater in strength than it has ever been, and blockading the enemy nations after having dealt a terrific blow at the Hitler ships in the Skagerrak last spring, the song is more popular than it has ever been.

"Innumerable oil lamps glowed in the garden of Cliveden House, near Maidenhead, on the night of Friday, Aug. 1, 1740. On the stage of a temporary theatre singers were performing 'The Masque of Alfred' (words by Thomson and Mallet; music by Arne) for the benefit of Frederick, Prince of Wales, who then lived at Cliveden, and his guests.

"The Prince has given his party to celebrate the accession of the House of Hanover and to mark the birth of the Princess Augusta.

"None present knew that they were hearing for the first time one of the most famous national songs ever written, an 'Ode' in which the Prince himself was moved to join, and which wartime Britain has been honoring 200 years later.

"Thomas Augustine Arne an upholsterer's brilliant son, was 30 when he wrote 'Rule, Britannia!' The first bars are engraved on his memorial in St. Paul's, Convent Garden. Händel introduced the opening strain in his 'Occasional Oratorio' six years later 'Alfred;' Beethoven produced some rather poor pianoforte variations; and Wagner, who said that the first eight notes expressed the entire English character, wrote an early overture based on the tune."

Times have changed from those days of minuets and other stately dances of two centuries ago. The flickering oil lamps have given way to the brilliant electric light, the broken roads have changed into magnificent highways, trains, motorcars and airways have supplanted the stage coach and the intervening carriages, buggies, phaetons and democrats, the homes of the rich and the poor at large are infinitely more comfortable and over all reigns modern science in a multitude of devices and inventions including radio, the telegraph and mail delivery instead of the occasional letter of 1740.

But the spirit of the people is the same. Today there is even greater proof of the high destiny of the British race. There is their vast Empire, and there is the United States, a potent new democracy, one of the world's greatest nations. There is a wider democracy and liberty is more widely known even though two of the most sinister phases in modern history, Nazism and Fascism, seek to weld chains for the free world. Fortunately against this stands on the world battle line the greater Empire than has been as the champion of the liberties of mankind.

Today "Rule Britannia" is the prayer of a worldwide race whose spirit and whose devotion to higher political ideals have advanced the world. It rings around the Empire and the globe and it heralds the day when the discordant din and rattle and boastings of dictators will be lost in the cheers and paeans of victory of freedom, through which will be heard paramount the strains of "God Save the King," "Rule Britannia" and "The British Grenadiers."

Gas Masks For Horses Of U.S. Army

Washington—Because of natural immunities and the perfection of the horse gas mask, United States army mounts would have less to fear in chemical warfare of the future than they had 20 years ago.

American manufacturers are now turning out the first 30,000 new masks now at a cost of $15 to $25 each.

"Since the world war considerable work has been done on the problem of increased protection of horses against gas," said Lieut. Col. Ward H. Maris of the army general staff.

"There are certain physiological differences between the horse and man which have a bearing on their reactions to gas.

"For instance, horses are almost unaffected by a cloud of lacrimators (tear gasses) which would render a man completely blind. For this the horse can thank the lack of lacrimatory glands in the eyes.

"Also, the horse is very little affected by a class of gases called sternutators, which cause vomiting in man, because of the difference in the muscular makeup of the stomach of the horse and man."

Officers recalled that the first gas mask for horses, which was developed during the World War at a cost of $5 each, was a gauze bag similar to a feed bag, and that it was far from satisfactory.

There are two new types of mask. One modern type was described by Colonel Maris as "a rubber bag fitting closely around the nostrils and upper jaw of the horse, with a part of the mask being carried in the horse's mouth in the same manner as a bit."

"With a man it is necessary to cover both mouth and nostrils, but the nostrils, it is not necessary to cover the mouth in order to protect the lungs," he explained.

This model requires two large corrugated rubber tubes which lead from the mouthpiece to a canister containing air purifying elements.

Italy 'Pacifies' Libya

(The Magazine "Asia")

General Rudolfo Graziani came to Libya, and before long there was hardly a tree or lamp post without a rotting human cadaver. Airplanes dropped educated men from a few thousand feet in the air; wells were poisoned and others were sealed with concrete—a sadistic manoeuvre the full cruelty of which can be appreciated only by those who have travelled in the desert; machine-guns were turned on captives hoarded in camps, and women and children were allowed to die from hunger, thirst and disease.

Not since the days of the barbarian invasions had the world seen such mass cruelty. At least one American newspaper man was witness to some of Graziani's methods; and a Scandinavian traveller, by no means unfriendly to the Italians, and one who did not go to seek horrors, has left a record of what he saw which is surely one of the most terrible documents in existence.

How many people were murdered in the process of pacification? I do not know and I do not think that anybody will ever know. Possibly 100,000; possibly five times as many or even more.

COMPOUND ADVERTISING

(Woodstock Sentinel-Review)

Everyone recognizes the steady operation of compound interest over a period of years, but oddly, some business men do not seem to recognize the similarly remarkable results of "compound" advertising.

The greatest fortunes in the world have been steadily built up by compound interest. In order to build an estate it is necessary to make investments that are compound-interest bearing. Compound interest soon adds to the regular principal until the interest equals the periodic investment.

Break the chain of interest compounding and the brakes are at once put on the earning power of principal.

The same law or truth applies to advertising. The greatest businesses in the world have been built up by the "compound" earning of advertising—the cumulative effect of advertising.

Advertising that is persistent and regular—day in and day out — month in and month out—year in and year out—in prosperity and in periods of recession soon gathers momentum like compound interest. Business prospers on momentum. When momentum stops, business goes into a tailspin.

Compound interest in advertising lies in the memory value of all previous advertising. The memory value and the cumulative value of advertising gain steadily and surely —just as surely and regularly as comund interest—until in time, each advertisement (and each advertising campaign) compounds cumulative returns until this compounding of returns equals the returns from current campaigns.

Let the chain of advertising be broken—let advertising become spasmodic or irregular, and the valuable ingredient of previous advertising is lost; memory-value; and ultimately, it is a struggle to make current advertising profitable.

Most of the oldest and largest national advertisers have grown to large commercial importance only because their persistent advertising has brought ever-increasing cumulative returns to strengthen the affect and the results of current advertising.

Had they not been persistent in their advertising, had they been spasmodic in their advertising after they had achieved the first stages of success, they would have gone out of business long ago.

Good Hunting And a Bit Of Good Luck

From the Special Correspondent at Alexandria of the London Times

War against submarines is largely a matter of chance. Trawlers or destroyers may cruise for week after week with their anti-submarine gear out and never get contact; then suddenly the luck may turn and there will be an astonishing series of successes. This occurred some months ago, when a division of destroyers sank no fewer than four Italian submarines in a single day.

The circumstances in which the crews of two other Italian submarines surrendered more recently show further how large a part luck plays in the game.

In the first case an old Australian destroyer had been ordered during a cruise of the Fleet to go to help British aircraft which would come down on the sea. While she was carrying out this mission she burst a steampipe, and was consequently ordered to return to port. The damage was repaired for the time being and the destroyer steamed homeward, keeping a sharp watch.

At about 10 o'clock on a dark, moonless night, the look-out spotted what he took to be the wake of a submarine which had just submerged. Depth charges were dropped immediately, and the crew of the ship set about maintaining touch—no easy task for a single vessel with her steaming powers reduced. Luck favored them; they dropped another charge to show the submarine that she was not forgotten. At about dawn the long-sustained effort at last failed, and the ship lost touch with the submarine. The commander cursed his luck; he was a junior lieutenant, a bearded veteran of 25, who was temporarily in charge of the ship owing to the absence of his two superior officers. All his perseverance seemed to have been in vain.

Aid came, however, in the shape of an aircraft on patrol. The commander signalled the situation and the aircraft circled round searching for signs of the submarine. Presently she saw something below the surface and dropped a bomb. The something proved to be a large air-bubble; more bombs were dropped and presently the submarine came to the surface.

Her crew immediately took to the water and all but two, who could not swim, were rescued. According to their account, they had sighted the destroyer first and were submerging to torpedo her when the first depth-charge sent them diving for safety. Subsequent depth-charges had badly damaged her internally, and thus they would have been bound to surface sooner or later, even if the flying-boat's bombs had not come to hasten their captain's decision.

In the second case, two destroyers returning from convoy ran right on top of a submarine in the dark. One of them opened fire as the submarine dived. She disappeared, but surfaced again soon afterwards and surrendered. In both cases the crews had scuttled their vessels before showing the white flag.

Maligned Animals

The skunk is a worthy creature, says a writer for the St. Louis Zoological society. He makes a gentle playmate for children, is no demon when captured and he eats a lot of injurious bugs that deserve devouring.

We humans are too prone to judge animals by human standards. We object to the skunk's odor because we don't happen to like it as untidy and dull-witted because humans that act like pigs usually are untidy and dull-witted.

Fact is the pig is one of the most intelligent of animals, ranking with the horse and dog and well above the cow.

We disesteem hawks because we think they're rapacious and because once in a while they pick up a chicken. But hawks are valuable to society as enemies of rodents and insects, and rapacity is their way of life—proper to them if improper to man. Even the toad, like the English bulldog, is nicer than he looks.—Minneapolis Star-Journal.

Goebbels Talks Big In Big Words

(From The Manchester Guardian)

Apparently Dr. Joe Goebbels has not yet despaired of his "war of nerves", the art and practice of "talking big" is once again in full swing in the German press over the terrifying consequences of the Brenner meeting. The Berlin "Borsen Zeitung" is particularly formidable—on paper. "The decisions taken at the Brenner meeting," we are told, "will take effect with clock-like punctuality and the irresistible force of an elemental phenomenon."

Considering how exceedingly unpunctual Adolf the All-Terrible was in his various schedules for invading this country and taking up his residence at Buckingham Palace, there is much to be said for a little vagueness about his future triumphs.

Group in U.S. Helps Canada

(Windsor Star)

Canada's cause and the welfare of British child guests have been the inspiration for the organization of a Maple Leaf Fund, Incorporated, committee in Winchester, Massachusetts. Report of a recent meeting of the Winchester committee was printed in The Winchester Star, written by Mrs. Marion S. Lowell, former resident of Windsor.

Mrs. Lowell was educated in Windsor schools and was on the original staff of Patterson Collegiate. She is a sister of Mrs. John Merrit, 1181 Pellissier street. She is secretary of the organization and in her report tells of pictures being shown which gave views of Canadian scenery.

Essence of the pictures is contained in a poem quoted by Dr. Charles Tozier, the lecturer, which follows:

Three thousand miles of border line!
No fort nor armoured host
On all this frontier neighbor—

Ground from east to western coast;
A spectacle to conjure with
A thought to stir the blood
A living proof to all the world
Of faith in brotherhood.

Three thousand miles of border line!
No fort nor armored host
Seen aught along this common course
But peace and harmony.

O, nations bound in brotherhood!
O, faith in fellow man.
What better way on earth to dwell
Than this God-given plan?

Three thousand miles of border line!
One hundred years of peace!
In all the page of history
What parallel to this?
God speed that surely dawning day
That coming hour divine
When all the nations of the earth
Shall boast such border line!

Why Holland Fell

Dr. E. N. Van Kleffens, Minister of Foreign Affairs for The Netherlands, in the London Listener.

You may think that five days is a very short period in which to take a whole country. Of course, that is quite true. But in order to form a true opinion, there are two things one must not forget. The first is, that the size of The Netherlands in Europe is very small. The overseas territories, especially in the East Indies, are quite large, but the size of the European part of the Kingdom is only a little over 13,000 square miles.

And secondly, there is the brutality of German warfare. When the Germans saw that it took them much longer to take The Netherlands than they expected, they did not hesitate to wipe out, by aerial bombardment, the centre of the City of Rotterdam, a commercial town, where fighting was only taking place because the Germans had attacked it by air-borne troops. No fewer than 13,000 civilians— men, women and children—found their death amongst the smouldering ruins.

Later on, of course, the Germans thought that this was very bad propaganda for them, so they said there had been only 300 casualties. Whereupon a clergyman posted up a notice on his church door, saying: "There will be a service in remembrance of the 300 dead of Rotterdam, 800 of whom belonged to my parish."

It was by such means that the Germans finally succeeded in overcoming Dutch resistance.

JURY ACQUITS HENRY STORMS ON ASSAULT CHARGE

Justice Keiller MacKay Releases Man From Custody After Verdict Given Saturday Night

CONFLICTING EVIDENCE

Mr. Justice Keiller MacKay, presiding judge at the Supreme Court now in session here, acquitted Henry "Benny" Storms, Napanee truckdriver, Saturday night, after a jury, deliberating two hours, had found him not guilty on charges of attempted rape and assault with intent to occasion bodily harm.

The verdict culminated a two-day trial that saw conflicting evidence adduced by Crown Prosecutor Walter Martin, of the Attorney-General's Department, and Defence Counsel J. M. Simpson, K.C., Napanee.

The charges arose from complaints entered by Mrs. Mary Maracle, Deseronto, who told the court of a midnight assault on August 30, in a driveway, 1½ miles west of the town, in which she alleged she had been attacked and beaten into insensibility by Storms, after she had refused his improper advances in a motor car.

Swore He Did Not See Woman

Placed in the stand by his counsel, Storms swore that he had not seen Mrs. Maracle on the night of the alleged offence, nor had he been drinking with her and a party of friends earlier in the evening. He had accompanied his wife to a party given by a Mrs. Hilditch, and with the exception of a half-hour around eight o'clock, when he had gone downtown with an Indian friend to secure a violin string, and again just after the party had broken up when he had "driven around the block to warm up the car" had not left the scene of the party.

"It's a Lie"

Mrs. Maracle, recalled to the stand after Storms had given his evidence, denounced his statements as "lies".

Chief Constable E. R. Beatty, Deseronto, testified to seeing a car outside the Hilditch residence a few minutes after one o'clock in the morning of August 31st. The driver had produced a license bearing the name "Henry Storms". Some women and children had come from the Hilditch house, entered the car and been driven away. He also swore he saw the car coming from a westerly direction where the scene of the alleged assault is located, a few minutes previous.

Mrs. Maracle swore that she and a brother, F. McVicker, and his girl friend, Peggy Sero, had been drinking beer in the Arlington Hotel, on the night of the assault. The quartette had driven away, let McVicker and Miss Sero out at the home of a bootlegger and Storms had then driven her to the driveway outside the town limits where she alleged he assaulted her. She had come to about 4 a.m. in a naked condition and had gone to the home of B. Joyce, nearby farmers, who took her home. She had suffered a fractured nose, ribs, clavicle and sustained serious bruises to her face and shoulder.

She refuted the testimony of Louis Bluett who swore he saw her in company with two soldiers on the night of August 30, and again in a cafe on the following Sunday afternoon. "I remained in bed until the following Thursday" she told the court. Dr. Harold Boyce testified to the extent of the woman's injuries and added she had been told to stay in bed for four or five days.

Was at Party

Several witnesses testified to the presence of Storms at the Hilditch party. His wife told the court that she had had the keys of the car all evening with the exception of the time when Storms went to secure the violin string. At 11.30 that night, Storms had made the coffee in the Hilditch kitchen, while she and other women prepared sandwiches.

McVicker, Miss Sero and Joseph Cavanaugh, bartender at the hotel, corroborated Mrs. Maracle's evidence with regard to the beer-drinking in the hotel. None of the trio, however, could swear to the color of the car, or its make. McVicker stated he had "walked" Miss Sero to her home five miles away after they had left the Storms car. After the ten-mile hike, he told Defence Counsel Simpson, "I went down town, just for a walk" at 4 a.m. He had not gone with the intention of picking a brawl with some soldiers, he said.

Mrs. Maracle admitted to being an inmate of an institution, but vehemently denied other charges. After her arrival at her father's home in the early morning following the assault she had been nervous and hysterical and had fainted away several times. She did not tell her sister, a Mrs. Munday, who sat up with her that night, of what had happened until ten o'clock the next morning. Her sister corroborated this statement in the witness box, stating Mrs. Maracle had told her "Benny Storms beat me up."

"Pure Fiction"

In his address to the jury after the case had closed, Defence Counsel Simpson, charged the complainant with a story of "pure fiction, supported by unadulterated falsehood. She had a motive," he said, "which no one on earth knows but herself."

Crown Prosecutor Martin, who was assisted in the trial by Crown Attorney Gordon Robertson, and Provincial Police Constable Burton, asked the jury to give special consideration to the evidence given by several defence witnessnes. He especially pointed out that given by Bluett who, he said, testified that he did not know the complainant until the following Sunday, yet identified her as being in company with two soldiers on the night the alleged assault took place.

The jury retired at five o'clock after an eloquent charge from the bench, and returned its verdict through Foreman Grant Ashley a few minutes after seven o'clock.

Justice MacKay told Storms before acquittal that "You have been given the benefit of a reasonable doubt by the jury. You have an attractive wife and a family and I urge you to examine your whole life and come to the conclusion that your duty is to your wife and family rather than beershops and places of ill-repute."

Madoc

Madoc — A Hallowe'en party was held at the home of Mrs. A. Dymond on Monday evening, October 28, when all members of the Young Women's Association of St. John's Anglican Church attended in costume. After a very pleasant program a dainty lunch was served. The prize for the best costume was presented to Mrs. Emery by Rev. Mr. Pepper. Plans were made for their rummage sale and also arrangements for their next meeting which is to be held at Mrs. E. Nayler's.

Red Cross Notes

At the regular monthly business meeting of the Madoc Branch of the Red Cross, the reports of the canvassers for Red Cross drive was given. Madoc village and Units reported $439.50 was collected and a motion was passed to forward to headquarters $250.00.

A vote of thanks was extended to the young ladies who did the canvassing. Mrs. Morrison, chairman of the works committee reported on the display at the Madoc Fair and also reported that the Branch had won first prize of a silver tray presented by Robert Simpson Co., for the best display of hospital supplies. Plans were made to carry on the sewing for the refugees. The following donations were acknowledged with thanks:

St. Peter's Young Women's Club: 3 sweaters, 4 wash cloths, 6 helmets, 1 pr. mitts, 3 pr. socks.

Hart's Unit: 2 quilts, 10 pr. socks, 1 sweater, 3 helmets.

Miss Vanalstine: 1 quilt.

Miss Mackintosh, 1 pr. socks.

Hazzard's Unit: 3 sweaters, 2 pr. socks, 1 helmet.

The society wishes to thank all those who so generously donated food, money or time towards the Officers' Banquet held in the Armouries recently. The meeting closed with God Save the King.

Mrs. McKenzie had charge of the devotional and spoke on the life of Frances Ridley Havergal. Some hymns of hers were sung. Mrs. A. F. Hall rendered a solo and Rev. McKenzie closed the devotional period with prayer.

The guest speaker, Mrs. Chester Sills was introduced by Mrs. McCreary and gave a wonderful address on the last war. In her address, Mrs. Sills spoke and pointed out in so many ways where God's hand had been the means of victory. She also spoke of the present King and Queen being so courageous and attending divine service regularly. So all must put more confidence in God and do their part here. In the end victory will be Britain's once more. Offering was taken by Beryl Platt and Marion Prindle. A hymn was sung. Three verses of a hymn was sung and all repeated the Mizpah Benediction.

Lunch was served by the ladies and a social time spent.

When quite young she was married to James Smith, who predeceased her many years ago. Of this union there survive three sons, Thomas H. Smith. Ironton, Minn.; James A. of Flin Flon, Man.; Daniel J. of Campbellford, and one daughter, Mrs. Agnes Dunlay, Hastings.

Some years after the death of Mr. Smith the deceased married John Quinn of Marmora Township. There survive three sons, Edward A. Quinn, Joseph and John Quinn of Seymour Township and one daughter, Mrs. C. C. Ketterer of Chicago, Ill. Mrs. John Connors of Marmora is a step-daughter. There also survive one brother, Michael J. O'Sullivan of Detroit, Mich., and one sister, Mrs. Sweet of Philadelphia, Pa.

The funeral took place on Tuesday morning and was largely attended. The cortege left the family residence in Seymour West and proceeded to St. Mary's Church, Campbellford, of which the deceased was a devout member. Requiem Mass was sung by Rev. Father J. V. McAuley, P. P., and interment took place in St. Mary's Cemetery.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

WEDDINGS

EMPEY—HOLMES

At Tabernacle United Church parsonage Friday evening, the wedding took place of Verna Helena Holmes, Belleville, and Lindsay Robert Empey, Madoc, Rev. D. T. McClintock officiating.

PATRICK—DARVELL

At eight o'clock Saturday evening, Doris Maud, second youngest daughter of Mr. George Darvell, of Toronto, became the bride of Harry Patrick, son of Mrs. James Patrick, and the late Mr. James Patrick, the Rev. A. Beauchamp Payne of St. Thomas' Church officiating.

The bride, who was attended by her sister, Mrs. R. Deane, chose a street length model in Indian Earth, with black accessories and a shoulder bouquet of gardenias. Mrs. R. Deane wore Turquoise blue with brown accessories and a shoulder bouquet of gardenias.

Mr. R. Deane acted as groomsman.

Immediately following the ceremony the bride and groom left on a short trip following which they will reside in Belleville.

CARTER—REID

A late October wedding was solemnized on Wednesday last, October 30, in the parsonage of the United Church, Cannifton, when Helen Marguerite, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Reid, Cannifton, became the bride of Mr. Lorne Carter, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Carter, Foxboro.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. J. Davis, in the presence of a small group of near relatives. The bride wore a gown of soldier blue crepe, with navy blue accessories and corsage of roses. Miss Hilda Reid, Belleville, wearing an aviation blue suit, with navy accessories and corsage of roses was maid of honour. Mr. R. G. Clapp, Belleville, was groomsman.

After the ceremony the bridal party motored to Foxboro for the wedding supper. Following a motor trip to western points Mr. and Mrs. Carter will make their home at Foxboro.

ST. HILAIRE—MEYERS

Johnstown, (Special) — A very quiet Autumn wedding took place at Grace United Church parsonage, Trenton, on Wednesday, October 30, at three o'clock when Ruby Jean, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred E. Meyers, Sidney, was united in marriage to Alfred Henry St. Hilaire, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry St. Hilaire, Sidney Township. Rev. Geo. D. Campbell officiated.

The bride wore a street length dress of soldier blue crepe fashioned on long lines with wine hat and accessories. The bride's attendant was Mrs. Fred St. Hilaire, who wore a street length dress of wine crepe with matching hat and black accessories. Mr. Fred St. Hilaire of Gardenville was his brother's groomsman.

In the near future, they will reside on the groom's farm, in the Second Concession of Sidney.

Foxboro Y. P. U. Enjoy Masquerade On Hallowe'en

Approximately 125 children and adults attended the masquerade given by Foxboro Y.P.U. in the Sunday School rooms on Halloween night. A large percentage of those in attendance were in costume and several noted were particularly original.

Winners in adults' class were Bert Wannamaker, Marjorie Hammond, Mrs. H. Wickett, Mary Helliwell, Reg. Helliwell, Eleanor Palmer, Mrs. L. Wilson Mrs. R. Scott, Nama Sine and Edyth Cooke.

While only pumpkin lights flickered, a ghost told the hardships of her life. It was a weird tale. Fortune-telling and impromptu dramas helped make a lively evening. Candies and apples were served at the close of games.

Clifford Cook capably presided and was assisted by Jean Helliwell and M. Tummon of the Recreation Committee.

BRIDGE STREET W.M.S.

The Autumn Thank-offering meeting of Bridge St. W.M.S. was held Friday afternoon, with Mrs. J. Thompson of Toronto, Secretary of Christian Stewardship and Finance of the Dominion Board, as guest speaker. She was introduced by the President, Miss Lazelle Brown.

Mrs. Thompson introduced her address with a brief resume of a book entitled "Stewardship Life"—by Crawford—and discussed how this book can be related to the W.M.S. She said that since the whole structure of the W.M.S. is built around "giving"—this book was right to the point as it dealt with such things as the History of Giving, the Stewardship of Personality, the Use of Time (which is a free gift from God) and the use of Possessions. Giving and living must become one; man has used selfishly what God has intended us to share; all is God's, not just a tenth.

With this book review as a basis, Mrs. Thompson described many aspects of the work of the W.M.S. in Angola and China, in Newfoundland and Northern Canada, illustrating her comments with stories to show that the work started in these places must not die. She said —"We, of the W.M.S. started the work and if we do not give our support the work will fall through. There is no one else to whom they may look".

Mrs. Semple extended to Mrs. Thompson, the appreciation of the ladies for her address.

The devotional period was led by Mrs. Morrison on the theme,—"The Abundant Life". People are Jesus' Treasures and of more value to Him than anything else. Today we give thanks for the likeness of Christ which may be shown by just ordinary people.

The Thank-offering was dedicated by Mrs. Harrison. Mrs. Houston and Miss Doris Houston sang a very appropriate duet.

At the conclusion, tea was served by Mrs. Morrison's group.

The Stars Say

For Tuesday, November 5

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

A DAY IN which spectacular heights may be reached, with decisive and surprising crises, if backed up by dynamic force and drastic measures, is forecast by the exciting chain of planetary configurations. It is probable that the unexpected, unpredictable and unprecedented may occur, having profound and far reaching effect on the life, its aims and achievements. Brilliant coups may be expected from highly stimulated and tense springs of imagination, inspiration or ingenuity in which the creative abilities may function in any number of cultural forms. Sensational public acclaim may cap such dramatic climax with much personal gratification.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves deep in a year of spectacular achievements, with unprecedented public recognition or reward. These coming because of some extraordinary or brilliant creation in the field of science, invention, discovery, art, music or drama, as subtle impressionable, intuitive and image-creating forces and faculties are under exceedingly vibrant stimuli for expression in an unusual way. The mentality as well as the emotional urges are indomitable and insistent. Great personal joy stems from this, affecting the entire life and its fortunes.

Aims of University Women's Clubs Explained by Speaker

Dr. Dorothy Turville Says U.W.C. Are a Great Force for Good and Culture

The University Women's Club held its November meeting in the form of a luncheon at the Queens Hotel on Nov. 2. Mrs. W. J. Doyle the President graciously welcomed Dr. Dorothy Turville, President of the Dominion Federation of University Women's Clubs and the guest speaker of the occasion.

Mrs. Stuart Lazier introduced the guest of honour Dr. Turville, to members, as Professor of Romance Languages and Dean of Women at Western University. Dr. Turville is a Canadian woman who studied as an undergraduate at Western University, London, Ont., graduating from that institution with a degree in English and History. Later she took her LL.D. at Columbia. She has travelled and studied extensively in Europe.

Dr. Turville, in her opening remarks brought greetings from the Dominion General Office of the University Women's Club to the Belleville U.W.C. The University Women's Club, she said, is well established in Canada. There are thirty-six units. Dr. Turville maintained that national consciousness was a need of the day. This national consciousness could, she declared, be aroused by fostering mutual interests and developing friendship among groups so widespread. Women's organizations do much in assisting national spirit and unity and the U.W.C. assists greatly in this development.

The University Women's Club is a great force—for good, for freedom, for culture. The Dominion government appealed to the C.U.W.C. to assist in registration in the past summer.

Three Aims

Dr. Turville laid much emphasis to the aims of the Federation of University Women. The aims are three—First, to stimulate interest of university women in public affairs and public opinion. In that regard, the Canadian Federation of University Women requests the Minister of Justice to investigate prison reforms and to appropriate educational buildings only for emergencies in war time. Members are urged to express approval to the C.B.C. of worthwhile programs and boycott unfavourable ones. Members asked to study the Defence of Canada Act and also the forces of history which have brought the world to the present state. To promote higher education of women and establishment of scholarships. Accomplishments of scholarship holders highly worthwhile—justify the expenditure. Local clubs frequently donate money for scholarships for local students.

Second—Social intercourse provided by meeting women of various clubs. At this point Dr. Turville outlined the program of the annual meeting of the C.F.U.C. at Calgary. The "Chronicle" published annually keeps all members of all clubs in touch with the general procedure of the International Federation of University Women's Clubs. There are three club houses in Canada, all of which are open to club members. They are situated in Montreal, Winnipeg and Toronto. The Toronto club is the oldest. In Winnipeg the club considers itself fortunate in being able to lease the beautiful home of the late Dr. Gordon, "Ralph Connor."

Third aim — Intercourse with members of the I.F.U.W. The present International relations are in a sad state, said Dr. Turville, "As a consequence of the European war the elections at last meeting in Stockholm in the summer of 1939 may be considered a fiasco. Many of the countries represented at that meeting are doomed to intellectual death.

543 Attended Conference

Twenty-five countries were represented at the Stockholm conference, since then ten of these countries have been dissolved. The meeting in Stockholm was attended by 543 women. In spite of the terrific upheaval that has overtaken that part of the world, the conference was not marred by any thoughts of impending gloom. Optimism was the keynote of the conference." The President Dr. Stanislaeva Adamowicz is in Warsaw, and still alive, working in Warsaw.

The two chief problems for war time are: 1 Refugee children of members. 2 Refugee women members.

Names have been sent from Britain, but as yet no children. Since the Benares tragedy, many prefer to risk bombing, yet others are packed ready to come. Immigration restrictions at the moment rather hamper any refugee work, that might be done.

Miss Farley, Trenton, expressed thanks to the speaker for her most interesting address.

NAMED MATRON

Dorothy MacRae, of Gould, Que., has been appointed matron of the No. 1 Canadian General hospital, C.A.S.F., in England. She will leave Canada in the near future to assume her new duties.

More Than Food Values Must Be Considered in Feeding a Nation

There has never been a time in history when the quality of the food eaten by nations has received the attention now given by governments throughout the world. There have been times when there have been shortages in the amount of food but today the matter of the foods necessary for man's health is considered not only from the standpoint of proteins, starches, and fats, but also to the same degree from the standpoint of minerals and vitamins. Even this is not all because foods that individuals like, or that make them happy and contented must be included in the government's food scheme.

The Ministry of Foods in Great Britain, in addition to giving of government funds to enable poor people to get supplies of meat, bacon, bread and milk below cost, has arranged for the fortifying or strengthening of white bread which, while preferred by the majority of the people, is not quite as nourishing as whole meal bread owing to some loss of vitamins and minerals in its manufacture. To overcome this loss of vitamins and minerals, the government fortified or strengthened the white bread by adding vitamin B1, and also a small quantity of lime (calcium).

For people, living where there are plenty of fruits, vegetables, and dairy products, eating whole wheat bread or eating white bread fortified by vitamin B1 is unnecessary, and they can thus enjoy the white bread which is more pleasing and satisfying to their appetite. When fruits, vegetables and dairy products are not in abundance, whole wheat bread and "fortified" white bread should be eaten.

Research physicians and dietitians have known for years that foods that please the eye, or arouse memories of previous enjoyment cause a flow of the digestive juices before these foods are eaten and these foods are thus more easily and more completely digested.

These British food experts are making sure of a good meat supply for the people. Meat makes people happy aside from its food value.

Thus the government has to consider the human man who might get all the vitamins he required from a diet of vegetables, whole meal bread, milk and cheese, but would be most unhappy.

Climb Atop Health's Band-Wagon, You Beauties

Sally Gray believes that good health is a great beauty aid.

By HELEN FOLLETT

MIGHT as well climb aboard the health wagon, little one; it will take you along the beauty way. Consider the matter of good food; it is all important. Don't scowl when mama protests against late hours; mama knows what she is talking about.

Youth believe it is made of wire and fiddle strings; can't wear out. It is an illusion. The girl who works all day in shop and office and lets some lad drag her around to gay places is burning the candle at both ends; the first thing she knows she will have lost her complexion roses. We all need fun and recreation, but when we have them at the expense of health, they are too expensive.

Screen Stars Guard Health

Screen stars, understanding that good looks is their stock in trade, that they can't afford to trail around with tired, dull eyes, plan their living habits carefully. So much sleep to compensate for so much work. Food that is easily digested, not too much of it, and the kind that gives the body all the elements necessary for well being.

Beautifying treatments are surface helps. Cream the complexion to keep it smooth, but remember that it is good circulation that gives it color and good texture.

Bear with us when we preach on the subject of health. It is one upon which young things never ponder, and somebody has to din it into their reluctant ears.

Gooseflesh on arms and legs bother some girls. Horrid little raised red points that are distressing to the eye, especially when one hates stockings and loves anklets.

When taking a bath use the brush with vigor to make the flesh glow. Use water fairly warm, finish with a quick, cold shower. Rub the surface of the skin briskly with a coarse towel.

Anoint the palms of the hands with cocoanut oil, apply with long, swift strokes. Work in the oil with the thumb, sending it in circles and pinching the flesh lightly.

Let the oil remain on, apply borated talcum, go to bed.

Little sister can go to school or stay at home with equal style—in Pattern 4598. For Anne Adams has included a long-skirted housecoat and a dress in this versatile pattern. Both styles may have full long sleeves or short puffed sleeves and both have tiny pointed collars that contrast or match. Two panels go right down the front, with waist-seams a each side to allow for extra skirt flare. You may either have a buttoned or zipper front closing. See how effective a striped fabric looks, with the stripes used on the crossgrain for the side front bodice sections and the collar. Use the Sewing Instructor and finish both styles in a jiffy.

Pattern 4598 is available in children's sizes, 2, 4, 6, 8 and 10. Size 6, dress, takes 2 yards 35 inch fabric; housecoat, 3 1-8 yards 35 inch fabric.

Send twenty cents (20c) in coins (stamps cannot be accepted) for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly size, name, address and style number.

DR. DAFOE'S COLUMN on the Quintuplets and the Care of Your Children

Dressing For Winter

I am convinced that if more persons would dress properly and sensibly, we would have a lot less colds during the cold months.

Most of us suffer from too many clothes rather than from too few. Wrapped up too much, we get overheated and wet with perspiration at some time during the day, then we cool off, get a bit of a chill. Our resistance comes down and we are left easy prey for any cold or 'flu germ that happens to be floating around—and from now until next spring there will be plenty of them.

I have discovered a lot about proper winter dress from the Quintuplets. One thing my experience with them has taught me is that the heavy underwear that our mothers made us wear when we were young, isn't at all healthy. Yes, it is fine when the wearer is outside in a sub-zero temperature. But inside the modern house or school, it is too warm. The wearer sits inside for hours literally stewing in it. It induces perspiration, the wearer goes outdoors again, gets a chill and brings on a cold.

We make little change in the Quins' indoor clothing when winter comes. They wear about the same thing inside the Nursery in winter as in Spring or Autumn. For the Nursery is properly heated and humidified. When they go outdoors, they wear sufficient additional clothing—hoods that cover their ears, woolen coats, leggings, overshoes, to make them comfortable in what ever temperature there is. We guard against overdressing.

I have seen lumberjacks working at chopping down trees, sawing wood and snaking logs when it was thirty or forty degrees below zero, and yet they were working in their shirt sleeves. I used to wonder why they never seemed to catch cold, exposed as they were. Now I know how wise they were. They took off top sweaters and mackinaws to keep from getting overheated, for while they were working hard, they were plenty warm enough without those clothes. When they stopped work, and were ready to go back to camp, they put the top clothing back on. Thus they avoided sudden great changes in body temperature which are always dangerous.

There is a similar lesson to be learned from the way women dress today. I think. I am sure most of the older readers can remember when women wore heavy long, underwear, woollen stockings, perhaps several petticoats under heavy dresses. Today women in general wear no more indoors in winter than in summer and add only a heavy coat outdoors. Yet they are, on average, healthier and suffer less from colds.

The strange thing about colds is that although they are about the commonest ailment we have, science has never learned how to do much for them. Doctor's can't tell you a cure, they can tell you means of prevention, avoid going where you know colds are, build up your resistance so you can fight off the infection.

Inoculation for colds used to be very popular. Frankly, I've always been skeptical about them. The fact is some persons don't get any benefit from them. About the only way to treat a cold once it has taken a firm hold on you is to take good care of yourself, and let it run its course. When anyone comes to me seeking advice on what to do for a cold, I usually say: "Go home and go to bed with plenty of tissue handkerchiefs and a good book."

Of course, you are always meeting persons who have remedies for colds. They claim that if they drink plenty of water, or take beef tea, or eat raw food, or any one of a dozen things, that it cures their cold. All I can say about these fads, is don't do anything foolish. You could cure a cold immediately by chopping off your head. But I wouldn't recommend it.

Encourage, Don't Nag, Slow Child

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph.D.

It is discouraging to the parents when their child lags or fails at school. More discouraging, however, to the child. This second fact parents are prone to overlook. Therefore, they tend to scold the lagging child and charge him with laziness. If only they could, even for a few minutes, be in the child's place, just to get his feelings, they would do very differently.

Of course. If the child runs about at night when he has home assignments from school, he just won't have time to get these lessons. The problem then for the parents is not to hound the child about the lessons but to cultivate in him the habit of being home on nights before school and going at his home work at a regular time and place. With some children in school it may be too late to re-establish these good habits. If their parents can do nothing about these habits how much less can they do about the lessons? The obvious warning is to parents of younger children to make sure adequate controls will have been established early.

Don't Nag

Under no conditions can the parent hope to help the child improve in his work at school by scolding and nagging at him about it.

If you really want to help this child, learn from his teachers, or from an expert, just what can be done at home to contribute to his success at school. Say the child is in the fourth or fifth grade. Is his trouble in reading, spelling, arithmetic?

If in arithmetic, about the first thing to ascertain is whether he has learned by heart the simple 100 basic addition facts and the 100 basic subtraction facts, as 7 and 9 are 16, 8 from 13 leaves 5. So long as he counts or guesses in relation to the facts his troubles will continue. In order to help him, you will induce him to memorize these facts, just as he memorizes the multiplication facts, a few an evening.

Maybe he has not yet caught on to the process of hard substraction, hard addition, or long division. If not, you might, if you are poised and serene, show him in an evening or two, by working calmly and patiently a few samples with him. Likewise you might help him with specific troubles in fractions, denominate numbers, percentage.

Or, his arithmetic might be with verbal (reading) problems. If so, the chances are he is a poor reader or so much in haste that he doesn't take time enough to read the problem carefully, but hurriedly looks from one number to another among the words and guesses it is add, subtract, multiply, or "guzinto."

Parent Control

Anyway, the average parent who is self-controlled, poised and patient, who never lets the voice rise, nor even feels angry at the child with trouble in arithmetic, might easily be able to locate this child's difficulty and help him overcome it.

Of course, any parent who can read fairly well can easily find out if the child has trouble in reading. No standard test will be needed. If this child must pause, stutter and stumble over every few words, it is clear that what he is trying to read is too hard for him. But this may be the book or assignment for this child's grade. No matter. He will not improve much in reading through the torture of trying to read from such. Find materials that are easy enough for him to read, that also will be interesting to him. Better still, if you can induce him to read aloud to a child under six to entertain that child.

Solving Parent Problems

Q. What may happen if a tot is nearly always dressed better than his playmates?

A. He may lose their friendship and become a lonely, suffering soul.

Q. Should we teach a boy never to hit a girl, even when assailed by her?

A. No; in a child under nine or ten the rules of self-defense have no regard for sex, as a rule. And it is not good for any girl to impose on other children.

Beauty Via Dinner Table

Marlene Dietrich—Lovely arms and shoulders are a beauty asset.

By HELEN FOLLETT

This preacher of pulchritude realizes that the congregation is looking for short cuts to beauty, likes to hear about intriguing factory blushes, demountable eyelashes and new nail glitter. But will you please bear with us? We are going to talk about the subject of food. There's good looks in them thar dishes on the table.

Vitamin C, which lurks in the citrus fruits, in lettuce, in many other green vegetables, and in eggs, has been found helpful in victims of poor complexions. It is a good friend to the teeth, the finger nails and the glorious crown. Why not eat properly, and cut down on the beauty overhead? Just horse sense, that's all.

Milk for Energy

Milk, which contains calcium, is recommended by dentists when the patient is beset with caries. Few of us get enough calcium to supply the body's needs. If you're feeling all washed out, can't seem to chug up energy, and if you notice that your collar bones are creeping out of your chest, drink a quart of rich milk each day.

Orange juice and tomato juice supply elements that are necessary for rebuilding. Many a bad complexion is caused by a sluggish intestinal tract that will function normally if bulky green vegetables are eaten each day. The girl with the sallow complexion will find help in a glass of unsweetened lemonade taken every morning before breakfast.

x x x

Smooth, lovely arms are a glorious beauty asset. When wool frocks are worn, the skin surface is likely to be irritated; it gets rough and reddy looking.

After creaming your sainted face at bedtime—when your hands are oily—friction the arms with cocoa-butter. Be diligent when treating the elbows. Finish up with a talcum friction.

Graceful movements make the arms attractive. It is necessary to have a flexible wrist if the hand is to move prettily. See how yours behave. Wave bye bye and, if the wrist seems rigid, do your bye bye waving every day for five minutes.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

WOMAN EXECUTIVE PROVES COURTESY IS GOOD BUSINESS

We all want to know what makes a successful person "tick" and what makes a successful business click. The formula for succes intrigues the imagination.

Mrs. Odlum, who became the first woman president of a large store, and who for the last six years has been president of one of the most fashionable of New Yorks Fifth Avenue stores, is a striking example of a successful woman, and her huge store has, by her inspired management, become a well-known success story.

When, a few days ago, Mrs. Odlum resigned after six years of steadily mounting success, she added to her formal words of resignation a clear-cut and revealing exposition of her formula for the successful management of a store.

Her formula? The application of the Golden Rule of Good Manners to business. Mrs. Odlum is a courteous person, enjoys being a courteous person, and thoroughly believes in the principle that "courtesy pays" in one's business as well as in one's social life.

Listen to her high-hearted and convincing words:

"When I came to the store in 1934 it was nip and tuck whether we'd be able to keep the store open from day to day. I promised myself to stay only long enough to prove whether the principles I believe in would work when applied to business.

"Kindliness, consideration for customers and employees alike, courtesy, appreciation are human qualities that, I believed, would create a store that woman would like to shop in. The success of our store has for some time meant to me that these policies have proved themselves.

"I have proved to my own satisfaction that a fashionable store doesn't have to be hard-boiled or high-hat or high-pressure to be successful. Now that we have gone from $3,500,000 to over $10,000,000 in six years, thereby passing our previous 1928 volume peak, I hold that my point is well approved."

A dream come true — and "well approved" indeed!

GOLDEN WEDDING

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

My aunt and uncle are having an informal evening reception to celebrate their Golden Wedding anniversary.

1. The ladies in the receiving-line and a few others are wearing dinner gowns. I also am planning to wear this type of gown. My mother is wearing a black afternoon dress, street-length. Would it be correct for my father to wear a grey, double-breasted business suit?

2. Is it necessary to take or send a gift?

M.I.

1. Since the fact that the word "informal" is used for this party means that there is a definite latitude in the type of clothes to be worn, your father might properly wear a business suit.

On the other hand, however, a Golden Wedding anniversary is a most important occasion, and it is pleasant to do honor to it by wearing clothes that suggest that we are complimenting the occasion. Therefore, if it would be convenient for your mother to wear a dinner dress (or a dinner dress and short jacket ensemble), and for your father to wear a dinner jacket (Tuxedo suit), I suggest that they do this.

2. It is never really "necessary" to take or send a gift for any occasion. We give a gift if we wish to. But again this is such an important occasion, that our inclination usually is to give a present we can afford. It needn't be a "consequential" present, but it should be a thoughtful one.

COURTESY TIP

Curious, isn't it, how many people seem to be proud of the fact that no one can read their handwriting without pain? I find this a ridiculous and most irritating affectation. A little will power and practice can easily and quickly change the slipshod penmanship to a self-respecting legibility. Again the pleasant rule of consideration for other people!

"Our Love Affair" is the name of the song Judy Garland is singing, with Mickey Rooney accompanying her on the piano, in a scene from "Strike Up The Band," the new musical hit now on the Belle screen. Paul Whiteman and his orchestra, June Preisser and William Tracy are also featured.

Fashion Flashes

MUCH BETTER than a cheap fur evening wrap is a fine model of wool. A beauty is in palest beige woolen trimmed with big feathery scrolls in gilt thread embroideries, tiny bronze sequins and seed pearls. White satin lining.

IT'S EASY to transform a low-necked evening frock into a dinner dress. Just invest in one of those velvet or wool jerkins trimmed with gilt or silver nailheads. We saw a beauty in azure blue woolen with gilt nailheads.

A CHANGE from the silver fox jacket is a jacket in sable-dyed fitch made with clusters of tails at the high throat. Nice for day and evening and modestly priced.

MADE FOR TRAVEL use or for general wear is a grand swagger coat in natural-colored woolen with collar and full length tuxedo panels of sheared beaver. Short panels of the fur at the side of the bodice end in large fur pockets. Expensive but worth it since such a coat is always smart and different.

AFTER DARK frocks in street length are important items these days. A useful model is in black crepe tightly tucked from neck to hem, the tucks sewn with gold thread.

AT THE BELLE

"Strike Up the Band"

When clever youngsters get together everybody has a great time. They all do, including the audience, when Mickey Rooney, Judy Garland and other talented juveniles, many of whom appeared in "Babes in Arms" flash on the screen in "Strike Up the Band," now showing at the Belle Theatre. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has provided the hilarious musical of youngsters, who organize a high school band and win a radio broadcast contest, with lavish comedy adjuncts and which run moments of sincere heart interest.

The youngsters stage a traversity on an old-time melodrama, with buzz-saw heroine tied to the railroad tracks and other "thrills," embellished by such ancient ditties as "She's More to be Pitied than Censured" and "Father, Dear Father," that sets a new high in hilarity. Mickey is specially comical in his amazing drum solo, and Judy appealing with "Our Love Affair," "Nobody" and other song divertisements. June Preisser, clever little dancer, also imitates Anna Held singing "I Just Can't Make My Eyes Behave." The big climax in the radio station with George Gershwin's "Strike Up the Band," the foundation for musical specialties is musically thrilling.

Paul Whiteman proves himself a clever actor, aside from conducting his orchestra in "When Day is Done" and "My Wonderful One." Players include William Tracy, Larry Nunn, Margaret Early, Ann Shoemaker, Francis Pierlot, George Lessey, Elliott Carpenter, Virginia Brissac and Enid Bennett. Busby Berkeley directed with the same deft skill he used in "Babes in Arms" and "Forty Little Mothers." George Stoll's musical handling and Ray June's photography do much to make the picture a smash hi.

"A Rainy Day" is the title of a funny comicolor cartoon to be exhibited on the same program with the popular Belle newsreel.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Husband Decrees Isolation for Wife

Dear Miss Fairfax:

What can I do about my husband? He is an exceptionally good man in almost all ways. But he won't allow me to spend anything on the home or pay the doctor's bills.

We live on a farm, but don't raise anything on it. My husband has a business in town, and I'm alone all day and get so lonesome. He won't let me down to town, saying I've no business to be there. I have no friends with cars who can come and see me; consequently I'm always alone. We have no children.

I am 28 years old and my husband is 46. I want friends as much as any girl at my age does, but don't know what to do. I thought of leaving him, but I love him and probably would miss him terribly if I did. Please advise me what to do.

Have you talked things over with your husband and told him frankly that, in cutting you off from all human contacts, he has forced you to consider a separation?

This is one of the troubles in marrying a man old enough to be your father. He doesn't realize that to keep a woman in sound, mental health and happy, she must see people, go places and not be worried over unpaid bills. As you tell me you love your husband, your marriage is well worth saving, but to keep it off the rocks, your husband must be reasonable and make some allowance for the natural inclinations of a young woman.

Mother-In-Law-To-Be Assumes Defensive Attitude

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I've been going "steady" with a young man for the past year, and we've been engaged for five months. We're deeply in love, but his mother won't let him come to see me more than twice a week, saying that's all she saw of her husband before they married. We live in the same neighborhood, have everything in common, even religion. But his mother objects to me, saying I'm not good enough for him.

My boy friend expects me to stay home the nights he doesn't come, and when I did go out to a show with another boy it nearly broke us up. But I get so lonesome. When I was out of town for a few days, she said she wished I'd never come back because her son was such a good boy during my abence. Don't you think she's very selfish with him? Please tell me what to do.

Disgusted.

As you don't tell me your ages I imagine your fiance must be very young to be so completely ruled by his mother. And if you're equally young—say in your late 'teens or early twenties—I hope you're going to give this engagement deep and prayerful consideration before going on with it.

When a man's mother is completely antagonistic toward a girl and the son agrees to the extent of how often during the week he shall see his fiance, it conjures up prospects of of the mother-in-law of the joke column and fiction.

If you're very young, go slowly, watch your step. If you're not very young, the way out is to take the bit in your teeth and bolt.

Birthday Gifts For a Boy

Dear Miss Fairfax:

A young man in my group of friends has taken me out a number of times and we seem to enjoy being with each other. He has asked me to go out with him to help celebrate his birthday. We've never exchanged gifts, and now I'm wondering if it would be appropriate for me to give him some little remembrance for the occasion. Do you think so?

Melissa.

As the young man has asked you to help celebrate his birthday, I think it would be very nice to give him some little remembrance. As you are not engaged, the gift must not be a very expensive one. You might give him a leather article for his table, such as photograph frame, a file for papers and bills, desk accessories, a thermos kit, an inexpensive brief case, or neckties are always good, books, magazine subscriptions, even handkerchiefs embroidered with his initial or monogram.

Good luck to you and hope you have a pleasant evening.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Sing, Dance, Plenty Hot."

Bouquets should go to everyone involved in the production of "Sing, Dance, Plenty Hot" now playing at the McCarthy Theatre. The cast, the production heads, the photography, the writers, the musical staff, everyone on the credit sheet deserves the most heartfelt praise.

Not only because this lilting filmusical is flawless in its structural form, but also because its light-hearted gayety and infectious enthusiasm carry us away momentarily from a world sorely distraught, and takes us into a happy atmosphere of laughter and song.

Ruth Terry and Johnny Downs handle their romantic leads expertly, with enough youthful, ingenuous charm to establish them permanently with their fans as a romantic team.

Vera Vague of radio fame vies with Billy Gilbert for honors in the laugh-making department, each of them contributing top-flight comedy performances.

Lester Matthews makes villainy a fine art, and Claire Carleton, his celluloid wife, aids and abets him in his career of a society crook with genuine conviction.

Little Mary Lee, who has won much favorable mention for her fine work in the Gene Autry westerns, now steps into the feature class and proves herself ready for the most difficult portrayal.

"The Secret Seven"

A detective story that is new and different and presents one of the most fascinating manhunts that ever hurtled you headlong into a flaming cross-fire of thrills, "The Secret Seven," is also now showing at the McCarthy, with Florence Rice, Barton MacLane and Bruce Bennett topping the sterling cast of this production. Latest Fox News events is also presented, making the entire program one of the McCarthy Theatre's new season's finest.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Spring Parade"

You'll have to travel far and wide to find a better hour of entertainment than Universal's "Spring Parade," which opened last night at the Capitol Theatre.

The star is Deanna Durbin. Perhaps this review should be ended with that statement, for it seems all-sufficient. But details are, in this instance, interesting, for, although it is not surprising that Deanna's pictures should be great, it is astonishing that the young star should be able, time after time, to surpass her previous pictures, each of which was hailed as better than its predecessors.

Record is Established

Eight great pictures in succession is now Deanna's proud record. And proud she should be, for no other star, either on the stage or screen, has ever been able to create such an unbroken line of triumphs.

To try to analyze just why "Spring Parade" is such a masterpiece, is to try to explain, note by note, the beauty of a symphony. It would be like dissecting an emotion.

But a description of "Spring Parade" would have to include such items as these:

The picture presents the star as a young village girl who goes to the city. In the metropolis, she meets and falls in love with Robert Cummings, a young blade, and the picture tells the progress of their love affair over a bumpy and highly laugh-filled—road of complications.

Songs Introduced

Deanna sings (more beautifully than ever) four numbers—three of them from the pen of Robert Stolz, famous Viennese musician who composed among others, the beautiful "Two Hearts in Three-Quarter Time." The fourth is "Blue Danube Dream." All four carry words by Gus Kahn, dean of American lyric writers.

In the large supporting cast are Mischa Auer, Henry Stephenson, Butch and Buddy, Anne Gwynne, Walter Catlett, S. Z. Sakall, Samuel S. Hinds, Allyn Joslyn, Reginald eDnny, Franklyn Pangborn, Pegy Moran and others.

Direction is by Henry Koster, fifth picture in which he has guided Deanna. Joe Pasternak is the producer. The story, an original by Ernst Marischka, was converted into a screenplay by Bruce Manning and Felix Jackson. The settings, by Jack Otterson, are beautifully photographed by Joe Valentine.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was looking at the paper after supper, saying to pop, Well, things seem to be going better, Willyum.

What things? pop said, and ma said. Why, the generel situation, the war.

The war for Peet sake? pop said. It could hardly be going worse. The powers of darkness are rising out of their own ashes apparently stronger than ever, and poor Civilization is tottering on her last precipice, he said, and ma said, I know all that but the German people are getting good and tired of being constantly bombed in their own homes.

They were good and tired before the war started, pop said. Yee gods how can you talk about things going better? They're going from bad to worse, they're going out of the frying pan into the fire and out of the fire into the bottomless pit, he said, and ma said, But Willyum, don't you realize the Briddish have marvellous hidden weapons up their sleeve?

I realize there's hardly a country left in the world where freedom is more than a shadow, and a few where it's not even a name, pop said. I realise that people and real estate are being demolished at random over thousands of square miles without regard to religion, race, color or style of arkitecture, and all for the worst set of reasons that men have ever entered, he said, and ma said, If you read the papers the way I do, you'd see things through rosier glasses.

How do you read them for Peet sake? pop said, and ma said, I've developed a new technique and it works perfectly. The moment I see that a news dispatch is dated from Berlin I skip it like a plague. The only news I read is the news dated from London. You really ought to try it, Willyum, you have no idea what a different and more healthy outlook it gives you, she said.

When in doubt my sistem is to go back to the sporting page, pop said. Wich he did and blew smoke over.

Hamilton Tigers Score Upset In Defeating Toronto Argos; Rough Riders Beat Montreal

Tigers Have Chance to Oust Argos From a Playoff Berth in Big Four

BEACHERS WIN

Trounce Camp Borden 14-1 and Now Assured of First Place at End of Schedule

(By Sydney Gruson)

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

The howl of the Tiger sounded over the East's football scramble today, adding to the confusion and turmoil already created in the interprovincial union. The big four hasn't had a season like this for a long time.

While the Ontario Union rolled along to a Sarnia-Toronto Balmy Beach playoff, the Tigers from Hamilton left the second-place playoff spot in the big four in question for the last week of the schedule. Their 5-0 upset over Toronto Argonauts in Hamilton Saturday was the day's feature.

The champion Ottawa Rough Riders scraped through Montreal 7-4, taking over sole leadership of the big four again: Balmy Beach trounced Camp Borden 14-1 and Sarnia kept pace in second place with a 13-1 triumph over Hamilton Alerts at Sarnia. These victories had all been expected, but the Tigers had not rated with an Argo Club which beat Ottawa only a week previously.

Score in Third Quarter

But this Tiger wasn't to be beaten in his own lair. Held scoreless through the first half despite an edge in the play, the Tigers got all they needed—a single point—on the second—half kickoff, which rolled past the Argo halves to the deadline.

A 20-yard runback by Mike Hedgewick paved the way for George Wright's second single, then the Tigers poured through the Argo line to block Jim Pollwell's kick and take possession 26 yards out from where Bill Murmylyk kicked a placement field goal. The scoring was completed in that five-minute stretch of the third quarter.

Argo Fire Quenched Early

The fire of the Argo attack had been quenched fairly thoroughly by the Tigers' great stand in the first half, and the best Argo challenge to catch up failed when a third-down pass on the Tiger 26 went astray in the fourth quarter.

The result left Tigers two points behind Argos for second place, with the playoff to be decided next Saturday when Ottawa entertains Hamilton and Montreal travels to Toronto. After what has happened in the last two weeks, the Tiger challenge was not as far-fetched as it seemed at the start of the season.

Rain and mud did as much as Montreal to hold down the Riders, whose star was Andy Tommy, the Mercury-footed back. Tommy raced 85 yards for a first-quarter touchdown, sweeping wide on an end run to break into the clear on the sideline. Tiny Herman kicked the convert and Sammy Sward got Ottawa its other point.

Ran Back Kick-off 52 Yards

Arnie McWatters had to concede a safety touch in the third quarter when he fumbled a snap, and Gordie Noseworthy kicked another two points in the last quarter. But there was nothing in the late stages of the game to equal the thrill of Tommy's touchdown run or his runback of the second-half kickoff for 52 yards.

Mainly it was a dogged ground struggle with Montreal never having enough to get a major score.

A small Toronto crowd watched Frank Seymour and Bill Drinkwater score first-quarter touchdowns for Balmy Beach, who had things under control all the way and tried out a variety of new plays in marking up their fifth straight victory. Seymour's score came on a plunge after Cy Albright's high snap gave Beaches possession eight yards out. Drinkwater took a 33-yard pass from Don Crowe and ran another 20 for his major.

Two singles by Jim Butler and a placement by Nat Geary gave Sarnia a five-point lead in the second quarter and they coasted in against the Alerts. Jim Chapman scored Sarnia's touchdown in the fourth quarter, falling on a loose ball after Butler came up fast to recover his own kick behind the Hamilton Line.

CLEVELAND WINS TWO GAMES AND STILL UNBEATEN

Barons Setting the Pace With Three-Point Lead in Western Section

SHORE IS SCRAPPY

Springfield Indians Setting Pace in Eastern Section With Two Wins and Two Draws

(By The Canadian Press)

Cleveland Barons emerged today as the only unbeaten, untied team in the American Hockey League, winning two weekend clashes to run their record to three straight victories. The Barons now hold a three point lead in the league's western section.

The Barons topped Buffalo Bisons, the league's new entry, 4-2 last night after winning 4-1 the night previous over Indianapolis Capitals. Eddie Shore's Springfield Indians, meanwhile, are setting the pace in the Eastern Division with two victories and two draws in their four games to date.

The Indians played a scoreless draw with New Haven Eagles Saturday night and then gained another split in points with the New Haven club by playing a 3-3 draw last night. In other Sunday games Hershey Bears tied 3-3 with Indianapolis while Providence defeated Pittsburgh Hornets 3-1. Hershey topped Pittsburgh 3-0 in a Saturday game while Philadelphia Ramblers won 4-2 over Providence.

Shore in Two Scraps

The Sunday Springfield-New Haven clash was enlivened by two scraps, with Shore being involved both times. He had a wrestling match with Polly Drouin of the Eagles and a fight with Vic Myles, big New Haven defenceman.

Peggy O'Neil, Drouin and Earl Robinson, playing coach, scored for the Eagles while A. Brannigan, Alf Thurrier and Glenn Brydson tallied for the Indians.

In the Hershey-Indianapolis encounter Pat McCreavy tallied two of the Hershey goals and Mackie the other while Carl Liscombe, Whitelaw and Jud McAtee scored for the Capitals.

Babe Tapin, Normie Mann and Johnny Marriucci scored for Providence against Pittsburgh. The only Hornet goal was tallied by Lloyd Roubell, who opened the scoring early in the first period.

The Barons clinched their game with Buffalo by scoring three goals in the second period after Joe Jerwa had scored with a long shot late in the opening session. The second period goals for Cleveland went to Dick Adolph, Jake Milford and Norm Locking. Bob Gracie scored both Buffalo goals.

SEYMOUR CRASHES OVER FOR TOUCH

Smashing through the very centre of the Camp Borden line, Balmy Beaches' Seymour scored the first touchdown of the game when the teams met at Toronto Saturday. It was the only score in the first quarter, Crowe failing to convert. Barron (No. 10) is shown watching happily as his Beach team-mate scores.

In the last dress rehearsal before the N.H.L. gets officially started on its grind for the 1940-41 season, the Maple Leaf Whites and the Maple Leaf Blues battled it out at Toronto with the Whites emerging with a 4-2 victory. Hank Goldup is shown here flying through the air in a nasty spill while Kampman and Stanowski, of the Blues, are shown in the foreground. At the conclusion of the game it was officially announced that Buddy Hellyer and Nick Knott, formerly of Oshawa Generals, had been offered pro contracts and will report to the Pittsburgh Hornets. It was also officially denied that Baz Bastien, rookie goalie, had signed with the Leafs. Dick Kowcinak was tendered a pro contract, but decided to remain in amateur ranks and will go to the Maritimes to play with Sydney Millionaires.

New York Team Scores Three Goals in Last Two Minutes of Game When Kampman Gets Penalty

BRUINS HELD TO TIE

Canadiens Furnish Surprise in Holding Boston—Detroit Red Wings Take Amerks 4-2

By Robert Clarke Canadian Press Staff Writer.

The starting barrier has gone up on a new National Hockey League race and it seems significant, although it still is too early to predict how the teams will be running in the stretch that New York Rangers, are away to a quick break from the gate.

The form players have been high on the chances of the Rangers for this season, in view of their Stanley Cup victory last spring and the fact that Manager Lester Patrick still has a young club on the whole.

Showing their ability to make the most of every opportunity, just as they did all last season, the Rangers opened the season auspiciously Saturday night in Toronto by defeating the Maple Leafs 4-1. In other openers last night Detroit Red Wings defeated New York Americans 4-1 while Boston Bruins and Montreal Canadiens played to a 1-1 overtime draw.

The only club yet to get into action are Paul Thompson's Chicago Black Hawks, who start the season at home on Thursday against the Americans.

Largest Opening Night

The dollars rolled freely across the ticket counters in the opening games. At the Maple Leaf Gardens in Toronto, a crowd of 12,805 paid customers watched the Rangers and Leafs while the paid attendance at Montreal for the Bruins-Canadiens match was 11,784. Around 7,000 persons turned out at the Olympia in Detroit to watch the Red Wings win.

The crowd at Toronto was the largest for an opening night there since the big building was opened officially in 1931, while the turnout at Montreal was described as the best house in a half-dozen seasons.

The game in Toronto was won for the Rangers and lost for the Leafs by a penalty two minutes and eight seconds from the end to Bingo Kampman of the Leafs. While Kampman was off the Rangers scored twice and then added another just a second from the end of the game.

The Ranger goals went to Alex Shibicky, Babe Pratt, Bryan Hextall and Phil Watson, in that order, with Pratt getting the winner, while Kampman was serving his penalty. The only Toronto goal was scored by Gordie Drillon who tallied along with Shibicky, in the first period.

The most surprising opening night feat, however, was turned in by Canadiens. Made over almost entirely from the team that finished a poor last in the 1939-40 season, the Montrealers battled grimly all the way against the Bruins with goalie Bert Gardiner emerging as the star of the game.

Gardiner is Star

Gardiner, one of the eight new men in the Canadiens' line-up, was beaten only by Milt Schmidt in the rousing tussle. Schmidt's goal came late in the third period, rubbing out one scored near the end of the second period by Hector (Toe) Blake, leading scorer for Canadiens in the past two seasons.

At Detroit, the Red Wings broke loose after a scoreless first period to tally in the second period and twice more in the third, while the Americans were confined to single goals in both these sessions. Both New York goals went to Johnny (Peanuts) O'Flaherty, former Toronto amateur, while Mud Bruneteau, Syd Howe, Alex Motter and Don Grosso scored for the Wings.

THEY'LL TRY FOR TEAM IF—

Oklahoma City university's-football team better start winning some games or these two co-eds are going out for the team themselves. Or so they say. Most college queens just sit and look pretty, but not these two, Band Queen Billy Chipman and Football Queen Mary Hays. They spend their afternoons practicing football. Mary does the kicking here.

PILOTS GIVEN POCKET MONEY

Hamilton, Bermuda, Nov. 4. — (CP Cable)— The Bermuda House of Assembly in a debate Friday on "pocket-money" for candidates leaving the island to become pilots decided that "Canada is as much overseas as Britain".

As a result a recruit going to join the Royal Canadian Air Force will receive $50 for spending money on the way as will the 12 candidates bound for service with the Royal Air Force.

Between the Lines

with Ken J. Colling

Entries into the Kingston Van Horne Memorial Cup series close this evening and as far as could be ascertained only four clubs have signified intentions of competition. The four teams mentioned are Kingston, Belleville, a military sextette from Barriefield and the Perth-Smiths Falls "Combines." Efforts to interest the Trenton Air Force, as put forward by the eastern puck moguls, proved futile, however. With the Flyers not as yet entered perhaps the St. Louis-Watt aggregation could interest Sergt. Laurie Gibson and some of his cohorts to join the local squad for the Van Horne series at least. We understand Ken McAdam, giant defenceman who was sent from the Toronto Maple Leafs to Syracuse last season, is now at the airport, as is a former member of the Montreal Royals.

In reviewing the winning of the Van Horne mug we find a local entry has won the Kingston trophy five out of the past six years of competition. The old Belleville Cities Service team won the honours in 1934 and '35, while the "Flyers," who made their home ice at the Hume Arena, coped the Kingston silverware in 1937, '38 and again last year, which is a splendid showing no matter how one takes a gander at it. Incidentally the management of the Belleville Juniors is toying with the idea of competing in the Limestone City preseason loop for the sole purpose of testing their O.H.A. timber before New Years. However, they desire one concession—no limit to be placed on their roster. The reason is that Coach Holway and company may desire to try-out players from last year's City Juvenile loop during the Kingston schedule.

Do you remember when Toronto Argos, playing under United States rugby rules at New York 17 years ago today, were defeated 55-7 by a team representing the U.S. Third Army Corps Area? The contest was staged at Yankee Stadium and the Toronto team was baffled by the Americans' forward pass.

Rumours are rife along the main stem to suggest a military indoor softball loop being mooted by the higher ups in the Argyll Light Infantry (Tank) Unit. Col. Gribble and his associates were non-committal over the week-end, but there is something in the wind, simply because we learned of the proposed military indoor loop from the R. C. A. F. while attending Friday night's splendid Trenton softball get-to-gether. One night a week of indoor softball at the Armouries might tend to lessen the long and tedious winter for the local members of the N. P. A. M. unit. However, to assure interest in such a proposed league within the Argyll unit, it would be quantity, rather than quality to assure success, as such a proposal is purely for the recreation and fun of the entire unit. We hope to have something more concrete later.

Along the same lines there has been suggested that the Argyll Light Infantry unit take over the sponsorship of the local basketball team in the Ontario Basketball Association. There are several tried and proven cagers in Col. Gribble's unit and under the sponsorship of the battalion games could be played on the spacious basketball floor at the Armouries. There are such seasoned basketeers as El Wickerson, Owen Atkin, Abe Tobe, Louie Maraskas, Eddie Schrieder as well as others we've forgotten to mention at this time, available as enlisted members of the unit.

We expect to hear some controversy regarding Junior O.H.A. groupings of the district when the parent body meets next Saturday. The Trenton kids are angling to obtain a berth in the Lake Shore group. Picton wants to play hockey without long jumps, but neither entertain the idea of including Belleville in a loop with either Trenton or Picton. The ultimate result should be interesting to follow.

Toronto hockey fans must have thought they were witnessing the sixth game of last season's Stanley Cup finals all over again Saturday night when the New York Rangers broke out in a last few minutes rally to whip home three goals and win the opening N.H.L. game 4-1 over the Leafs. It was in the dying minute of the last Stanley Cup game that the Rangers played their "button, button, whose got the button game?" and to Byron Hextall, then a practical rookie, went the lion's share of the victory. On Saturday night before nearly 13,000 fans Hextall again started the Rangers on their splurge that saw Frank Boucher's sextette whip home three goals while the poor Toronto squad stood around in amazement. As a matter of fact Hextall was in on all of those last three hectic goals.

SPORT SPICE—Red Dutton's New York Americans still just can't get the nod over Jack Adams' Red Wings. . . Detroit beat the Amerks 4-2 last night while in Montreal, before a S.R.O. house at the Forum; Les Canadiens and Boston played to a 1-1 draw to open the long professional hockey grind that leads to the Stanley Cup series, which only concluded a few short weeks ago, it seems. . . . To beat Toronto at football is the one great accomplishment that Hamilton ponders over from year to year and Saturday saw the "oskee wee-wee, oskee waw-waw" battle cry loud and long as the Tigers blanked the Argos 5-0, while Montreal was doing a fair job as they only lost 7-4 to the powerful Ottawa squad. . . . Incidentally the Toronto Balmy Beach team haven't been beaten this year and have scored 66 goals in five group games. . . . And don't forget Coach Morley Baker's Belleville C.I. can romp through their schedules without a loss by turning back Albert this week.

Sports Roundup

U. S. Election Is Top Story in London Papers

London, Nov. 4 (CP)—The United States presidential election was the top story in London newspapers today, in most cases getting more space and display than either the battle of Greece or the slackening of the Nazi air attack on the capital.

Several papers not only published long news stories from New York and Washington on the wind-up of the campaign but carried special articles and cartoon as well.

One columnist went so far as to dig up an American porter in a London apartment house for an interview on how Americans may ballot Tuesday. The porter, it happened, had not been in the United States since 1918.

SUPPLIES OF CAMEL TRAIN DESTROYED BY BRITISH PATROL

Cairo, Egypt, Nov. 1 (AP)—Supplies being parlied by a camel train in the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan were destroyed by a British patrol and a prisoner was captured Tuesday, a British Headquarters communique announced today.

It said another British patrol inflicted casualties on an Italian force in the Egyptian western desert Wednesday night.

TWO SOLDIERS INJURED AS TRANSPORT HITS TREE

Toronto, Nov. 2 (CP).—Tr. J. E. Malone of Ottawa and L. Cpl. E. Carter, 34, Toronto, both of the First Canadian Cavalry Regiment (Tank) stationed at Camp Borden, were injured yesterday when a 12-man transport truck crashed into a tree near the camp. The accident occurred during convoy training.

Malone received back injuries and Carter suffered internal injuries. Both men are in Toronto military hospital.

LOOK OUT FOR YOUR LIVER

It may be the cause of YOUR troubles Buck it up the RIGHT way. Feel grand

Your liver is the largest organ in your body and most important to your health. It pours out bile to digest food, gets rid of waste, supplies new energy, allows proper nourishment to reach your blood. When your liver gets out of order food decomposes in your intestines. You become constipated, stomach and kidneys can't work properly. You feel "rotten"—headachy, backachy, dizzy, dragged out all the time.

For over 35 years thousands have won prompt relief from these miseries—with Fruit-a-tives. So can you now. Try Fruit-a-tives—you'll be simply delighted how quickly you'll feel like a new person, happy and well again. 25c, 50c.

Willkie Gives Promise Of Effective Aid to U. K.

New York, Nov. 4.—(AP)—The Republican Presidential nominee, Wendell L. Willkie, cabled the following answer Saturday to a query from the London Graphic as to his attitude toward the United States aiding Great Britain:

"My deep feeling of friendship for Great Britain is clear and firm. It is my aim to place behind Great Britain the industrial organization of a revitalized and fully operating America. Great Britain wants our industrial production. And that is what I propose to develop to the full efficiency of which American industrial genius has always been capable. This regeneration will be brought about through voluntary unity between our labor, industry and agriculture. Within this view, I believe, is to be found effective aid to Britain which will not be limited".

A little later, speaking at Madison Square Garden Willkie said this:

"All of us— Republicans, Democrats and Independents —believe in giving aid to the heroic British people. We must make available to them the products of our industries.

"The people of Britain are fighting against tremendous odds for the freedom of individuals —the sacred right of free men to self government, to tolerance, to freedom of speech, of press, and of religion. They stand in desperate battle to protect the ideal of a society in which the Government is the servant of the people.

"Both parties talk about helping Britain. We really mean it. We don't want to help her just on order. We will give here continuing production from expanding industries".

Seek to Belittle British Aid

Rome, Nov. 4—(AP)—The Italian press today sought to belittle the armed aid which A. V. Alexander, First Lord of the British Admiralty, said Saturday the Greeks are receiving.

"In Greece," Il Popolo di Roma said, "there are a few British tugboats which were already there, 60 English airplanes which were already in Greek airdromes, and a modest contingent of troops which already had landed at Crete."

Anti-Aircraft Fire Very Accurate Says Nazi Bomber Pilot

London, Nov. 4.— (CP)—Testimony of the pilot of a Nazi bomber as to accuracy of British anti-aircraft fire was given by the British Broadcasting Corporation. The BBC quoted an interview with the pilot broadcast over the German radio Sunday night.

"The British gunners gave our plane a good peppering", the pilot was quoted as saying. "The port engine was put out of action and all the instruments shot to pieces".

After an emergency landing on the coast, the crew found a big hole had been torn in the fuselage, the pilot added.

MENTHOLATUM

Don't buy this— it's NOT advertised!

It's a doubtful product. It bears no trade name. It might be any one of the many things you buy or use every day. A refrigerator, perhaps . . . or a radio . . . nail polish . . . chewing gum . . . kitchen soap . . . a correspondence course.

But THE PROMOTER KNOWS ITS CLAIMS COULDN'T STAND THE INTENSE SCRUTINY OF THE CANADIAN BUYING PUBLIC. And so he prefers to dispose of it as an unbranded article. That's why you won't find his advertisement here.

How different from the other advertisers in this newspaper. Proudly they tell you of their latest product or service. Eagerly they announce special values, improvements, new features.

These manufacturers and merchants have confidence in what they offer. They realize that while advertising may make the first sale—it's the QUALITY AND VALUE of the product that makes the second, third and fourth. And that's what they're after!

It's worth while, reading the advertisements! You can believe in them!

"THE GORGON'S MASK"

by Van Wyck Mason

CHAPTER FIVE.

"This way, please, doctor." Abner Polk beckoned vigorously to a white-clad man who was running down the float stair.

Dr. Parsons, brisk, quiet-spoken with shrewd brown eyes behind a pair of gold-rimmed spectacles, caught up the slender wrist, and tested the pulse. Immediately he shook his head.

"Drowned?" It was Kanamura who spoke—almost hopefully, it seemed.

Dr. Parsons considered a moment. "Not if she was floating when you found her."

"Then how do you suppose she got killed?" the Lloyd girl wanted to know.

"Ja," von Rentner gruffly echoed the query. "How?"

"Say, I wonder—" Catherine Lloyd shot a startled glance at the silent and motionless company. "Remember that scream we heard?"

"Nonsense!" cried the steel magnate. "Just a coincidence."

"It would seem that somebody," Phedre Renoire pointed out somberly, "was anxious that no one should find out who she was. Do you see? There is a ring mark on her finger, but no ring."

A strained silence fell. As a man who emerges from a daze, Abner Polk became once more his vigorous, authoritative self. "I suggest," directed the host, "that we go up to the house. Give that sheet to Dr. Parsons, Manuel."

"Eh?" the doctor demanded. And he resumed his conversation with Howard Nevins. "Do you recall just how she was floating when you first noticed her?"

"Yes. She was on her back."

Nevins was smoothing the tangled yellow hair before pulling the sheet up over the face. The eyelashes looked very long and dark against the white cheeks.

"Watch out," Parsons warned, "Or you'll get your cuff stained. See? That scratch is still bleeding a little."

"Thanks." Nevins flashed a quick smile, then glanced ruefully at his shirt. "How very clumsy of me!"

While excited voices floated down from the house, now glowing like a stirred heap of jewels, Dr. Parsons stepped closer, blinking nervously behind his glasses.

"Say, Mr. Nevins," he said in a hoarse undertone, "I didn't want to say anything before the ladies, but there's something queer about this girl's death."

Through the half-dark, the tall sportsman tried to see his vis-a-vis more clearly as he remarked, 'Queer?'"

"Yes, queer."

"Why?"

"Because" — the doctor now became obviously agitated—"I happen to know that there has been no boat off this part of the shore."

"Why so sure, Dr. Parsons?" Nevins inquired curiously.

The doctor pointed to a small bungalow standing on a commanding promontory.

"That's my place up yonder. Since dinner time—six-thirty with us—I've been sitting out on the lanai and looking towards the sea."

"And you saw no boat of any description?"

Dr. Parsons shook his spectacled head. "None. Besides I know how the current runs about her and considering that rigor mortis hadn't even begun to set in, I certainly am

The young officer seated himself uneasily on the edge of a chair while anxiously eyeing his superior.

"Well, I've done the best I could, wondering how this body came to this place."

The dark-faced sportsman nodded gravely.

"It IS a bit of a facer, isn't it?" And the more he thought about that odd look on the face of Abner Polk's Phedre, the more he wondered.

"When will the autopsy be conducted?" he demanded abruptly.

"Tonight, I expect," replied Dr. Parsons moodily. "If she's been murdered, the sooner we know it the better."

"Yes," Nevins murmured.

In his hotel room, Captain Hugh North, D.C.I., sank slowly into a deep armchair after locking the door with particular care. He even went so far as to prop a chair under the door knob, for he had not yet gotten over that extremely unpleasant shock when he had so nearly been murdered through the want of a similar precaution.

Across from him was seated Lieutenant Wilson Clark with a worried look decking his healthily tanned visage. He tilted back, his eyes anxiously searching his host's features.

"You said you wanted to see me, sir?"

"Yes—I've no time to waste."

"I was kind of floored when I learned who you really are. If I'd known 'Howard Nevins' was only an alias, I'd have—"

"Sit down," North invited. "You must have been working under a real strain these last few weeks, eh, Lieutenant?"

sir, and I expect I'll do better now that I've got the famous Captain North directing me."

The latter said sharply, "I'm inclined to doubt that."

"Doubt what?" The younger officer's smooth cheeks became flooded with sudden scarlet.

"Both of your statements," snapped North. "First, that things will go easier because I'm here. Thanks to the inefficiency of you and the late Major Cross, it's too late for me to do anything save to make crude and blundering efforts. There's nothing left for me to do but to get rough and melodramatic." North made irritated noises. "And I don't like to work that way."

"Yes, sir." A number of minute wrinkles appeared to age the younger man's suddenly quivering features.

"And second, as to your work—you've not done your best. Your work has been, well—putrid, and that's putting it kindly." Suspicion was written large in every line of Hugh North's menacing features. "What's happened to you, Clark? The G-2 reports said that you were doing very well here, then all at once your reports got vague, just rubbish! Recently they've been suspiciously useless."

Mentally North tried to recall what that voice heard over the wire had said. . . . "Major Cross ended in the chilled room—and another friend of yours may also."

"Do you recall just how she was floating when you first noticed her?" the doctor asked the kneeling Nevins.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Nov. 4 (CP).—Prices advanced on Toronto exchange today. Trading through the first two hours was active. Volume was 171,000 shares.

Preston was the market feature, trading in heavy volume it advanced 30 cents to a new high for the year at 3.05 and was holding around 2.95. Chesterville, Powell Rouyn, Malartic Gold Fields and Macassa were other strong spots.

Ventures, Nickel and Steel Rock were Base Metal gainers. Calgary and Edmonton, Home Oil, Okalta, Davies and Anglo-Canadian all firmed in oils.

Utilities, senior oils and liquors were the strongest of the industrials. Foods held unchanged but for a gain of 2¾ to 92 3-4 for Westons Pfd. and a loss of ¼ to 26⅝ for Loblaw A.

WALL STREET

New York, Nov. 4 (AP)—Selling squalls hit the stock market today after a selective forenoon advance.

The list edged forward at the start in lively dealings but soon faltered and, near the fourth hour declines of fractions to around two points predominated among the leaders.

Moderate support was given at times to such stocks as Sperry, Woolworth, Union Carbide, American Telephone, Consolidated Edison, and Johns-Manville.

Lower were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, Douglas Aircraft, Kennecott, Montgomery Ward, N.Y. Central, North American, DuPont, U. S. Gypsum and J. I. Case.

Dome Mines, in the Canadian group, advanced 1-8 of a point. Lake Shore Mines dipped 3-8 while Canadian Pacific and Distillers Seagram held unchanged.

Butter Prices Jump On Decrease Report

Toronto,— Butter prices advanced on the Toronto open produce market Saturday on the report of a 4,000,000-pound decrease from a year ago in butter stocks held in the nine principal cities of Canada on November 1. The report was issued from Ottawa about noon, until which time the market held quietly steady.

Preliminary figures revealed that total butter stocks in the nine cities on Nov. 1 amounted to 36,287,337 pounds, compared with 40,349,000 pounds on the corresponding date of last year. A month ago an increase of 741,000 pounds was shown, so that latest report suggests that domestic consumption has maintained is record-breaking rate and that production has run behind last year for the month of October.

The market usually closes for half the day on a Saturday, but after most of the commission houses here had shut down for the week-end, tap grade Ontario creamery solids were selling in fair quantities at 30 cents a pound, 1 cent higher than the price reported at noon. It is likely that this advance will be passed along to the retail trade during today's trading. No. 1 grade prints moved Saturday at the unchanged level of 30 1-2 cents to 31 cents a pound.

Eggs closed the week with rising prices as receipts continued light and demand good. All grades improved in the graded section of trading, while the three top grades rose 2 cents a dozen in the retail division.

Montreal Produce

Montreal, Nov. 4 (CP).—Produce market prices here Saturday, as reported by the Dominion Department of Agriculture, follow:

Butter—First grade creamery prints, jobbing price, 30 1-2c; first grade solids, jobbing price 30. Receipts for the week, 9,974 boxes, compared with 5,525 a year ago.

Cheese —Western white ,current receipt price, 13 11-16 to 15-16. Receipts for the week, 25,970 boxes, compared with 19,475 a year ago.

Eggs —Graded shipments in used free cases selling price: A large, 42; A medium 40; A pullets, 30; B 27-28; C 19 1-2 to 20. Receipts for the week, 17,012 cases, compared with 8,290 a year ago.

LIVESTOCK

Montreal, Nov. 4—(CP)—Prices firmed 25 to 50 cents in early trade on Montreal Livestock Markets today, according to the Dominion Department of Agriculture.

Receipts: Cattle 992, calves 2,295, sheep and lambs 4,240, hogs 2,547.

Medium steers sold from $6.50 to $7.50 with common kinds from $4.50 to $6.50. Heifers ranged from $4 to $6.50. Goods cows were $5.25 to $5.75, medium $4.25 to $5 and common $3.50 to $4. Canners and cutters made $2.50 to $3.25 and bulls $3.50 to $6.

Calves were steady to 25c higher. Good veals made $11. There were no tops. Medium kinds sold up to $10.50 with common light veals down to $8.50. Drinkers were $5.50 to $8 and grassers made the bulk of the offerings selling from $4.25 to $5.

Lambs were 50c higher. Good ewes and wethers brought $9.50 with culls and bucks picked out at $7.50. Sheep were $3.50 to $5.50.

Hogs were slow and prices unsettled with an easier undertone.

Toronto, Nov. 4 (CP)—Cattle trade was very dull on killers with prices about steady up to mid-session on the livestock market here today. Veal calves were steady, lambs firm and sheep steady. No price was established for hogs. The cattle market holdover from last week was 700 head.

The cattle supply included 2,200 stockers and 800 stock calves.

Receipts reported by, the Dominion Marketing Service were: Cattle 6,000, calves 2,100, hogs 2,000, sheep and lambs 2,940.

Prices in the cattle section were: Fed calves $8-$10.50, butcher bulls $5-$5.50, bologna bulls $4.25-$4.75, there were very few butcher cow sales, canners and cutters $3-$3.75, stockers $6-$7.25, stock calves sold up to $7.50.

Veal calves sold at $10-$11 for choice with common selling downward to $6. Grassers sold at $5-$5.50.

Lambs sold at $9-$9.25 for good ewes and wethers, heavies and bucks at $8-$8.25 and culls at $7-$8.

Sheep sold at $2.50-$6.

Hogs closed previously at $8.85 liveweight and $11.90 dressedweight.

Passenger Airliner Vanishes in Storm

Unable to Land Over Salt Lake City, Plane Circles Overhead—Later Efforts to Reach Plane by Radio Fail

Salt Lake City, Nov. 4—(AP)—An airline carrying seven passengers and a crew of three vanished today after arriving over the Salt Lake airport at 4.40 a.m. M.S.T. (7.40 a.m. E.D.T.)

The United Airlines plane left San Francisco last night and was due in Salt Lake City at 3.39 a.m. M.S.T. (6.39 a.m. E.D.T.)

The big plane arrived over the airport an hour date but was unable to land because of a heavy snowstorm.

Captain Howard Fey reported he was following the radio beam as he approached the field.

Field headquarters here talked with the crew and the plane apparently began circling high overhead to await a break in the weather. Later efforts to reach the plane by radio failed.

17-YEAR-OLD GIRL PLANS TO WED

Parents in Georgia Send Document With Permission for Her to Wed

Fort Erie. Ont., Nov. 4 (CP) — Seventeen-year-old Doris Miller of Atlanta, Ga., plans to marry Aircraftsman A. M. Hargrett of the Royal Canadian Air Force in Toronto today after the Canadian Immigration Department has admitted her to the Dominion for the duration of the war.

Miss Miller had been held here since last Thursday because she could not show a document that she had permission from her parents to wed. The document arrived yesterday and Miss Miller was allowed to proceed to Toronto.

Hargrett recently left his sweetheart and his medical practice in Georgia to enlist in what he called "Britain's world fight for international freedom." At that time, Miss Miller visited him here and then returned to her home.

Man Pays Dearly For Reporting Theft Of His Own Car

Toronto Nov. 4—(CP) — Police said today that Louis Golant of Toronto was taken to Detroit during the week-end on a two-year-old charge of obtaining goods valued at $400 by fraud.

He was arrested in Toronto Saturday after he had reported his automobile stolen Friday. The stolen car was said by police to have been used in a holdup by two men of a private residence in north Toronto.

When Detective-Sergeant James Semple heard that Golant was owner of the car the name sounded familiar. He checked files of warrants and discovered the charge. Police said the charge was laid while Golant was in the fruit business in Detroit.

POLITICAL 'DOODLERS' MARK UP LINEN, HELP LAUNDRY TRADE

Joliet, Ill., Nov. 4 (AP).—United States professional laundrymen today reported that this year's election campaign brought a business boom to the industry.

The American Institute of Laundering said that the American habit of "doodling" on table linens at the thousands of campaign luncheons and in restaurants was the chief reason for the increase in laundry business.

Using visual education methods to prove their arguments, the election enthusiasts have drawn maps, tabulated state-by-state returns figured the vote by class, creed, and color.

GREEKS THREATEN

(Exchange Telegraph Company reports from Yugoslavia said Greek mountain troops had pushed seven miles into Albania, encircling Koritza, whose fall was "expected momentarily" and taking 1,200 Italian prisoners.)

(Reuters News Agency reported the Greek High Command had announced capture by Greek troops of a new range of heights in Albania.)

A Greek communique said before the end of the first week of Italian invasion Greek bayonet attacks on this north-eastern flank of the battlefront slashed slightly more than three miles into Albania and drove Italians out of fortified positions.

Only sketchy details of the sea fight off Corfu, where about 664 B.C. the ships of Corinth and her Corfu colony fought the first naval battle in Greek history, were contained in telegraph reports from the horn-shaped island off the Greek-Albanian coast.

The engagement was said to have taken place west of the island at 8 p.m. Sunday (2 a.m. E.D.T.) and the Athens radio said that half an hour after the firing we heard "a large vessel was seen ablaze, steaming northward".

The semi-official Greek News Agency termed Italian claims to have penetrated through the Greek defence line" a tissue of scurrilous lies" and added:

Italians Held Everywhere

"The Italians talk of conquest of vast territories containing hundreds of thousands of inhabitants, when in reality they are still being held in the frontier region where, indeed, certain points are already known to have been freed by the bayonets of the Greek army".

(Italian week-end communiques claimed steady advances south into Epirus, in northwestern Greece, and in another push eastward toward Phlorina and the Aegean seaport of Salonika.)

(Reports from Belgrade, Yugoslavia, told of thunderous cannonading in this sector and reported a flanking manoeuvre by Greek veterans said to have used small boats to cross Lake Presba on the frontier at night and fall upon Italian garrisons on the Albanian side.)

Italy continued heavy air attacks Sunday against Greek ports and inland cities behind the battlefront and along supply routes north from Athens.

Greeks Put over Counter Raids

The Greeks reported shooting down four Italian planes and losing two of their own in air fights Saturday over Greece and attacks on the Koritza and Argyrocastro airdromes in Albania.

(The British Broadcasting Corporation said British and Greek air riders also attacked an Albanian port and the Albanian capital, Tirana, where part of the palace of former King Zog, now being used as an Italian military headquarters, was reported destroyed.

The Greek High Command said Italian bombers caused no damage to military objectives and reported unestimated additional civilian casualties.

Money Given By Britain

(A Reuters dispatch from Athens said yesterday that the Greek Government received £20,000,000 ($89,000,000) from Britain to bolster the Greek war effort.

(Gen. Charles De Gaulle, leader of the free French group, announced he had sent a telegram of sympathy and support to Greece's Premier, John Metaxas.)

The situation at the front was reported by authoritative sources yesterday to be "developing satisfactorily."

Fierce Italian counter attacks against positions won by the Greeks were said to have been repulsed with heavy Italian losses.

A General Staff communique said there was heavy artillery fire from Greek and Italian batteries on the left and right wings of the front.

For most Greek cities, Sunday was the quietest day since the war began.

Athens Streets Filled

Athens streets were filled with the usual crowds. Many persons gathered outside the General Staff headquarters for a glimpse of high army officers entering and leaving.

There were cheers when organized youth groups and other uniformed organizations marched through the streets. One such group was the Legion of Death, wearing black uniforms and carrying a banner with a skull and crossbones. These men—mostly veterans of the Balkan and World Wars—have volunteered for particularly dangerous military assignments.

The new British liaison officer, Maj.-Gen. Gambier Parry had his first talks with Greek Staff officers to correlate the Greek and British war efforts.

(A Reuters News Agency dispatch from Athens said today the British Consulate on the Island of Corfu was singled out for attack during raids on the island Sunday. Some British civilians were said to have been killed.)

DIES OF GUNSHOT WOUND

Barrie, Ont., Nov. 4 — (CP) — Ralph Constable, 23-year-old farmer of nearby Innisfail township, today died in hospital here from injuries received in a hunting accident near his home yesterday.

Constable was injured when he took the full charge of a shotgun in the left leg. The gun was carried by his 17-year-old brother Blake. The brothers were walking through a field when Blake's thumb slipped on the hammer of his shotgun and the gun was discharged from three-foot range.

Provincial Police are investigating.

THREE DROWNED

After the collision, the Jackson automobile went out of control and careened across the highway in an easterly direction. Crossing the ten-foot shoulder the car plunged down the steep embankment, mowing down small cedars, and into the river without turning over.

The car came to rest on its four wheels on the bottom of the river bed and the lights continued to shine for some hours after the accident. The Rupert automobile also went out of control when the left front wheel was broken off and the car was pulled to the west side of the road away from the river.

Chain Attached to Car

Lieutenant Lloyd Blue, a passenger in the Rupert car with Lieut. J. Kincaid, both of Madoc, peeled off his clothes and made an attempt to enter the car but was unable to do so.

The police were notified and Sgt. W. Probert, Constable J. Taylor and Constable F. Lozo rushed to the scene of the accident. Constable Lozo secured a rowboat and rowed to the car, with R. Davis.

A chain was attached to the rear bumper of the car and a tow-truck raised the car sufficiently that the two men were able to extricate the bodies of the three women. Coroner Dr. J. W. Farley pronounced them dead. They had been in the water over a half an hour before they were extricated from the car. All three bodies were found in the rear seat of the car.

Identity Difficult

As the rescuers were unable to locate the purses of the trio, identity was not established until almost four hours after the car had made its plunge into the river. Police checked the ownership of the car by the licence plate with Toronto and ascertained that R. Orval Jackson, of Hilton, Ont., was the owner.

Mr. Jackson was brought to Trenton where he identified the bodies of the three women as his wife, his daughter and Mrs. McMurter, a friend of his wife.

According to Mr. Jackson, his wife had left Hilton in the afternoon with his three daughters, Laura, age 16, Faye, age 15 and Velma. At first, it was believed, that the other two girls were in the car but later Mr. Jackson was of the opinion that the two girls had remained in Frankford.

Inquest Opened

Chief Coroner Dr. J. J., Robertson took over the proceedings and an inquest was opened in the Northey Funeral Home. Following the identification of the bodies by Mr. Jackson, the inquest was adjourned until November 5.

The driver of the automobile was released by the police and allowed to continue to his home in Madoc. No charge has been laid as yet.

Large Congregations Attend Anniversary Services at Foxboro

Large congregations attended the anniversary services of the Foxboro Presbyterian Church which were held on Sunday. Rev. W. J. Walker. pastor of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Belleville, conducted the services, both morning and evening, delivering inspiring addresses.

In telling what must transpire throughout the world if the gospel of Jesus Christ is to survive, after victory is won in the present war, Mr. Walker said that man cannot live entirely to himself and instead of making it our aim in life to accumulate so much material wealth or so much goods we should work and live for one another.

"The blacksmith, the grocer, the farmer and the machine-shop worker cannot live entirely to themselves," said Mr. Walker, "but all must contribute toward the life of the community."

For his second thought of the evening, Mr. Walker stressed the need for co-operation and the community spirit to exist between nations. "Countries should not build barriers between each other to strangle industry and finance, but should exist one for the other to create a feeling of co-operation and good-fellowship which must exist between nations if democracy is to survive and if the doctrine of dictatorial governments is to overcome.

UNDER ARREST

Acting swiftly to thwart fifth column activities, Premier Metaxas of Greece is reported to have ordered the arrest of Prince Paul, brother of King George of Greece, and his German-born wife. It was reported that Prince Paul had strong pro-Fascist leanings and planned to seize the throne when, and if, the Italian forces could smash the Greek armed resistance.

LONDON PASSES

Londoners, meanwhile, having undergone 57 successive nights of raiding, heard Herbert Morrison, Minister of Home Security, say in a broadcast that deep air raid shelters for all were "beyond the bounds of practical possibility."

He urged the building of more corrugated iron "Anderson shelters;" the opening of private basement shelters; increased use of floors above the ground as well as basements in strong modern buildings; and installation of bunks and inauguration of a ticket system for subway refuges.

East Scotland Bombed

One group of German raiders attacked an east Scotland town early today, the Government said, and high explosive bombs "demolished some tenement houses and a small number of people was killed and injured."

For the first time since the air siege of Britain began, the attackers used "hedge-hopping" tactics yesterday, swooping low to machine-gun Sunday strollers, cyclists, motorists and buses in East Anglian towns.

The Sunday attacks, coming late in the day, followed one of the lightest nights of raiding in the 57, and British experts said that while bad weather was a major factor in limiting the attacks, new defences along Hell's Corner, the advent of new German pilots to replace killed veterans and R.A.F. attacks on Germany and German - occupied territories also contributed.

British strategists agreed, however, the lull probably was temporary.

The Admiralty announced last night that three officers and 27 non-commissioned men were killed and 33 wounded more than a fortnight ago when the cruiser Liverpool was attacked in the Mediterranean by an Italian torpedo plane. Another Admiralty communique said Rear Admiral E. J. N. Mackinnon. 60. was missing, but gave no details.

KWANGSI CLEARED OF JAP TROOPS

Chinese Strike Swiftly to Broaden Their Advantage

Hong Kong, Nov. 4—(AP)—Chinese dispatches reported today that the south China province of Kwangsi, which borders on French Indo-China, virtually has been cleared of Japanese troops and that Chinese forces were striking swiftly to broaden their advantage.

One column of Chinese from Kwangsi, they said, is approaching Yamchow, near the Kwangtung seacoast, while another has reached Chennankwan, a strategic pass on the Kwangsi-Indo-China border where fighting now is in progress.

Nanning, Kwangsi Province capital from which the Japanese withdrew last week, may be only the first of a series of important cities to be given up by the invaders, it was reported.

Japs May Abandon Swatow.

Unconfirmed Chinese reports asserted there were indications that the Japanese, in order to shorten their lines in south China, were preparing to abandon the important treaty port of Swatow.

Many Chinese were said to be fleeing to the interior for fear Swatow may be set afire if it were abandoned by the Japanese.

Chungking, Nov. 4—(AP) — The Central Daily News, Chinese Government organ, asserted today that the withdrawal of Japanese troops from Kwangsi province in south China might be in preparation for "a desperate Japanese attempt" to seize Singapore ,or The Netherlands East Indies "before joint British-American pressure in the Pacific causes Japan's collapse."

ITALIANS ADMIT

"The Italian advance failed to acquire lightning rhythm because of bad weather prevailing in the region for several days and because of the lack of roads," the dispatch said.

"The terrain permits the use of only one route for the advance toward the east and another toward the west. These roads until today were swampy strips interrupted here and there by dynamite mines exploded by the Greek rear guard."

(It was the first time Stefani had sought excuses for failure of Italian troops to make an impressive showing against the Greeks. The agency made no mention of new Greek gains in Albania nor the Greek defeat of an Italian motorized force on the Epirus front. It was silent also on Allied bombing of military objectives at Tirana, the Albanian capital.)

Warehouses Loaded With Nazi Supplies Burned by Norwegians

New York, Nov. 4 (AP)—A British broadcast heard here today quoted reports from Norway that "a whole string of warehouses, loaded with German army supplies are already in ruins" from a fire started in Bergen by Norwegians "to obstruct the German occupational army."

German troops have been fighting the flames since Saturday night, the reports said.

Baron de Lahontan in 1696 Foresaw Greatness of Canada

Memoirs Presented to National Archives Contain Transcript of Will, a Letter and Survey of Canada in 1692

11,075 INHABITANTS

Ottawa, Nov. 4 —(CP)— Another piece has been added to the mosaic of Canada's early history by discovery of documents written by Baron de Lahontan about 1692. The documents, presented to Canada by Lady Oakes, wife of Sir Harry Oakes of Bahamas, have been published by the National Archives.

The publication, with an introduction by Dominion Archivist Gustave Lanctot, is bilingual. It contains two memoirs, a transcript of the Baron's will, a letter he sent to French authorities from Hamburg in 1698 and the official census of New France in 1692.

There are several plates showing early views of Quebec and military maps for use in the planned siege of the city by British ships.

Comprehensive Survey

Baron de Lahontan, a Frenchman, turned to Britain when jealousy of Governor Brouillan of the French colony of Newfoundland brought a warrant for his arrest from the king of France.

A comprehensive survey of New France in the 17th century, from first hand information on military and civil affairs, is contained in the two memoirs.

The first—written to convince Britain of the value of Canada—explains the possibilities in agriculture, manufacturing, shipbuilding and the colossal profits made in the fur trade.

"Canada would make the finest empire and the greatest state in the world were it possible to unite New France and New England," he wrote.

A detailed account of the Iroquois war and resulting devastation is given.

The second memoir, "outline of a project to capture Quebec and Placentia," details the manpower and defences of Quebec and Placentia (capital of French-held territory in Newfoundland) and suggests how these places might be captured.

Baron de Lahontan came to Canada in 1683 at the age of 17. At Montreal in winter of 1684-5, made his will, leaving his goods to his mother after payment of "the sum of 365 livres Canadian money to the Parish church of Montreal and 200 more livres to the hospital."

11,075 in Population

"Canada returns nothing to the king of France" he wrote in one memoir, "since the sums accruing from the beaver lease, import and export trade is used to maintain 40 companies of marines, a governor-general, four local governors, an attendant, a sovereign council and a hundred other officers of justice, a bishop and all his clergy, two or three seminaries, as many hospitals, seven or eight convents of either sex, and 30 missions, besides the cost of large amounts of munitions."

The census of New France taken in 1692 shows a population of 11,075. There were 99 towns and villages, Quebec being the largest with 1,570 inhabitants.

Police Blotter

City police recovered a valuable fur neck piece, the property of Mrs. Harry Greatrix, R.R. No. 4, on Saturday. It seems the fur piece had been mislaid in the wash room of a local restaurant, where it was picked up by a local teen aged girl. Police found the girl wearing the fur and immediately returned it to Mrs. Greatrix.

P. C. Arnott apprehended two local youths riding their bicycles on the footbridge. Police have received several complaints regarding this dangerous practice and charges are pending in these cases.

An increased number of inebriates found themselves in the clutches of the law over the week-end when no less than seven persons were apprehended for the alleged consuming of intoxicating beverages. All were arraigned in police court today.

A valuable fur coat was stolen from the premises of William Lafferty, Highland Ave., some time Saturday night. The coat was left in the hallway of the residence while the family was out making Saturday night purchases. The coat is valued at $260.00. Police are working on clues which they hope may result in the recovery of the coat.

The War Today

By GUY RHOADES
(Canadian Press Staff Writer

Greek Alpine troops today were reported to have penetrated seven miles into northern Albania and to have virtually surrounded the Italian supply base at Koritza. In the southern Epirus sector they were said to have repulsed an Italian attack and destroyed nine Italian tanks, taking 1,200 prisoners.

From Belgrade came reports that heavy snows in the mountains were helping the Greeks by rendering the Italian mechanized weapons useless. It was noted that the Greek counter thrust which beat back the Fascists in Epirus Province was topped by grenade fighting and a bayonet charge, hand-to-hand fighting for which Italian soldiers generally have little stomach.

While the Italian drive was stymied, or in actual reverse at points, it was announced in London that British forces had occupied Crete, the great Greek island that commands the entrance to the Aegean and stands in the way of a passible axis drive by sea toward the Dardanelles. It has big harbors, fine anchorages and plenty of room for construction of aircrafts from which military objectives in Italian cities can be bombed with comparative east.

One such raid—the second since the newest phase of the war began—was conducted over Naples today and Rome underwent an air raid alarm lasting more than an hour. A naval battle was reported last night in waters off Corfu, near the southern Albanian border.

The Germans were reported sending thousands of men and war material into Rumania, apparently in preparation for an attempted drive eastward, perhaps through Bulgaria against Greece, Turkey or both.

There were indications in Rome that the Italians were finding their lack of progress in the Greek campaign embarrassing, and news agency stories began appearing to explain it. Stefani, government controlled agency, claimed bad weather had slowed the Italian advance and declared it would be "ridiculous" to assume that the Greeks could resist indefinitely.

Meanwhile new rumors arose of a German "peace offensive" following a speech the German leader is expected to make before the Reichstag sometime soon. It was reported that Germany would seek peace on these terms: Undefeated Britain and the British Empire would remain as they are, Europe would become Germany's exclusive sphere of influence, Germany would sign a non-aggression pact with Britain and the United States, good for ten years, and agree to a measure of disarmament.

German sources denied that any peace terms were contemplated, but the reports appeared to have arisen simultaneously in London and Washington.

The possibility of their acceptance by Britain was about as remote as the chance of their fulfilment by Germany. Britain long ago promised that Europe's defeated countries will be freed and only a fortnight ago Prime Minister Churchill declared his country's war aim was this:

"We seek to beat the life and soul out of Hitler and Hitlerism — that alone."

Hitler, having vowed to destroy the British Empire, has placed himself in a position where he must do that or be destroyed himself. There is no room in the world for warlike Nazism and Democrimy."

Mr. and Mrs. T. Ed. Ketcheson Celebrate Golden Anniversary

ANCESTORS PIONEERS

Instances in the early history of Belleville and of Sidney Township were recalled by Mr. and Mrs. T. Ed. Ketcheson in their modest home on West Bridge Street, on Monday morning as they quietly prepared to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage on Tuesday.

Descendants of pioneer stock of Hastings County, both Mr. and Mrs. Ketcheson have many tales to tell of the early life of Sidney Township where they were both born, and of Belleville, where in the days of their grandparents, the paved streets and roads which are seen today, were merely cow paths through the woods, and where Indians were frequent visitors among the few straggling settlers who were hewing a home out of the forest.

It was with no little pride that Mr. Ketcheson pointed to a picture of the original Ketcheson homestead which hangs on the wall of their living room and his eyes shone with interest as he told that this house, in which he was born, was built by his grandparents, Col. and Mrs. William Ketcheson, in the year 1800 on the farm now owned by a cousin, Mr. George L. Ketcheson of the Fifth Concession of Sidney. The old house in which Mr. Ketcheson was born, is still standing, mute testimony of its sturdy construction, and is used by the present owner as a storehouse. Prior to her marriage, Mrs. Ketcheson was Miss Adell Hampton, daughter of the late Mr. Thomas and Jane Hampton and is a descendant of Captain Meyers, who founded Belleville and built the first brick house in Upper Canada. Mrs. Ketcheson was born on the Third Concession of Sidney, living there until she was seven years of age, when she came to Belleville.

Taught School on Reserve

In his early manhood, Mr. Ketcheson taught school on the Mohawk Reserve, near Marysville and it was during his term as teacher there that he was confirmed to the Anglican faith in the Mohawk Church during the ceremony of which the Queen Anne Communion service was used.

Opened Store At Wallbridge

After three years of teaching, Mr. Ketcheson opened a general store at Wallbridge, which he operated for some time before coming to Belleville to take over the general drygoods business of J. W. Dunnett at the site where the Bowra Electric now operates. Known as the Laidlaw and Ketcheson drygoods and later as the Ketcheson and Earl store, the business was conducted for 27 years, with Mr. Ketcheson retiring from the store at the close of the Great War.

Shortly before opening his business in Belleville, Mr. Ketcheson and the present Mrs. Ketcheson were married by the Rev. Barnes, then pastor of the Emmanuel Church on Victoria Avenue. Since their marriage Mr. and Mrs. Ketcheson have made their home in Belleville.

During the course of his long and noteworthy career as a business man in Belleville Mr. Ketcheson has occupied the position of tax collector and assessor, for fourteen years occupying this position, retiring in 1938. For twelve years he was Warden of St. Thomas' Church where both he and Mrs. Ketcheson have been regular attendants.

Reminiscing on the long line of Ketchesons that have gone on to their rewards and who played a prominent part in the settling of Sidney and the surrounding district Mr. Ketcheson recalls that the Ketcheson family have been traditionally militaristic. "I am practically the only Ketcheson who has not in some way been connected with the army," stated Mr. Ketcheson as he laughingly confided that only once did he ever have occasion to use a rifle. Mrs. Ketcheson relates stories of early life in the Belleville district as told to her by her grandparents, of how the Indians visited the home of her ancestors, stripping the trees near the home of twigs to start fires and to make camp. After several visits from the Indians the trees about her grandparents' home were beginning to die from the practice and her grandfather asked the visiting chief to discontinue the practice to which the surprised chief asked: "You own this land?"

"Why, yes," answered Mrs. Ketcheson's grandfather.

"No, no," replied the chief, "our land, God gave us this land many years ago."

Seven children have been born to bless the union entered into by Mr. and Mrs. Ketcheson fifty years ago. They are Major Percy Ketcheson, Toronto, Mrs. A. J. Webster, (Marion), Toronto, Captain Allen (Akey) Ketcheson, Belleville, Mrs. M. Denike, (Thyra) Chicago, Clarence (deceased) Ketcheson, Lt. Don. Ketcheson, R.C.O.C., Regina and Sgt. Clifford Ketcheson of the Seaforth Highlanders, Vancouver.

SOUTHERN SINGERS AT CHURCH SERVICE

The Southern Singers took part in the service at Bridge Street United Church on Sunday evening and at the subsequent Fireside Hour. They contributed a number of hymns and other musical selections to the services which were much appreciated by the congregation and those who were present at the later service.

Two Italian Subs Sunk

One of the Subs Sent to Bottom by Air Force Co-operating With Naval Units

London, Nov. 4 (CP)—Two Italian submarines have been destroyed by British light naval forces, the Admiralty announced tonight.

One of the submarines was sent to the bottom after a hunt in which the Royal Air Force co-operated with the Navy, the announcement said.

(The Italian High Command said Sunday that two of its submarines had failed to return.)

Dungannon School Teacher Robbed

Bancroft, Nov. 4 (Special)— Miss Alice Mitchell, teacher at Dungannon S.S. No. 1, eight miles south of Bancroft on the old Hastings Road was attacked by a man carrying a rifle this morning and robbed of $12.

The teacher was on her way to school afoot from her boarding place of William Kelly, when a man of about 5' 7" and weighing 170 pounds jumped from a nearby bush and grabbed Miss Mitchell. She was relieved of her purse and the man immediately disappeared in the bush. County Constable G. P. Wells of Bancroft investigated the robbery and was later joined by Provincial Constable Arthur Dymond of Madoc. No trace of the highway bandit has been found.

International Zone In Tangier Occupied By Spanish Command

Tangier, International zone of Morocco, Nov. 4 (AP)—The Spanish wiped out the last vestige of International control in Tangier today, taking complete charge of the strategic zone on the north coast of Africa on their own account.

The move consisted of an order by the high command of the Spanish occupying forces ending activities of the International Control Mission, the Legislative Assembly and the International Information Office.

Col. Yuste, the Spanish commander, took complete charge as the Spanish government delegate to the high commissariat of Morocco.

The Tangier zone is of importance in the war because it commands part of the approach to the Strait of Gibraltar from the Atlantic.

The zone formerly was under control of an International government with Spanish, Italian, French and British representation by virtue of the Algeciras treaty of 1911, the International convention of 1923 and a protocol of 1925.

In 1928, Spain, dissatisfied with her part in the control, demanded a greater sphere and was given charge of policing the zone.

Last June 14, four days after Italy's entry into the war and just before the French collapse, Spanish military forces moved into Tangier, occupying it completely. A few days ago the Spanish peseta was designated the official and obligatory currency.

First Secretary Of Greek Legation Held in Rome

The Italians were understood to be holding the Secretary, Xanthoupolo Palamas, 38, and his 23-year-old wife because of a report that the Greeks were holding the First Secretary of the Italian Legation at Athens as "a Fifth Column hostage."

HONESTY OF PUPIL IS EXEMPLIFIED

The honesty of a King George School pupil was exemplified this morning, when Ralph Sweetman, 52 Gordon Street, found a wallet containing the registration card of one, Thomas Turnbull Carswell, Madoc. Inside the wallet was the sum of sixteen dollars. Young Sweetman immediately sought out his principal Mr. L. A. Kells and turned the wallet and its contents over to him. Mr. Carswell may have his property by calling at the school or at the residence of Mr. Kells.

PRIME MINISTER MAY REVEAL EXTENT OF AID

No Indication Given So Far as to Strength of British Forces or Nature of Actions

By J. F. SANDERSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 4 (CP Cable)—The scale of Britain's assistance to Greece will be outlined by Prime Minister Churchill as soon as Parliament meets again, it was announced tonight. He will speak at a public session of the House of Commons.

In addition the Prime Minister will deal with Britain's representations at the Vichy Government in an effort to find out the extent of Marshal Petain's collaboration with Germany, particularly in relation to the French Navy and naval bases on the Mediterranean and North Africa.

Beyond the laconic announcement that British troops have landed in Crete, the British public knows practically nothing of the scale of assistance to Greece. There has been no indication of the strength of the British force or of what the Navy and Air Force are doing.

"The News Please"

The Daily Mail in an editorial today headed "The News Please" calls on the Government to divulge all details of Britain's assistance to Greece compatible with national security. The newspaper sarcastically reminds Whitehall that the first announcement that British troops had landed in Crete came from Athens and added that "concealment of information from the enemy can become an obsession."

It is impossible to say to what extent Mr. Churchill will find it possible to draw back the curtain of events in Crete and elsewhere, but there is already evidence that the Government will be pressed in the House in regard to the Greek campaign as an integral part of the middle east theatre of war—one flank of the battlefront that extends across the Mediterranean to Egypt and Libya.

May Have Secret Session

After the Prime Minister's statement the House may go into secret session but this was indefinite tonight.

Meanwhile diplomatic and military observers here are mystified by the relative impotence of Mussolini's forces after months of preparation and a full week of fighting. They suggested two possible reasons for the failure of the Italian forces to crack the Greek border defences, apart altogether from the resistance put up by the Greeks.

They suggested Mussolini is relying on bombing attacks on Salonika and other Greek cities and towns to crack civilian morale and set the stage for installation of a government willing to hand over the strategic points originally demanded by Italy. The other suggestion was that Mussolini went off half-cocked and invaded Greece because he was piqued at the bargain made by Hitler with Vichy, France, particularly in relation to Italy's territorial demands.

It is suggested that the first of these possibilities is the more likely, with Mussolini holding off his offensive until he could see the result of his bombing attacks. Reports reaching here have indicated a high morale on the part of the Greek people, but it is admitted that the Greeks have only a few modern fighter planes and that their anti-aircraft defences are generally weak.

MESSAGE DELIVERED TO HULL

Washington, Nov. 4.—(AP) — Gaston Henry-Haye, Ambassador of the French Vichy Government, today delivered to State Secretary Cordell Hull a message from Marshal Petain in reply to President Roosevelt's communication to him concerning Franco-American relations.

The Ambassador told newspapermen, just before entering Hull's office, that he was delievring Petain's answer. He declined to reveal the contents.

COL. YUSTE TAKES 'CHARGE'

London, Nov. 4 (CP)—A Reuters News Agency dispatch from Tangier today said Colonel Yuste, commander of the Spanish troops which occupied the Tangier international zone June 16, has issued an order announcing he is taking "full charge" of the zone.

At the time of the occupation Spain said the step was taken only to preserve order and that Tangier's status as an international area would be continued.

WESTERN SOLDIERS, STATIONED IN TORONTO, VISITED BY THEIR FAMILIES

Joyous reunions were the order of the day as wives and children greeted members of the South Saskatchewan Regiment, now stationed at Exhibition Park, Toronto. Members of the regiment hail from all parts of western Canada. The padre of the regiment arranged for the visit of wives, families and fiancees. Driver E. J. Rayfield is shown, ABOVE, with Mrs. Rayfield and their two children, Doreen and Georgina. Driver Rayfield hails from Winnipeg.

Pte. A. Owren, of Regina, seems to be rather burdened down with parcels as he met Mrs. Owren on her arrival to visit her husband at Exhibition camp, Toronto.

Memorial Services Held for Navy Men Lost at Sea Recently

Ottawa, Nov. 4—(CP)—National and personal mourning for the Canadian Navy men lost at sea in recent weeks were symbolized in memorial services here today attended by government leaders, diplomatic corps, defence headquarters staff and hundreds of civilians.

At Christ Church Cathedral, Prime Minister Mackenzie King joined with others in paying tribute to the 172 men who died in the sinking of the Destroyer Margaree and in the loss of the minesweeper Bras d'Or.

Members of the Cabinet, Chiefs of Staff, black-clad mothers and widows heard Maj. Rev. W. A. Kidd assert that the principles of freedom and human rights for which the Empire is fighting—and for which these navy men died—are 'deep-seated in the heart of God".

At the Basilica, Archbishop Alexandre Vachon voiced similar sentiments for a congregation which included Navy Minister Angus Macdonald, Fisheries Minister Michaud, representatives of the Diplomatic Corps and the armed services.

Maj. Kidd reminded the cathedral congregation that the hope of the future lay in the fact that "after Calvary came the Easter Day".

The sacrifices of these navy men had in them an "appreciation of the cost of nationhood" and proceeded from a depending value which Canadians were placing on their citizenship.

Archbishop Vachon termed the naval men brave knights who "went away with joy in their hearts because they were going to defend justice and right against a ruthless foe in whose heart all humanitarian sentiments seem to be obliterated".

Missing Plane Found in Mountains

Salt Lake City, Nov. 4.—(AP)— A missing United Airlines plane with ten aboard was located today on the ground in the mountain country north of Centerville, Utah.

The plane was sighted by searching fliers. They radioed to the Salt Lake Airport that the plane did not appear to be in a bad condition. The pilot, Captain Howard Fey, apparently attempted a forced landing.

The transport disappeared early this morning during a driving snowstorm.

OBITUARY

MRS. ETHEL M. DELINE

(Ameliasburg Township)

After being in failing health for some time, Mrs. Ethel May Deline, widow of Gus Deline, passed away this Monday morning at the residence of Mrs. Cyrus Giles, in the 2nd concession of Ameliasburg Township, Prince Edward County, with whom she was making her home.

The late Mrs. Deline was born near Odessa, Ont., being a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Billings H. Snider. For the past eight years she resided in Ameliasburg Township and prior to that time she lived in Belleville. In religion she was a member of Centre United Church and was highly esteemed in the community.

Surviving her is one son, Mr. Hartman Deline, Williamson, N.Y.

20 DIOCESAN CHURCHES DESTROYED

London, Nov. 4 (CP)—Rt. Rev. Godfrey Parsons, Bishop of Southwark, disclosed in the Diocesan Gazette today that 20 churches in his diocese have been destroyed in aid raids and 70 others have been damaged. Southwark is in south London.

COALITION GOV'T NOW IN MANITOBA

Premier John Bracken Announces Members of New Coalition Cabinet

Winnipeg, Nov. 4. — (CP) — Premier John Bracken today announced his new Coalition Cabinet, welding the Legislature groups into one government to form Canada's first union administration of the war.

Mr. Bracken's appointments:

Minister of Public Works—Errick F. Willis, Conservative leader in the Legislature.

Minister of Labor—S. J. Farmer, C.C.F. Leader.

Minister of Health and Public Welfare, — James McLenaghen, Conservative member for Kildonan and St. Andrews.

Members of the Executive Council—Alex R. Welch, Conservative member for Turtle Mountain; Norman L. Turnbull, Social Credit Member for Hemiota.

Minister of Dominion-Provincial Relations—Hon. W. J. Major, who also holds the Attorney-General Post.

Ministry of Industry and Commerce, and Railway Commissioner—Hon. J. S. McDiarmid, now Minister of Mines and Natural Resources.

Hon. W. R. Clubb has relinquished the portfolios of Public Works and Labor, and Hon. I. B. Griffiths has resigned as Minister of Health and Public Welfare.

To assist his Coalition efforts, the Premier also has dropped portfolios. He has given up the posts of Provincial Hydro, Domonion-Provincial Relations and Railway Commissioner.

In the statement handed to the Press, it was explained that expectations were that Mr. Clubb would become chairman of the Government Liquor Control Commission, succeeding John Turnbull who has reached retirement age; that Mr. Griffiths would be made Commissioner of Manitoba Farm Loans Board to succeed A. B. Adamson who is leaving to accept another post.

Under the new set-up, formed by the Premier to unite political forces in a strong war-time and post-war regime, Mr. Bracken will continue as president of the Executive Council.

POLICE OFFICER USES HIS BILLY

One Constable Had Several Teeth Knocked Out in Subduing Fight

Kitchener, Ont., Nov. 4 (CP)—"We're not going to permit any mob rule in Kitchener," Mayor Meinzinger said today commenting on a hotel fight here Saturday night, when two soldiers, members of the Highland Light Infantry of Canada, stationed in Stratford, attacked a policeman and were only subdued after the officer had used his billy.

"While the incident that did occur was serious enough in itself, it is what might have happened had the crowd been further incited to attack the police, is what concerns me," the mayor said.

Mayor Meinzinger and Chief John Hicks visited Stratford today and conferred with Lieut. Col. J. A. McIntosh, Officer Commanding the unit.

Col. McIntosh assured the mayor and chief that disciplinary measures would be taken immediately against the three members of the regiment involved.

One soldier is alleged to have attempted to incite other soldiers to take action against the police. Police regard his action as even more serious than the actual combatants. One constable lost several teeth in the tussle which originated in a fight between two soldier brothers in a beverage room.

Armed Merchant Cruisers Laurentic And Patroclus Sunk By Enemy Action

London, Nov. 4 (CP)—The Admiralty announced today the loss of the armed merchant cruisers Laurentic and Patroclus, torpedoed and sunk by enemy action.

The Admiralty communique gave no details beyond saying that 631 officers and men had been rescued from the two torpedoed vessels by British warships.

The date and place of the sinkings were not given.

The Laurentic, 18,724 tons, was one of the best known passenger ships running between Canadian and British ports before the war. She was built in 1927 for the White Star Line.

Both were converted into merchant cruisers at the beginning of the war.

POLICE COURT

T. E. Murray, of the R.C.A.F., appeared in local Police Court before Magistrate E. J. Butler K.C., today facing four separate charges, all of which were laid over until Friday and Murray remanded in custody.

Murray was charged with intoxication on two occasions, Nov. 1st and Nov. 3rd., but claimed he had "no recollection of the second incident. He was also charged with the theft of ten packets of gum, alleged taken from the London Lunch on Nov. 1st last and lastly of resisting arrest and assaulting Constable Wm. Evans. Murray denied the theft charge and again claimed to have "no knowledge of any fracas with the constable."

Police stated Murray and a companion were raising a disturbance in a downtown restaurant, which resulted in complaints bringing the police. Murray is alleged to have struck at the officer in the pursuit of his duty.

William Hill, Shannonville, was sentenced to serve 13 days, from the time of his arrest Friday, after he pleaded guilty to a charge of driving a motor car while intoxicated. "This man was involved in an accident on Front Street and was very intoxicated," testified P.C. Wright, who apprehended Hill.

Did Not Pay Fine

Edward Findlay, no address given, pleaded guilty to a second offence of intoxication within the year. "There was a fine the first time," interrupted the accused.

"Yes, and you were allowed out to raise the fine, but you didn't come back," reminded Chief Kidd. Findlay was sentenced to two months in the default of the payment of the imposed $50.00 fine, as provided under the L.C.A.

Gordon Monaghan pleaded guilty to a charge of stealing $15.00 from his employer and was sentenced to two months in the county jail at hard labor.

Leonard Bishop, R.C.A.F., was convicted of assaulting Jack Cook, Belleville. The only evidence adduced by Crown Attorney S. G. Robertson today was that of Mrs. Cook, all other testimony having been presented and reported last Friday, when Bishop pleaded guilty to a charge of intoxication.

"I am of the opinion you didn't know what you were doing and find you guilty," handed down His Worship as he assessed a fine of $5.00 and costs.

Joy-Rider Charged

A teen-aged student of the Belleville Collegiate appeared on a charge of driving without an operator's licence. He was accompanied by two companions and Chief Kidd summoned the trio to appear before the Bench.

"These boys took a car from the vicinity of the Collegiate during a spare period and went on a joy-riding jaunt," explained Chief Kidd.

"You boys could be charged with the theft of a motor car and sent to jail. You are all equally guilty and I might warn you that such practice sometimes lead to the penitentiary," warned His Worship.

Letters From the Troops

Somewhere in England.

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Whittard:

Just a few lines to thank you both for the socks, although I suppose I am a little late in thanking you.

We are getting along swell, been under canvas all summer and now that the wet season has set in, we have taken possession of all the vacant houses around this district. The one that we are billeted in must have been a swell place at one time, 40 rooms and cubby holes all over it, one of those famous Old Country mansions. It has been vacant for the last ten years, but we are having a swell time in it. As for war news, we have done nothing as yet, but are ready for anything that may come and are well trained and get a good supply of rations; at least everybody looks good and some of the younger boys have filled out and are real men.

We see quite a lot of air fights and lots of planes around us night and day. This district is known as Jerries graveyard and it sure looks like it by the number of planes brought down.

We had the honour of taking two prisoners to Divisional H. Q. and of guarding the plane till the R.A.F. took over. Although the day fights give us a thrill, yet the anti-aircraft guns are sure swell to watch. By day the exploding shell looks like puffs of smoke and at night like stars bursting. What with the flashes, the noise of the guns and the exploding shells and bombs bursting, it looks like a real battle front and yet the damage to this country can hardly be noticed. One has to travel quite a way to find any. London seems to be getting the most of it for the size of it; the damage is mostly on civilian property.

Now folks, as this is my first letter, I will close now. Hoping this finds you both O.K. as it leaves me the same. With love from DON.

2nd Canadian Infantry Brigade,
Canadian Base P.O.
Canada.

CARDINAL VISITS VALCARTIER CAMP

His Eminence Cardinal Rodrique Villeneuve, Archbishop of Quebec, and the only cardinal in Canada, recently visited young Canadians in training at the Valcartier camp, near Quebec city. He was impressed and pleased with the bearing and fine discipline of the men. He is here shown chatting with Col. J. A. Dansereau, officer in charge of training at Valcartier. It is believed that this is the first time in history that a military training camp in Canada was honored by the visit of a cardinal.

Greeks Announce New Gains Against Italians

Churchill Pledges Utmost Aid to Greece; Neutrality Of Eire Handicap to Britain

Range of Navy and Air Force Extended By Possession of Crete

(By J. F. Andersen, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 5—(CP Cable)—Britain has established air and naval bases in the Greek island of Crete, Prime Minister Churchill announced in the House of Commons today, and systematic bombing attacks on military objectives in southern Italy will be intensified.

Possession of Crete "will enable us appreciably to extend the activity and radius of our navy and air force," the Prime Minister declared.

"Already we have begun bombing attacks on military objectives in Italian cities and bases in southern Italy and that will continue on an ever-growing scale," the Prime Minister said.

"In addition to these developments in the Mediterranean theatre of war," he continued, "other forces are in movement with the desire and design of helping the Greeks to the utmost of our capacity, having regard to our other obligations."

Details Not Specified

The Prime Minister asked the House to excuse him specifying the scale of Britain's military co-operation with the Greeks or divulg-

Britain Unable To Use Fuel Bases On W. Coast of Eire

Mr. Churchill expressed confidence today in the House of Commons that the Navy would "find means of beating the U-boat campaign which in recent weeks has taken a heavy toll of British, allied and neutral shipping on the North Atlantic.

The fact Britain is not able to use bases on the South and West coasts of Eire to refuel submarine-hunting destroyers and aircraft "is a most heavy and grievous burden and one which should never have been placed on our shoulders, broad though they may be," the Prime Minister declared.

Mr. Lees-Smith, who has acted as a substitute for a leader of the Opposition since the Labor leaders joined Mr. Churchill's Government, went even further, suggesting that if Britain could use Lough Swilly and Berehaven on the Eire coast, the U-boat campaign might be transformed in a night.

Why The Weather?

By Major A. H. Tibessen
Science Service Meteorologist

Dispatching airplanes! The cautious airplane dispatcher places the most unfavorable interpretation on a weather situation, and then concludes whether or not the flight should depart. The train dispatcher, on the other hand, is not bothered with weather conditions except in extreme cases; for instance, when bridges may be washed away or tracks blockaded with snow. The airplane dispatcher must at all times consider weather conditions, and he should therefore have sufficient knowledge of meteorology to appreciate the interpretations of present and future weather conditions as deduced by the weather expert from weather charts and reports. Weather maps are made frequently, and reports along air route are received even more frequently.

5 Enemy Subs Destroyed In Few Days

London, Nov. 5 (CP)—Destruction of at least five enemy submarines within the past few days was reported today.

Prime Minister Churchill announced in the House of Commons that two German U-boats had been sunk in the Western Approaches. One of them was the submarine which torpedoed the Empress of Britain after German aircraft had set the liner afire.

A Reuters dispatch from Tangier, International zone of Morocco, quoted a reliable source to the effect that three Italian submarines had been sunk in the Strait of Gibraltar.

(The Italians admitted Sunday that two of their submarines had not "returned to their base." It was not clear whether this pair is included in the trio reported sunk from Tangier.)

An Italian submarine took refuge at Tangier last night after being pursued by British destroyers. It joined another Italian U-boat which previously had taken refuge at Tangier.

Guelph Man Given Prison Term for Damaging Tombstones

Guelph, Ont., Nov. 5.—(CP)—George O'Connor, Guelph, was sentenced to a definite term of two years less a day in the Ontario Reformatory today with a similar indefinite term at the same institution after pleading guilty to causing malicious damage at St. Joseph's Cemetery on Hallowe'en night.

Provincial Constable Seibert told the court 46 tombstones were pushed over. "Several were damaged as the result of falling on other stones", he added.

"Five were chipped and others had come apart. Some of these stones were from 12 to 15 feet away from their foundations. They had picked off and carried or thrown. Some of these", he continued, "were quite large and others were small".

"This man had been drinking for about a week", said Constable Seibert.

"At two o'clock that afternoon he was with another man and they consumed two bottles of wine. Then they went to the liquor store and got two more bottles. They returned to the cemetery and drank one of the bottles and at night O'Connor returned and drank the other. Then he did the damage. He said he was "too tight to remember what he did", said the officer.

VOTING HOURS EXTENDED IN N.Y.

Additional Three Hours Given to Late Voters

(By The Associated Press)

Last-minute voters in New York State may trek to the polls tonight as late as those in Colorado, Idaho, Nevada, Utah, Wyoming and some of the Midwestern States.

Anticipating a record vote because of big registrations, New York gave its balloters an additional three hours, extending poll-closing time from 7 to 10 p.m. (EDT). Many of the Western States will be closing their voting places simultaneously, although the actual local times will be earlier.

Five Southern States will close their polls before any others—Georgia at 5 and 8; Kentucky at 5 and 6; Southern Carolina at 5 and 7; Virginia at sunset (around 6:04), and Tennessee 9. In a majority of cases, the earlier closing times are for the rural areas.

Most States will shut up shop between 7 and 9 but Pacific coast voters will still be casting ballots up to 11 and midnight in California and midnight in Oregon and Washington. In some sections of Rhode Island the polls will not close until 11 p.m., latest of any in the east.

Rigorous Training Fits Canadian Troops for Damp English Weather

(By Ross Munro, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

With the C.A.S.F., Somewhere in England, Nov. 5 (CP)—Canadian troops in England, carefully billeted and toughened by rigorous training, are fit and ready to weather the Winter months ahead, officers of the Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps believe.

"There should be much less sickness than last Winter, which was one of the most severe on record." Major Milton Brown, of Toronto, Deputy Assistant of Hygiene in the Composite Canadian-British Corps, told The Canadian Press. "Our records show the sickness rate among the troops is slightly lower than that considered normal and we have hopes that this rate may continue."

Major Brown was Associate Professor of Hygiene and Preventive Medicine at the University of Toronto before the war.

"The troops are not concentrated in such a small area as was the case last Winter," said Major Brown. "Their living quarters are much more spread out and their new billets are being looked after carefully. Such things as spacing and ventilation have been a major consideration. These factors will tend to maintain the good health of the troops in the colder weather."

The 1st. Division has been in the United Kingdom nearly a year now and is accustomed to the vagaries of the English weather. Through casual fraternizing with men of the 2nd. Division much information about clothing and ingenious methods of combatting the damp has been passed on to the men who have been out from the Dominion only a few months.

Major Brown was enthusiastic about the billeting arrangements, whereby most of the troops in the corps are living in houses in small towns.

NAZI LONE-WOLF RAIDERS COVER A WIDE AREA

Daylight Assault Launched by Formation of 22 Raiders Crossing Kent Coast

CASUALTIES LIGHT

All-Clear Not Sounded in London Until Shortly Before Dawn

London, Nov. 5 (CP). — Three German planes were shot down over Great Britain today, the Air Ministry announced, as the Nazi air force tried in vain to fight past defending Royal Air Force planes and bomb London.

London's fourth air raid warning of the day came late in the afternoon, but all four warnings were brief.

The German planes apparently were shot down when they tangled with the R.A.F. high over the southeast coast as the Nazis resumed formation attacks after a night of wide-ranging "lone wolf" assaults. The Air Ministry said three British planes were destroyed, but the pilots were saved.

London had two brief alarms before noon, but no bombs fell in the city and The Press Association said defence fighters had turned raiding squadrons back short of the capital.

One formation was said to have reached the outskirts of the city before being driven off, while a second was reported broken up 40

Sir A. H. Rostron, Retired Commodore Dies of Pneumonia

Southampton, England, Nov. 5—(CP)—Sir Arthur Henry Rostron, 71, retired Commodore of the Cunard Line and Captain of the Carpathia when she saved more than 700 survivors of the sunken Titanic in 1912, died yesterday of pneumonia at Chippenham Hospital.

Capt. Rostron had been credited with saving more lives than any other living ship commander and was acclaimed throughout the world after his rescue of the Titanic survivors from the icy North Atlantic.

He received a Gold Medal from the United States Congress.

He retired in 1931 after 36 years with the Cunard Line and almost half a century at sea. His most famous commands were as Captain of the liner Mauretania from 1915 to 1928 and as captain of the liner Berengaria, which he left at his retirement.

BBC Arranges Special Broadcasts Of Election Returns

London, Nov. 5—(CP)—The British public has followed the United States presidential campaign so closely the British Broadcasting Corporation has arranged special broadcasts of election returns.

First returns will be broadcast at 4.30 a.m. Wednesday (11.30 p.m. EDT Tuesday), an hour when the domestic radio usually is silent.

The election crowded the war out of the headlines of most morning papers today.

Editorials, meanwhile, reminded readers that both presidential candidates pledged material aid to Britain.

PRESSMAN'S FLAT BADLY DAMAGED

Edwin S. Johnson of the Canadian Press Occupying Flat When Bomb Hit

London, Nov. 5 (CP Cable)—The flat of Edwin S. Johnson, Canadian Press war correspondent with the Canadian Active Service Force, was badly damaged early today when a heavy calibre bomb crashed through one wing of an adjoining block of flats.

Mr. Johnson, who returns to Canada shortly as military correspondent at the Ottawa Bureau of The Canadian Press, was occupying the flat when the bomb hit but was unhurt. Rescue workers were still removing dead and wounded from the adjoining block of flats when daylight came.

Mr. Johnson was superintendent of the London Bureau of The Canadian Press from its establishment in 1936 with a staff of seven Canadians to select British news for cabling to Canada.

'Dis is Goering Here,' But it Wasn't

London, Nov. 5.— (CP) — The crew of a Royal Air Force bomber returning from a raid on Hamburg switched the radio to "transmit" and put over a burlesque of German news in English, followed by songs from the operas of Gilbert and Sullivan. When caught by a large concentration of searchlights, the wireless operator shouted into his set: "Dis is Goering here. Put out dose flaming lights".

ELECTRIC FENCE "WORKS"

Princess Anne, Md., Nov. 5 (AP)—The electric fence on farmer Robert Pinto's farm wouldn't keep "old Betsy", a big sow, from straying. So Robert, Jr., plugged the fence into a 110-volt house light socket. Three of Betsy's shoats starting under the fence were shocked cold, and so was Robert, Jr., in attempting a rescue. Pinto broke the connection, revived his son and three shoats. "Old Betsy" hadn't gone near the fence.

Last Words Election Campaign

By R. J. SANDERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

New York, Nov. 5 —(CP)— At 12:15 p.m. today President Roosevelt will motor to the old town hall in Hyde Park village, tell the election clerk his name occupation—usually it's "farmer"—and cast his ballot in the United States' 39th presidential election.

At 9 a.m. Wendell L. Willkie, his Republican opponent in one of the hottest election fights in the country's history, will leave his apartment on New York City's upper Fifth Avenue and with his wife slip around the corner to vote. His occupation is "lawyer."

Thus the candidates will exercise their franchise after a campaign that had raged on into election day with the Republicans, through Mr. Willkie, having the final word: "This is not the end of our crusade—this is the beginning. United we stand, divided we fall. Let us once again be a nation united."

An hour before, Mr. Roosevelt in his customary pre-election non-political address to the country had told his fellow Americans: "We thank God that we live in the sunlight and star light of peace—that we are not in the war and that we propose and expect to continue to live our lives in peace—under the peaceful light of heaven."

Built to Climax

Throughout yesterday the campaign had built up to a climax. The President made a 90-mile "sentimental journey" by automobile among his Hyde Park "neighbors," telling them in a number of addresses that he was speaking to them for the last time as a candidate. He said he awaited the verdict "in full confidence of vindication of the principles and policies on which we have fought the campaign."

Mr. Willkie spent the day in comparative quietness after a gruelling 28,000-mile campaign tour. In one of his three addresses of the day he promised not to send "husbands and sons and brothers to death on a European or Asiatic battlefield." At midnight he joined in an hour-long broadcast.

And as an estimated 50,000,000 voters prepared to exercise their franchise, columnist Dorothy Thompson—she urged Mr. Roosevelt's re-election—phrased the situation thus:—

"We are going through a sort of three-day measles. We will wake up on Wednesday with the rash all gone."

HEAVY SHIPPING LOSS

16,680 Tons of Shipping Lost in Week Ending October 27-28

At the same time, the Admiralty announced eight British and Allied ships totalling 16,860 tons were sunk by "enemy action" in the week ending Oct. 27-28.

Its statement said the eight ships lost did not include the Empress of Britain, 42,320-ton pride of the Canadian merchant fleet whose loss was announced Oct. 28.

British losses were given as two ships totalling 6,874 tons.

The Admiralty communique on the sinking of two submarines said:

Christian Unity 'One of Great Needs Of Present Day'

Hamilton, Ont., Nov. 5 (CP)—"Unity of Christians throughout the world is one of the great needs of the present time," said Dr. Ross W. Sanderson, Buffalo, N. Y., speaking before delegates of the Ontario Religious Education Council here today.

"In these days when dictators are regimenting people to wage war against weaker nations, we should regiment Chritians to work for the spiritual good of the world," continued Dr. Sanderson.

He praised the leaders of Britain "who in these times when death is raining from the sky upon their homes talked not of the hatred for the enemy but of cleaning up the debris and starting anew when the conflict is fought through to a final victory."

One-Quarter Duce's Subs Said Lost

New York, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Italy has lost twenty-nine submarines, or one-quarter of her total underwater strength, since she entered the war, the British Broadcasting Corporation said tonight in a broadcast heard by the National Broadcasting Company. This figure included two submarines which the Admiralty announced today had been sunk.

(Jane's Fighting Ships gave Italy 104 submarines as of September, 1939. The Italians entered the war in June and no authoritative figure on her submarine strength since then has been given.)

Italians Operating Behind Greek Line Believed Cornered

Greek Sources Also Claim 30,000 Italians Trapped in Surrounded Koritza

Athens, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Greece's mountain-front defenders were reported today to have captured some and cornered the rest of 4,000 Italian troops operating behind the Greek battle line with supplies dropped by Fascist fliers.

The Greek High Command reported continued gains by shock troops in steady encirclement of Koritza, Albanian base for the Italian attack against Greece through the snow-clogged passes of Macedonia.

(Greek sources in Yugoslavia said 30,000 Italian soldiers were trapped in surrounded Koritza, which they said has been shelled by Greek heavy artillery from heights seized in fierce bayonet charges. The Greeks also were reported to have captured the town of Biglista, three miles northwest of the Greek-Albanian frontier on the way to Koritza.)

10 FOUND DEAD IN PLANE CRASH

Official of Company Blames Failure of Radio Beam for Tragedy

Salt Lake City, Nov. 5 —(AP) A United States Air Lines' plane, lost in a blinding snowstorm, crashed into a mountainside Monday, killing its ten occupants.

S.V. Hall, U.A.L. vice-president in charge of Western operations, said "it looks very much as if the accident was caused by the failure of the range or radio beam.

"Our trip No. 11 reported that the range had irregularities at 5:36 a.m." (M.S.T.) (8:36 a.m. E.D.T.).

Hall said the range was reported "O.K." at 4:24 a.m., but that it evidently failed about the time the San Francisco-to-Salt Lake plane, piloted by Captain Howard Fey of Oakland, approached Salt Lake.

Canadians Prefer Leaves in Cities

London, Nov. 5.— (CP)—Canadians would rather spend their leaves in cities than in the country. Arrangements were made to accommodate soldiers on leave in country quarters "but all too few availed themselves of these facilities", said Major John Humphrey. "They like the 'bright lights'," Major Humphrey added.

Italians Driven Back Into Albania by Greek Forces

By J. Wes. Gallagher Associated Press Staff Writer.

Salonika, Greece, (By Telephone to Budapest), Nov. 5 (AP)—Fighting against a more numerous and better armed foe, the Greeks today were driving the Italians back into Albania on this northern sector while withstanding furious air attacks which have caused large civilian casualties, but no apparent break in Greek morale.

For three days I have watched Italian planes rain death on this second largest Greek city, but I have not seen one military objective hit or one essential service disrupted.

The city's inhabitants have seen Italian planes crashing in flames and have witnessed roof-to-roof chases between police and fallen Italian airmen in running gun battles.

Scenes in Salonika

I was in the centre of this city at the top of the Aegean Sea during the first big raid when six bombs fell around my hotel and one bomb hit it squarely. The alarm caught me in the bath. Hurrying to a window as I dressed, I saw a huge geyser of water as the first bomb fell in the bay 60 yards away.

A second later I was showered with glass as two bombs exploded in the street 40 feet away. Rushing into the hall, I encountered C. L. Sulzberger New York Times Correspondent. Together we started toward a stairway when a bomb struck the roof a few feet ahead.

Neither of us was hurt. A few seconds later the raid was over. In air thick with dust we looked into rooms just three doors away from our own and found them in ruins. Outside, a dead fisherman lay a few yards from the hotel.

A few fires were burning in the central business district, the hardest hit, and firemen quickly were on the job.

Near a blazing bus and building, two wounded men lay by a wall

Election Straws

(By the Associated Press)

Straws in the United States election winds to watch tonight:

New York—It's usually on the winner's side. Its loss by Willkie would be dangerous. Roosevelt could get by without it. Three times since the civil war its electoral vote went to the loser, the last time in 1916 when it voted for Hughes and Wilson won.

Pennsylvania — Another state Willkie cannot well afford to lose. A Roosevelt majority here would spell almost certain victory. The state has voted Democratic in a presidential race only once since the civil war—four years ago when it swung to Roosevelt.

Maryland—Its vote has been in the winner's column in every presidential race since 1888.

California—A Willkie victory here would upset strong Democratic hopes and indicate a possible Republican victory.

Ohio and North Dakota—Have hit the winner ever since 1892.

Kansas and Wyoming—On the winner's side since 1896.

Idaho and Missouri — Haven't missed since 1900.

Lighted White House Means FDR Elected

Washington, Nov. 5—(AP)—The voteless residents of the District of Columbia have one advantage over citizens elsewhere—they will have a direct pointer tonight on the trend of election returns.

The Washington Post has arranged for a searchlight to be pointed toward the White House if President Roosevelt leads and away from it if Wendell L. Willkie is ahead.

BOYS' PARLIAMENT TO CONVENE DEC. 26

While the Empire is fighting for democracy in Europe, one of the agencies that has been teaching democracy at home is the Ontario Older Boys' Parliament which this year is to hold its Twentieth Session in McMaster University, Hamilton, December 26th. to 30th.

The premier for the parliament this coming year is Alvin Corless of Roseneath, Ont. The leader of the Opposition is Lloyd Perry from Windsor. The president of the cabinet is to be Jack Dodds of Toronto.

Nominations may be received up until Monday, November 11. The voters' list closes November 26th. and elections are held November 30th.

The returning officer for this district is D. W. Moore, 238 Foster Ave., who will be glad to supply information to boys who would be interested in attending this great annual event.

SANDY LUMMISS GETS FINE BUCK NEAR CAMP

Sandy Lummiss is the first of the Belleville nimrods who went into hunting camps in north Hastings to come home with his trophy of the chase and, in doing so, claims some kind of a record in so promptly getting his count.

It seems that Sandy left Belleville Thursday or Friday to get his party's hunting camp north of Marmora into condition for the two weeks' hunt, returned to the city on Saturday and left on Sunday with his party for the camp. On Monday morning he started out from the camp and had gone only a few yards from the door when he sighted a handsome buck only a short distance away in the woods. His trusty rifle brought down his quarry and Mr. Lummiss had the venison in Belleville in cold storage before evening.

JOE SHORTT THANKS Y'S MEN'S CLUB

The regular semi-monthly meeting of the Belleville Y's Men's Club was held in the auditorium of the Y.M.C.A. last evening with President Homer Thomas in the chair. Secretary J. E. Shortt, of the "Y", personally thanked the Y's Men for the continuance of their annual Y's Men's Hallowe'en Frolic this year. "It was perhaps the most successful in the history of the Frolic insofar as attendance was concerned, over 1,000 children and adults being present to enjoy the evening's entertainment," revealed Secretary Shortt. As several club members are affiliated with the local N.P.A.M. units and undergoing military training each Monday night, no program was in order last night. The Y's Men's Club is planning an annual autumn dance to be held later in the season, President Thomas announced.

Supply of Lumbermen Thought Sufficient Says Lumber Dealer

Despite the fact that a great many of the younger men from the lumbering districts of North Hastings have enlisted with the C.A.S.F. or are working on construction projects in other parts of the province, Mr. W. N. Gilroy, prominent lumber dealer of the Coe Hill district, anticipates no great amount of difficulty in hiring men to work in lumber camps this winter.

Lumber dealers who operate camps extensively might have slight difficulty in getting their quota of men, however, admitted Mr. Gilroy in an interview with the Ontario Intelligencer, but he was of the opinion that in general there would be enough workers left to get out the annual cut of logs. "The real pinch in the labor question in the north would come in the spring, when the saw mills started to operate", said Mr. Gilroy, as he claimed that when the logs were cut they must be sawed into lumber as quickly as possible.

Prices of all grades and classes of lumber had mounted two to five dollars per thousand feet, due to the increased building tempo evident since the beginning of the war, stated Mr. Gilroy, with spruce and other soft woods being in greater demand than the hardwoods. "The loss of overseas markets to the Canadian lumber export trade had been largely countermanded by increased trade with the United States," said Mr. Gilroy.

DISTRICT MEETING OF KNIGHTS HELD

District Deputy Praises Local Council for War Work Accomplished

On Sunday November 3, the District Regional meeting of the Knights of Columbus was held in Belleville. District Deputy E. G. Hiland of Peterboro opened the meeting and then turned over the gavel to the State Deputy Phil Phalen of Ottawa, who spoke on the Knights of Columbus Canadian Army Huts in England and in Canada, relating the good work they are doing for the soldiers in supplying them with many necessary articles as well as refreshments. Special mention was made of the army huts in England. In order to carry on this work among the soldiers Mr. Phalen stated, that it would be necessary to appeal to the people next year. He also commended the Belleville Council on their progressiveness in sponsoring activities for war purposes, and spoke on the good of the order.

Grand Knight George Lee welcomed all the officers and members from visiting councils, including State Deputy Phil Phalen, who is also secretary of the Canadian Army Huts, State Secretary, W. Hurley of Toronto, who spoke on leadership of the order, District Deputy E. G. Hiland of Peterboro, who spoke on organization and publicity, District Deputy A. C. Love of Oshawa, who spoke on leadership. Grand Knight LaMore of Trenton spoke on the good of the council in general, Past Grand Knight McGauhey of Trenton who spoke on organization, Financial Secretary J. McNabb of Trenton who spoke on Finance and Grand Knight E. Wolfe of Peterboro who spoke on Leadership.

Grand Knight George Lee replied, stating that the local council were very fortunate in the matter of publicity, thanks to the Ontario Intelligencer, the Canadian Freeman and to A. Dutton for sending in the reports.

Chaplain, Rev. Msgr. J. F. Nicholson V.G., also welcomed the visitors and spoke very highly of the Belleville Council, and their activities. Grand Knight George Lee stated that the local council expected to stage a First Degree before Christmas. The membership committee are working for this purpose. Other speakers spoke briefly. The meeting closed with the National Anthem.

Word Received Son Seriously Ill in England

Madoc (Special)—Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Jowett of Madoc, received word from Ottawa their son Pte. Wilfrid Jowett was seriously ill in England. Pte. Jowett enlisted with the Hastings, Prince Edward Regiment at the outbreak of war but owing to his age he did not leave with the first division. Wilfrid went over in early spring.

Kitchen Employee Alleges He Was Hit By Rolling Pin

Leslie Truesdale, kitchen employe at the New Service Restaurant, Front Street, told city police early today he had been what is commonly known as "konked on the head" with a rolling pin, allegedly in the hands of a fellow-worker last night.

Truesdale displayed a nasty gash on his forehead, which he told P.C Taylor had been the result of an attack made upon him by one, Harry Stevenson, day dishwasher in the restaurant kitchen, late last night. The matter was not reported to the police until 6.30 a.m today, however.

Constable Taylor took possession of the rolling pin, which Truesdale alleged was used by Stevenson to hit the former on the head during an argument that ensued in the restaurant kitchen shortly after 10 o'clock last night. Truesdale added that his alleged assailant then went home and he had remained to work his night "trick."

P.C. Taylor confiscated the blood covered rolling pin and city police are delving further into the matter of possible aggravated assault today.

TRUE BILL RETURNED

Goderich, Ont., Nov. 5 (CP)—A true bill was returned by an Assize Court Grand Jury today in the case of Samuel Dodge, 41-year-old Indian, charged with the murder of his employer, James Kilpatrick, 67, near Exeter Ont., on June 20 last. Dodge is alleged to have killed Kilpatrick by hitting him on the head with an axe in the Dodge home.

HUGE OIL PURCHASES

Ottawa, Nov. 5 (CP).—The Munitions and Supply Department said in a statement today that in the last three months the department purchased 4,256,100 glalons of gasoline, 6,127,000 gallons of fuel oils and 139,000 gallons of lubricating oils.

Fuel and bunker oil purchases were almost exclusively for the naval services, and the gasoline for the air and naval services.

SKILLED NURSING CARE AT MODERATE COST
IN YOUR OWN HOME BY THE Victorian Order Nurse

The Victorian Order Nurse teaches as she works—while Junior is getting his morning bath, mother watches closely. Later she knows exactly how to bathe and handle Babe carefully.

Already this year 2,054 visits have been made to mothers and babes in Belleville.

V. O. N. CAMPAIGN DATES ARE NOVEMBER 4th. to 9th.

Bancroft

Bancroft, (Special) — Mr. J. L. Churcher motored to Belleville Wednesday for a few days' business.

Mr. Hermon Kelusky of the village played host to fifteen guests Thursday evening, it being the occasion of his eighty-third birthday.

Mrs. M. J. McGhee motored out to Eldorado Thursday to her home to visit her father who is quite ill.

Mr. Cecil Wiggins accompanied by his sister, Mrs. Robert Kellar and Miss Jean Bowen motored to Belleville for the day on Thursday.

Hallowe'en was celebrated in the usual manner in Bancroft this year. The stores pooled their treats which were taken to the school and handed out to the children there which eliminated conjestion in the business places during open night. The young celebrants were garbed in all manner of dress, completely obscuring their identity. No out-of-the-way tricks were played with the exception of the usual pranks and blockades.

Mrs. Leon Turner of Belleville is visiting at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Robison of Bancroft.

Mr. W. E. Wiggins who has been quite ill for the past five weeks and confined to his bed was removed to Belleville Hospital on Sunday accompanied by members of his family and also his attending physician, Dr. O. W. Anderson of Bancroft.

"A" Company of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, 2nd Battalion, (N.P.A.M.) staged a work-out Friday evening last despite the wind and rain. Col. B. C. Donnan of Belleville, Major Mowat and his son of Trenton, Lieutenant Holmes of Picton and other officers were present for the inspection which took place in the form of a march to the trenches which are situated some distance from Bancroft. It was an ideal night for the work-out, as far as working under cover of darkness was concerned. Trucks were also used for the conveyances of the troops to and from their destination.

A number of officers of "A" company motored to Trenton Sunday where they were being taken on a tour of the airport.

Mr. Robert Kellar, Mr. George Davy, Mr. Fred Fisher, Mr. Neil Baumhour of the Village; Mr. Howard Burlanyett, Mr. Cecil Loney, Mr. Oswald Couvert, Mr. George Barr, Mr. George Caldwell, Mr. Hermon Vardy of outlying district, returned home the latter end of the week from attending Grand Jury and Petty Jury in Belleville.

Dr. Alfred A. Thompson and daughter Marion of Port Colborne, also Mrs. Stall of Guelph arrived in Bancroft Sunday afternoon as guests of the Rev. and Mrs. G. A. Gordier. Dr. Thompson will spend a part of his visit donning the hunting togs and stalking the much coveted deer. Mrs. Stall will no doubt have an enjoyable visit as she will be with her daughter, Mrs. Gordier.

Quite a number of hunters are arriving in Bancroft this last couple of days preparatory to the annual hunt. This locality never seems to lose its attraction for game as it lies adjacent to the Algonquin Park reserve which acts as a back door retreat when the lead gets too hot for the animals. Despite this protection the hunters usually return home with their count.

Kingston Population Increases 2,131

Italy Finds Greece No Easy Pushover

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Washington, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Italy is learning in Greece, as Russia discovered in Finland, and Germany found out at the English Channel, that mechanised warfare has definite limitations.

"Blitzkrieg" methods and battle equipment demand a favorable terrain. Against wide waters, tortuous mountain barriers or shifting desert sands, rumbling tank legions lose much of their menace. War reverts to the age-old business of man-to-man fighting.

Greek valor has held Italy's mechanised power at bay for eight days in the rugged mountains of the Greek-Albanian frontier. Fascist failure to achieve in that time a "lightning rhythm" of attack is ascribed by Italian commentators to bad weather, lack of roads and Greek resistance.

British Are Established

Lack of roads in the Epirus sector probably is the major military factor in holding up the Italian push. Mule trails are the normal means of communication on that front, and Janina, the first Italian major objective in Epirus, is surrounded by a terrain so wild and rugged that the Greek poet, Homer, depicted the region as not only the "bad lands" of Greece, but as the probable site of Hades. In the 3,000 years since Homer's time neither highways nor railroads have substantially improved the terrain for blitzkrieg military use.

The grim fight being made by the Greek mountain troops where they are familiar with every inch of the ground, however, has much to do with Italian ill success. It does not seem possible that the Greeks can, even with British Air Force help, definitely halt the Italian drive in view of the numerical and equipment odds against them. Yet they have already balked the Fascist thrust long enough for British forces to establish themselves firmly on the island of Crete.

Gesture of Weakness

It took Russia from Nov. 30, 1939 to March 13, 1940, to break Finnish resistance on the Karelian Isthmus. If the Greeks can hold for only a fraction of that time it will afford Britain opportunity to set up naval and air bases in Southern Greece, thus extending British control of the Eastern Mediterranean and making the status of the Italian Army in Egypt doubtful.

Successful Greek resistance may explain the reported trip by Mussolini's No. 1 aide, Italian Foreign Minister Ciano, to Berlin. There is at least a possibility that he is seeking Nazi aid, military or diplomatic.

Berlin spokesmen dismissed as "made in England" widespread reports that Hitler is preparing another "peace offensive". It seems probable, however, that some Hitler gesture was discussed in his recent conference with Mussolini in Florence and that the circumstances of the slowed-down, if not bogged-down, Italian attack in Greece have necessitated a change of plan.

Obviously a Hitler peace move now would seem a gesture of weakness. With Germany stalled at the British Channel, Italy marking time in Egypt and held up in Greece, and the third member of the Axis team, Japan, surrendering ground in China, this seems hardly the psychological moment for an Axis "peace offensive".

SWEDISH FREIGHTER SUNK

Lisbon, Nov. 5 (AP)—Sinking of the 1,583-ton Swedish freighter Meggie in the Atlantic Oct. 29 by a submarine which crew members identified as Italian was disclosed last night when a lifeboat bearing 10 survivors landed at Saint Michel Island in the Azores.

The survivors expressed belief the 10 other members of the crew were lost.

ITALIAN CONSULATE DAMAGED

Sao Paulo, Brazil, Nov. 5 (AP)—Fire of undermined origin swept through a building occupied by the Italian Consulate here early today and destroyed the Consulate files. Firemen brought the blaze under control after two hours.

Kinsmen Club Honors Soldier Members of Club

Honoring their soldier members of the 3-47th Battery C.A.S.F., the Belleville Kinsmen Club held their annual men's night frolic last night when T. S. M. Cecil Holway and Sergeants Don Thomas and William Holway were the honored guests. The guests were welcomed by President Jeff Marvel and the evening given over to hilarious merriment when all "let their hair down", and joined in the frivolities of this club's annual "stag."

All was not given over to the spirit of good times, however as the club discussed the purchase of ice hockey equipment for the 3-47th Battery Hockey Club that is being organized in Kingston. "We have the nucleus of a fairly good hockey team and hope to organize such and play games in Cobourg, Belleville and Napanee this winter, the centres from which the larger number of our boys were recruited," explained Sergeant William Holway in speaking for the Battery cause. Hockey jerseys and sox, valued at $50 are being sought as a contribution from Belleville at large. The Kinsmen promised their support in the project.

Kin. Max Waters reported as to the progress of the Belleville Kinsmen Club "eye clinic," the club's principal civic service to the community. "Since the opening of the school year we have treated eleven cases, several of whom will be supplied with glasses," reported Chairman Walters as he added the expenses for the free eye clinic were increasing annually.

The remainder of the evening was given to entertainment consisting of musical numbers by Kin. Phil. Huddleston, saxaphone solos by Bob Turney and community singing with Tommy Mason as master-of-ceremonies. Social games were enjoyed also. One of the evening's highlights was a duet "There'll Always be an England," by Kin. Harry Rollins and Harry Knott.

Song leaders were Kin. Don Roe and Garnder Duff, sergeant-at-arms Court Miller, while the committee in charge of the annual "stag" was composed of Orliff Lloyd, Newt Wilbur, C. B. Colling and Don Roe. Upwards of forty members and guests enjoyed the evening's outing.

British Communique

London, Nov. 5 (CP)—Tuesday's joint communique of the Air Ministry and Ministry of Home Security:

"The attacks on this country which were resumed shortly after darkness last night were widespread and on a fairly heavy scale.

"Bombs were dropped in many places in England and Scotland, but according to reports so far received casualties were not anywhere numerous, and damage was relatively slight.

"London was again the main objective, but bombs also fell on two towns in the Midlands, on Merseyside and at a number of places in southeast England, the eastern counties and Scotland.

"The attack on the London area continued throughout the hours of darkness, and bombs were dropped at many points. Although some damage was done, reports received up to six a.m. (1 a.m. E.D.T.) show that the number of persons killed and injured is small.

The main attacks on the Midlands and eastern and southern Scotland ceased shortly after midnight. In these areas, damage was not heavy, and there were not many casualties.

"Elsewhere, though a large number of incidents have been reported, little damage of a serious nature was done."

London, Nov. 5 (CP)—The Air Ministry today issued the following communique:

"Last night severe weather conditions restricted our bomber operations.

"Attacks were made on the Channel ports of Ostend, Boulogne and Le Havre. All our aircraft returned safely."

Police Blotter

Petty thieving was reported to the City Police today on two occasions, the stealing being committed in different parts of the city.

Rather early in the season come reports of coal being stolen from coal dumps near the city waterfront. Employees at the Schuster Coal Company today complained that large quantities of coal were being stolen nightly from their piles situated on the company docks. Later in the season nightwatchmen are employed to guard coal, which in years past has not been molested by night marauders until after the more severe weather sets in. Chief Kidd promised assistance in the protection of the coal companies' property until such time as watchmen could be employed.

James T. Doyle, commercial traveller residing at 46 Queen St., in Belleville, reported the theft of his black leather sample case containing some 15 samples of various assortments of canned goods. The sample case was taken from Mr. Doyle's automobile, which was parked in front of his home sometime early last evening.

Held on a nominal charge of vagrancy pending investigations, John McMurray, no address given, was apprehended in Belleville last evening and detained for questioning, police revealed this morning.

Only seven transients registered at the police station before receiving warm sleeping quarters last night.

Acting Wing-Cmdr. Ernest McNab, D. F. C. Given Promotion

London, Nov. 5 (CP Cable)—Acting Wing-Cmdr. Ernest McNab, leader of the Royal Canadian Air Force fighter squadron in Britain, is to be transferred to the Royal Air Force, it was learned today and will shortly be placed in command of an R.A.F. station.

The exact nature of the duties has not yet been defined. McNab's promotion from Squadron Leader to Acting Wing Commander was announced officially here today.

(McNab's promotion became known in Ottawa last night together with news of the appointment of Acting Sqdn.-Ldr. Roy McGregor of Montreal to succeed him as leader of the R.C.A.F. fighter squadron.)

McNab's squadron has destroyed approximately 75 German aircraft in the weeks it has been fighting in the defence of Britain. McNab, from Regina, Sask., was the first officer of the R.C.A.F. to get into action, shooting down a German bomber on his first combat flight Aug. 15.

M. P's. Find Hotel Accommodation Scarce

Ottawa, Nov. 5 (CP)—Members of parliament arriving in Ottawa for prorogation of parliament today and the start of a new session on Thursday have one big problem—finding a place to live.

The expansion of government departments and military concentrations have caused an acute housing shortage in the Capital.

The city's larger hotels have no accommodation, with most of their rooms occupied by permanent guests, but a few smaller places say they have a few rooms. Most real estate agents have no listings of houses or apartments, at any rental.

McFARLANDS SEEN NEAR C. N. BRIDGE STATES WITNESS

Robt. McFarland, Frankford, Charged With Murder of 18-Months-Old Child of Alice Archer McFarland

DEPOSITION READ

Robert McFarland and his wife and her baby, Gordon Archer, had been seen about 9 p.m. on the night of July 25th, the day previous to the discovery of the wire-bound body of the infant in the Trent River, on the Canadian National Railway tracks near the footbridge that borders the larger C.N.R. bridge, Allan Taylor, Trenton, testified yesterday afternoon at the opening of the trial of McFarland, for the murder of the 18-months-old child.

McFarland and his wife, Alice Archer McFarland, Frankford, were arrested and formally charged with the crime last July following the finding of the body. Monday morning, his wife was adjudged insane by a jury and found unable to stand her trial, after expert evidence had been given by governmen psychiatrists.

Seven witnesses and the deposition of the late Mrs. Mountenay, Baptiste Street, Trenton, who died in September of this year, were presented by the Crown when the trial got under way with Justice Keiller MacKay presiding. The jury empanelled to hear the trial consists of Messrs. Wilfred Babcock, Claude Goodwin, Sandford Woodcock, John Courneyea, Cecil Looney, Grant K. Ashley, Fred Burke, Norman Alexander, Earl Reid, Oswald Covert, James Brennan and Charles Mastin.

Alone at the Time

McFarland and his wife were alone when they called at his home about six o'clock on July 25th, Taylor told the court. They had stayed about 20 minutes, and the women had conversed in another room. He had not had any conversation except about the weather with the accused.

About nine o'clock the same evening he had been riding his bicycle near the C.N.R. bridge and had seen the McFarlands walking in a northerly direction across the tracks. They had stopped, turned around and came back almost to the entrance of the footbridge.

"Were they alone?" the Crown asked.

"Mrs. McFarland was carrying the baby."

Under cross-examination, Taylor told Defence Counsel Butler that the spot where he had seen the McFarlands was about two miles from that part of the river where the baby's dead body had been found floating in the water. There was no doubt in his mind as to the identity of the couple he had seen near the bridge.

Evidence Corroborated

Mrs. Taylor, wife of the former witness, corroborated his evidence regarding the visit of the McFarlands to their home on the night of July 25th. She told Mr. Butler in cross-examination that the couple did not go until their departure was suggested by Mrs. McFarland.

The dead body of the baby was floating in from ten to twelve inches of water in the Trent Canal near the C.N.R. bridge, from 8 to 10 feet from the shore, when he arrived at the scene, Dr. James Farley, Trenton physician testified. The baby had, in his opinion, been dead less than 24 hours and more than ten or twelve. The body was bluish in color and rigidity had set in the arms and legs. He had retrieved the body from the water with the aid of a pole. The clothing was properly adjusted. Around the body was a loop of fence-wire and attached to this loop was another of similar wire.

Taken to Funeral Home

The dead baby was taken to the Cobley Funeral Home in Trenton where it was later identified by the late Mrs. Mountenay, and a post-mortem conducted by Dr. Erb of the Sick Children's Hospital, Toronto.

The witness could not say, officially, what was the cause of death.

Chief William Bain told the jury of receiving a complaint from Mrs. Mountenay regarding the non-payment of monies due her by the McFarlands for the keep of the baby, Gordon Archer. He had seen the McFarlands in his office after requesting them to see him, and told them of Mrs. Mountenay's wish to get rid of the child. "One of the couple said they would go immediately," the witness said.

The deposition of the late Mrs. Mountenay, read to the Court by Crown Prosecutor Martin, revealed the fact that Mrs. McFarland had brought the baby to her home on July 11th after making arrangements at a former visit to pay $3.50 weekly for its board. The baby had remained two weeks and was in good health and condition.

She had not been well, the witness deposed, and had seen Mrs. McFarland's sister, who told her to write a Captain Ruston of the Belleville Children's Aid Society. She had been told to deliver the baby to its mother, in a return letter. Later she reported the matter to Chief of Police Bain.

On the night of July 25th, about 7 o'clock, Mrs. McFarland and her husband had called for the baby. McFarland had told her they would pay her the money due her on the following Monday night when they would return for the child's clothes. The baby, Gordon, was in fine health and had eaten a hearty supper. She did not see the McFarlands again and neither did she see the baby until she identified its body in the funeral parlors, on July 26th.

Mrs. McFarland Carried Baby

Alice McFarland carried the baby out of the house, the witness deposed. "As far as I could see, the woman was carrying the baby."

The deposition was read to the jury with the consent of defence counsel, after Mr. Justice MacKay had convinced himself it had been taken before counsel and a magistrate.

Godfrey Scott and Elmer Bonter, press photographers, identified pictures taken at and near the scene of the discovery of the body, while John McNabb, Trenton civil engineer, identified and explained the scenes near where the body was found from a blue-print of a map of the town of Trenton.

Court adjourned at this point until this morning.

Canada May Become Federated Capital Of New World Order

London, Nov. 3 (CP) — Canada may become the federated capital of a new world order, Leslie Howard noted British stage and screen actor, said Monday when he spoke on the British Broacasting Corporation's "Britain Speaks" feature.

"It is obvious that Canada is the general headquarters of the great British Commonwealth, in liaison with the United States," Howard said. "If a greater unity were forged she might be even the federated capital of a new world order —but not a Teutonic one."

Howard was referring to German plans for a new Teutonic world order, which was being opposed by the British Commonwealth of Nations.

"Canada is a land of promise which is only now being revealed," Howard said, "and the best is yet to come."

"It was sad to think the struggle between two great peoples, the French and the English, in the early history of Canada," he said, "but now the monument to Wolfe and Montcalm at Quebec is a symbol of unity between them."

(Gen. James Wolfe led the British forces and Joseph Louis, Marquis De Montcalm, the French in the battle of the Plains of Abraham in 1759, decisive battle of the war in which Canada became British territory.)

Howard said Canadian troops in Britain were welcomed everywhere, and told of paying visits to an Ontario artillery regiment somewhere in England. In return, he said, many of the men visited his house.

"They are a good natured, smiling crew," he said, "but when equipped with their splendid new guns they make a formidable company."

Speaking of the Empress of Britain, destroyed recently by enemy action, he expressed hope she would be replaced.

"Surely Canada will re-create for her a daughter, perhaps even more beautiful than the mother," he said.

ELECTORAL VOTES ELECT PRESIDENT

Every State Has the Number of Votes Equal to the Number of Senators and Representatives

New York, Nov. 5 (CP)—The voting machines do not list them; nobody ever bothers to learn their names, but the persons for whom United States' Presidential ballots are really cast are the members of the Electoral College.

In some of the States they list these men and women—always being careful to make them clearly as Democratic or Republican—on the ballots. But in most States they are literally the little men who are not there.

Yet they are a vital part of the United States' way of choosing its chief of the executive branch of the government. They represent the final step in the decision; they are the people who tallied that tremendous 523-8 vote for President Roosevelt in 1936.

To the Canadian, used to his straight ballot in which he picks the man to represent him in his constituency, the American system seems hopelessly complicated. But it works.

The system, in brief, is that each State has a certain fixed number of Electoral College representatives —commonly called electoral votes— equal to the total of its Senators and representatives in Congress.

Take the case of New York State for example. It has two Senators and 45 representatives, hence it has 47 Electoral votes.

Pull Down a Lever

The voter, pulling down a lever in the voting machines marked Willkie and McNary will, although he does not realize it, actually be registering his choice for 47 Republicans to present him in the Electoral College.

On the other hand the man who manipulates the lever marked Roosevelt and Wallace will be choosing 47 Democratic electors.

After the votes are totalled, the 47 Democrats or 47 Republicans, whichever have a majority, will represent 47 votes, as a unit, for the head of their ticket.

As state after state reports these electoral votes are tabulated and the candidate who obtains a majority of the 531-vote total—266 or more—is the next President.

On the first Monday after the second Wednesday in December, which will be Dec. 16 this year, these electors meet at their respective capitals—Albany in the case of New York—and give their votes. On Jan. 6 these votes are to be opened and counted in the presence of both houses of Congress at Washington.

The vote counting in Washington has developed into a mere formality; everyone knows a few hours after election who was elected. But back in the days of poor communications the assembling of the Electoral College vote was of real importance.

FIFTY MILLION CROWD POLLS TO NAME PRESIDENT

All Signs Point to a Close Election With Polls Closing at Late Hour

NO DISORDERS

(By H. M. Peters)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Nov. 5.—(CP)—Fifty million United States citizens today crowd to the polls to choose a new President. Either Franklin Delano Roosevelt, experienced world statesman, or Wendell Lewis Willkie, lawyer and businessman seeking his first elective office.

The stake is the office that ranks with the Prime Ministership of Great Britain as the two greatest positions in the world filled by popular vote.

All signs pointed to a close contest.

Mr. Roosevelt, elected in 1932 and re-elected in 1936, shattered all precedents when he accepted a third nomination from the Democratic Party.

He did so, he has declared, because of the war. He asks a "vote of confidence" and the right to lead the country during these perilous times. He campaigned on his record of aiding Britain to the fullest possible extent "short of war", as a "good neighbor" welding hemisphere solidarity, and as a social reformer who put a floor under wages, a ceiling over hours and pressed forward with a vast system of pensions, social security, war veterans welfare and a host of other measures making up "the New Deal".

But if the President shattered precedent, so did Mr. Willkie.

Never Held Public Office

Six months ago he was President of the Commonwealth and Southern Company, a Utility holding company. He had never held any type of public office. Yet he captured the imagination of many people; won the Republican nomination against competition of Dewey and Taft, and staged a strenuous campaign that would have sapped the strength of a weaker man.

He stood up to barrages of stale eggs and staler vegetables, he showed himself to 12,000,000 people; he spoke anywhere and everywhere he could get half a dozen —or many thousands—to listen to him. He forced himself into a position where many sober observers believe he can win.

The campaign managers stood upon their previous predictions. Edward Flynn, Democratic National chairman, called for 427 electoral votes out of 531 for the President; Joseph Martin, Republican, predicted 324 for Mr. Willkie. Polls sampling public opinion came out with predictions of a closed popular vote and said many states are in doubt.

In addition to a President and Vice-President, the voters will choose one third of the Senate and an entire House of Representatives at Washington; as well as holders of many state and municipal offices of various importance, including 34 governors. There are also a number of state referenda but none of these has achieved national attention—such as did the fights in other days on prohibition and pensions.

Lond-Drawn Out Campaign

The long-drawn presidential campaign, featured by bitter debate over the third-term issue, has obscured the personalities of those contesting other offices.

But one triumvirate came in for much attention. They are the three Mr. Roosevelt linked together as "Martin, Barton and Fish," three Republican members of the last House of representatives. Joseph Martin and Hamilton Fish are again candidates for that House, Bruce Barton seeks a Senate seat from New York State. The President accused all three of opposing national defence measures and steps to aid farmers.

As the presidential campaign drew to a close, issues that stood out included two in particular.

The first is the war. Mr. Willkie, although endorsing all possible material assistance to Great Britain, emphatically contends that a provocative attitude toward the Axis countries will lead to war if the President is re-elected.

Contrary to Facts

In reply, the President says that any charge that he is heading toward war is contrary to all the facts in the record. It is for peace he has labored, he says, and will continue to labor throughout his life.

The second great issue is the summation of months of controversy over the question of concentration of power in Washington. The Republicans contend this issue is eptimomized in the proposal that, contrary to tradition, the President be elected for a third term. Dictatorship may be the result, says Mr. Willkie.

Roosevelt supporters answer that the powers of the federal government have necessarily been increased to meet successive crisis— the depression, the war abroad and the urgent necessity for rearmament. They add that Congress still functions, the election is free, the press is free, speech is free, and they ask: "What sign is there of an impending dictatorship." Mr. Roosevelt's knowledge of foreign affairs makes a third term necessary, at a time of crisis as this, they assert.

Mr. Roosevelt has declared a third term will be his last.

19TH PARLIAMENT TO BE DISSOLVED

Brief Formalties Will Pave Way for Opening of New Session on Thursday

Ottawa, Nov. 5.—(CP)—Canada's 19th Parliament since Confederation ends its first session today with brief formalities, after a lapse of three months since adjournment early in August.

The formalities today, reduced to the historic essentials of prorogation because of the war, merely pave the way for the opening of a new parliamentary session Thursday.

For 24 hours Members of the House of Commons and Senators have been arriving in the capital in considerable numbers, ready to resume their reponsibility of directing the nation's business.

However, because the brief meeting today provides no opportunity for discussion, many Members are not expected to arrive until tomorrow when each of the three opposition groups plans to hold a caucus and begin drafting a program of operations for the new session. A Liberal caucus likely will not be held before a week from tomorrow.

Social Credit and Co-operative Commonwealth Federation groups will be out almost in full strength today but Conservatives and Liberals are not expected to produce more than 50 per cent attendance.

For the first time since 1921, J. S. Woodsworth, Honorary President of the C.C.F. and House Leader, will be absent from prorogation proceedings today. Still suffering from the effects of illness which kept him out of the House since last May, Mr. Woodsworth is remaining at his Winnipeg home, at least until after the New Year.

"It is expected M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. National Chairman, who has acted as House leader since Mr. Woodsworth's illness, will be asked to continue in that capacity.

Another C.C.F. absentee today will be T. C. Douglas, who is concluding an officers' training course at Dundurn, Sask., before coming to the capital next week.

The program for today's meeting of Parliament is brief. Members of the House of Commons and of the Senate assemble at 3 p.m. EDT. In the Commons the four new members elected in by-elections since adjournment last Aug. 7 will be presented to the Chamber, having been previously sworn in. They are Navy Minister MacDonald (Lib. Kingston City), Louis Breithaupt (Lib. Waterloo North), A. H. Bence (Con. Saskatoon City) and G. R. Boucher (Con. Carleton).

Then the Commoners will proceed to the Senate Chamber to hear Chief Justice Sir Lyman Duff as Deputy Governor-General, read the Speech from the Throne thanking them for their services and sketching briefly the work done during the session being ended.

There will be no elaborate ceremonial, no parade, no guard of honor. Wartime simplicity will prevail.

Name for Hotel Not Yet Obtained

Ottawa, Nov. 5 (CP)—Ottawa's new hotel still hasn't got a name. At Monday's city council meeting, Ald. Daniel McCann suggested the building when completed should be called the "Kingsland"—because peaple wanted to commemorate the 1939 Royal visit and also honor Prime Minister Mackenzie King.

Besides, he said, the hotel is going up on leased Crown land, and thus always would stand on "King's land."

Other suggested names have been "McNaughton," after Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, "Hotel King" and the "Confederation."

The industrial and publicity committee, asked by the builders to name the hotel, plans further debate.

EMPRESS OF BRITAIN BOMBED AND LEFT BURNING BY NAZIS

The ill-fated Empress of Britain, flagship of the Canadian Pacific line, is shown here being towed off the coast of Ireland after being transformed into a blazing hulk by German incendiary bombs. While being towed to port, the flames hit explosives aboard the Empress and an explosion sunk her. British warships, rushing to the scene, rescued 598 persons from the 643 that were aboard the liner when she was attacked by Nazi planes.

THE SOUL OF LONDON

138 years ago William Wordsworth, the poet, wrote:—

Earth has not anything to show more fair:
Dull would he be of soul who could pass by
A sight so touching in its majesty:
This City now doth, like a garment, wear
The beauty of the morning: silent, bare,
Ships, towers, domes, theatres and temples lie
Open unto the fields and to the sky;
All bright and glittering in the smokeless air.
Never did the sun more beautifully steep
In his first splendor, valley, rock and hill;
Ne'er saw I, never felt, a calm so deep;
The river glideth at his own sweet will;
Dear God: the very houses seem asleep;
And all that mighty heart is lying still!

Only a poet could write those lines. He was inspired as a man who had seen with the heart and the mind and the eye of beauty old London. In this poem "Composed upon Westminister Bridge September 3, 1802" he saw the soul of London as so many millions, not so articulate as Wordsworth, have seen it.

Yet while over a century and a third have passed and made great changes in London, that city is still beautiful. But that did not prevent the Germans from bombing this city, destroying mansions and cottages, public buildings and churches, and killing civilians. The worse than barbarian flights of airmen which Hitler and Goering sent over were out to destroy civilization's marks. If it meant that civilians were to be attacked and shot down with machine guns they would do it, to terrorize the British and cause discomfort to the government. But the civilian did not plead for himself, his was the way of sacrifice if need be for the sake of British defence. He stood Goering's bomb droppers so that the enemy himself wearied of the task.

But in the nature of things a mighty city which is really the heart of the world is too big for Germans fitted up with airplane wings to destroy. Sooner could Nazi fliers all be destroyed than London. Estimates of losses show that. Germans lost 2,433 machines since August 8 and six thousand airmen while Britain lost a net 353 pilots. Yet for all the Nazi losses one can pass through London and see that the Nazi destruction has been far less than expected.

Wordsworth was not thinking of wars but of men unappreciative of beauty as he wrote the line "Dull would he be of soul who could not pass by a sight so touching in its majesty." At last in the twentieth century the "dull of soul" Nazi came and tried to destroy.

Even as on that morning of September 3, 1802, so today "that mighty heart" is living and lying still, unconfused in spite of Nazi raiders.

The Battle of London and Britain has shown that Woodsworth's race of men who can feel and write as poets, can fight as manly heroes and not imitate the barbaric spirit, nor cultivate the spirit of the Hun who destroys for the love of destroying the true, the beautiful, the good.

London stands.

AN OLD LONDON POSTER

137 years ago there was issued in London a poster recalling that more than two hundred years before London men stood on guard against the Spaniards.

Today the 1803 poster is on exhibition at the London Press Club. It reads:—

CITIZENS OF LONDON!

"Your generous spirited Forefathers more than Two Hundred Years ago being threatened as we are now with a foreign invasion, raised and armed Ten Thousand Two Hundred and Seven men, in the several Wards of this City, as appears in Detail by the annexed Schedule; besides they voluntarily voted Government Sixteen of the largest Ships in the Thames and four Pinnaces or light Frigates, the Expense and Charges of which of every Kind were voluntarily defrayed, during the Whole Time they were in the Service of the Public, by the Citizens of London.

FELLOW CITIZENS!

Let us imitate the noble Example of such Ancestors!—We are ten Times more numerous!—Ten Times more Opulent!—May their sublime Spirit inspire us with a similar Ardour!—, Then will the Citizens of London, alone bring into the Field to oppose this flagitious Foe Ten Times Ten Thousand. Let us show a bright Example to our Country. Let us raise, arm and maintain, during the Contest, One Hundred Thousand Men."

Everyone knows what happened the Spanish Armada. Drake defeated it and the ships that were not destroyed in battle were caught and wrecked in a storm off the coast of Ireland with the exception of a few which limped back to Spain, to tell the story of the end of Spain as a great naval power.

Everyone knows that Napoleon wanted a chance to invade England but that chance did not come.

In 1940 Hitler put himself in the position of Philip of Spain and Napoleon. He has not won the Battle of Britain. He has failed to win, which means a victory for Britain.

Today three million Britishers are under arms against the Hun if he should try to put in an appearance.

A farmer had just bent down to examine a piece of flying kit thrown from a crashed German bomber in Southeast England when the plane's bomb load exploded. The farmer escaped injury but the seat of his trouser wasn't there any more.

Chief Constable John Horwell left Scotland Yard to become a Flight-Lieutenant in the Provost Marshal's Department of the Air Ministry. Senior officers asked Horwell, who once led the Yard's flying squad which dashed about in high-powered motor cars, what he would like as a farewell gift. "A bicycle," he replied.

She came from her neighbor's shelter to find a heap of rubble where her home once stood and pleaded with an air raid warden, "Save my little dog, he was in the kitchen."

But your husband. Where is he?" the warden asked.

"I don't know whether he was in or out—but I know I locked my dog in the kitchen."

Keeping Blood Sugar High Prevents Fatigue

As youngsters when we returned from school in the afternoon we were given a slice of bread and butter covered with brown sugar, after which we went out to play for the rest of the afternoon. From this starch food—bread and sugar—we received sufficient energy to enable us to play and not come to the evening meal too tired to eat. This was because the bread and sugar increased the amount of sugar in the blood. It is the amount of sugar in your blood that determines the amount of energy you possess at any time whether or not you choose to use that energy in play or work.

I have spoken before of the findings of Harvard research workers after the Boston Marathon race. They found that the blood of the runners who finished among the first and the runners who were in good condition when they finished was high or rich in blood sugar, whereas the amount of sugar in the blood of the runners finishing among the last or in poor condition, was low.

Another similar and interesting finding is reported by Dr. Paul Michael, Oakland, California, in the Journal of the American Medical Association. Dr. Michael studied the blood sugar of thirty male golfer ranging from 30 to 45 years of age and possessing handicaps of from 10 to 27—an average group of golfers. He found that the amount of sugar in the blood dropped below normal between the ninth and the fifteenth holes and between the eleventh and fifteenth holes in a twosome. These periods were when the golfers were least efficient in their play. When the golfers were of the nervous type the blood sugar was below normal before they reached the above holes.

Dr. Michael therefore suggests that some sugar or candy be taken near the eighth hole when four are playing and near the ninth hole when two are playing. By doing this he found that the blood sugar did not reach such low figure and the players showed fewer signs of fatigue throughout the match.

I sometimes wonder how our mothers knew that bread and butter and sugar would give us the energy to play from after school hours till the time of our evening meal.

Ground Crews In on Battle

London — (CP). — Royal Air Force ground staffs who never get into battle are given play-by-play accounts of the air fighting over Great Britain.

Loudspeaker systems normally used for giving orders to personnel carry the running commentaries, often from the commanding officer himself.

Here is the record from a fighter station of southeast England, as given out by the Air Ministry news service:—

3:05 p. m. — "Hello, hello, attention! Enemy aircraft are entering the mouth of the Thames, flying toward London. Our aircraft are taking off to intercept."

3:06 p. m. — "Enemy aircraft are near Gravesend."

3:10 p. m. — "Our aircraft have sighted the enemy."

3:12 p. m. — "Our aircraft are now attacking. The enemy are very numerous and showing fight."

3:15 p. m. — "The fight appears to be going well for us."

3:17 p. m. — "The enemy fighters have deserted the bombers they were escorting. They are employing defensive tactics against our aircraft. Another squadron is beating up the bombers, which are turning east."

3:20 p. m. — "Two enemy fighters are shot down. Our aircraft have broken up their defensive formation."

3:26 p. m. — "Another enemy aircraft is down — in the sea. The pilot is swimming for shore."

3:20 p. m. — "The enemy is scattered over the sea and beating it for France."

3:40 p. m. — "Our aircraft are back and coming in to land. Yes, they are all here. Closing down."

Entire House Of Representatives To Be Chosen

By Leon Edel Canadian Press Staff Writer.

New York, Nov. 5 (CP)—The United States elects a new House of Representatives and replaces one-third of its Senate today and it is to this renovated congress that either Wendell L. Willkie or Franklin D. Roosevelt will turn to carry the objectives on which they have waged their exciting campaigns.

The entire House of Representatives of 435 members is to be chosen. The Republicans have 167 seats there to the Democrats' 259; there are four Independents and there are five vacancies, of which three were held by Democrats and two by Republicans.

The Republicans thus need a swing-over of 49 seats for a majority; probably another 20 for a working majority.

In the Senate the outcome seems clear because, of the 36 contested seats, 25 were vacated by Democrats, many from parts of the South which never return Republicans. Only nine Republican seats are vacant and two representing other groups. The terms of one-third of the 96 Senators expire every two years. Senators sit for six-year terms.

Four Unexpired Terms to Fill

Four unexpired terms are to be filled, terms of members who have died and whose seats were filled temporarily by appointment.

It seems clear that if Willkie is elected he will face, for the first two years at least—when another one-third of the Senate will have to be renewed—a critical Senate.

In the House of Representatives the Democrats can afford to lose about 40 seats and still retain their majority over the Republicans.

Consequently Mr. Willkie could find himself with a hostile Congress.

But if there is a Republican sweep in the House of Representatives and Roosevelt is re-elected President he would face an equally perplexing problem. He would have the Senate, but it would be tough sledding for him in the House.

KNIFE WOUND IN STOMACH

Edmonton, Nov. 5—(CP)—James Crabb, middle-aged taxi company clerk, was taken to hospital last night in critical condition with a knife wound in the stomach and police said they are holding John Robert Fraser, 39, on a charge of attempted murder. Police received a call to Fraser's home and there found Crabb in the kitchen, seriously wounded. Officers would make no further statement.

German People Apathetic Despite Army Successes Says Correspondent

The following is the full text of the radio speech delivered by Richard O. Boyer, former Berlin correspondent for the New York newspaper 'P.M.', in the series "LET'S FACE THE FACTS", Sunday night, November 3rd.

When I left New York for Germany on the Clipper on June 13th the Nazis had yet to win one of the most momentous victories in modern military annals. Twenty-two hours later when I landed in Lisbon we found that modern history moves as fast as modern transportation. While we were in the air Paris had fallen and it was apparent that, the war and the world had entered a new phase.

On June 28th at the very crest of the wave of German success, for already France had signed a crippling Armistice, I arrived in Munich. Hitler had ordered a ten days' celebration of the smashing of Versailles, of the unparalleled victory of German arms. I thought I should see dancing in the streets and all the vociferous thanksgiving of a nation that had received compensation for a twenty-year-old defeat its people had never forgotten. Instead the people of Munich were unmistakably sad, quiet and weary. I could not understand it all and could scarcely believe the testimony of my own eyes. The scarlet banners with their black swastikas that garlanded the city everywhere in response to Hitler's orders seemed only to emphasize the worried melancholy. The victory bells that rang each day at noon acquired the sound of a funeral dirge when one looked at the tired, pinched faces of the Germans hurrying along the pavements. When German troops marched through the streets scarcely a head was turned. There were no cheers and the people continued to go gloomily about their business. In the Hofbrauhaus, that giant beer hall known all over the world for its lovely creamy beer, its delectable sausage, its German boisterousness and song, I saw one thousand people sitting silently and morosely. There were none of the songs that visitors remember so well. The famous beer had been watered down until it resembled American 3.2 of other days and the Germans moodily chewed stale slabs of bread between which there was no sausage but only sliced and salted rings of white radish. When I expressed surprise to a glum man sitting near me he glanced impatiently up and only said "We celebrated once in 1914."

This was the first of many surprises in a country so hermetically sealed from the rest of the world that what is common knowledge there is unknown here. There were others to come. I found for example that while the rest of the world regards Russia and Germany as allied, it is generally taken for granted in Nazi circles that Germany will invade Russia in 1941. Responsible Nazi officials declared, in off-the-record but scarcely secret conversations, that the Soviet Union will either stand and deliver the Ukraine, the Baku oil regions and the former Baltic states or Germany will seize them if and when she conquers or makes peace with England.

Despite the official Nazi party line that war between the United States and Germany is unnecessary, I found that high German officials believe that it is inevitable and the only question is when and where. But the most surprising development in Germany is that a dead listlessness akin to the disease of the spirit that caused the collapse of France is spreading through Germany like a plague infecting an increasing number of her people with a defeatism. If the contagion is not halted Germany itself, even in victory, may go the way of France. It must be quickly added, however, that this spirit has not yet infected the army, the Nazi party or the Hitler youth to any appreciable degree and it is doubtful if it ever will until there is a military setback.

For ten days before I left Berlin I sat in bombproof cellars with inhabitants of the German capital while bombs and anti-aircraft fire shook the earth and filled the night with menace. Never have I seen people with less alarm with more real depression of spirit. It was not fear, it was not the damage being done or the people being killed for the raids were still small scale compared to those over London. It was something far deeper. That something was what gave the mild demonstration bombings of Berlin an importance out of all proportion to the damage done. It was as far as the Germans themselves could tell me that what was happening outside was a part of the entire pattern of their lives. Most of them had gone through the World War and the blockade, through revolution, street fighting, unemployment, inflation, foreclosures, famine. Now huddling in their cellars while bombs dropped outside they could see no end to it. It had always one way or another been throughout their lives the way it was that moment. It was not the bombings, neither was it the lack of food, nor the many stifling wartime regulations that robbed their lives of grace and spontaneity and turned them into automatons. It was everything since 1914, all added up together with a presentiment that things were going to get worse and worse. Sometimes one would feel sorry for them as they huddled in their cellars and say "Well cheer up, the war will soon be over." Almost invariably the reply was in this tenor "Oh no, it will go on, America will come in again. We will have another terrible winter like last winter." "But your papers say you are defeating England." "Oh, the papers", often the speaker would shrug his shoulders and look nervously around as if someone might hear his unspoken thought that you could not believe the papers.

"When my wife and I left Germany it was like leaving a prison. All the preceding day Germans called and asked me to do favours for them when I got outside as they called the rest of the world. They were simple enough little requests such as telling a relative in Chicago or San Francisco that they were well. The morning we left a little crowd of servants gathered about us in our hotel and begged for the food stamps we had not used. They were poor people and although we gave them money and clothes it was the stamps permitting them very small quantities of extra meat and butter that made tears come to their eyes. One woman said and it would be funny if it were not tragic, "Oh take me, take me with you in your trunk. Do anything." When they shook hands they had the attitude of people remaining in a desperate situation bidding farewell to one fortunate enough to escape. Those we left included many kinds of people but the common denominator of all of them was a kind of passive hopelessness. More than once during my last 24 hours in Germany a German speaking of Hitler's last speech said "He's worried. We could tell it by the way he spoke." And official Germany is worried. During the latter part of June and July officials often said speaking about the war against England, "It will all be over in three weeks." The phrase got the currency of a slogan and as the weeks slipped into months the prophecy proved a boomerang. The same officials who had been telling me that it would all be over in three weeks, two months later were telling me to remember that they were fighting the world's strongest Empire and that such a foe could not be reduced without a hard struggle. For the first time many Germans began to feel that Hitler had slipped up. For the first time one heard it whispered that Hitler's timetable schedule had been disrupted. Every day of English resistance causes more German civilians to say with a sort of long-suffering passive despair "Ach, it will never be over. We shall have another terrible winter. No food, no heat and bombings every night".

PO. J. B. LATTA AWARDED D. F. C.

Vancouver Pilot Serving With Royal Air Force Bags Eight Enemy Planes

London, Nov. 5 (CP Cable)—Pilot Officer John Blandford Latta of Victoria, B.C., who has bagged eight enemy planes while serving with the Royal Air Force, has been awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross, the Air Ministry announced today.

The citation said the British Columbian had "displayed great coolness in the midst of fierce combat" and had shot down the eight German planes in operations over France and Britain.

"Once," the citation added, "when his squadron attacked a number of Messerschmitt 109s, he shot down one of them, and although his own aircraft was hit in the wings and tail by cannon shell, the officer attacked and destroyed a second Messerschmitt."

URGE UNITY BEHIND PRESIDENT-ELECT

Hollywood, Nov. 5 (AP)—More than 18,000 theatres throughout the United States will exhibit a short film immediately after today's election, urging the nation to unite behind the Presidential candidate who is elected. A committee of the film industry prepared the short, "A Plea for National Unity."

Stewart Says—

By CHARLES P. STEWART

Central Press Canadian Columnist

Chas. P. Stewart.

Washington—Although this year's eligible voters in the U.S. are 5,391,000 more numerous than they were in 1936 it doesn't follow that there's been a corresponding population increase. On the contrary, U. S. population growth is dwindling rapidly. Experts predict that, within a few years it will be stationary.

That there's a trend in that direction is proved, in fact, by the increase in the number of voters. There are more of them because Americans, on an average, are older than they were not long ago. Not as many babies are born in the United States now as there used to be. Consequently there's a shrinkage in the number under the age of 21. Those over 21 haven't had time to start dying off proportionately yet. And more are getting to be 21. When the extreme oldsters begin dying it'll reduce the congestion. Meanwhile there is all those extra voters.

This dope is the census bureau's, therefore official.

The federal public health service is partly responsible for the situation. It doesn't let us die as early as we used to. It brags frequently that its management steadily is making us live longer and longer. Personally, I don't understand what good it does. When an individual falls sick he has a natural instinct to get over it, so he calls in a doctor. The doc is professionally bound to do the best he can for his patient. I agree to that all right. I also think the medicos are entitled to credit for relieving human suffering. But of what benefit is it to lengthen our race's life span, generally speaking? Ultimately we all die anyway. Why prolong the agony?—except, of course, in individual cases?

Not Convincing

I was so curious about this that I once called in at the U.S. public health service's offices and asked Dr. Hugh S. Cumming (then surgeon-general) to explain the matter. Darned if he could do it satisfactorily. He argued, indeed, that there's an economic advantage in keeping the right kind of people alive as long as possible, but it wasn't convincing.

The truth remains that the public health service has succeeded in piling up the proportion of old folk.

But it hasn't succeeded in inducing us to have more babies. Quite the reverse. We have, relatively fewer and fewer of 'em.

It follows that, as people, we're getting steadily older and older.

The U. S. agriculture department's economics bureau doesn't even indorse Dr. Cumming's thesis that there's an economic benefit in letting us get older. Its contention is that we must grow in population in order to prosper. It sounds reasonable. Growing countries are the prosperous ones. The static nations have to skimp like fury or even to stay static. Under-populated continents' inhabitants go pioneering and thrive and multiply. Over-populated ones haven't enough to go around and fight for bare subsistence.

True, the public health service can reason that, on that theory, we don't want to become over-populated—let's die in moderation and also be moderate with babies.

The agriculture economics bureau's come-back is that the health service won't let us die fast enough, that we haven't reached a point at which we ought to stop multiplying, and that the health service can't seem to make us multiply adequately.

Hint From Aviation

Aviation hints at a solution of the problem of the baby shortage. Census figures show that babies are fewest in our big urban industrial centres; that the output is at its maximum out in the sticks—in little burgs and rurally.

Well, in wartime big urban centres are particularly susceptible to bombing operations by hostile aircraft.

Hence there's a strong tendency to scatter our huge industrial plants away from concentrated areas out into hamlets here and there.

Under these comparatively rural conditions maybe the plants' workers will have larger families, thus giving the population growth that the agriculture economics division hollers for.

Co-operative study by the census bureau, the public health service, the agriculture department and our aviation experts is called for.

Landing Gear Damaged, Flier Lands Bomber, Crew Safely

Dartmouth, N.S., Nov. 5—(CP)—Despite smashed landing gear, including a broken wheel, Flt. Lt. R. A. Butts of the Royal Canadian Air Force landed his bomber at the air base here without injury to the plane, air force officers revealed last night. The undercarriage was damaged while he was attempting to land at the Air Force station at Yarmouth, N.S. Flt. Lt. Butts decided to try to get the plane to his home port at Dartmouth. He flew back and brought his plane to a safe landing without jettisoning his cargo of bombs at sea.

Pathologist Explains Part Played By Hospital Laboratories in the Diagnosis and Treatment of Disease

Dr. McKay of Belleville General Hospital Also Urges That Everyone Should Know His Blood Group in Case of Accident

ASSISTS PHYSICIANS

The vital importance of every person knowing definitely the one particular blood grouping to which he belongs in order to aid doctors when it became necessary for emergency blood transfusions was stressed by Dr. J. B. McKay, Pathologist of the Belleville General Hospital, as he spoke on "Laboratory Medicine" at the regular weekly luncheon meeting of the Rotary Club, held at the Quinte Hotel on Monday. In his address, Dr. McKay outlined briefly the important research work done in the pathological laboratories of hospitals, and told the members in what way this vitally important service aided the family physician or the specialist in diagnosing the various diseases to which the human body is susceptible.

"A great many people may have wondered just what the significance of the gentleman is who takes a sample of their blood at the hospital," said Dr. McKay, "but, in its simplest phase, the role of the doctor connected with the pathological laboratory is that of assistant to the regular physician." Dr. McKay said that the work of the pathological laboratory was divided into five distinct fields, of which Clinical Chemistry, Bacteriology and Radiology were the most important.

The work of clinical chemistry dealt chiefly with the condition of the blood and included a study of pernicious anemia, and due to the advances made in the study of this condition, persons so afflicted and with the proper precautions could now expect to live the ordinary span of life, said Dr. McKay.

Four Blood Groups

"Just as each person is endowed with a certain coloring in his eyes, each person is also segregated into one of four different blood groupings," continued the speaker. "A person belonging to group No. 1 can receive blood transfusions from any one of four groups, but can give only to his own group, while a person belonging to group No. 2 can give and receive in his own group and also to group No. 1. A person belonging to group No. 4 can give almost to any person," stated Dr. McKay.

In consideration of the number of accidents occurring under present living conditions and the resulting increase in the number of instances where it was necessary to have a certain type of blood for immediate transfusion, Dr. McKay suggested that each person know exactly to which grouping he belonged. "It is absolutely essential when transfusion is necessary to know which grouping an accident victim belongs to because if any appreciable amount of blood of the wrong type is given, the patient is almost certain to die," stated the speaker. Tests for kidney trouble and diabetes were also included in pathological work, he said.

Dr. McKay said that through pathological tests it was possible to determine when bacteria was present in wounds and that it provided a definite check as to when diphtheria was present in a throat condition. "As the result of bacteriological investigations, many communities are now immunized against this dread disease, diphtheria," he said.

The word "pathology" pertains to the change in structure or form of organs of the human body, stated the speaker as he compared changes taking place in human organs with the breaking or wearing out of parts of an automobile in a motor car. The laboratory comes to the aid of the surgeon in determining whether a lump is a cancer or whether it is benign tumor, while the pathologist is also of great assistance when an autopsy must be performed in determining the cause of death, or to determine whether a certain treatment has been successful.

Charges For Services Fair

Dr. McKay referred to the fact that a great many patients in hospitals resented the fee charges for laboratory services but stated that the resentment of this fee arose out of the patient not understanding the service which this department rendered or to not realizing the tremendous expense which the hospital incurred in equipping their pathological laboratory. Dr. McKay said that he supposed the fairest way in which hospitals could assure that their laboratory equipment be paid for was to bill each individual patient for the work which he might have had done by that department, but some hospitals are assessing each patient in the hospital a flat rate. This entitled the patient to certain routine tests such as blood tests and urinalyses, and it was obvious that many of these tests were beneficial to the patient, stated the speaker. Dr. McKay concluded by expressing his pleasure with the very generous equipment which hospital authorities have provided in the Belleville General Hospital.

The speaker was introduced by Dr. A. C. Locke and the appreciation of the Rotary members to Dr. McKay for his informative address was expressed by "Mac" Robertson. President Percy McGuire presided at the meeting with Jamieson Bone acting as Sgt. at Arms. Leo Riggs acted as accompanist at the piano for the community singing which was led by song leader Sandy Burrows.

Halloway

Halloway — A very successful Hallowe'en supper and party, arranged by the Halloway Y. P. S., was put on at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Embury Hough on Wednesday evening. A parade of the ones in costume took place before supper and prizes were given to the funniest dressed person, Mr. Clifford Elliott, fanciest dressed, Miss Marguerite Elliott and the child's prize to Reginald Elliott.

Tweed and District

Tweed — Miss Colleen Colgan entertained about thirty of her young friends at a Hallowe'en Masquerade party at her home on Friday evening. The guests came in costume. Prizes awarded for the best costumes were won by Lois Way and Richard Graham. Games of various kinds made up the evening's entertainment which was concluded by a delightful lunch.

Inspector A. W. McGuire, B. A., and the teachers of Madoc, Tweed and Stirling elementary schools held a teachers' meeting in Stirling Public School on Wednesday evening. Mr. C. A. Wells, principal of Stirling Public School, was in charge. Matters of general interest were discussed by the teachers who then separated into groups for the consideration of topics peculiar to their own grades. At the conclusion the teachers adjourned to the Home Economics room of Stirling High School where a delicious lunch was served by the teachers of Stirling Public School. The next meeting will be held in Tweed Consolidated School on Wednesday, November 27th.

A miscellaneous shower in honour of Miss Audrey Prust, popular bride-to-be was held at the home of Mrs. W. S. Gordon on Friday evening. The affair was arranged by Mrs. Carmen Alton (formerly Miss Gladys Gordon). The gifts were chiefly of china. During the evening the guests hemmed dusters which were also included among the gifts. Miss Prust, who is to be married early in November, was quite taken by surprise. A delicious lunch was served by Mrs. Gordon and Mrs. Alton.

Hallowe'en passed off quietly in the village on Thursday evening. The youthful pranksters, masquerading in all sorts of disguises, were out in full force, exacting payment from householders, store-keepers and pedestrians alike. They met with a generous response from all.

Tweed High School Rugby team entered the finals with Stirling by virtue of a decisive win over Madoc by a 9-2 score in Madoc on Friday evening. They finished the season with 4 wins, 1 tie and 1 defeat, just edging Stirling who had 4 wins and 2 losses, while Madoc in third place finished with 3 wins, 1 tie, and 2 defeats.

The first game of the finals will be played in Stirling on Thursday afternoon with the return game in Tweed the following week. Total points on the round decide the winner.

Tweed played without the services of Doug. Connor, husky linesman, who suffered a painful leg injury in a previous game and has been out of the game for two weeks.

St. Carthagh's R. C. Church held a successful Bazaar at the Separate School last week. Madoc

Madoc — On Friday afternoon, Tweed High School Rugby team played a return game with Madoc H. S. rugby team at the fair grounds, Madoc. The visiting team proved too much for the home team and carried away the honors with a score of 9-2. After the game a supper dance was held at the High School auditorium.

On Friday evening friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Cassidy (recently married) entertained in their honor, at the Orange Hall, Madoc. Dancing with the Merrymakers orchestra providing the music was much enjoyed. During the evening Mr. Leslie Blakely acting as chairman, called order and Mr. Gerald Adams read a very appropriate address and presented the bride and groom with a miscellaneous shower on behalf of the guests. Mr. and Mrs. Cassidy thanked their friends for the gifts. A dainty lunch was served by the ladies and the remainder of the evening was spent in dancing.

Miss Reta Smith of the School of Nursing at Belleville General Hospital spent the week end at her home, Madoc.

Mr. William McMechan is visiting friends at Foxboro.

Ted Hailstone of R. C. A. F., London, is spending a few days at his home, Madoc.

Wellington Munro of R. C. A. F., Regina, is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Munro.

Dr. Crawford of New York City and Master Jim Crawford of St. Catharines, Ont., spent the week-end with relatives in Madoc.

Mme. Nungesser Killed

Paris, Nov. 5—Run down by a cyclist Mme. Marie Leonie Nungesser, 71 years old, the mother of the French flier, Captain Charles Nungesser, who disappeared in a trans-Atlantic flight attempt, died on her way to a hospital in the suburb of Nogent sur Marne. Mme. Nungesser was crossing a street and was struck by a 16-year-old bakery messenger.

Captain Nungesser disappeared in company with Francois Coli after they took off from Paris for New York May 8, 1927, in quest of the $25,000 Orteig prize, which Colonel Charles A. Linbergh won less than two weeks later.

Mme. Nungesser was the object of world-wide sympathy. Many visited her, including Colonel Lindbergh and Queen Elizabeth of the Belgians. The National War Mothers of America sent flowers as their tribute.

Canada's Finest Ingredients for CANADA BREAD Products

BAKERY PRODUCTS cannot be better than the ingredients composing them. Canada Bread Company Limited buys only the choicest of ingredients and attributes its success in the baking industry largely to this policy.

From inspected and sanitary dairies come the highest quality of pasteurized cream, milk and butter. From inspected poultry farms, having well bred and well fed hens, we secure our supply of fresh eggs.

The fruits, either fresh or dried, are the best quality that we can procure. In our bakery products there is available to you a great variety of fruits.

Malt, sugars, shortenings, flavorings, colorings, chocolates, are all of high quality and purchased from reliable sources.

The honey used is exclusively Clover Honey, which is light in color and excellent in flavor.

Our flour is milled from both Canadian soft and hard wheat. This flour is used separately or blended as the product requires.

Canada Bread's factories are constantly and closely inspected, and at all times are in a highly sanitary condition. Equipment in its plants is not only modern but highly efficient. Its baking is under the supervision of experienced bakers and competent chemists. It gives you a variety and quality of product that is favorably comparable to that produced in Canada or elsewhere.

Canada Bread is serving upwards of 700,000 people. If we are not serving you may we have that privilege?

Poise for Hands Beautiful

Perfect poise is one of Phyllis Brook's many charms.

By HELEN FOLLETT

WHAT ABOUT your hands? Are they reposeful or ever on the move? Perhaps you have never thought about that. Perhaps your fidgity fingers bother the members of your family. People have phobias like that.

Delicate nerves are located in the finger tips so that the sense of touch will be acute and keen. Individuals who fiddle with their fingers, dig up hangnails, fuss all the time with tresses or buttons are cursed with a nervous system that is not tranquil. Be patient with them. They are easily excited, their movements are quick and jerky. What they need is poise. They will get it by learning to relax.

Learn to Relax

They will tell you they can't relax, don't know how. They can learn, and their lives will be the happier for it.

If you are jittery, feel that life is kicking you around too fast, make it a rule to retire to your own room for half an hour each day. Lie down, close you reyes. Do some mental house cleaning. Chase out troublesome thoughts by welcoming pleasant ones. Think of quiet places, deep shadowy forests, sweet smelling fields. Let your mind drift. In half an hour you will enjoy a sense of refreshment and well being. What this will do to your countenance is beyond belief. It will erase the lines of care, bring color to the cheeks. Recommended to ladies of middle age who are life weary.

The victim of blackheads should not endeavor to press out these black points directly after the face has been washed or cream has been applied. The flesh is soft then, likely to be bruised.

By using a comedone extractor there will be less chance of a bruise. The extractor is a steel instrument bearing a tiny open circle which, placed over the blackhead, brings equal pressure to all sides.

After clearing away the horrid dot, bathe the face with warm water, dry gently, sponge lightly with a boric acid solution. Or put a few drops of alcohol on a moist cloth and give the epidermal coat a dry cleaning.

The Stars Say

For Wednesday, November 6

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

DIFFICULT and dubious situations are the auguries based on adverse positions of major planets. Although there are portents of many trying and stubborn issues, with things pulling, discordantly, both ways, yet good judgment, well-organized plans and efficient executive ability might switch menacing circumstances into profitable and gratifying channels.

Those whose birthday it is have a prophecy of a year in which their sound ideas, expansive urges, and fine abilities may assist them through dangerous shoals, where dogged and determined situations must be wisely navigated.

A child born on this day may have some definitely conflicting traits of character to be composed, having large and expansive aims as well and being actuated by grasping, crafty, selfish and morbid ideals. Yet a fine social sympathy should dominate eventually, giving popularity and prestige.

$350 in Pennies Collected in Picton For the Red Cross

Picton — The mile of pennies drive staged in Picton on Saturday will result in about 35,000 pennies for the Red Cross. Some who were unable to bring their contributions in that day are doing so this week.

This means that a total of $350 is likely to be realized—a wonderful showing since this represents an entirely free-will offering, despite numerous other appeals.

While the objective was a mile or 6,360 (large) pennies, the Picton War Emergency Committee, sponsors of the appeal, is very pleased with the result since over half-a-mile of pennies was received.

The result is all the more outstanding when it is considered that there were but two weeks to do necessary organization work and little opportunity for the public to save pennies. In addition, Red Cross boxes in all homes in Picton took many pennies.

The openenig ceremonies attracted a large crowd in the afternoon. Several hundred school children, carrying Red Cross banners and flags, Girl Guides, P.C.V.I. students, headed by the bugle band of Hastings and Prince Edward Regt., N.P.A.M., (kindness of Capt. W. G. Grothier), paraded from the market square. Cadets, smart in khaki ,formed a guard of honor in front of the Armouries. Massed against the building, the school children gave inspiring renditions of "O Canada" and "There'll Always be an England" directed by F. E. Walden.

Mayor N. McKibbon spoke of the great work the Red Cross, which relieves distress and suffering of not only those affected by war, but by fire, flood or famine or other causes. Mrs. George Haddon, President Picton W.E.C., expressed thanks to Carter Bros. for public address system and all who assisted in any way. Mayor McKibbon and Mrs. Haddon officially opened the drive by placing pennies. Phil Dodds, convener, acted as master of ceremonies. The National Anthem was followed by placing pennies by all taking part in the parade and there was a generous response. P.C.V.I. had donated their weekly copper collection and part of it was used to join the letters of the school. The Guides gave about 1,000 pennies. It was impossible to keep track of donations but several from rural schools were noted. Quite a number of persons donated a yard or two of coppers and one had one hundred pennies attached to a piece of adhesive tape.

That many had saved coppers for some time was revealed by the fact that included were pennies issued during the reign of Queen Victoria, King Edward, also two shillings and several English pennies.

Most of the donations were in coppers but some silver was given and this exchanged for coppers at the bank.

Due to a shower, the drive was cut short earlier than expected and the coppers placed in two sacks, these weighing over 175 pounds. The staff of the Bank of Nova Scotia did their bit by counting and parcelling the huge pile of pennies, a task made more difficult as most of them were damp as a result of the shower.

Give Child True Sense Of Liberty

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph.D.

Four years ago you and I were shocked to read in the newspapers that students of Harvard University booed a presidential candidate. Today we read of adults and youths, presumably of various levels of education, not only booing a presidential candidate but throwing fruit and eggs at him.

Year by year one hears more and more booing at games, fathers and mothers booing with their sons and daughters.

We, who with all our hearts believe in our democracy and are ready, if need be, to defend it with our lives, certainly do feel ashamed of these growing manifestations of disregard for law and order in our midst, under the guise of liberty and freedom. Are these symptoms that we the people of the United States are degenerating to a level too low to be fit for real democracy?

What to Do

Should anything be done about it? Can anything be done about it? Yes. But how?

By a shift of emphasis on values in our mode of education at home and school. For many years in these United States parents and teachers have been led to believe that freedom of speech and freedom of action are the basic virtues of education. Responsibility, self-sacrifice, respect for the rights of others and regard for constituted authority have had very minor places. As a result, our younger generation has the notion that democracy means freedom to do about as you please without regard to responsibility or the rights of others.

If we are going to continue to be a democratic nation, we shall have to restore our balance to a saner philosophy and practice of education at home and school. We shall turn our backs upon the prophets of no-restraint and of do-about-as-you-please.

No! No!

Beginning with the baby at home, his parents, if they want to help save democracy, will train him from the time he begins to toddle in some basic inhibitions, in the meaning of the precious word NO, and A of the alphabet of citizenship. Oh, yes, they will continue to encourage him to express himself but always with due regard for the rights of others.

Specifically, in relation to booing and more boorish conduct at games and other public gatherings, the school can do something right away. Let every teacher from the kindergarten upward indoctrinate the children in good manners, in self-control, in respect for the rights of others. With the fine development of student participation in the modern junior and senior high school, it should be relatively easy to cultivate a wholesome group attitude among the students so that no student would boo or do anything unsportsmanlike at a game or other public meeting without bringing down upon himself the condemnation of his fellows.

DR. DAFOE'S COLUMN on the Quintuplets and the Care of Your Children

Eating To Live

I don't think there is any argument about this: a great many persons shorten their lives by overeating. Probably more die of starvation or want of proper foods. You can, most assuredly, prolong your life by the way you select your diet and control the quantities you eat.

This is no new discovery by any means. Centuries ago, when man had none of our knowledge of vitamins, calories and such, and when there was a great deal less food for anybody ,it became a proverb: "Thou shouldst eat to live; not live to eat."

It is probably true that the majority of those who overeat do so not because of overpowering gluttony but simply as a matter of habit. They acquire bad eating habits at the family table in childhood and like so many other habits formed in childhood these are difficult to change in childhood.

In the average home, it appears, the food preferences or prejudices of the adults dictate the fare for the whole family. The children ape the parents in their manner of eating and the quantities they eat, although there is a great deal of difference between the food requirements of children and adults. If they don't eat as the parents think they should, i.e., like themselves, the latter are likely to get the idea that something is wrong with Johnny's appetite or that he needs urging to eat, with the result that he is stuffed with rich, tempting dainties and encouraged to get in the habit of stoking food like a lumberjack.

It is a good idea for children to have separate tables or mealtimes if it is possible for the homemaker to arrange it. It is much easier to develop proper food habits that way. The fact is, that left to decide for themselves, children are pretty sensible about their eating. If feeding the children separately means too much work for the homemaker then the food needs of the children should be given first consideration at the family table. In other words, the parents should eat in accordance with the children's requirements, instead of compelling the children to copy the adults' habits.

At the Dafoe Nursery, the Quintuplets have meals with adults, as part of their social training, but the adults are "guests" at the table. The diet is prepared to satisfy and please the Quintuplets, while supplying them with the elements they require for proper growth. However, this works no hardship on the adults. To the contrary, they get only proper foods at these meals, and since their servings are the same as the children's, they don't overeat.

An Unusually Well-Fitting Slip

By ANNE ADAMS

Pattern 4600

Many a slip you've seen, but none quite so well designed for comfort, fit and easy making as Pattern 4600. Expertly designed by Anne Adams, it brings news in a bias-cut panel down the BACK! A novel and practical feature that means superb freedom and "give" just where you need it most—for sitting, bending, and lifting. The rest of the skirt is straight grain to prevent any twisting or riding up, and meets the bodice in a very high point in front, leaving your waist and hips smooth and trim. There's a softness through the bustline, held in by darts above the waist-seam. The non-slipping, built-up shoulder straps are cut in one piece with the bodice. Don't miss the tailored panties.

Pattern 4600 is available in misses' and women's sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 30, 32, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44. Size 16, slip, takes 2¼ yards 39 inch fabric.

College Girls Enthuse Over New Sweaters

By ELEANOR ROSS

MOST important in any college girl's wardrobe are her classic sweaters. The freshman will be smart to take the advice of the more experienced and more critical upper classmen and select good classics in good yarns.

Thirteen girls from various types of colleges throughout the country came to New York to edit an important college edition of a magazine. While here they passed on the sweaters showed them. Here are notes about some of their enthusiasms:

A pull-over and cardigan set made in this country of imported Shetland wool, is fashioned exactly like the imports which have been college girls' favorites for years. Neither pull-over nor cardigan has shoulder or sleeve seams, the sleeves being so knitted that they are fashioned right into the body of the sweaters. The college board was thrilled to find that at last these beautiful sweaters are being made in this country—and will cost them much less than the imports. They all placed orders for these "finds" immediately.

East vs. West

Girls in Eastern colleges and colleges on the West coast want their sweaters to have long-sleeves—both pull-over and cardigan. The girls in the middlewest will take some short sleeve pull-overs.

Rainbow Choice

Short skirts are the vote for Eastern women's colleges—to be worn with cardigans and matching knee-length socks. One of the most attractive sets is a cable stitch cardigan and long-sleeve pull-over. The cardigan has a slit pocket for a monogram especially knitted into it. It is most popular in natural tan, the long socks matching, and worn with a short, gored skirt of Dixie clay.

The most popular colors for college classic sweaters are: natural, cadet blue, blossom blue, yellow, and flash red. New colors that are catching on and are in the ascendancy for college wear are lavender in several tones, such as mist violet, mauve, lilac and real lavender, Mexican turquoise, Mexican jade, cherry, crushed strawberry, bay leaf and Dixie clay.

Properly Sealed

A new classic cardigan that is scheduled for a big hit with coeds throughout the country this fall is a boxy English type sweater with the seal of the college imprinted on the buttons. In Poughkeepsie, girls can buy the cardigan with the seal of Vassar; in Minneapolis with the seal of the University of Minnesota; in Pittsburgh with the seal of Carnegie Tech, and so on. The seal stands out in white on buttons the color of the sweater.

The Coat Question

Give a girl a coat she can wear in all kinds of weather and over almost any type of costume, and you've given her the backbone of the campus wardrobe.

While your girl student is alive to fashion and knows what she wants and why along that line, she is a good bit more interested in the purely functional side of fashions than her post-deb sisters. A coat is a good looking object which protects a girl when it's cold or rainy, in the school book of fashion. It has to be casual, of fabric which hangs together long enough to tailor well, and should be freely cut so that it can cover a sweater or jacket and skirt with comfort.

Cape Style

For good measure, it should slide on over the shoulders, cape fashion, too, to make the full grade.

• • •

The trench coat, the semi-fitted reefer, the classic polo coat, are all popular basic coat styles for campus wear. The short jigger coat has its fans; few coats without set-in sleeves are chosen, whatever the length or cut, and coats with puffed shoulders, never.

Detachable Linings

Detachable linings which can be snapped in or out according to the weather or the sports project a coat may be sponsoring at the moment are of, common usage. This Winter one can expect to see both shawls and hoods used as great coat accessories.

"American Designers Create Clothes For The Average American Woman . . . ."

Says Dorothy Shaver

Dorothy Shaver, First Vice-President of Lord and Taylor, famous New York firm, was also the first person to realize the vitality of the work done by American dress designers, and the importance of giving these creators the recognition they deserve. Today names, such as Nettie Rosenstein, Elizabeth Hawes, Muriel King, Brigance, Germaine Monteil, are names to conjure with. Yet only a decade ago no one outside of "the trade" had ever heard of them. It took this dynamic personality to get the idea and once she had it, to set about with her characteristic enthusiasm to give it countrywide promotion and publicity. But, let her tell the story in her own words:

"Of course, we had all been wearing clothes made and designed here for years without giving them a thought. Back in the late 20's especially if you were connected with the ready-to-wear field, you felt just the least big apologetic wearing a nameless American garment in the presence of a Chanel or Vionnet or Molyneux. You know how it is—the grass is greener on the other side of the fence. An expert is always somebody from another firm—a designer somebody from France, England or Italy, but never by any chance from our own country. I had just finished an Exposition of Modern French Decorative Arts and was toying with the idea of doing an American one when it occurred to me that it was about time we recognized what a tremendously capable job this country was doing in turning out 'ready-to-wear.' Every little side street shop had chic wearable models. Every small town in the country had crisp, fresh, smart looking clothes that have somehow been translated into the American vernacular."

"I suddenly realised that we in this country had been slow to give credit where credit was due. After all, no human being can do his best work without encouragement and appreciation. Anonymity makes for unimaginative, mediocre, slipshod work. We all need the stimulation of praise, of recognition to develop our full capacities. Artists are especially sensitive to the need for recognition, approval. Like children, they have the impulse to say 'Look what I did.' This impulse is too valuable to stifle through neglect or through taking it for granted. It was high time, it seemed to me, that some one paid tribute to the excellent job our Designers had been doing all these years. So, to work on the idea I went."

Dorothy Shaver, First Vice President of Lord and Taylor

"What to do first. Well, it seemed to me that the life which the average woman leads is unique. Our climate, our custom, our clubs, even our types of beauty, differ from those of Europe, and it is only natural that our designers should be the ones to interpret our life as it is lived. The greater freedom of the women in this country, her varied activities, especially her love of sport, her omipresence in business—created a need for a very definite, almost, classic, type of clothes. And it was this average woman that our own manufacturers had been interpreting so successfully."

"So then we started ferreting out the good designers—beginning with the sports field, because in this field our designers had no equals, even in Paris. It was tough going at first; the manufacturers were understandably afraid that if their designers were singled out and given publicity it would create problems within their organizations. But they were all big enough to see what it would mean for the industry.

"After the first successful launching of these designers the ice was broken and we met with no resistance. The thing that we had to do thereafter was keep the idea alive by constant promotion, by window displays, fashion shows until it had enough vitality, enough public acceptance to keep going on its own. For ten years running—all through the depression—I never failed to add at least seven new names to the American Designer roster each year."

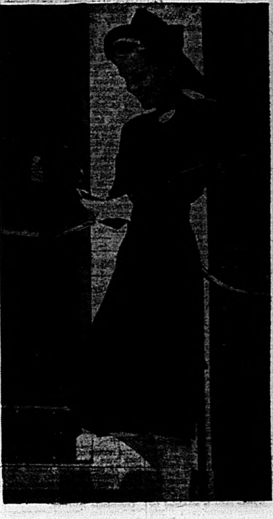
"You know, of course, all these years in the organization with which I am associated we had maintained a designing staff, covering various fields, from which a goodly number have graduated as designers with studios of their own, notably in the home furnishings and decorating fields. One of our best known designers, Brigance, is famous from coast to coast for his bathing suits. In fact, he even made the Riviera with his fashions. Nora Corbin who works on our "Younger Crowd" and "Little Girl" fashions too has won national recognition. In the field of decoration, Pahlmann, whose reputation was made through his bold welding of modern with the rococo, is known from coast to coast."

"The rest is an old story. Since November 1928, we have discovered or promoted over 75 designers, not only in the ready-to-wear and fashion accessories fields, but in home furnishings and decorating fields. An outgrowth of this movement has been the Annual American Design Awards held in New York each year—four awards of $1,000 each are given for outstanding American designing."

"Yes, of course, I was thrilled to have leading fashion authorities hail the idea as a great movement that turned the course of fashion history. And, I was flattered to see retailers and manufacturers all over the country follow the idea."

Today, as Dorothy Shaver predicted, names like Brigance, Clarepotter, Nettie Rosenstein are bandied about as familiarly as the famous couturiers and artists of France.

And undoubtedly within the next few years, many more American designers will become famous for their original creations.



Sophisticated side-draped dress designed by Charles Armour. Of rayon crepe with fashion news in its slim, straight skirt.

It is the basic black dress which every woman needs for cooler weather and is the backbone of the chic fall and winter wardrobe.

The side draping is flattering to the well indented waistline. The dress pictured is typical of the simple but smart choices in all shops, and is probably the first fall addition that will be made to milady's costumes.

Hat and accessories in this particular case are all in black. The dress will, however, achieve new distinction later on in the season, if a complete change in the color tone of accessories is introduced.

Slimmer Skirt Lines Are Forecast For Fall

Autumn skirts will have an illusion of narrowness—forecasts top-flight designer Nettie Rosenstein, and no one is more instrumental in determining what America will wear than this ace of American designers.

From New York to California, Nettie Rosenstein is known as one of the "first ladies in the land of American design." And the title is rightfully hers. To her wholesale collections each season—held in the ivory white salon on 47th Street, Manhattan—come the buyers of the finest shops in the country. Champagne and folderol have no part in these openings—eyes are much too engrossed in giving the hundred or more models shown a close scrutiny.

Mrs. Rosenstein's rise to her present topnotch position is no story of luck or freak chance. Designing is almost as natural an instinct as breathing to her. She never had a sewing or a drawing lesson in her life. As a child, she made doll dresses. When she outgrew dolls, she made clothes for her friends and family, then went into business for herself—acquiring success enough to retire in 1927. But inactivity bored her and she went back to her beloved work—designing for a year and a half for the house of Corbeau—then opening her present house in 1931 right in the teeth of the depression.

Depression or no depression, instant success was again hers. For her formula is, in a word, perfectionism. Setting for herself the highest standards, she makes clothes dramatic without being theatrical, well bred without being quiet. With jewel-like care, she makes each one, cutting one at a time, using quantities of hand-work, sparing no time or trouble.

With the same pride that women asked for a Chanel or Vionnet, women today ask for a Nettie Rosenstein dress. For the same high tradition of dressmaking goes into them. Paris, Mrs. Rosenstein freely admits, has been her great inspiration. Up until the present conflict, she went two or three times a year to Paris to see the collections, buy frabrics, catch the spirit of French clothes. But French models were an inspiration only. She never copied them. There's no mistaking a Nettie Rosenstein dress—it has a recognizable quality of its own, the individual stamp of its author. Any one who has even worn one of her famous little black day dresses, suits, dinner-dresses or glamorous evening clothes swears by their perfectionism. They are cut superbly, they are never guilty of ostentation or flash-in-the-pan faddishness, and the chances are that they'll be worn three, four, five years. One may pay anywhere from $125 up for them—but a Nettie Rosenstein label in a dress is like the stamp "18 karat" in gold or "sterling" in silver.

For all her success, there's nothing of the temperamental primma donna about Mrs. Rosenstein. Dark-haired, slender, small in stature, she is serene and poised—sensitive to her finger tips. She works terrifically hard, often appearing at her office before her employees, unblushingly taking her work home with her, turning out in the course of a year some five or six hundred new and original designs.

Nettie Rosenstein, Famous American Fashion Designer at Work

World famous for exquisite clothes, Nettie Rosenstein likes to design fashions by draping them on a living model. Photographed here, she says fabrics are one of her best instructors.

Irvin Has Done Standout Job In Rebuilding the Canadiens Who Finished Last in 1940

Coach Hopes Team Will Come Back to Glories of Other Habitant Teams

9 NEW-COMERS

Five of the New Men Drafted From Amateur Teams This Season

(By The Canadian Press)

It has often been said that a coach is no better than his player material yet the argument doesn't seem to stand in the case of Dick Irvin, who guides the destinies of Montreal's National Hockey League Canadiens.

Canadiens have played only one game so far in the new season, but already it is being recognized that Irvin has done a standout job with the team that finished last in the 1939-40 season. Quietly but methodically he is rebuilding Canadiens, in the hope that they come back to the glories of other Habitant team of a decade ago.

Of the 17 men being carried now by Irvin, nine are newcomers. In addition, five of these new men performed in amateur ranks last season. Hockey fans undoubtedly would have to go through a lot of record books to find an instance where as many new men, particularly amateurs, were broken in at once with an N.H.L. club.

Battle Bruins to Draw

Yet Irvin tossed his team out on the ice at the Forum in Montreal on Sunday night against Boston Bruins and when it was all over the teams had battled to a 1-1 overtime draw. It was quite a feat, considering that Bruins have been rated by their Manager, Art Ross, as the best club ever to represent Boston in the N.H.L. and Ross has plenty of outside support in his contention.

Irvin says that this season's edition of Canadiens is the best-conditioned team he has ever seen start off an N.H.L. season and the customers were ready to believe him after the game against Bruins.

Canadiens play their second game of the season next Sunday at home against Chicago Black Hawks. The Hawks alone of the seven teams in the League have yet to get into regular play. They make their start in Chicago on Thursday against New York Americans.

One other game is scheduled for this coming Sunday, with New York Rangers playing at Detroit against the Red Wings, while on Saturday the Wings play at Toronto against the Maple Leafs.

MRS. J. WATSON RETAINS OFFICE

Ontario Ladies' Basketball Association Preparing for Busy Season

Toronto, Nov. 5 (CP)—Mrs. John Watson of Chatham will continue as President of the Ontario Ladies' Basketball Association, with Miss Bessie Thackeray of Chatham as Secretary. Mrs. Watson accepted a continuation of her term when no other nominations for the office were made at the annual meeting here Saturday night.

The other officers are all from Toronto. Miss Lois Branston, First Vice-President; Miss Rita Courtney, Treasurer; Miss Ruby Anderson and Mrs. Len Sommer, executive members; Mrs. Frank Branston, Honorary President.

The Ontario Church Association has stated that it is reaffiliating and entries are also expected from Peterborough, Belleville and Cobourg. Efforts will be made to secure affiliation of a Y.M.C.A. league comprising Galt, Guelph, Kitchener, Ingersoll, London, Brantford and St. Thomas.

PORT COLBORNE DEFEATS OSHAWA; BRIGHTS IN TIE

Tracey Shaw Ruled Off Bench and Maundrell Given Match Penalty for Arguing

RUNIONS IS HERO

Former Belleville Player Shows Class in 7 to 2 Victory

(By The Canadian Press)

If early games in the Ontario Hockey Association's senior series indicate anything of the shape of things to come, this winter should see some rousing battles in the seven-team circuit.

There was little fireworks as Toronto Marlboros and Niagara Falls Brights played a 1-1 tie at Niagara Falls but the misconduct penalties and banishment of a coach featured a rough, hard-hitting contest at Port Colborne in which the Sailors trounced Oshawa Generals 7-2.

Coach Tracy Shaw of Oshawa, returning to the league after a brief absence, was ordered from the bench in the second period after he had argued with referee Bert McCaffery. Shaw had gone on the ice protesting a penalty should be awarded after Thompson of Oshawa was hurt in a collision with Swanson of Port Colborne.

Maundrell Given Penalty

Maundrell of Oshawa was given a match misconduct penalty after a prolonged argument with the referee in the first period and Finkbeiner of Generals was handed a misconduct for arguing with McCaffery.

Doug Runions was outstanding for Port Colborne as he tallied twice.

Other Sailor scorers were Concessi, Hepworth, Leitch, Thompson and Swanson. Cooper and Covert counted for Oshawa.

Niagara Falls' tie lifted Brights to the league leadership with three points, one more than Port Colborne defeated by Brights Saturday. Stirling scored for Niagara Falls and Mair for Marlboros.

So far only four teams have seen action. Hamilton goes to St. Catharines tonight for the opening game for both teams. London, shifting to the O.H.A. from the Michigan-Ontario circuit, will play their first game Wednesday when they come to Toronto to tackle Marlboros.

SPORTING WORLD STARS DIVIDE AFFILIATIONS

Many Taking Active Part in Presidential Election Campaign

LOUIS FOR WILLKIE

Babe Ruth, Joe Dimaggio and Jim Braddock Plug for Roosevelt

By Al Colletti Canadian Press Staff Writer.

New York, Nov. 5 (CP)—Stars of the sporting world, the idols of millions of fans of boxing, baseball, football and track, have done their share to boost their respective candidates in a torrid presidential election campaign.

Many of them led campaigns of their own, "stumping" for President Roosevelt or for the Republican nominee, Wendell L. Willkie. Others have been satisfied merely to state their party affiliation, "sell" a few friends, and let it go at that.

The Sports Committee for Willkie, headed by sports writer Grantland Rice, ran full-page newspaper advertisements containing photographs and names of more than 200 sports stars and writers who favored Willkie.

Joe Louis, heavyweight boxing champion, came out for Willkie "because he stands for what is best for us colored people." Jesse Owens, former Indiana track star who was a sensation at the 1936 Olympics, rooted for Roosevelt and challenged Louis to debate the issues concerning "our people."

Tow-Ton For Roosevelt

Tony Galento, a former heavyweight title contender, declared Roosevelt would "beat this Willkie just as bad as I'll beat Joe Louis the next time I catch up with the bum."

"Believe it or Not" Bob Ripley made his Willkie affiliation clear by saying:-

"President Roosevelt has spent more in 7 2-3 years than the other 29 Presidents together spent in 135 years—Wilson's expenditures during the war excluded."

Jack Dempsey, former world heavyweight champion, and Benny Leonard, former lightweight champion, have led vigorous campaigns for Roosevelt.

Leading sport figures for Willkie included:-

Boxing—Joe Louis, Jack Johnson, Al McCoy, Artie McGovern, and Fritzie Zivic.

Baseball—Larry French, Chicago Cubs; Billy Werber, Jimmy Wilson, Bucky Walters, Ernie Lombardi, Cincinnati Reds; Bob Klinger, Pittsburgh Pirates.

Football—Nile Kinnick, All-American with Iowa 1939.

Golf—Craig Wood, Ben Hogan, Horton Smith.

Sculling—Joe Burk.

Track — Glen Cunningham.

Leading sport figures for Roosevelt included:-

Boxing—Max Baer, Mike Jacobs, Al Davis, Jim Braddock.

Baseball—Babe Ruth, Joe DiMaggio.

Tony Lee Wins Classified Pace

Toronto, November 5.—Tony Lee, son of Markfast and owned by E. Morris of LaCrosse, Wis., occupied the feature role at Dufferin Park Monday as harness racing was conducted under ideal weather conditions for the second day of the fall and winter racing season.

Tony Lee won all three heats of the Classified Pace, first race on the program. He was driven by his owner and paced the mile heats in the fast times of 2:19, 2.20 and 2.18 3-4 in his final effort.

Abbe Patch, from the stable of C. W. Hodgson of Haliburton, was his chief rival, finishing in second place in two heats and third in the other.

The feature race of the day, the 2:12 trot for a purse of $250, saw eight face the barrier and Mr. Harriman, making his first start in Toronto for the local stable of Hillock & Harvey, proved best when he accounted for the last two heats in handy fashion. Laurel Watts from the barn of C. J. Fowler of Kingston, won the other event.

RANGERS TAKE OPENER FROM LEAFS 4-1.

Goalie Dave Kerr of the Rangers had to stand on his head to save on this shot from Gus Marker of the Leafs in their opening game at Toronto. The Rangers took the game 4-1, scoring three goals in quick succession in the dying minutes of the game. Marker was injured during the second period when he received a gash on the head that required seven stitches. He came back on the ice with his head turbaned in yards of gauze and a towel.

BUT THE CROWN STAYED ON

The middleweight crown (recognized by New York's boxing commission) tottered and almost toppled from the august brow of veteran ringster Ken Overlin as he was dropped to the canvas by Steve Belloise, in sixth round of their 15-round title bout at Madison Square Garden — but the crown stayed put. Ken won the battle on decision.

MICHIGAN RATED THIRD IN POLL

New York, Nov. 5.—(AP)—The football season is near the home stretch, and so is the race for the No. 1 position of the Associated Press ranking for the 1940 United States campaign.

It's Cornell, Minnesota, Michigan and the Texas Aggies in the first four places this week, with only 375 points separating first place from fourth. Two major contests Saturday will eliminate one or more of these leaders, as Minnesota and Michigan clash at Minneapolis and Texas A. and M. plays Southern Methodist, which is strong enough to win 14th place on the week's list.

The more certain indication that the "championship" race is being narrowed is found, however, in the first place votes. The 178 experts who participated in the fifth weekly poll gave one or more points to 30 teams, but only seven were mentioned for first place. Cornell received 119 of the 178 first-place votes. Minnesota drew 18, and was rated second by 82 experts. The Aggies received 14 firsts and Michigan and Tennessee, 11 each. Stanford received three and Boston College, two. On the point system, it was much closer, with 1,560 for Cornell, 1,420 for Minnesota, 1,258 for Michigan and 1,185 for Texas A. and M.

CALLING 'EM

Between the Lines

with Ken J. Colling

The hunting season is almost at its apex, the deer hunting season having opened in North Hastings yesterday. November is always considered the paradise month for the Ontario nimrods, but it is always a season when accidents dominate the Press news of the day. However we might remind hunters that there is no such a thing as an "accident" where a loaded gun is concerned. All such so-called accidents are carelessness, pure and simple, and these can be no excuse brought forward for them.

Here are a few suggestions along the lines of hunting "NEVERS." For instance never bring a loaded gun into your hunting camp; never point the muzzle of a gun towards any person; never stand a loaded gun where it might be knocked down and never fire at an object you can't see, it might be a friend. The majority of deer hunters know all this and they take no chances, but the younger men are apt to forget with serious results when something happens. Then comes the age-old excuse of it being an accident.

So remember again—there is no such a thing as an accident with a loaded gun; it is all a matter of carelessness and the careless hunter is a menace to his fellow-hunters.

Do you remember when Seabiscuit, king of the handicap division on American tracks won the Riggs Handicap in track-record time at Pimlico three years ago today? The California - owned colt did the 1 3-16 miles in 1:57 2-5, clipping three-fifths of a second from the old mark. He also regained top-money position, bringing his total earnings for the year to $167,142.50.

Tomorrow the B.C.I. & V.S. gridders conclude their 1940 Senior Interscholastic group football schedule when they meet Albert College on the latter's campus gridiron. The result of the game means little, except to keep the "scarlet scourge" undefeated season's record intact. In order to provide Coach Baker's squad with stronger opposition before they launch upon the C.O.S.S.A. playdown campaign, Coach Pete Beach may ask permission to use two or three over-age football players, who are now attending Albert, for this final group contest. The local Collegians haven't lost a game in three starts and clinched the group title versus Cobourg last week. In three games the "scarlet scourge" scored 55 points and held their opposition to three points in three games. Albert scored one in one game and Cobourg two in two contests.

Bowmanville High won the Lake Shore honours and are awaiting to meet the Belleville squad in the district C.O.S.S.A. playdowns. In past years controversy was heard regarding home and home games in the Interscholastic playdowns with the result the C.O.S.S.A. voted all such play-offs should be sudden death games played on neutral grounds where the schools could not mutually agree otherwise. The winner between Bowmanville and Belleville must be declared on Nov. 23rd, the ultimate victor of this series to be ready to play in the C.O.S.S.A. finals at Toronto on Nov. 30th next. Coach Baker's team would like to arrange a home and home game series with Bowmanville High with total points on the round to count and decide the winner.

Transporting a football squad to Toronto with no chances of remuneration possible, runs into big money. However, if the home and home series with Bowmanville could be mutually arranged, the winning squad would derive sufficient revenue to assist in the defraying of their expenses into the final championship game at Toronto. There is a period of over two full weeks in which the Bowmanville and Belleville squads could complete a two-game series before meeting the winner of the Niagara District-Georgian Bay sectors in the finals and it sounds like good business on the part of both schools to arrange the series, as being brought forward by Coach Baker and his cohorts.

Did you know that six present-day major league managers have piloted one or more teams to a world's championship during their careers. The sextette inculdes Joe McCarthy of the Yankees, Connie Mack of the Athletics, Bill McKechnie of the Reds, Bucky Harris of the Senators, Bill Terry of the Giants and Frankie Frisch of the Pirates.

Harris, Terry and Frisch achieved their goals in their first complete year at the helm. Harris, Washington's "boy manager" at the time, led the Senators to their first world's championship by defeating John McGraw's New York Giants in 1924. Terry, in his initial complete campaign as McGraw's successor, defeated Washington for the world's title in 1933, triumphing over another first-year skipper, Joe Cronin. Frisch's triumph came in 1934, with the St. Louis Cardinals, after he had taken over in August, 1933, over Detroit, the last victory for the National League.

McCarthy's initial World's Series conquest took place in 1932, his second year in command of the Yanks. Mack's first world title came in 1910, his tenth year on the job, and McKechnie's in 1925, his third full season as a pilot.

HEATING PROBLEM IRKS FRENCHMEN

Cold Weather Causes Much Discomfort Because of Fuel Scarcity

By ROY P. PORTER
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Paris (Via Berlin, Delayed), Oct. 30 (AP)—Cold weather struck unheated France this week.

With coal supplies almost exhausted and most office buildings and public establishments without heat, Parisians shivered and donned more clothing. Electric radiators, virtually the only heating facilities available, were at a premium.

Parisians with friends at the few hotels and buildings which are heated huddled in groups around radiators.

French authorities announced plans have been completed for rationing coal—scarce because of transport difficulties resulting from the war—but tickets will not be available for several weeks.

Families of one through three persons, 110 pounds.

Families of four through five persons, 165 pounds.

Families of six through seven persons, 265 pounds.

Families of eight through nine persons, 320 pounds.

Families above nine persons, 430 pounds.

Possession of coal tickets is no guarantee that coal will be delivered, however, because deliveries are contingent upon a dealer's supplies and his ability to transport the coal.

The government has urged families to conserve fuel by closing off most of their houses and gathering in one or two rooms to make fullest possible use of coal for heating and cooking.

Counterfeiters Avoided World's Fairs in 1940

Washington, Nov. 5 (AP)—Counterfeiters avoided the World's Fair this year, for the most part. The secret service said that out of approximately $68,400,000 spent at the New York fair, $157 of counterfeit bills and $587.66 of counterfeit coins were found. At the San Francisco Fair, where visitors spent approximately $8,900,000, counterfeit found totalled $20 in bills and $40.20 in coins.

HOW TO OVERCOME ITCHING PILES

If you are annoyed with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not neglect the same or run the risk of an operation. Any itching, soreness or painful passage of stool, is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once. For this purpose get from J. S. McKeown or any druggist, a package of Hemroid and use as directed. This formula, which is used internally, quickly relieves the itching and soreness and aids in healing the sore, tender spots. Hemroid is highly recommended, is easy to use and it seems the height of folly for anyone to risk an operation when a simple remedy, which is so pleasant to use may be had at such a reasonable cost. Colored Field Service Cap Now Authorized For All Ranks

Ottawa, Nov. 5 —(CP)— Color is coming back into the Canadian army.

Through the colored field service cap, now authorized for all ranks, men of the Canadian Active Service Force and Non-Permanent Active Militia are enabled to add a touch of color to their khaki outfits when off duty.

The colored field service cap is a wedge-shaped cap, identical except for color with the wedge cap now worn by all troops on active service with their battle-dress uniforms.

It is strictly optional and may be worn only off duty. Every unit in the Canadian army may select a color design and when it has been approved by National Defence headquarters men of the unit may buy the colored cap and wear it.

The cap has been proving a bit of a headache to the Ordnance Branch of the Department of National Defence because it has been assigned the duty of approving designs for the various Canadian military units.

50 Units Submit Designs

So far more than 50 units have submitted cap designs and have been authorized to use the cap of their choice. Defence headquarters says there is no general indication yet how the idea is catching on with the troops, but some officers and men are wearing the new caps now.

The authorization of regimental colored field service caps for all ranks gives all soldiers the privilege hitherto enjoyed by men in Highland battalions of wearing fancy head gear when off duty. Since introduction of the battle dress, Highland units have worn khaki tam o'shanters instead of the wedge cap but they are authorized to wear the Glengarry cap when off duty.

The only units still without a special cap for off-duty wear are the tank regiments and the Irish Regiment of Canada, Toronto. The tank corps wears a black beret on all occasions. The Irish wear a green cap, something like a tam o'shanter, for both service and off-duty occasions.

"Sing, Dance, Plenty Hot"
"The Secret Seven"

When Billy Gilbert took up sleuthing, he had to become an Egyptian princess and a hoofer on the same job! No, the popular sneeze comedian hasn't changed careers, but in his latest picture, "Sing, Dance, Plenty Hot," the musical comedy now showing at the McCarthy Theatre, he plays the role of undercover man for the New York Public Welfare organization and ties himself up in all kinds of knots to get his man.

To get the goods on a producer who is using his talents to collect the profits or benefit performances Gilbert becomes a hoofer and actor in one of the crook's productions. By the time he is finished, he finds himself in a torrid love affair with Vera Vague, one of the rich old maid sisters whose show the racketeer is handling and from there, Gilbert's pursuits lead him to the home of an Egyptian princess, where he waylays his victim who has come to fleece the unsuspecting princess. In an Egyptian costume, with black wig, veil and headdress of heavy pearls, Gilbert does an original Egyptian dance which is one of the high spots of the picture.

Swell Detective Story

Also now showing at the McCarthy Theatre, "The Secret Seven," featuring Florence Rice, Barton MacLane and Bruce Bennett, in a new and different type of detective story certain to be thoroughly enjoyed by every patron. Latest Fox News events is presented in addition to both features at all performances and this evening complete announcements will be made from the stage of the United States election returns.

AT THE BELLE

"Strike Up The Band"

"Strike Up The Band" brings Mickey Rooney, Judy Garland, June Preisser and other clever youngsters to the screen in another lilting musical of youth, their first since their smash hit in "Babes in Arms."

The youngsters organize a school band and stage an uproarious travesty on old-time melodrama with the "corny" ditties of long ago. Judy sings such modern song hits as "Nobody" and "Our Love Affair." Mickey contributes a comical drum solo and other pranks, June Preisser dances and imitates Anna Held in "I Just Can't Make My Eyes Behave," and the dramatic climax is a radio contest with Paul Whiteman appearing in person, which the youngsters win with a rendition of Gershwin's "Strike Up The Band" embellished by clever musical specialties by the principals.

The broadcast climax featuring Gershwin's "Strike Up the Band" and a musical medley including Mickey's strenuous drum solo, brings the mirth to a close in a blaze of harmony. Busby Berkeley's deft direction of "Babes in Arms" repeats itself in "Strike Up The Band."

The Belle news of the day, precedes the feature attraction.

Judy Garland and Mickey Rooney in the star-studded whirlwind musical show, "Strike Up The Band," featuring Paul Whiteman and his orchestra and June Preisser, now on the Belle screen.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Spring Parade"

Universal picture directed by Henry Koster.

The players: Deanna Durbin, Mischa Auer, Robert Cummings, Henry Stephenson, S. Z. Sakall, Butch and Buddy, Walter Catlett, Anne Gwynne, Allyn Joslyn, Peggy Moran and Reginald Denny.

At the Capitol with a daily matinee.

Set in Austro-Hungary in the colorful pre-war days, when Vienna was still the gayest city in the whole of Europe, when strains of Strauss waltzes filled the air, "Spring Parade" relates simply the tale of Ilonka, a peasant girl, who set out to market to see a goat and ended up a few days later in the glittering court of Emperor Franz Josef. A fortune teller had much to do in influencing Ilonka's actions. She knows, for instance, that she will meet her husband-to-be in Vienna, that he will be an artist, that a powerful person will aid her and that love will hit her with a stick. Thus when soldier-musican Robert Cummings knocks her on the head with his baton after a meeting between them has been arranged by the emperor, she knows it must be love.

Mischa Auer shares billing next to the young star, but his part is extremely brief, occupying only a few minutes at the beginning when he, as a Hungarian peasant, dances with Deanna at the fair. The outstanding member of the supporting cast is probably S. Z. Sakall, playing the part of the Baker who befriends Ilonka and takes her to Vienna in the first place. Robert Cummings, no newcomer to Durbin pictures, is adequately dashing and handsome as the young soldier, while Anne Gwynne makes an attractive young shop girl. There is, too, the juvenile comedy team of Butch and Buddy, late of the "Underpup," who might have been left on the cutting room floor without disappointing this column.

"Spring Parade" is a welcome addition to the already long list of Durbin hits.

The added delights on this program are "Spills and Thrills" a comedy and a Popeye cartoon.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was opening some old letters in a box and reading them, saying to pop, My my, Willyum, those were the days. Here's a letter you wrote me when we were just barely engaged, I mean our engagement hadn't even been announced yet, she said.

Maybe I hadn't even heard about it myself yet, pop said, and ma said, Some of the expressions you use, my my, the pictures and memories they call up, let me read you a little of it.

Never mind, thanks, my memories and pictures are doing very well, pop said. By gollies I'll never forget the terrific argument we had one time about whether men are more prompt than women in keeping appointments, or vice virtue. It was terrific, it almost ended in a lasting separation. Anyway we had an appointment the following evening to meet downtown for a little dining and dancing, and we were both still boiling over with injured righteousness, and you showed up 20 minutes late to teach me a lesson and you still had to wait ten minutes for me, because I was half an hour late to teach you a lesson. So in a moral sense you won the argument after all, because you were prompter than I was, even against your will. You were right as usual, my deer, pop said, and ma said, Is that the only memory the old days call up for you, for land sakes?

Not at all. I have a thousand of them, pop said. Do you remember the official announcement of our engagement Ah, that was an evening. It was at your house and practically everybody was there, and right in the mist of the ceremonies there seemed to be a sudden beautiful lighting effect, but it was only your face breaking out in a gorgeous case of hives, he said, and ma said, Now Willyum that's enough, even a babbling brook knows enough not to get monotonous.

And she kept on reading her letters to herself.

BRITISH ACT QUICKLY

Gorakhpur, India, Nov. 5 (CP-Reuters)—Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru one of two men chosen by Mohandas K. Gandhi to make anti-war speeches as part of a 'Nationalist plan of "limited civil disobedience" was sentenced today to "four years of rigorous imprisonment."

First to defy the law with anti-war speeches was Vinoba Bhave, sentenced Oct. 21 to three months' imprisonment.

Nehru refused to testify at his trial on charges brought under the Defence of India Act.

Joe E. Brown and Frances Robinson who will be seen next at the McCarthy Theatre in the Brown Bomber's biggest laugh hit, "So You Won't Talk?". "The Five Little Peppers in Trouble" will be the companion feature.

"THE GORGON'S MASK"

by Van Wyck Mason

CHAPTER SIX.

Captain North, for reasons of his own, leaned suddenly forward with so menacing a glare in his deep-set eyes that the other flinched.

"Don't lie any further!" he blazed. "Haven't you done enough harm? The Department knows and I know that both you and Major Cross have made great monkeys of yourselves over an adventuress called Nadia Stefan."

Up sprang Lieutenant Clark, his face livid above the white collar of his uniform and his eyes lit with a frantic glare.

"By Jupiter! You can't — you — I won't—"

North's manner was calm, frigid—and effective. Yes, the boy had it bad!

"Sit down, Lieutenant," he snapped. "So you DO care for her—in spite of the fact that she is causing your disgrace. She must be pretty clever to take in two officers of the D.C.I."

Imperturbably he checked a frenzied expostulation on the part of the now heavily perspiring lieutenant. "We'll grant that you've not told this woman Departmental secrets nor have you been actively disloyal; but the point is that she's persuaded you to let this business here in Honolulu slide along until we're trembling on the brink of war."

Then the intelligence captain leaned forward. "Now listen to me, Clark, and don't lay your ears back!" he added when he saw the younger man's jaw creep forward and his powerful hands close.

"Don't you know you're about to be dismissed from the service?"

The thought was evidently a sobering one, for Clark relaxed abruptly and passed a shaking hand over his damp and sunburned forehead while he stared emptily out of the window. After a while Clark spoke in the colorless voice of despair:

"Oh, I've been an awful fool, Captain. But you don't know what Nadia's like." He held out broad, pleading hands. "I knew what she was—and, honest, I fought with myself, but—" The speaker's heated features quivered, and an almost fanatical enthusiasm entered his voice. "She's exquisite—she just scrambles your emotions into such a mess that, without her help, you can't straighten them out again."

It was hard for Hugh North to restrain the pity this outburst had inspired in him; but . . . somewhere that Japanese squadron was steaming swiftly, inexorably, towards Honolulu.

"Look here," he said succinctly, "pull yourself together and tell me all that's known here about this Transpacific matter. It broke while I was down on some business in Panama, and I haven't had time to learn anything."

Lieutenant Clark raised a somber, quivering face." I—I guess I've been kind of crazy, Captain. But believe me, I'll try to make up for it."

The cigarette between Clark's fingers trembled more than a little.

"Well, Lieutenant," said North. "I gather things are going from bad to worst here in Oahu?"

"They are, sir," burst out Clark, with an abrupt change of mood evoked by North's friendly manner. "In fact they're going bad so rapidly, that unless you can do something, the war will be on inside of forty-eight hours."

"What do you mean, Lieutenant?"

Clark flushed a little. "Somebody is deliberately stirring up that trouble in China."

"The Transpacific business?"

"Yes, sir," said Clark, losing some of his uneasiness and hitching eagerly forward on his chair. "The Japs seemed to have had old Marshal Wang Tso Kin pretty well licked when, late in April, suddenly he came back to life again. We were told that he'd bought two more irregular armies and was back on the war path."

North's narrow dark brow contracted a little.

"Late in April? Where did Wang suddenly find money to hire those new troops? You tried to find out, I suppose?"

Lieutenant Clark replied lamely that he had not. "Major Cross and I got orders to see if we could locate anyone here who might be backing Wang."

"Why here?"

"This is the American jumping-off place for Asia, you know."

"But you didn't," grimly supplemented North, and after stripping off his coat he absently loosened his necktie, for the night had become warm. "You botched the job. Suppose we start all over. Begin with the early stages of this business. I didn't hear much of it in the Panama jungles."

Lieutenant Clark flicked the ash from his half-smoked cigarette and meditatively fixed his eyes on the ceiling.

"Well, sir, the trouble all began, let's see—well, a month ago. Know China at all?"

Captain North smiled a little beneath his short military moustache.

"A little, Lieutenant. I spent the better part of two years in and about Peking."

"Then you'll know where Talingho is?"

"On the Ichow River, isn't it? About two hundred miles north of Peking?"

"They call it Peiping, now, sir," corrected Clark apologetically.

"Peiping, then," North agreed solemnly. "I'm old-school, Lieutenant, but I know Talingho isn't far from the Chihli-Manchurian border."

"Yes, sir" Clark said nervously and his unhappy eyes again sought the ceiling, where a small green lizard was playing havoc with drowsy house flies. "You see, Captain, the Department first began to get suspicious when this mysterious Transpacific Company suddenly bought a played-out iron mine."

"Are you sure the mine IS played out?"

"Absolutely, sir," replied Clark.

Up sprang Lieutenant Clark, his face livid, his eyes glaring at Nevins. "By Jupiter! You can't—you—I won't—"

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Nov. 5—(CP) — Prices maintained an even keel through the early period on Toronto Exchange today with trading quiet most of the time. Action picked up later, resulting in turnover of 136,000 shares. The New York market was closed for the U.S. elections and in the absence of leadership from Wall Street prices here were dull.

Preston became active again in the early afternoon and the price advanced five cents to a new high at 3.15. Kerr-Addison, Chesterville and San Antonio were other features. Base Metals boarded few changes and Western Oils were steady.

NEW YORK
Closed—Election Day

LIVESTOCK

Toronto, Nov. 5 (CP). — Cattle trade was very dull with prices about steady up to mid-session on the livestock market here today. Lambs and calves were steady. No price was established for hogs. Sheep were lower. The cattle holdover from Monday was 3,400 head.

The cattle supply included 1,500 stockers.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Marketing Service were: Cattle 910, calves 490, hogs 1,200, sheep and lambs 1,060.

Prices in the cattle section were: Butcher steers and heifers $5-$7.25, butcher cows $4.-$5.50, canners and cutters $3-$3.75, butcher bulls $5-$5.50, bologna bulls $4-4.75, fed calves $8-$10.50, stockers slow at $5-$7.

Veal calves sold at $10-$11 for choice with common heavies selling downward to $6.

Lambs sold at $9-$9.25 for good ewes and wethers, $8-$8.25, for heavies and bucks and $7-$8 for culls.

Sheep sold at $5.50 for good westerns with common sheep selling downward to $3.

Hogs closed previously at $8.50 liveweight and $11.40 dressedweight and sows at $5-$5.50 dressedweight.

Montreal, Nov. 5 (CP). — Prices ruled steady in early trade on the Montreal livestock markets today, according to the Dominion Department of Agriculture.

Receipts — Cattle 287, sheep and lambs 377, calves 212, hogs 1,338.

Today's receipts were made up of mostly common quality cows and bulls. A few good cows sold up to $5.50 and common butcher cows from $3.75-$4.35. Canners and cutters were $2.50-$3.50 and common bulls $3.50-$4.35.

Veal calves ranged from $8.50-$11 with one choice calf up to $11.50. Bulk of the veals were between $9.50-$10.50. Drinkers were $5.50-$8 and grassers $4.25-$5.

Good ewes and weathers were $9.50 with culls and bucks picked out at $7.50. Sheep brought $3.50-$6.

Hogs remained unchanged at $11.30 for B-1 dressed, $8.50 for B-1 alive fed and watered and $8.65 off truck. Group "A" drew $1 premium with discounts on off grades. Sows were $5-$6.25.

Egg Prices Rise

Toronto—Continued light offerings and good demand combined to push fresh egg prices still higher on the Toronto open produce market yesterday. Prices to shippers for graded lots advanced 2 cents a dozen, with Government inspected shipments commanding a 1 cent premium, and retail prices gained 1 cent a dozen.

With Canadian production now around the lowest level for the current season, storage egg stocks are being drawn on to meet requirements and this, together with the recently heavy export shipments, gives promise of an early clean up in storage egg holdings. The movement of storage eggs overseas is reported to be tapering off and contracts are nearing completion. Inspections for export for the week ended Oct. 26 amounted to 9,500 cases.

A strong underlying trend kept the butter market firm in the face of slow buying yesterday. Some of the trade are inclined to stay on the sidelines to see if the marked improvement in the statistical position of the market indicated in the nine-cities' report is borne out by the all-Canada figures to be released about the tenth of the month. First-grade Ontario creamery solids sold at 30 cents a pound. Prints to the retail trade were 1 cent higher at 31½ cents to 32 cents, while buyers raised churning cream 1 to 2 cents to the range of 29 cents to 30 cents for No. 1 grades on truck country points.

Montreal Produce.

Montreal, Nov. 5 — Produce market prices here, as reported by the Dominion Department of Agriculture, follow:

Butter—First grade creamery prints, jobbing price, 31c-31½c; first grade solids, jobbing price 30½c-31c.

Eggs—Graded shipments in used free cases, selling price, A-large, 46c; A-medium, 44c; A-pullets, 33c-34c; B, 27c-28c; C, 19½c-20c. (Prices are nominal.) Receipts, 163 cases.

Mother and Twins May Come to Canada Before Long

Sackville, N.B., Nov. 5 (CP)—Dr. George J. Trueman, President of Mount Allison University, said today he and Mrs. Trueman are hoping their daughter-in-law, Mrs. A. A. G. Trueman, and her twin sons will come to Canada before long. The twins were born last Thursday in Lincoln, England, two months after their father, PO. A. A. G. Trueman, was killed in action.

PO. Trueman joined the Royal Air Force early in 1938 and was killed in action last September at the age of 25.

GERMAN SOON CAPTURED AFTER LEAVING CAMP

Arrested in Toronto Railway Station 16 Hours After Escaping From Internment Camp

A NAVAL OFFICER

Toronto, Nov. 5 (CP)—A man identified as Gunther Kray, a German naval officer who escaped yesterday from an internment camp in Central Northern Ontario was taken into custody this morning in the Toronto Union Station. He was arrested by a Toronto detective and was said to have reached the city by train.

Kray was taken into custody by Detective John Nimmo after police received a report from a Toronto hotel that a man had asked for some change for English currency. The district was searched and Kray was located at the railway station.

Nimmo said that the man failed to produce a registration card and said he was an Englishman. Kray made no resistance. He was said to have ridden to Toronto on a passenger train.

Interviewed by Newsmen

Interviewed by newspapermen at police headquarters, Kray said he "crept into a packing case yesterday afternoon, and the case was later nailed up and carried out to a freight train by civilians".

"When they had gone I kicked the board off, went to the ticket office, bought a ticket and hung around until the early morning train for Toronto. I boarded it and was waiting for another train to take me to Montreal when I was arrested. I hoped to hitch-hike from Montreal across the border and then go to the German Embassy in New York".

Dressed in Civilian Clothes

Kray, 30, was dressed in civilian clothes he brought with him. He was rescued from waters off Narvik, Norway, by men of the British Destroyer Foxhound after his German destroyer had been sunk by H.M.S. Warspite.

"I've had my little joke, had a little freedom and seen a bit of the outside world", Kray told newspapermen.

The prisoner spoke English well and said he had spent some time in New York when he was a member of the German merchant marine prior to joining the German navy in 1932. He said he had been free for approximately 16 hours when captured.

The prisoner added that he was a torpedo officer in charge of a special detail on a warship in the Battle of Narvik when he was taken prisoner and brought to Canada after a short time in an English prison camp.

PARLIAMENT HILL COMES TO LIFE

Members Gather for Prorogation and Get Ready for Opening of New Session Thursday

By C. R. BLACKBURN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Nov. 5 (CP).—Parliament Hill came to life today after three months of quiet as members of the House of Commons gathered for prorogation of parliament and to prepare for opening of the new session Thursday.

Electric polishers whirred and vacuum cleaners droned as marble floors and carpets were cleaned for this afternoon's prorogation formalities. A squad of cleaners went about putting the last touch of polish and shine on the brasswork.

Speaker and Clerk Busy.

Speaker J. A. Glen and the Clerk of the House of Commons, Dr. Arthur Beauchesne, were the two busiest men on Parliament Hill with arrangements for the prorogation which is so closely associated with the opening of a new parliament.

Dr. Beauchesne is also acting as sergeant-at-arms in the absence on service overseas of Lt.-Col. Milton Gregg, V.C.

Col. Gregg's office has been turned over to Revenue Minister Colin Gibson in the re-shuffle of quarters incidental to the addition of new departments of government.

Navy Minister Macdonald has been given a first floor suite just off the main rotunda, in rooms formerly occupied by private members.

All Seats Filled.

The House meets with all seats filled. Four vacancies were filled in by-elections held Aug. 19 and the members will be introduced this afternoon. They include Navy Minister Macdonald.

Because they were elected at a time the House was technically in session these members have been titled to pay at the rate of $20 a day since Aug. 19, although they will not have entered the chamber until this afternoon.

In the Senate there are three vacancies, all created by death, two in Quebec and one in Saskatchewan. Usually senate vacancies are filled on the eve of opening of a regular session but it is rumored these will not be filled until after Christmas recess.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King held a cabinet council at noon, presumably discussing the program to be outlined in the speech from the throne to be read at Thursday's opening of the second session of the nineteenth parliament.

BABY NOT WITH COUPLE SEEN ON NIGHT JULY 25TH

Accused McFarland Identified as Being With 'Girl' on Trenton-Glen Miller Road at 11.45

"CARED FOR CHILD"

Mrs. Alice Archer McFarland had danced around the radio on the morning of July 26th., the day when the wirebound body of her son, Gordon Archer, was found floating in the Trent River, Mrs. M. McFarland, Frankford, mother of Robert McFarland, now on trial for the murder of the infant, told a Supreme Court jury today.

Three witnesses testified to "picking up a young couple" on the Trenton-Glen Miller highway between 11 and 12 o'clock on the night of July 26th. All testified that the couple had no baby with them.

Mr. Justice Keiller MacKay is presiding with Crown Prosecutor W. Martin and Crown Attorney Gordon Robertson conducting the prosecution, and E. Ormonde Butler, appearing for the accused.

Two other witnesses testified to the accused showing great interest in the baby previous to his marriage and of his intentions to provide a home for it.

Did Not Know of Son's Marriage

Mrs. McFarland, mother of the accused, told the jury she did not know of her son's marriage until July 12, nor had she known his wife had a baby until it was revealed in a Trenton police court. They had resided with her from July 12th. until July 26th.

They had arrived home about 11.30 or 11.45 p.m., July 25th., had a lunch and went to bed.

The next morning they arose, had breakfast, and "Alice had danced around the radio while it played." After that they had gone to work at the Bata Shoe Company. She did not see them again.

The discovery of the baby's body floating in the water near the Grand Trunk bridge, was told by James Thow, C.N.R. employee. He had notified fellow workmen, and later the police. Cross examined by defence counsel, Thow told the court stones could be thrown into the water from both sides of the track.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Johnson, of Trenton, the latter a sister of Alice Archer McFarland, told the jury of the visit of the McFarlands and their baby at their home on the night of July 25th. They arrived at 7 p.m., had supper and left at 9.30, taking the baby with them.

Offered to Keep Baby

Mrs. McFarland and her baby had resided with them since February 2nd. and they had grown to care for the child to such an extent that they offered to keep it for Mrs. McFarland.

Johnson told the court that he had told the accused about the illegitimacy of his sister-in-law's child. "He said his intentions were honorable to Alice and these things did not make any difference. The accused had taken a great interest in the boy and was willing to take Alice and her baby into his future home.

Mrs. Johnson testified that the accused had no part in the taking of the baby to the home of Mrs. Mountenay. Her sister had told her she wanted to keep the baby herself and was boarding him out.

"That is the only explanation you can give me of her taking the baby to Mountenay's?" Justice MacKay asked, adding, but you were willing to take the baby if they did not want it, and so indicated to them?"

"Yes."

Saw Woman Carrying Bundle

George Mondeville, C. N. R. switchman told the court he had seen a man and a woman on the footbridge of the C.N.R. bridge a few minutes after 9 p.m. on July 25th. The woman was carrying a bundle. He left his signal tower and went down to the bridge where he spoke to the man who answered: "I have been to see my sister-in-law or mother-in-law," witness could not tell which. He sat down on the footbridge rail and about five minutes later saw the couple emerge from a footpath that led down to the water. He could not identify either of them. Later he saw a woman's dress, as if a couple were sitting on the C.N.R. tracks that parallel the river near the footbridge. It was dark and he could not see very plainly, nor could tell if she carried a bundle.

George Wickens, Glen Miller, told the court he had picked up a "short young man and woman near the C.N.R. bridge" at 11 o'clock July 25th. He had no conversation with them and let them out at his home about 11.20. He admitted to Defence Counsel Butler that he knew the accused slightly before the finding of the baby's body, but could not swear it was McFarland whom he picked up that night.

Everett Hall, Stockdale, also, swore he had picked up a young man and woman about 200 yards north of the Wicken's home in Glen Miller that night. He had taken them as far as the Bata Shoe Company.

Jack Foster, a cousin of McFarland, told the jury he had given the accused and a "girl whom I did not know" a lift near the Frankford power plant about 11.30." He had driven them to the home of the accused's mother.

All three witnesses swore that the couple did not have a baby with them.

Pathologist Testifies

Dr. I. H. Erb, Sick Children's Hospital, Toronto, pathologist, who performed a post-mortem on the body of the dead Gordon Archer testified the baby was clothed in a suit of cotton rompers and a shirt. A red stain was on the right shoulder of the rompers the result of bloody, frothy fluid oozing from the mouth of the baby.

Fine fragments of vegetable matter and small shell were apparent on the clothing.

In his opinion the child had been dead approximately 24 hours.

A wire loop surrounded the body outside the clothing and attached to the loop was another loop.

A small abrasion was evident on the nose, while on the left nostril was a fine scratch. A few fine indentations were apparent on the left cheek while below the left eye were small marks, one an abrasion and the other a small bruise.

"None of injuries had anything to do with the child's death," Dr. Erb said.

In Healthy Condition

Internal examination revealed the child to be in a healthy condition. "There was nothing to indicate he died of disease."

More frothy fluid was found in the chest organs, but no gross foreign material was found. Other organs were in normal condition.

"In my opinion the child had died from asphyxia from drowning," Dr. Erb told the Crown.

He doubted that the injuries on the face could have been made by the pole used by Dr. Farley to retrieve the body, the witness informed Defence Counsel Butler.

The child's clothing had not been in anyway disturbed, he said.

Chief William Bain, Trenton, demonstrated to the jury the position of the wire around the child's body. "It was very tightly bound and in some places the clothing concealed the wire," he said. He had apprehended the McFarland couple at the Bata Shoe Company and brought them to Trenton where they were questioned.

ITALIANS DRIVEN

which appeared ready to collapse. Despite warning shouts, two boys in the uniform of the Metaxas Youth Organization rushed forward and dragged them to safety.

Six Italian Planes Downed

I was to see many such scenes in the next few days, both by these youths and volunteer Red Cross workers.

This was the first of five raids Friday and six Saturday. Many casualties were reported among women and children when bombs hit a residential section, smashing small homes to bits.

Greek anti - aircraft batteries brought down six attacking planes. Observers believed this performance accounted for Italian caution in attacking the city on Monday when two alarms were sounded but no planes were sighted.

I saw four captured Italian airmen as they were being questioned. None looked to be more than 18 years old and they admitted having but a few hours' flying experience.

Many Greeks, after the first day have been taking the raids almost as if they were routine. Air raid trenches are being dug. Reports from the front tell of steady Greek victories as utilization of Greece's full military power proceeds. Mobilization was completed in four days, but supplies and men still are moving along the roads in the direction of the front.

BRITAIN UNABLE

the price Britain is paying for her principles.

"You know what Hitler would do about those ports," the Labor spokesman added significantly.

Leslie Hore-Belisha, former Secretary for War, went the furthest of all, calling on Prime Minister Eamo De Valera of Eire to hand back for the duration of the war the ports Britain gave up under the Irish Treaty while Irish-born J. J. Tinker, Labor, proposed the same thing in the interest of a united Ireland after the war.

Britain's Tonnage

The Prime Minister said that although German submarines have taken a heavy toll of shipping, Britain's tonnage is almost as big as when the war broke out. A steady toll is being taken in underwater craft, two having been destroyed in the Western Approaches the last two or three days, including the one that sank the liner Empress of Britain.

There have been many demands on the Navy, particularly since the collapse of France, Mr. Churchill added, but new construction is coming into service and the 50 United States destroyers will be extremely useful.

REGISTER BELGIAN SUBJECTS

Ottawa, Nov. 5.—(CP)—All Belgian subject between the ages of 16 and 36 inclusive, and resident of Canada, are being registered through the Belgian Consulate here.

When the registration is completed voluntary enlistments for the free Belgian forces will be accepted.

Provision for compulsory military service for all Belgians from 19 to 25 years of age residing in the British Empire will be enforced shortly, the Consulate announced today.

Meantime all Belgian citizens born between January 1, 1905, and December 31, 1924, have been requested to register.

FATHER OF LONDON EXCHANGE

Hove, England, Nov. 5.—(CP)—James Skinner, 90, known as "the father of the London Stock Exchange" is dead. He was a member of the exchange for 68 years.

RANGE OF NAVY

ing information that would benefit the enemy.

Later, when pressed by H. B Lees-Mith, Labor, that the bombing of Italian towns be intensified, even if that involved a diversion of aircraft from German targets, Mr. Churchill reiterated his pledge that would be done "to the utmost of our growing power."

The Prime Minister's war statement made no more than a passing reference to Marshal Petain's decision to collaborate with Hitler in establishing a new order in Europe, but he devoted time to an examination of the German U-boat menace and the handicaps imposed on the British navy by the neutrality of Eire.

Main Points of Address

Reviewing the war position, Mr. Churchill made the following main points:-

1. A naval and air base has been established in Greece and "I can only say now we shall do our best."

2. The rise in U-boat sinkings is "more serious than air raids" and the inability to use the ports of Eire constitutes "a heavy and grevious burden" upon the navy.

3. The 50 United States destroyers are coming into service "when most needed" and merchant tonnage is still "very nearly" what it was at the outbreak of war.

4. "Unhappily" the Vichy government is engaged in "sincere and loyal collaboration with Hitler" and Britain is "therefore left alone."

5. Vigilance has changed the invasion danger to the "invasion scare."

6. Although sea and air are the main elements of the war effort, "we must have a strong army to avoid a disastrous stalemate."

7. On the home front and in the Mediterranean "we are far better off" than could be predicted four or five months ago.

Good Augury For Greater Battles

The Prime Minister called the ratio of one British casualty to each 20 Italians in North Africa "a good augury for the greater battles which will develop, if not in the winter, certainly in the Spring."

In the air war, he said bombing of military objectives in Italian cities and bases in south Italy "will continue on an ever-growing scale".

German air raids have done "very little" damage to British munitions and aircraft production and no utility in the great cities "has broken down" although transport has been "a greater difficulty", Mr. Churchill declared.

He said shelters are being "multiplied and improved".

Germany's failure to invade "when we stood alone" constitutes "one of the historic victories of British Isles—and is a monumental milestone of our forward march," Mr. Churchill averred.

Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax, in a similar war review to the House of Lords, said Germany's "recently redoubled efforts to starve us into surrender" would fail, that Britain has made "the cause of Greece our own" and that "Turkey constitutes a very solid barrier against aggression."

14,000 Civilians Killed

Turning to air raids, the Prime Minister announced that 14,000 civilians had been killed and 20,000 seriously wounded since the first big attack eight weeks ago. Property damage, particularly in London, had been severe but it could be handled by government insurance scheme.

Damage to war industries. more especially aircraft factories, has been slight and none of the essential services, such as electricity, water and gas, had broken down, he went on. Transport was a bigger problem, "but we are getting a good grip on that."

He said the weekly average casualties in September were 4,500 and in October 2,500 but the Royal Air Force was destroying "three enemy machines" to each British loss and the enemy was losing from six to ten pilots to one for Britain.

No Doubt of Issue

Air power, "the indispensable precursor of victory," and sea power, which will move "considerable armies" in 1943 and 1944, led him to conclude that "I personally have no doubt whatever that we shall make our way through all right."

Britain's large army, "improved in equipment and training," must be "constantly imbued with a spirit of counter attack," he added, and nothing be done to "retard or impair" its development.

Quality and Equipment

For what it lacks in numbers compared with "Nazi or Fascist hosts" it must make up in "quality and equipment."

Britain has 1,700,000 men in the Home Guard, "all of whom will be in uniform by the end of the year" and nearly 1,000,000 have rifles and machine guns, he announced.

ITALIANS

Win Another Hill

The High Command declared the Greek shock troops won another hill yesterday in the successively-captured chain of heights around Koritza. Greeks already have occupied positions on Mount Morava, commanding the troops and supply road the Italians used for their drive toward Phlorina and Salonika.

Advices from the front did not estimate the number of Italian soldiers already reported captured behind the Greek lines, but said the surrender of the remainder of the 4,000 men was imminent.

The Italians were said to have been sent behind the Greek lines to cut communications. Quantities of supplies, including a portable wireless set, were reported seized after they were dropped from Italian planes for the cornered troops.

(The dispatches did not explain how the troops got behind the Greek defence line.)

Much War Material Seized

Prisoners were reported captured and abandoned trench mortars, machine-guns and war material were reported seized by the Greeks at several places along the battle line as Greek counter attacks kept the Italian invasion stalled.

A communique said Italian planes bombed the port of Piraeus, Patras, Volos and numerous other towns again yesterday, causing civilian casualties, but accomplishing no damage to military objectives.

Italian tanks and troop concentrations were reported bombed and machine-gunned by Greek planes.

The Greeks reported one plane lost and five Italian planes shot down, including one brought down by machine-gun fire in Epirus, killing an Italian staff major and three other fliers.

Emanuele Grazzi, Italian Minister to Greece, left Athens last night with his legation staff en route home by way of Yugoslavia. The Greek government asked that he leave.

(Jean Politis, Greek Minister to Rome, left for Greece yesterday.)

NAZI SUB PAYS

"The sinking of two armed merchant cruisers, coming as it has so shortly after the sinking of the Empress of Britain, constitutes a heavy loss but although it is unusual for the Admiralty to publish the regular sinkings of U-boats they are able to state that two German U-boats were sunk during this period, one of which was the U-boat responsible for the sinking of the Empress of Britain."

(German claims said the Empress of Britain first was damaged by a German aerial attack and later sunk by a submarine.)

The reference to the two armed merchant cruisers was to the 18,724-ton Laurentic and 11,314-ton Patroclus, whose loss was announced yesterday.

Axis Loss

The Admiralty said axis mercantile losses to Oct. 31 were:

Germany, 226 ships, 1,132,639 tons.

Italy, 72 ships, 365,661 tons.

In addition, the Admiralty continued, 27 other vessels of 44,190 tons which were "under enemy control or useful to the enemy" have been sunk.

This amounted to a total loss to the axis powers of 325 ships of approximately 1,542,000 tons.

10 FOUND DEAD

All indications were that the pilots had no forewarning of their danger. The passengers' safety belts apparently were not fastened.

Although the wheels were torn away, evidence was that the landing gear was retracted at the time of the accident.

The airplane's chronometer, only instrument to show any kind of a reading after the accident, was stopped at 3:30. This was believed to establish definitely the time of the crash, with the probability that it was set for Pacific Standard Time, an hour earlier than mountain time.

The transport radioed about 4.40 a.m. that it was 8,000 feet over Layton, twenty-five miles north of Salt Lake City, and was heading for the airport here. Further efforts to get in touch with the plane were futile.

Shortly before noon, U.A.L. Pilot William Haws sighted the wreckage from the air. The wreckage was strewn over a wide area about three miles northeast of Centreville, ten miles north of Salt Lake City. The Wasatch Mountains tower to 7,000 feet in that area.

Ground parties struggled through foot-deep snow and tangled underbrush to reach the scene.

Bodies of the passengers and stewardess were piled in a jumble at the front of the cabin. Much of the cabin's furnishings, including some of the seats, had been torn loose and thrown forward.

The nose of the plane, which struck in a grove of scrub oak 250 feet from the top of a ridge and bounced or skidded another 40 feet up the 25-degree slope, was broken away in the crash, exposing the control compartment and leaving it in a mass of twisted instruments.

Both Fey and Thomas E. Sandegren, first officer, still strapped to their seats, were thrown twenty feet in front of the wreck. Their bodies were badly broken.

Just forward of the passenger's entrance the main body of the plane was snapped nearly in two, the cabin joined to the tail was snapped nearly through, clinging together only by the lower metal skin of the fuselage. All controls hung limp and broken.

The dead were listed by the airline as:

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Muir, Detroit; Joe Cassero, Oakland, Cal.; E. A. Dybdahl, Fergus Falls, Minn.; George L. Stevenson, Sacramento, Cal.; Mr. and Mrs. L. Wilson, Maywood, Ill.

Crew members, in addition to Fey, were Thomas Sandegren, first officer, and Evelyn Sandino, stewardess.

Stevenson was flying to the bedside of his father, who died soon after the plane crashed.

miles to the southeast.

Bombs were dropped on coastal areas as dogfights raged overhead, and several houses were destroyed.

"Severe weather conditions" on the continent limited sharply the forays of Britain's bomber squadrons last night, but the Air Ministry nevertheless announced attacks on the Channel invasion ports of Ostend, Belgium and Boulogne and Le Havre in France with all British planes returning safely.

The alert, in effect only briefly, found rescue squads still removing dead and wounded from the wreckage of a large apartment house which was damaged severely by a hit from a heavy bomb during the night.

Bombs wrecked houses in several southeast coast areas this morning and caused some casualties as airmen fought high in the sky.

The Press Association said one enemy plane was believed shot down off the coast.

London, Nov. 5 (CP)—German Aircraft renewed their attacks on Britain in mid-morning today after a night of wide-ranging 'lone wolf' raids which kept anti-aircraft batteries busy until almost dawn.

The daylight assault was launched by a formation of 22 raiders which crossed the Kent coast at an altitude of almost five miles, trailing patterns of smoke and exhaust vapor, and split into two equal formations.

A Government communique described the raid which followed 24 hours of comparative inactivity, as "widespread and on a fairly heavy scale," but said casualties and damage were not heavy.

The Royal Air Force, meanwhile, though hampered by adverse weather, was reported to have hammered again at Nazi "invasion ports" and airdromes in the occupied area of France.

London Main Objective

London, as usual, was the main objective of the German night raids. Bombs also fell, however, on Merseyside (the Liverpool dock area) on two towns on the industrial midlands and numerous unidentified places in Scotland and Southeast and East England.

The raiders, flying singly and at high altitude, started coming over shortly after darkness. The all-clear was not sounded in London until shortly before dawn, but elsewhere the attacks were reported to have dwindled away after midnight.

Some persons were killed and injured in London, the Ministries of Air and Home Security said, but the number was small. Gunfire was heard in the London area shortly after the night alarm was sounded and continued fiercely at intervals throughout the night. Heavy clouds effectively hid the raiders. There was intermittent rain.

ITALIANS REMOVE CIVILIANS FROM CITY OF KORITZA

Fire of Greek Artillery Hammers at Supply Base of Invaders

GREEK PORTS RAIDED

Bitolj, Yugoslavia (At the Greek Frontier), Nov. 5 (AP)—The civilian population of Koritza, Italian base in Southern Albania, was reported today to be withdrawing as the city came under the fire of Greek artillery placed on newly-won positions.

Greek guns also were said in reports from the battle sector to be hammering at Italian supply routes and depots in the vicinity of Koritza, with the Greeks endeavoring to tighten their grip on this strategic "hopping off" place for the Italian offensive toward Salonika.

The Albanian population was said to be seeking refuge in villages in Central Albania.

Belgrade (AP)—Greek sources that Italian aircraft had bombed the ports of Patras and Volo this morning, causing a number of civilian casualties.

Yugoslav ships, meanwhile, were forbidden to navigate in the Adriatic Sea because of the danger of drifting mines.

Greek sources reported that women and children have been removed from the North Aegean port of Salonika because of heavy new bombings.

Piraeus Raided

London (CP)—Reuters News Agency reported from Athens that two civilians were killed and six injured when six heavy Italian bombers raided Piraeus, the Greek capital's port, this morning. It said the raiders were chased by four Greek fighter planes.

RESCUE IN SIGHT

These men, sailors of a British freighter sunk by a U-boat, were adrift four days before they were finally sighted by a British Sunderland flying boat, and rescue was sent to them. One of their companions in the small boat snapped this picture just after the Sunderland flying boat had been sighted.

Election Briefs

New York, Nov. 5—(AP)—Wendell L. Willkie, Republican Presidential nominee, cast his ballot in the United States election at Public School 6, Madison Avenue at 85th Street, at 10.42 a.m. EDT today. Mrs. Willkie preceded him in the voting booth.

The candidate and his wife were escorted to the polling place by police and by the two detectives who have been with them throughout the campaign.

Tuscaloosa, Ala., Nov. 5—(AP)—His voice reduced to a cracked whisper, Edward Evlin completed a marathon campaign speech for President Roosevelt 66 hours and 15 minutes after it started.

The 19-year-old University of Alabama freshman from Atlantic City, N.J., said he decided to make the speech supporting Roosevelt because Democratic campaign workers "were becoming too confident" and he wanted "the new deal to win."

New York, Nov. 5—(CP) — The Stock Exchange and all principal security and commodity markets throughout the United States were closed today in observance of the election day national holiday.

Point Aux Barques, Mich., Nov. 5 (AP)—This small village traditionally the first Michigan community to report, today gave Wendell L. Willkie, Republican Presidential candidate, 13 votes to two for President Roosevelt.

Montgomery, Ala., Nov. 5 (AP)—Alabama's first count of absentee ballots in the United States election today gave President Roosevelt 660 votes, Wendell Willkie, Republican presidential nominee, five. This county was in Montgomery County. Martin Station, traditionally Alabama's first regular box to report, gave Roosevelt all its eight votes.

Houston, Tex., Nov. 5 (AP)—In first unofficial returns from Houston, one of the few places in Texas which reports a trend throughout the day, President Roosevelt had 756 votes in incomplete returns from 33 of the 149 precincts of Harris County. Wendell Willkie, Republican presidential nominee, tallied 74.

Athens, Nov. 5 (AP)—Although Greece has a war on her hands, news of the United States election campaign has been displayed on newspaper front pages along with dispatches from the Albanian frontier.

New York, Nov. 5 — Norman Thomas, Socialist Presidential candidate, cast his vote today in the United States election with the observation that "this is the worst campaign in all my political memory and that goes for both old parties."

"America still has a job ahead of her to keep out of the war and also to keep Fascism out of America," he said.

Ulvade, Tex., Nov. 5—(AP)—Unaccompanied by her husband, Mrs. John Nance Garner voted in the United States election at a frame school house near her home today. She said she didn't know when Garner would vote. Henry Wallace was President Roosevelt's choice for Vice-President this election.

Lawrence, Mass., Nov. 5—(AP)—Bartholomew Mahoney, 96, cast his 17th vote for a United States president today, walking a quarter-mile from his home to the polling booth. The aged man, who has voted in the same ward for 70 years, declined several offers of rides, saying it was a "nice day for a walk."

Omaha, Neb., Nov. 5 (AP)—Harry Senez, 24, is partially blind, but he considers voting a privilege. It took him an hour and 10 minutes today to mark the seven United States election ballots handed Omaha voters. "It was time well spent," declared Senez.

Glen Falls, N.Y., Nov. 5 (AP)—William J. Scales cast his general election ballot at 7 a.m. today. Returning home, he noted the event in his diary, then dropped dead from a heart attack.

West Orange, N.J., Nov. 5—(AP)—Charles Edison, Democratic candidate for Governor, lost to his mother his race to be the first in his district to vote.

When Edison and his wife appeared at their polling place they found Mrs. Mina Edison Hughes, widow of the late inventor, Thomas A. Edison, ahead of them.

West Orange, N.J., Nov. 5—(CP)—James H. R. Cromwell, former United States ambassador to Canada and Democratic candidate for the United States Senate, was an early voter today in the general election. He appeared at the polling booth in Hillsboro Township, Somerset County, at 9.45 a.m. EDT.

Mrs. Cromwell, the former Doris Duke, did not vote here. She left by plane yesterday for her home in Honolulu.

Teacher, Charged With Assaulting Pupil, Resigns Position

St. Joachim, Ont., Nov. 5 (CP)—Forty-two pupils of a Separate School near this Essex County town returned to classes under a new teacher today following the sudden resignation of Louis T. Barrette, who had been charged with assaulting a pupil.

Barrette resigned Saturday and the assault charge, laid by Leon Emery of St. Joachim, was withdrawn in county court. A substitute teacher took over today pending appointment of a new instructor. It had been feared that the school would be forced to remain closed several days while a teacher was sought. T. Barrette was charged with assaulting Emery's nine-year-old son. J. Al Kennedy of Windsor, Solicitor for Barrette, said there had been opposition to the teacher since his appointment three years ago because some parents believed a woman teacher should have had the position.

PILOT OFFICER KILLED IN ACTION

Clare Connor Awarded D.F.C. for Piloting Burning R.A.F. Plane Bask to Its Base

Toronto, Nov. 5.—(CP)— Pilot Office Clare A. H. Connor, of Toronto, awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross recently for piloting a burning Royal Air Force bomber back to his base from a raid over Antwerp, was killed "during air operations" yesterday, his parents were advised by the Air Ministry today.

Sergeant John Hannah of Glasgow, the gunner of Connor's crew, was awarded the Victoria Cross for his share in the heroic exploit. Hannah, at 18 the youngest man to receive the V.C. in this war, fought the flames in the bomber mindless of the exploding ammunition while Connor coolly got the ship home.

Hannah's tribute to the pilot after the flight was that "Pilot Officer Connor should have won the V.C., not me". The King presented Connor with the D.F.C. for extraordinary courage and daring.

Connor joined the Royal Air Force in 1938. His sister is in England doing war work and a brother, Desmond, is with the British army in Egypt. Connor was married to an English girl last March.

DELAY JUDGMENT ON CONFERENCE OF HITLER, PETAIN

Lord Halifax Says It Would be Well to Take This Attitude at Present as Britain is Not Fully Informed

London, Nov. 5.—(CP Cable)—Lord Halifax told the House of Lords today it would be well to suspend judgment on the recent Hitler-Petain conversations as Great Britain has not been fully informed of what passed between the Nazi leader and the head of the Vichy government.

Britain realized the difficulty of Marshal Petain's position, Lord Halifax said, adding that no doubt the Marshal himself did when he entered the path of collaboration that France's suffering might be eased.

The Leader of the House of Lords went on—

"Whatever he may have hoped to gain for France, we cannot believe that the government headed by a man of honor like Marshal Petain would commit France to a course which would stab in the back her former ally.

"We on our side have repeatedly rejected suggestions by the enemy for an agreement at the expense of France. Is it too much to hope that those who direct French policy may see more clearly as German plans are unfolded that the cause of French survival is the same as ours?"

Enlargement of Theatre Of War and Long, Hard Struggle for Freedom Foreseen in Address

Ottawa, Nov. 5.—(CP)—Continued enlargement of the theatre of war and a long hard struggle for freedom are foreseen in the speech from the Throne read by Sir Lyman P. Duff, Deputy of the Governor-General, at the closing of the first session of the 19th Parliament of Canada today.

The speech reviewed events on the world stage since the session opened in May and commented on legislation passed during the session. It said this legislation had in view "the immediate task of sharing more completely in the defence of Britain and securing our own country effectively against internal subversion and external attack" and also the long-range task of ensuring defeat of the enemy.

To serve these ends the administration structure was altered by creation of the new departments of air, naval services and national war services and by expanding the scope and organization of the department of Munitions and Supply.

By the Unemployment Insurance Act Parliament made a contribution to stability in time of war and to Social Security and justice in time of peace.

"It has become only too apparent that the lust for conquest will continue to enlarge the theatre of war," the speech concluded. "The struggle to preserve freedom will be long and hard. May Almighty God guide and uphold its brave defenders."

Sir Lyman read his speech to members of the House of Commons assembled before the bar of the senate while senators occupied their customary seats.

The closing of the first session was a prelude to the opening of the second which takes place Thursday.

The session ended today began in May and continued actively throughout the greater part of the summer. Early in August parliament adjourned until today having in mind the possibility of an earlier reassembling should the course of the war give rise to situations necessitating parliamentary action.

Text of Throne Speech

Ottawa, Nov. 5 (CP)—Text of the Speech from the Throne read by Sir Lyman P. Duff at Prorogation of Parliament today follows:

Honorable members of the Senate:

Members of the House of Commons:

When the present session opened in May, one free company after another, in quick succession, had become the victim of Nazi aggression. Before its adjournment on Aug. 7, Italy had joined her Axis partner as an open enemy, French resistance had collapsed, and the government of France had surrendered. Britain herself was threatened with invasion.

The theatre of conflict had begun to spread into other lands beyond the confines of Europe. Japan and China were still at war.

Among the nations of the world, the United Kingdom and the British Dominions, alone, stood in arms, in the defence of the world's freedom.

Canada has willingly accepted the widening responsibilities which events have placed upon her. The measures which you have taken have had in view the immediate task of sharing more completely in the defence of Britain and securing our own country more effectively against neutral subversion and external attack. They have also had in view the long range task of ensuring the ultimate defeat of the enemy.

Altered and Enlarged

To serve these ends, the structure of the administration has been altered and enlarged. A Ministry of National Defence for air and a Ministry of National Defence for naval services had been created. The scope of the Department of Munitions and Supply has been expanded and its organization strengthened. A Department of National War Services has been established.

The government has been empowered by the National Resources Mobilization Act to bring to the defence of Canada and the advancement of the common cause all the resources of the country, both human and material. In the different branches of war activity there has been a steady expansion and acceleration of training, transport, manufacture and production.

By the Unemployment Insurance Act you have made a valuable contribution to industrial and financial stability in time of war, and to social security and justice in time of peace. It is deeply gratifying that approval was given by all the provinces to the necessary amendment to the British North America Act to permit of the enactment of Unemployment Insurance by the parliament of Canada.

Members of the House of Commons:

I thank you for the financial appropriations which you have made. The determination of the Canadian people to support and advance the cause for which we have taken up arms, has been reflected in the unselfish acceptance by all of its heavy financial burdens.

Honorable Members of the Senate:

Members of the House of Commons:

It has become only too apparent that the lust for conquest will continue to enlarge the theatre of war. The struggle to preserve freedom will be long and hard. May Almighty God guide and uphold its brave defenders.

YUGOSLAV TOWN BOMBED BY THREE UNKNOWN PLANES

Bombs Hit Railway Station and Damage Airport and Military Building

TWO KILLED

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Nov. 5—(AP)—Three warplanes of undetermined nationality bombed the Yugoslav town of Bitolj near the Greek-Albanian war front today, killing two persons and wounding five, it was announced officially.

The announcement said bombs hit the railway station and damaged a military building and airport.

It was understood a meeting of the Yugoslav cabinet was called in Belgrade to consider the situation.

Additional unconfirmed reports said Bitolj had been subjected to three separate attacks.

Both Greece and Italy disclaimed any responsibility.

Greek Minister Raoul Rosetti declared it was impossible for Greek fliers to have bombed the city.

"Our airmen are thoroughly familiar with the territory in the vicinity of the frontier with our friendly neighbor," Rosetti said, "and would make no mistake."

Pointing out that the railroad station was a target, he asserted that there are no railroads in the neighboring region of Albania and that Greek airmen are aware of it.

Italian legation officials claimed the planes were Greek.

An unofficial report said four were dead and 10 wounded, instead of the two dead and five wounded given in the official statement.

About 40 bombs were reported dropped in the attack at 1:30 p.m. (7:30 a.m. EDT) and some of them fell in the main street, as well as the other objectives mentioned in the communique.

An unconfirmed report said the planes returned an hour-and-a-half later and dropped more explosives.

TAXI DRIVER, 20, IS SENTENCED

Customer Testifies to Being Taken to Room by Accused and Friend and of Being Beaten, Robbed

Hamilton, Ont., Nov. 5 (CP).—Bennie Hepworth, 20, Hamilton taxi driver, was sentenced in court here today to two years less a day definite and two years less a day indefinite following conviction on a charge of assault and robbery. On another charge of stealing an auto he was sentenced to twelve months definite and twelve months indefinite, the sentences to run concurrently in the Ontario Reformatory.

In imposing sentence on Hepworth, Magistrate H. A. Burbidge observed: "I certainly hope there are no other Hamilton taxi drivers who entertain the idea they can rob their customers and get away with it."

Complainant in the case is a government employee. In court today he told of being taken to a room by Hepworth and a friend two weeks ago and there being beaten and robbed. Police are seeking the other man in the case.

Paymaster Appointed For All Units Over 300

Ottawa, Nov. 5—(CP)—The Defence Department announced today that in all units of the Canadian Active Service Force, the paymaster no longer will be a regimental officer, but an attached officer from the Royal Canadian Army Pay Corps (C.A.S.F.)

This order is effective as of Oct. 1, 1940 and applies to all units of the Canadian Active Service Force whose authorized establishment, including first reinforcements and attached personnel, exceeds 300 men, all ranks.

Creation of the general list of officers, Royal Canadian Army Pay Corps has been authorized. All officers holding appointments as paymaster in the present authorized war establishments for units of the C.A.S.F., will be transferred to this general list in their present rank, with effect from Oct. 1.

Suitable officers of the active and reserve lists of the non-permanent active militia may be appointed to the general list of officers, Royal Canadian Army Pay Corps (C.A.S.F.), in the rank held by them in the Active Militia, provided that such rank is not higher than that of Captain, and subject to their qualification within three months of their appointment.

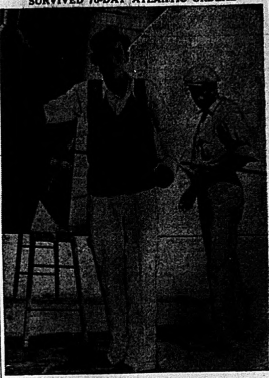
The general list of officers, Royal Canadian Army Pay Corps, (C.A.S.F.), will be administered by the director of pay services.

MAN SHOT OVER ELECTION

Indiana, Pa., Nov. 5 (AP).—An argument over the merits of presidential candidates in the United States election ended last night in the shooting of Pete Muzininsky, 25, in the southwestern Pennsylvania community of Dilltown, police reported today.

A blast from a shotgun struck Muzininsky in the left thigh. Muzininsky's opponent in the argument was taken into custody.

SURVIVED 70-DAY ATLANTIC ORDEAL



Emaciated and 30 pounds lighter, George Tapscott, British seaman from the freighter Anglo Saxon, is shown going ashore at Nassau after spending 70 days bobbing about the south Atlantic in an open boat with his companion, Wilbert Widdicombe. The Anglo Saxon was sunk by a German raider off the Azores. Widdicombe and Tapscott endured the torments of heat and thirst for more than two months before they were rescued. They are now in a Nassau hospital.

TODAY THESE GREEKS AREN'T FOOLING

When the photographer made this photo of a Greek outpost in the northern hills some time ago, the boys were only playing at war—peeking for signs of a theoretical enemy. Today they're right in the middle of the real thing and giving a good account of themselves against the superior forces of Italy. Latest reports say that a counter-attack by Greek troops hurled the Italian invaders back for three miles inside the Albanian border.

The War Today

By GUY RHOADES

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Greek forces were reported today in dispatches from Athens and Yugoslavia to have checked the Italian war machine all along the snow-bound mountain front and to have struck back hard at the key Italian supply base of Koritza in Italian-held Albania.

The civilian population of Koritza was said to be evacuating the town as Greek heavy artillery besieged it from heights seized in furious hand-to-hand fighting. Italian forces in the town were reported to number 30,000.

Elsewhere Greek troops were reported to have cut off 4,000 Italian soldiers who penetrated in some unexplained manner behind the Greek lines with the purpose of disrupting communications. The Greeks said they had seized considerable quantities of stores dropped for these men by Italian aircraft.

Nevertheless the Greek civilian population at port cities such as Salonika, Patras and Piraeus appeared to be suffering considerable casualties from Italian air bombing and the women and children of Salonika were reported being sent to surrounding villages to escape an indiscriminate reign of death.

Play Up U. S. Election

London also suffered an apparently indiscriminate series of bombings during the night and some casualties were caused, particularly in a big apartment house development on which Axis raiders scored a direct hit. Subsequent daylight raids were reported generally to have been driven off, one without coming closer than 40 miles to the capital.

German night raids were conducted in bad weather and inky darkness so thick the Royal Air Force last night bombed only the Channel "invasion" ports.

The Admiralty, announcing loss of eight British and allied ships totalling 16,860 tons during the week ended Oct. 27-28, reported also that naval forces had sunk two German submarines, including the one which sank the Empress of Britain, flagship of the Canadian Pacific Line. Of the total allied ships sunk only two were British, but the tonnage did not include that of the Empress.

The British press gave second place to today's war news and played up the United States election, although most newspapers observed that both candidates for the presidency have promised increasing material aid to Britain in her fight against the Axis.

Of Vital Interest.

The election, having as its principal issue the question whether the no-third-term precedent should be broken, was of interest mainly because it is being held at a time when a free vote by the people for the kind of government they desire is impossible in any country outside the British Empire and some western hemisphere nations.

It was of interest, too, because of the unprecedentedly high registration of voters in the United States, an indication that American forces of democracy have gained strength while in Europe and elsewhere the lights of freedom have been dimmed or extinguished.

The extent of the British interest was shown in plans of the British Broadcasting Corporation to open its domestic circuits at 4:30 in the morning to broadcast bulletins at a time when normally the whole system would be silent except for the Empire service, which operates throughout the night.

FORMAL INQUIRY IN LOSS OF EMPRESS OF BRITAIN

London, Nov. 5 (CP Cable)—Capt. H. H. Balfour, Under Secretary of State for Air, intimated today in a written reply to a question put in the House of Commons that the loss of the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Britain was the subject of a formal Admiralty inquiry.

On the grounds of public interest Capt. Balfour declined to make public the numbers of flying boats and warplanes available for guarding liners within a few hundred miles of the Irish and British coasts.

ROLAND DENNE, EX-MAYOR, DIES AT PETERBOROUGH

Passes Suddenly Two Hours After Being Stricken by Heart Failure

Peterborough, Ont., Nov. 5 (CP)—Roland Denne, mayor of Peterborough from 1926 until 1935, died suddenly at his home here today two hours after a heart attack. He had attended the council meeting last night as a member of a deputation from the Peterborough Exhibition Board.

Mr. Denne had been associated with municipal bodies for 26 years and missed only three committee meetings.

Mr. Denne is survived by his widow and two daughters, Mrs. William H. Sims of Kitchener and Miss Margaret Denne of Toronto.

He was first elected to the Board of Education and was only a year on the city council when he was elected mayor in 1926. His seven years in that office was the first time its responsibility had extended beyond a traditional two-year term. During the first four years of the depression he persuaded the council to adopt a pay-as-you-go policy in the city's financing, launched emergency work projects to relieve local unemployment and at the same time effected substantial reductions in the tax rate. With those changes Peterborough was placed in the first municipal honor roll of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce for having a balanced budget inclusive of current expenditures for social services.

Since 1935 Mr. Denne has been a member of the Peterborough Utilities Commission. He was president of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition for 14 years, a member of Peterborough Lodge 155 A.F. & A.M. and of St. John's Anglican Church, a commissioner of the Nicholls Park Trust, member of the Little Lake Cemetery Board, of which he had been president.

OBITUARY

MRS. MELISSA FARNSWORTH

(Contributed)

There passed away in Shannonville, Friday, November 1st, a much respected resident at the ripe old age of 90 years, in the person of Melissa Searles Farnsworth, widow of Thomas Farnsworth, and daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Searles of Sidney township. Most of her life was spent in the 2nd. Concession of Tyendinaga, but in recent years she had lived in Shannonville. She was a faithful active member of Emmon's former Methodist church, and later connected with Shannonville United Church.

Surviving her are one sister, Mrs. Nellie Dorkator, now 90 years old; also three children, Rev. E. Farnsworth of Belleville; Mrs. Bertha Wilson, Shannonville, and Mr. Harry Farnsworth, Stirling.

All her long life she was blessed with remarkable health until within a week of her passing. She was always deeply religious, a strong woman in prayer and one who was highly respected and deeply loved by all. It can surely be said of her "she rests from her labours and her works do follow her."

The funeral took place Monday, November 4th, being conducted by her pastor, Rev. Mr. Sterling, assisted by Rev. L. S. Wight, Rev. W. D. Harrison and Rev. Dr. Semple. Mr. (Dr.) Moore sang very effectively, "That Beautiful Land."

At the graveside the burial service was conducted by Rev. Wm. Sterling and Rev. L. S. Wight.

The pall bearers were Messrs. Thomas Blatherwick; Harry Taylor; John McDonald; Samuel Elliott; Saul McFarlane and Fred Melburn.

REV. A. C. GIGNAC DIES IN CHINA

Toronto, Nov. 5 — (CP)—Word was received here today of the death in China of Rev. Aaron C. Gignac, 38, pioneer missionary student in that country. He died following an appendicitis operation.

A cablegram to St. Francis Xavier Seminary at Scarborough, Ont., announced the death. He was the second priest of the Scarborough Foreign Missionary Society to die in China, where he went in 1929. Father Gignac was a native of Windsor, Ont, and resided for many years in Ridgetown. His family lives in Tillsonburg.

HYDRO SERVICE IS DISRUPTED

Hydro service on east side of Front Street in the downtown section was disrupted for a short time in the early afternoon on Tuesday when service wires were broken as the result of a large tree falling on them. Public Utility employees were engaged in cutting a large tree on the south side of Campbell street, near the residence of Judge G. E. Deroche and had stripped the tree of its limbs and were cutting the trunk, when it broke off the stump and fell across the street catching the electric wires.

Hydro employees were soon on the scene, however, and repaired the damage.

Probabilities

Northwest gales; cloudy and cold with light scattered showers or snowflurries. Thursday, fresh variable winds; fair and cold.

U.S. Third-Term Tradition Broken; Foreign, Domestic 'New Deal' Policies Endorsed

President's Majority in the Popular Vote in Vicinity of 3,200,000 and in the Electoral College He Holds Lead of 433 Votes to 98—Democratic Majority in House of Representatives Obtained and Party Retains Control of the Senate

By H. M. PETERS

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Nov. 6 —(CP)— The electoral tide sweeping Franklin D. Roosevelt into the White House for a tradition-smashing third term continued full today with new states entering the Democratic column.

Wendell Willkie, the dynamic Republican standard bearer, wired Mr. Roosevelt congratulations shortly before noon when mounting returns showed the President's forign and domestic "New Deal" policies had been endorsed by a majority of several million votes. He had refused to concede defeat before retiring early this morning.

The failure of Willkie's spectacular challenge left President Roosevelt free to press on toward his announced goals of all possible material aid to Great Britain "short of war," national and hemisphere defence, and friendship with all other democracies.

Why The Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

Singing wires! Now that it is colder, boys may frequently be seen with their ears to telegraph or telephone poles, listening (so they think) to the music of the wires. However, it is not the wires but the wind which causes the humming. Wind blowing against the wires causes eddies on their lee sides. These eddies vibrate fast enough to emit an audible note. The tighter the wires the louder the hum; hence cold weather, since it makes the wires more taut, is the best time to listen to this kind of music. The pitch varies with the speed of the wind: the greater the speed, the higher the pitch. The humming is transmitted to the poles, which acting as soundboards, magnify the sound.

TO SEND MESSAGE TO MR. ROOSEVELT

Mr. King Plans to Do So, While Government is Traditionally Silent

Ottawa, Nov. 6.— (CP)— The government maintained today its traditional attitude of impartiality toward domestic affairs of a friendly foreign country and spokesmen remained silent on the outcome of the United States elections.

It was expected, however, that Prime Minister Mackenzie King, both as head of the government and as a personal friend would send a message of congratulation to President Roosevelt.

Conservative Leader Hanson, when asked his reaction, said "Canada intervened enough in the election campaign." He would not amplify his statement.

Re-election of President Roosevelt for a third term means that there need be no break in the continuity of relations with the administration which now are at an important stage from many standpoints.

It has been the feeling here throughout the campaign that either major party in the United States would seek to carry on the measure of assistance the United States has rendered Canada and the Empire in the war, and maintain the friendly relations on other issues such as the St. Lawrence Waterways proposals and trade.

A change in administration, however, would have meant an inevitable delay during the period of transition and the installation of men in high offices who would not have the ready familiarity with Canadian problems now enjoyed by those in the present administration.

Overturned Canoe Found and Young Man Is Believed Lost

Sturgeon Falls, Ont., Nov. 6.—(CP)—A search for 20-year-old Mason McClelleghan of Cache Bay, through this district was called off last night following the finding of an overturned canoe on the north shore of Jewel Lake. The youth was believed drowned.

McClelleghan left his home early Monday to hunt partridges at Jewel Lake. When he failed to return at nightfall, his parents became anxious and organized a search party of residents. Early yesterday the party followed the youth's trail to the lake.

The canoe and a single paddle were found.

HEPBURN GLAD OF LEWIS' EXIT

Premier Also States "Great Rejoicing" Should Arise in Canada Over Roosevelt Victory

Toronto, Nov. 6 (CP). — Premier Mitchell Hepburn of Ontario said in a statement today that "great rejoicing" should arise in Canada and the British Empire with the return to office of President Roosevelt.

The relationship of Wendell Willkie, defeated candidate, with the British Empire had never been tested, the premier said.

"But there is one thing we do know," he added. "That is that Mr. Roosevelt has been one of the greatest friends of Canada and the British Empire that we have ever had as President of the United States. For that reason his election should cause great rejoicing throughout the Empire."

He said that concerning problems of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission, Mr. Roosevelt "has within the last few months proven himself to be fully cognizant of our full requirements and most sympathetic."

The premier hailed the "political demise of John L. Lewis who has been roundly repudiated by the labor masses in the great industrial cities."

"So far as I am concerned," he added, "his exit calls from me 'thank God and amen'."

(Lewis, leader of the Congress of Industrial Organizations in the United States, declared during the election campaign that he would resign if President Roosevelt was returned.

(Premier Hepburn and two of his ministers, Mayor David Croll of Windsor and Arthur Roebuck, Toronto M.P., divided on the C.I.O. issue in the Oshawa General Motors strike several years ago, and Croll and Roebuck resigned.)

INTERPRET ORDER AS SIGN TENSION LESSENS IN PACIFIC

Hong Kong, Nov. 6 (CP)—Orders for compulsory departure of British women and children from Hong Kong have been rescinded on instructions from London, an official announcement said today.

Restrictions against return of persons already removed, most of whom now are in Australia, were not lifted, however.

The announcement that those remaining here would not be compelled to leave was interpreted generally as meaning that British apprehensions of a crisis in the Pacific are lessening.

U. S. Press Hails Result As Triumph for Democracy

New York, Nov. 6 (CP)—United States newspapers, a majority of them opposed to the third term candidature of Franklin D. Roosevelt, today hailed the result of the Presidential election as a triumph for democracy.

After as bitter a struggle as the country has ever witnessed in a contest for the Presidency, newspaper editorials unanimously called on the people to form a united front for the country's defence.

As the New York Daily News put it: "After all, the big job confronting us is to get on with national defence as fast as we can. If we fall down on that job, it won't matter much who is President, and it may not matter long."

The staunchly Republican New York Herald-Tribune asserted: "There is an old American tradition of good losing. It was never more important than today, with a desperate world war raging overseas and the fate of every demo-

Franklin Delano Roosevelt shatters all precedents in U.S. Government by being returned to White House as President of the United States for a third term—His popular vote was nearly as large as the one he secured in 1936.

Swiss Protest Alleged Violation of Neutrality

Berne, Nov. 6.—(AP)—The Swiss government today directed its Minister in London to protest against alleged violations of Swiss territory by British bombers during the night.

The government recalled it previously had received assurances from London that British planes would "cease flying over Swiss territory".

The Swiss High Command earlier this morning said heavy anti-aircraft fire had "dispersed one squadron" of the many warplanes that flew over Switzerland during the night.

The communique did not identify the planes, but said they crossed Switzerland from northeast to southeast. One squadron, the announcement said, "took the road back before crossing the Alps."

The appearance of the planes gave Berne and Zurich air alarms which lasted 1 1-2 hours.

(Such alarms in the past usually have indicated British planes were en route to or from attacks on ob-

VOTE INTERPRETED AS GUARANTEE OF CONTINUED AID

Will Add Momentum to Program to Strengthen Defences of Western World

INTERNATIONAL ISSUES

By LLOYD LEHRBAS
Associated Press Staff Writer

Washington, Nov. 6 —(AP)— The great tide of votes for President Roosevelt was interpreted today as ensuring uninterrupted continuation of a United States foreign policy predicated on all aid "short of war" for Britain, and a firm stand against the policies and acts of aggressor nations.

The diplomatic consensus, too, was that it would add momentum to the program to strengthen the defences of the western hemisphere.

Since the foreign policies advocated by Wendell Willkie closely paralleled the basic foreign policies of the Roosevelt administration, the expectation also was that—with the election past history—the national ranks would close up, with Democrats and Republicans presenting a common front in relations with the rest of the world.

WENDELL WILLKIE NOT DISMAYED OVER THE RESULT

Declares the Principles for Which the Party Fought Will Surely Prevail

CHECKED RETURNS

By Theodore Koop Associated Press Staff Writer.

New York, Nov. 6 (AP).—Wendell L. Willkie today telegraphed President Roosevelt congratulations on his re-election.

After a leisurely breakfast in his hotel suite, Mr. Willkie made a final survey of the election returns and then called in Fred Rahter, one of his secretaries, to dictate the message.

At 11:30 a.m. EDT, Willkie's press Secretary, Lem. Jones, gave out the text as follows.

"Franklin D. Roosevelt,
"President of the United States,
"Hyde Park, New York.

"Congratulations on your reelection as President of the United States. I know that we are both gratified that so many American citizens participated in the election. I wish you all personal health and happiness. Cordially,

"Wendell L. Willkie."

Air Ministry Reports Seven Enemy Planes Shot Down While British Lose Six With Three Pilots Saved

London, Nov. 6 (CP)—London was showered with incendiary and high explosive bombs during the longest night air raid alarm of the war but came up today with the official announcement that "the general scale of damage was not heavy and it is confirmed that the number of casualties was not large."

A direct hit on a London police station killed a number of officers in a canteen.

BRITISH TROOPS GIVEN WELCOME

Islanders at Crete Turn Out in Native Costume and Shower Troops With Flowers

London, Nov. 6 (CP)—Residents of the Greek Island of Crete in the Aegean Sea gave a hearty welcome to British troops who landed there last week, the British Broadcasting Corporation said Tuesday.

Quoting an account given by a British officer with the forces there, the BBC said the islanders turned out in picturesque native costume, cheering and showering the men with flowers.

Little damage was done by Italian air raids on the islands, the BBC quoted the officer as saying. One raid had been made only a few hours after the British landed, but had caused only two casualties among the troops.

Wendell Put Up 'Whale of Battle' Says Miss Willkie

St. Catharines, Ont., Nov. 6 —(CP)—Miss Julia Willkie, sister of the defeated Republican candidate for the presidency of the United States and resident of St. Catharines, said in an interview today that "Wendell put up a whale of a battle and I have nothing to be ashamed of."

"I was brought up an iron-clad Democrat and when we lost I always looked back to see what sort of a battle we put up," she said. "This time Wendell put up a whale of a battle."

Italians Captured By the Thousands Says Greek Report

Prisoners Say Officers Told Them "Greece Will Not Fight; We Will Just Walk in"

Salonika, Greece, Nov. 6 (AP)—The Greeks were reported in frontier advices today to have entered the Albanian town of Koritza, Italian military base for the Greek offensive and to have captured thousands of Italians.

Large groups of Italian prisoners arrived in Salonika today, transported from the fighting front in buses.

I saw five bus loads near the Salonika railway station. The captives appeared poorly clothed for battles in the frigid mountain area.

(The report of the capture of Koritza may be premature, since it is not claimed in later advices from Athens which merely says the Greeks have captured fortifications dominating the city and are shelling it.)

One of the men questioning the prisoners quoted them as saying they had been told by their officers that "Greece will not fight; we will just walk in."

Greeks here said, also, that Italian bombers apparently were meeting resistance that surprised them. Salonika had no air raid alarm yesterday, for the third day, and it was stated that six out of 20 raiders had been shot down 40 miles south of the city.

Athens, Nov. 6 —(AP)— Fortifications on a range of hills guarding Koritza, Albanian base for the Italian drive into Macedonia, were reported today to have been captured by Greek mountain troops after fierce hand-to-hand fighting.

Retreating Italian forces were shelled by the guns of their own tanks, the Greek High Command declared.

A communique said many Italian prisoners were taken in the battle, and artillery pieces, howitzers and machine guns were seized in the abandoned fortifications.

(The Italian High Command by implication admitted the Greeks had seized the offensive in the Koritza area, reporting that the Fascist Air Force had come into action to help repel Greek columns attacking "among the southern branches of Lake Presba," 15 miles northeast of Koritza.)

84 YEAR OLD MAN DIES IN WAGON-CAR COLLISION

Brooklin, Ont., Nov. 6.—(CP)—Robert Sleep, 84 year old farmer of East Whitby township, was killed last night when the wagon in which he was riding was wrecked in a collision with an automobile driven by Garfield Hawkins of Peterborough. One of the horses of a team attached to the wagon was killed.

As Foreign Countries View Re-Election of F. D. Roosevelt

Tokyo, Nov. 6—(AP)—Yakichiro Suma, Foreign Office spokesman, greeted news of President Roosevelt's re-election today with the assertion that the President should make "re-Orientation of the United States far eastern policy" his first consideration.

Many Japanese previously had expressed the view that re-election of Roosevelt meant a strengthening of United States policy in the Orient.

"Re-Orientation of the United States foreign policy is absolutely necessary," Suma declared. "Reconsideration thereof should be one of the first tasks of the returned administration because Asiatic affairs present a difficult situation for the United States."

"The present attitude of the United States is unfeasible and too far-fetched," Suma asserted.

A Roosevelt victory generally had been expected, but the election trend nevertheless brought expressions of misgivings that it meant a strong go-ahead signal for all Roosevelt policies, including measures against Japan.

U. S. Elections At-a-Glance

PRESIDENTIAL — At 12:40 p.m. E.D.T. President Roosevelt led in 39 States with 468 electoral votes; Willkie in nine with 63.

POPULAR VOTE AT THAT HOUR—With 99,463 of the nation's districts counted the total vote was 40,649,938 with Roosevelt having 22,198,790 and Willkie 18,451,148.

HOUSE—Democrats elected 239; Republicans 118; American Labor 1. The Democrats picked up 17 seats in Connecticut, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, New York, West Virginia, Ohio and Delaware. Republicans gained eight seats in Illinos, Oklahoma, New York, California and Missouri.

SENATE—18 Democrats and 8 Republicans elected. Harold H. Burton, Republican, defeated John McSweeney, Democrat, in Ohio; Hugh. A. Butler, Republican, defeated Robert Leroy Cochran, Democrat, in Nebraska, and James H. Tunnell, Sr., Democrat, defeated John G. Townsend, Jr., Republican. Henrik Shipstead, formerly Farmer-Labor, was re-elected as a Republican, making a net turnover of two for the Republicans.

GOVERNORS — Fourteen Democrats elected, seven Republicans. Five turnovers — in Connecticut, Michigan and Rhode Island where Incumbent Republicans lost to Democrats and in Nebraska and Illinois where Republicans ousted Democrats.

U. S. OFFICERS NOW IN BERMUDA

Complete Details Arising Out of Establishment of Air Bases in British Colony

Hamilton, Bermuda, Nov. 6 (CP Cable)—A group of United States army officers and civil engineers is in Bermuda to complete some details arising out of the establishment of United States naval and air bases in this British colony.

The group includes Maj. D. C. White of the Engineers' Corps, U.S.A., Lt. Col. L. A. Fox, Medical Corps, Capt. Baker, Sanitation Corps, and Edward L. Winslow, B. R. Huetter and G. F. Madden, Civil Engineers.

Major White and the three engineers will be in charge of a survey party which has not yet been completed. The medical and sanitation officers are investigating general conditions and available equipment as well as making a general health survey, will return to the United States next week.

TAXI DRIVER LOSES LIFE

North Bay, Ont., Nov. 6 (CP)—B. Violette, Timiskaming taxi driver, was killed nine miles from here on the Timiskaming highway last night when struck by an automobile as he discussed a slight accident with another driver.

Violette's car collided with another driven by Leonard Lackey of North Bay. Violette walked to the Lackey machine and after talking to the driver turned to go back to his own car. As he stepped on the road, an automobile driven by William Grant of Timiskaming struck him.

CITY AND DISTRICT NEWS

RED CROSS NEEDS REFUGEE GARMENTS

An urgent call has been issued by the local Red Cross to workers in Belleville and the district to turn into the Y.M.C.A. headquarters, at once, refugee garments particularly women's gowns, size 40, children's sleepers, size 6, and women's skirts. These are needed for an emergency and those groups having such articles ready are asked to bring them in at once.

VARIETY CONCERT TO AID BRITISH WAR VICTIMS' FUND

Arranged to raise funds for British War Victims Fund, the Variety Concert in Christ Church Parish Hall Thursday evening brings together a talented group of Belleville artists on a program that will be greatly enjoyed by all who have the opportunity of attending. Among those taking part will be James Bankier Miss Mildred Lloyd, L.C.C.M., James Lazenby, Muriel Jobson, Walter Taylor, Mrs. T. A. Tucker and others. The concert will follow an amateur contest which begins at seven-thirty.

ARGYLLS TO HOLD MEMORIAL SERVICE

Belleville's soldier dead will be honored by the member of the Argyll Light Infantry (Tank) when the local N.P.A.M. as a unit will march to the war memorial on Station street on Sunday morning, where prayers will be said by the unit Chaplain, Rev. A. Beauchamp Payne.

Remembrance Day, November 11, has not been proclaimed a holiday in Belleville, although the Secretary of State has proclaimed it a statutory holiday throughout Canada, therefore local regimental units will mark the occasion on Sunday. The local Argyll Light Infantry (Tank) N.P.A.M. unit will parade to St. Thomas' Anglican Church at 11 o'clock Sunday morning, where special service will be conducted by the unit Chaplain, Rev. A. B. Payne. Following the church service, the unit will march to the cenotaph.

HON. DR. BRUCE AND PARTY VISIT BELLEVILLE CEMETERY

Seeing a party of strangers walking in the Belleville cemetery grounds on Tuesday, Superintendent Arthur Thomas approached them and inquired if there was anything he could do to help them. He was informed that they had entered to see the cemetery and to eat their lunch if that were allowable.

An interesting conversation followed in which the superintendent learned that the visitors were no other than the Hon. Herbert Bruce, of Toronto, former Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario and now member of the Dominion parliament for Parkdale (Toronto). Dr. Bruce was accompanied by Mrs. Bruce and their two war guests from England. The party was on its way to Ottawa for the session of Commons.

The visitors praised the fine appearance of the cemetery grounds and complimented Mr. Thomas upon it.

Dr. and Mrs. Bruce invited Mr. Thomas to join them at lunch and he accepted and enjoyed their hospitality.

TRUCK TURNS OVER IN MARSH NEAR CITY

Forced into the ditch by an alleged cut-in on the part of another motor vehicle driver, a truck driven by Donald Dainard, Picton, crashed through the guard rail along the bay bridge road and turned completely over in the marsh early today. Dainard told Belleville police he met a southbound car while driving into Belleville, but before he could pass the vehicle a second motor car "cut in" between the first car and his truck, forcing him to swerve to the left. Striking a soft shoulder Dianard's truck skidded into the east guard rail, breaking off five guard rail posts before hurtling over the fence and turning completely over into the marsh some six feet below the level of the highway. Dainard escaped uninjured, and later the truck was towed out by a garage tow truck.

Seek Mechanics For Air Force

Representatives of the R.C.A.F. were in the city yesterday making inquiry for wireless and electrical mechanics, aero-engine mechanics and airframe (metal) mechanics for the air force. They are wanting men of eighteen to forty-five years of age. They explained that wireless and electrical mechanics should have a good personal knowledge of modern superheterodyne receivers and of servicing and fault finding and have at least mastered the elementary basic principles of radio transmission and reception, but knowledge of Morse Code is not necessary. Aero-engine mechanics should possess a thorough knowledge of internal combustion engines and for airframe (metal) mechanics a good knowledge of sheet metal work and welding is necessary.

The representatives contacted a number of men and request that any others interested should communicate with the R.C.A.F. Recruiting Centre, 297 Bay Street, Toronto.

The vocational school training shop were visited in the course of the local survey.

OBITUARY

MRS. ANNIE HORRIGAN,

(Tyendinaga Township).

Mrs. Annie Horrigan, widow of Timothy Horrigan, died at her residence at Read in the 9th Concession of Tyendinaga Township, on Tuesday, Nov. 5th. She was in failing health for some time.

The late Mrs. Horrigan, who was in her 64th year, was born in Tyendinaga Township and resided there all her life. Her parents were the late Mr. and Mrs. William Bennett; her mother's maiden name was Elizabeth Doran. In religion she was a faithful member of St. Charles' Church at Read and a member of the Altar Society. In the community she was held in high regard.

Surviving her are four daughters, Mrs. Michael Naphan, Trenton; Mrs. John Enright, Read; Mrs. Clare Brennan, Marysville and Miss Rita Horrigan, at home; two sons, Mr. Jerry Horrigan, Read and Mr. Michael Horrigan at home; two sisters, Mrs. William McDonald, Oshawa and Mrs. John Brennan, Read; two brothers, Mr. Henry Bennett, Marysville and Mr. Charles Bennett, Saskatchewan.

The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this paper.

WILLIE T. DRIVER

The funeral of Willie Thomas Driver, little son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Driver, who passed away on Thursday, Oct. 31st, was held at the home of his parents on the 1st concession of Tyendinaga on Saturday, Nov. 2nd., at 2 o'clock and was in charge of the Rev. C. P. Heaven, rector of the Anglican Church in Shannonville.

Interment was made in the family plot of his grandparents Mr. and Mrs. Howell, of Trenton.

CAR COLLIDES WITH TRANSPORT

Motor Vehicle Turns Over Twice but Driver is Not Seriously Hurt

Trenton, Nov. 6 (Special)—Two motor crack-ups occurred on the Belleville Road east of here during the past 24 hour downpour, one last night and the other early today. Extensive property damage resulted in both cases, the occupants miraculously escaping injury.

An automobile driven by W. H. Goodwin, Trenton, crashed into the rear of a parked transport directly in front of the residence of Motorcycle Patrolman J. H. Hatch four miles west of Belleville early today. The motor car turned completely over twice and rolled into the ditch after colliding with the right rear corner of the transport platform. Mr. Goodwin escaped with minor lacerations, but his motor car was damaged beyond repair.

Traffic Officer Hatch investigated and found that a Martin transport, driven by H. E. House, was proceeding easterly when the engine stalled. House attempted to set flares as warning, but the wind proved too strong and as he returned to the cab of his truck to light the flares, Mr. Goodwin's car, which was also proceeding easterly, crashed into the parked truck. Mr. Goodwin claimed he could not see the transport.

Late last night near the town limits another stalled car was instrumental in a motor crash. An automobile driven by William Ward, Hamilton, stalled on the highway. Following behind was another motor car driven by Sergt. Holder of the R.C.A.F., who told Motorcycle Patrolman Hatch he had been of the opinion, that Ward's car was moving. Holder was forced to swerve to the left to avoid collision with Ward's parked vehicle. In so-doing Holder's car crashed head-on with a west bound vehicle driven by L. C. Hartman, also of the Air Force. Extensive damages resulted to the Airmen's cars. Constable Hatch stated today, that charges were pending in the latter case.

Women of Moose Hold Regular Monthly Meeting

The regular November meeting of the Women of the Moose, Belleville Chapter 435 was held in the Moose auditorium last evening. Considerable business was transacted. Mrs. C. St. Louis, Senior Regent, announced that the next chapter night program will be sponsored by Mrs. L. Connell, library chairman. A talk on the value of books and reading material will be anticipated.

Letters of interest were read from Mrs. Alice McKelvie, Graduate Associate Regent and Miss Margaret Magee, Associate Regent for Ontario. Grand Recorder Miss Katharine Smith, Washington, D.C., gave much valuable information to the chapter. A letter of appreciation was read from Mr. Thomas Howell, Moosehaven.

Mrs. Woodacre reported on knitting and Mrs. E. McGinniss on sewing for warfare purposes. Mrs. B. Mossman was the winner of the sunshine prize.

NEED FOR UNITY

New York, Nov. 6 (CP)—James A. Varley, former Democratic National Chairman, said today in a broadcast that "now, perhaps more than ever before in history, the United States has need for national unity." He expressed hope that the "victors will be moderate and considerate."

German Officer Prisoners of War Now Transferred

Ottawa, Nov. 6 (CP)—Movement of German officer prisoners of war from a Muskoka internment camp to another camp in Eastern Ontario has been completed, an official of internment operations announced today.

It is understood the officers were accompanied by a sufficient number of other ranks to look after their needs.

Under international law officer prisoners do not work and the new arrangement, it was said, was made largely to take care of this situation, the presence of the officers in a work camp being unsuitable from the administration standout.

Police Blotter

Blinded by the strong headlights of oncoming motor vehicles during last night's downpour of rain, a motor car driven by Captain Fred Douglas of this city, crashed into a street excavation resulting in axle and headlight damage to the vehicle and Captain Douglas told investigating police the lights of oncoming motor vehicles were so strong and blinding he was unable to see the barricades placed around the excavation at the intersection of William and Dundas Streets.

Another motor car accident, which occurred at the intersection of Pinnacle and Station Sts., resulted in fender and bumper damage when a motor car driven by Thomas Parks of Cobourg, collided with the rear of an automobile driven by Mrs. H. Legate, 245 Bridge St. Mrs. Legate was making a left hand turn off Station Street to proceed south on Pinnacle when Mr. Park's car which was following directly behind Mrs. Legate's car clipped the rear fender of the latter vehicle. The parties concerned continued to the police station where they reported the matter and settled the incident amicably.

Last night's rainfall resulted in an increased number of transients seeking warm and dry sleeping quarters at the police station when eleven damp and weary knights of the road were sheltered.

Huge Santa Claus Parade To be Held Here in December

Plans Now Being Made to Make Event the Most Successful Ever Held in Belleville

NEED MANY FLOATS

M. D. Wyman

"Santa Claus is coming to town." That genial old white-whiskered gentleman the jovial friend of young and grown-ups alike who brings joy and happiness in his conventional big red bag filled with good cheer around Christmas time, will again visit Belleville and make a triumphal tour of the downtown streets of the city early in December as the guest of the community of Belleville. Headed by a parade of bands playing martial music and all of the story-book and fairy tale characters in life-like form, Santa Claus will drive his team of reindeer down Front Street to bring joy and glad tidings to thousands of children from all parts of the Belleville shopping district.

Last year Santa's visit to Belleville proved so successful and attracted so many outside potential customers to the business section of the centre of the Bay of Quinte shopping area, that the project was deemed a boom to Belleville business and will be staged again in 1940, but on a much larger scale.

M. D. Wyman Chairman

Morley D. Wyman was named general chairman of the 1940 Belleville Santa Claus parade. Business firms throughout the city will be canvassed for larger donations than last year in order to make the occasion the largest of its kind ever held here with the purpose in mind of attracting shoppers to Belleville for the richest shopping season of the year. Mr. Wyman's telephone number is 399 for the information of interested parties.

A large scope of plans is being formulated in an effort to interest local manufacturers and industrial concerns of the district to promote and foster floats for this gala occasion. Firms interested in the project and desirous of parading floats advertising their respective lines of merchandise and goods of manufacture in the parade should contact Mr. Wyman immediately as the parade will be held early in December.

Want Suggestions

General Chairman Wyman stated today that any suggestions regarding the improvement of the Belleville Santa Claus parade over last year's effort would be gladly received in his office as the idea now in the making is to elaborate largely upon the spectacle of last year. Various committees to look after the plans of the parade will be formulated immediately to assure the most successful pre-Christmas Santa Claus parade ever staged here in the interests of local business and in an effort to stimulate Christmas trade throughout the entire district.

WATER REBATE

Your Commission takes pleasure in announcing that due to the successful operation of the Water Utility it is in a position to make a rebate to city users and now when so many calls are being made on the public, it is an opportune time.

It has been decided that all users who have been taking water service for a period of one year or longer will not be charged for water during the months of November and December.

Users who are on meter will receive a rebate of the November and December accounts but the rebate will not be more than the November and December accounts of 1939.

The Commission would point out that the above makes the second reduction which has been made in the water charges since it assumed control. A reduction of 10% was made in January, 1938, and this rebate amounts to approximately 15%.

V. O. N. Gives Belleville Complete Nursing Service

To many citizens in Belleville who have called upon the service of the Victorian Order of Nurses the various aspects of this great organization are familiar. Thousands of Belleville residents have had occasion to require part-time nursing and they turn instinctively to the V.O.N. aware of the many advantages it offers.

The Victorian Order endeavours to meet the special requirements of patients whose cases do not demand the full-time services of a nurse, of those who have neither the means to pay for the full time services of a nurse, nor the household accommodation to offer her, as well as those who for various reasons cannot or need not, go into hospital. Skilled nursing care is given by the nurses of the order to medical, surgical and chronic cases and this care is always given under the direction of the family physician.

So far this year the nurses have made 2,044 medical and surgical visits to Belleville patients and the same kindly and expert care is given to those who are unable to pay the small fee as to those who pay for the service. No one is refused care because of inability to pay and this is one of the great community services in which all citizens can share. A contribution to the annual canvass being made this week on the part of the individual citizen will make it possible for the less fortunate to have the V.O.N. services in time of illness.

To continue this service at its best the funds of the Order must be augmented by subscriptions from individual citizens. The opportunity of sharing in the great cause for the welfare of the community is given the people of Belleville your contribution will be sincerely appreciated by the local committee.

M. VAN WAGONER CARRIES MICHIGAN

Luren Dickinson, Republican Governor, is Ousted by Democratic Candidate

Detroit, Nov. 6 (AP)—Murray Van Wagoner, Democratic candidate for Governor, forged into a substantial lead over Governor Luren Dickinson of Michigan today on the strength of heavy Democratic voting in Wayne County.

Judge Glenn Gillespie, Dickinson's legal adviser, conceded Van Wagoner's election as the Wayne vote wiped out Dickinson's outstate margin. With 2,471 of the state's 3,632 precincts reported, the vote was: Van Wagoner 661,373, Dickinson 626,794.

The presidential contest in Michigan threatened to settle into a neck-and-neck race as pluralities for President Roosevelt in Metropolitan Detroit tended to offset the margin compiled by Wendell Willkie in rural areas.

Senator Arthur Vandenberg, Republican seeking re-election, held a margin over Frank Fitzgerald, Democratic "unknown," but here too the contest was close and in general followed the line of cleavage between urban and rural areas.

Dickinson, 81-year-old critic of "high-life," compiled an advantage of nearly 100,000 outstate, but it quickly melted away as Wayne County's vote was tallied.

Willkie's lead, at one time 140,000 was cut in half by the first 400 of the country's 1,215 precincts and continued to dwindle. With 2,216 precincts of the 3,632 in the state reported, Willkie had 621,796, Roosevelt 546,285.

PROBLEM UP TO COURT

Geneseo, N.Y., Nov. 6—(AP)—The Board of Elections left up to the Attorney-General's office today the problem of deciding what to do about a voting machine that gave both President Roosevelt and Wendell Willkie 458 votes each in normally overwhelmingly Republican Geneseo. The board said the machine likewise failed to register properly in the court of appeals case.

'I Didn't Do it' Says McFarland, Charged With Infant's Murder, In Statement Given to Police

Claims He Stayed on West Side of River While She Went Across With the Baby

CROWN CASE CLOSED

The dramatic story of the manner in which eighteen-months-old Gordon Archer, son of Alice Archer McFarland, came to his death on the night of July 25th, was unfolded before a Supreme Court jury yesterday by Chief of Police William Bain, Trenton, last witness called by the Crown before it closed its case in the trial of Robert McFarland, charged with the infant's murder.

The story was related by the witness after two statements, one in part and the other in its entirety, attributed by police to the accused Robert McFarland, had been ruled admissible by Mr. Justice Keiller MacKay, following lengthy argument by counsel.

In refusing admissibility of portions of the major statement given by the accused, the court found that "As far as statements made by the accused's wife in his presence, and denied by him are concerned, I believe it is dangerous to permit them to be read before the jury.

"Such statements might work prejudicially against the accused. The Crown has satisfied the court that the statements were made voluntarily and taken under the proper circumstances."

"I Didn't Do It"

In McFarland's first statement to the police, as read to the jury by Crown Prosecutor Walter Martin, he admitted going with his wife to the homes of Mrs. Mountenay, the Johnson and the Taylors on the night of July 25th.

"Then we went to the footbridge and stopped. I stayed on the west side of the river. My wife said she was going to look for a place to board the baby, as there was no place for it at hm. She told me to wait there a few minutes. She went across the bridge and came back two hours later and said she had found a place for the child. We then went home to Frankford."

In his second statement to Police Constable Frank Lozo, the accused is attributed as saying simply, "I didn't do it."

Retrace Movements

Recalled to the stand by the Crown to relate his evidence to the jury, Chief Bain told the court how accompanied by Police Constable Frank Lozo, Court Reporter J. H. Tinney and the accused couple, he had retraced the movements of the McFarlands, on the night of July 25th.

They had called at the homes of the late Mrs. Mountenay, the Taylors and the Johnsons. Later arriving at Murray Street, Chief Bain said the McFarlands disagreed on the route taken from this point. The husband had said they had gone north along the old Central Ontario Ralway tracks, while his wife insisted they had gone along Highway 33 to the Grand Trunk subway. "Both agreed, however," the witnesses said, "that they had got on the Grand Trunk tracks between the station and the subway."

"From here, the couple related, they had gone along the tracks to the west end of the Grand Trunk bridge. At this point, the accused Robert McFarland stated, he had remained, while his wife proceeded over the bridge to its eastern end."

Threw Child in River

"Police Officer Lozo, myself, Tinney and the accused pair, proceeded to the east end of the bridge," Chief Bain continued, "and went down an embankment to the river where we were shown an opening in the shrubbery along the each bank of the river, where Mrs. McFarland stated she threw the child in the river.

"She indicated a fence, some six or seven feet away from which she said, she took some wire and tied the child up. She also stated she had taken a stone from the riverbank which she attached to the wire about the child's body before she threw it in the river."

At this point, Chief Bain related he had again asked the accused, Robert McFarland, where he stood while his wife had disposed of the child. "He once more said 'I stood at the west end of the bridge'."

Although disagreeing about the route take from the river to Highway 33, the accused couple agreed they had walked down the highway some 200 yards, just past a house owned by a man named LaFrance, when they were picked up by a man from Glen Miller, related the witness.

Later they were picked up by another motorist and still later by McFarland's cousin, John Foster, who drove them home. From the accused's description of the first two drivers, he had ascertained their identity.

The McFarlands were formally charged with the murder of the baby at 12.30 on Saturday, and later, after being given the customary warning, Robert McFarland had given his second statement. The warning had been typewritten on a piece of paper, under which the words, "I didn't do it" were written by the accused man.

Justice MacKay learned through questioning that no offers of reward, promises or inducement were held out to the accused persons by police ofcers prior to taking their statements.

Stone Produced

A piece of flat stone produced by the Crown was identified by Chief Bain as one he had found in the Trent River about 5 feet from the shore in three feet of water near the spot where the dead baby was discovered. He pointed out scratches on its surface. He had examined the stone, he said, and its narrow end fitted into the loop of the wire found attached to the wire that bound the baby's body.

"There were no other stones of that size or color apparent in the bed of the river," he testified. "It had the appearance of one taken from the land, while others in the river were green and had apparently been there a long time. The scratches on the stone were fresh when it was retrieved from the river-bed."

Under cross-examination by Defence Counsel Ormonde Butler, Chief Bain could not recall any statement made by the accused to the effect that he was willing to provide a home for the baby.

Chief Bain's evidence regarding the retracement of the McFarland's movements and statements made by them during the tour, was corroborated by Constable Lozo and Tinney. The Crown closed its case at this point.

CASE TRAVERSED TO OTHER COURT

E. A. Kellaway and H. Herrington Charged With Dangerous Driving Will be Tried in County Court

Bound over by Mrs. Edna Kellaway and Mrs. G. Devault respectively for the sums of $2,000, Edwin A. Kellaway, Belleville fruit merchant and his truckdriver Hubert Herrington, Belleville, will appear at the next General Sessions of the Peace for the County of Hastings, to answer charges of "dangerous driving" arising from a motor accident in August that claimed the life of Mrs. Jessie Allore, Trenton and injured four Belleville residents.

The case was traversed from the Supreme Court to the County Court through a motion by the Crown yesterday and endorsed by Mr. Justice Keiller MacKay.

Crown Prosecutor Walter Martin pointed out, in presenting the motion, that the case was now one for the general sessions due to the charge being reduced by a Grand Jury from manslaughter to dangerous driving.

Originally charges of criminal negligence and manslaughter had been laid respectively against Kellaway and Herrington. These in turn had been transferred into a joint indictment of manslaughter by the crown. The Hastings County Grand Jury during the present sessions of the Supreme Court of Ontario, had returned a no bill of manslaughter, but a true bill of dangerous driving.

The case will be heard in December before a county judge.

Postmaster General Reduces C. O. D. Fee On Parcel Post

Honourable William P. Mullock, K. C., M. P., Postmaster General announced to-day that effective from November 18th the Post Office Cash on Delivery charges on mail matter posted in Canada will be reduced from 15c to just 10c on amounts up to and including $2.00 in value. This reduced fee will be welcomed by firms throughout Canada as it will enable them to benefit to a greater extent from the service and security provided by the Postal C. O. D. system.

The C. O. D. fee covers insurance in the case of parcels prepaid at parcel post rates against loss, abstraction, or damage while in the custody of the Postal Service. The C. O. D. fee also covers registration in the case of articles prepaid at other than parcel post rates.

The cash on delivery system of the Post Office Department introduced in 1922 is looked upon as a special aid to business men, and has become one of the greatest merchandising media of the Dominion.

Notices Issued For 2nd 30-Day Training Period

Ottawa, Nov. 6 (Special)—With the second 30-day militia training period scheduled to commence Nov. 22, notices have been issued by the registrars of the thirteen Divisional Boards of the National War Services Department to single men of 21 and 22 and a small number in the 23-year-old class to report for medical examination.

In making this announcement, Major General L. R. LaFleche, Associate Deputy Minister, stated that the instructions make it clear that all medical practioners in good standing throughout Canada have been appointed examining physicians by Hon. James G. Gardiner, Minister of National War Services, and that all examination fees will be paid by the Department. At the same time, he stressed the fact that each man must sign the medical examination form on which appears the doctor's report on his physical condition.

Major General LaFleche pointed out that since the time of national registration—last August — many young men have enrolled in universities and colleges or have joined the Navy, Army, Air Force or a Non-Permanent Active Militia unit. "If notices to report for medical examination should be received by any of these men, they must immediately inform the registrar whose name appears on the upper left hand corner of the notice, he stated. "Their speedy co-operation in this connection will enable registrars to obtain other eligible young men to complete the required quota."

Any application for postponement of training must be made to the Divisional Registrar within eight clear days of the date appearing on the notice for medcal examination.

Following the same procedure adopted in the case of the first group of young men called upon to undergo military training, those in the second group who are found to be medically fit will be notified. Transport warrants, covering transportation from the recorded place of residence to the indicated training centre, will be issued if necessary.

R. C. A. F. Needs Trumpeters

The Royal Canadian Air Force today issued a call for trumpeters to sound the daily duty calls at air stations scattered across Canada from coast to coast.

While the trumpeter recruit must be at least 18 years old and capable of passing the Air Force medical examination, he need not be a virtuoso on the trumpet. Experience in playing either the trumpet or the bugle is essential, and recruits with such qualifications are directed to apply to the nearest R.C.A.F. recruiting centre, taking with them proof of their musical qualifications.

The need for "station trumpeters" was described at Air Force Headquarters as a fine opportunity for young men with experience in Boy Scout or cadet bugle bands. About 75 trumpeters are required, and those recruits accepted will be fully trained by expert instructors in the various Air Force trumpet calls, which differ considerably from standard army calls. Trumpeters will have no other duties to perform.

The trumpet used by the R.C.A.F. is the E-flat cavalry trumpet, a longer and more graceful instrument than the short, blunt B-flat bugle of the army. The tone is thinner and more penetrating.

Scott put on a game for the grown ups and children, Mrs. F. Jeffery put on a moving contest, Mrs. W. Jury put on a game for the children. Rev. L. W. Scott moved a vote of thanks to Mrs. McMurter and her helpers and all who took part in making the evening a success. A very delightful lunch was served by the ladies and the children enjoyed a peanut scramble, after which all joined in singing the National Anthem before leaving for their homes, all feeling that a happy time was spent.

The recent rain has made plowing easier and the farmers are busy getting out roots also.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Pound and Ross and Mr. W. Woods were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. F. Harris.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Holmes spent Tuesday with Mr. and Mrs. Roy Brickman.

Point Anne

Point Anne — A very enjoyable time was spent on a recent evening when a large number gathered in Point Anne Orange Hall in honour of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Sweete, (nee Ruth Insley). The early evening was spent in progressive euchre, the prize winners of which were: Ladies 1st, Mrs. J. Sero, consolation, Barbara Sweeney; Gents 1st, A. B. Charlton, consolation, W. Anderson. Following cards, Mr. Tom Bowler called the young couple to the platform and read an address and presented them with a beautiful gift of linen and other gifts. Mr. Sweete thanked the assembled crowd in an appropriate manner after which all joined in singing, "For he's a jolly good fellow". Dancing was then enjoyed to music by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Claus.

Mr. A. B. Charlton left on Friday for Mountain Grove where he joined a party of friends for the deer hunting season.

Hallowe'en passed off quietly in the village. In the afternoon the school pupils enjoyed parties in their respective rooms, a number of them in costume and the streets were thronged in the evening with masqueraders going from door to door seeking the usual hand out.

Misses Violet, Gladys and Avalina Hill and Mr. Stewart Fletcher spent a recent week end in Hamilton with Miss Mabel Hill. They also motored to Niagara Falls and other points.

Mrs. Arthur Parkes of Cooper is spending a few days with her daughter, Mrs. W. Akey.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Barker and daughters spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Daly Cummings.

A number from here attended the banquet at St. John's Mission, Herchimer Avenue, on Monday evening.

A number of ladies met in the Club House on Thursday afternoon and packed boxes to be sent to the boys who are serving their King and country in England.

A FRIENDLY PRESIDENT

The re-election of President Roosevelt, we believe, will meet with the approval of the great majority of Canadian people. Probably no other United States President of recent years has displayed the friendly attitude to Canada and Britain than has Roosevelt. He has shown his good will both by deeds and words. Naturally Canadians as a whole would be hesitant about wanting a change in the White House especially in these troublesome times. Mr. Willkie in his campaign, also, said that he would give increased aid to Britain if he was elected. Nevertheless, he apparently had the support of many undesirable elements who are foes of Britain or isolationists and there is no way of foreseeing what influence these might have had in policy of the Republicans.

President Roosevelt has probably made as many mistakes in government as any president but in that he is no different than leaders in Canada or Britain. His "New Deal" policy whereby he spent billions to relieve unemployment, to control production of farm produce and his breaking up of the large holding utility corporations along with other interference with big business contributed to hatred of him by the wealthier classes in the States. His tremendous power in authority has brought some fear in many quarters, that Roosevelt was gradually working to some form of dictatorship. To many over here it would seem that an extremely strong man was needed as the head of the United State Government. Despite the dangers of the present day, when the factor of time is all important, Congress and the Senate, sometimes, have a way of delaying important legislation by trifling argument, that goes on for weeks unless there is a strong man as President, who can force through measures that are necessary for the welfare and protection of the country. As an example of this we have in mind the exchange of destroyers for bases, which was made during the past few months. Had it been debated in the two Houses the deal probably would not have been made yet.

Deeds like this have made Mr. Roosevelt popular in Canada and we can hardly be blamed for preferring to have him continue as President rather than having a man, whose foreign policy might delay help to Britain at the time when it is needed most. A friendly United States is all important now and we have that friend in President Roosevelt. We wish him good fortune in the difficult task that lies ahead of him for the next four years.

A BROADLY HUMANITARIAN SERVICE

One of the campaigns which deserves the support of every citizen is that of the Victorian Order of Nurses. This week there is a canvass of the city by volunteer workers to raise one thousand dollars for the fund.

All monies which are contributed to this work will be used for the benefit of Belleville citizens. In this way the good deeds of contributors come back to them manyfold in the improved health of individuals and community.

The V.O.N. in a city of this size has a large task. Last year there were no fewer than 1,142 patients cared for requiring 6,623 visits to patients, 3,682 free bedside nursing visits and 2,410 visits to mothers and babies.

The work in Belleville costs approximately $4,000 a year of which $1,000 is necessary to be raised by individual donations, so that the services of the nurse may be available. It is to be seen by this that three quarters of the cost of the work is already met without the individual being asked for anything. Various grants and fees collected by the nurse from those who can pay make up the other $3,000, for patients wherever it is possible for them to do so, are expected to pay the cost of the visit.

But it must not be forgotten that no case is refused because of inability to pay.

The V.O.N. serves in two ways. Always at the call of the public the nurse is ready to serve two classes, those who can pay and those who cannot. Both groups benefit by the service and there is no doubt that but for the V.O.N. many now receive nursing service which would not otherwise be possible. It offers to those who are able to pay nursing in their own homes at a moderate cost. Those who cannot afford or do not desire full time nursing care are quick to take advantage of the service hereby offered. In the fullest sense it is a community service. The nurse is thoroughly qualified. All calls are answered and nursing care is continued only under the direction of a physician. For those unable to pay the same service is given. Both groups benefit by such arrangements and the municipality which makes a grant is also benefited by the care given those who are unable to pay for service which would otherwise no doubt cause much larger outlay.

Those who can help in the campaign with a donation are urged to do so at the earliest possible moment. In this way they help to sustain a service of a broadly humanitarian character.

THEY SERVED THEIR COUNTRY

Last week there were revealed marine losses which Canada has suffered. The regal Empress of Britain operating under the British Admiralty was lost at sea through enemy aircraft action but her crew was so expert and calm in danger that about six hundred people were saved, one of the greatest tributes to British prowess and presence of mind. There followed announcement of the loss of the Canadian destroyer Margaree in collision with heavy losses of life, about one hundred and forty going down. One of those missing was a Belleville boy, Able Seaman Thomas Coxon, son of a seafaring family whose members have been represented in the naval and armed forces in defence of the Motherland and Empire since the days of Sir Francis Drake. The third loss was the freighter St. Malo sunk by enemy action. The fourth is given up for lost in a storm in the St. Lawrence with captain and 29 men, the mine sweeper Bras d'Or.

All those who died in these ship losses died in the service of their country's defence, whether they were on the two ships sunk by enemy action or on the destroyer sunk by collision or the Bras d'Or admitted lost in an autumn storm, for they were serving in times of peril. They had undertaken noble tasks and it was their destiny to die as they served in their country's cause.

The sympathy of Canada goes out to the relatives of these brave men who gave their all for the cause of liberty and justice. Their country and the Empire are proud of them and mourn their passing. They sleep the sleep of the brave "who sink to rest by all their country's wishes blest."

CHARGED WITH MANSLAUGHTER TODAY

Uxbridge, Ont., Nov. 6—(CP)—Police said today Norman Reynolds, 19, of nearby Greenbank was arrested late yesterday and charged with manslaughter as a result of an accident Saturday in which Louis Arbourne, 22, was killed. Police Chief W. A. Vesey said an unnamed garage employee gave him initial information on which he later arrested Reynolds. He said Lawrence Hood, 18, allegedly with Reynolds Saturday night, is held as a material witness.

Home Lessons An Anachronism

A Letter in Peterborough Examiner

Editor, Examiner: Sir,—I am surprised to find that many schools still follow the antiquated custom of prescribing home lessons for their pupils, a custom which is condemned by the best authorities as unscientific and contrary to modern ideas of genuine education. Not least of the offenders in this matter is the Collegiate itself. It is preposterous that such a great school should do anything to perpetuate this out-moded and reactionary custom.

The teacher's job is never an easy one but he should never forget that his business is to teach. What happens, all too often under the present system, is that the teacher "explores" a subject and sends the pupil home to complete the task. Personally, I think it is wrong, even iniquitous, to prescribe fresh work for home study. The child-mind can only take in so much, and the teacher has ample time during school hours to instil truth to the measure of the child's capacity, and to "draw out" what God has put within.

The very word education means to "lead out" to develop what is innate in the child, not to cram the mind with facts and dates which are seldom digested. To educate is to teach the pupil to think, to reason, to make wise choices and so be fitted for the business of living.. Home-lessons are often a way of escape for the teacher, but it is a mean one. He is paid to teach not to prescribe lessons or to degrade the pupil who fails to overtake the work that the teacher has left undone. And if the teacher protests that home-lessons are necessary because there is so much ground to cover, the answer is, "cover less ground, and do it thoroughly, educationally," not as a matter of cramming which is not education. Quality not quantity should be the criterion in the school.

Lest I be misunderstood let me say that I believe in home-work, of a kind: memory-work, for example, and revision. Also it is good to encourage the habit of home-reading and to supervise the same. By all means let the scholar commit to memory great poems and passages from great literature, including the Bible. These become life-long treasures, and should be stored in memory not as a task, but as a recreation.

I have special sympathy for young people from the country. Often they lack home comforts and convenience, and must spend long hours on wintry nights wrestling with problems till their brains are in a whirl and health itself endangered. I protest against the spoliation of young life! I am sure I speak for many parents, and friends of children in writing as I do. Youth is not only the time to learn. It is the time to be carefree and happy. The child must not be robbed of his birthright. Piled-up home lessons (such as I have seen) are a real menace to the well-being of many a timid child.

The present system of education is destined to pass. A better system will be evolved in which young people will be trained, morally and intellectually, for the business of life as a whole. I gladly acknowledge the good features of modern school life but it is plain to many, that big changes are on the way. Home-lessons have been "going" for many years. It is high time we said "gone" to this antiquated custom.

FIRST COMMANDER DIES

Heswell, Cheshire, England, Nov. 6—(CP Cable)—Capt. R. G. Latta, first commander of the Empress of Britain, flagship of the Canadian Pacific Line sunk by enemy action Oct. 26, died at his home here last night. He was 68 years old.

Spirit of London Still Undimmed

The following excerpts from a letter written by a London merchant to a friend in Montreal, and published in Montreal Star, throw further light on the heroic manner in which the British people are meeting Hitler's onslaughts.

We all hope over here that you understand how much we appreciate the help you are giving us, and we also hope that you appreciate how very badly we want that help, and even more.

Well, we are certainly having a rough time. The damage done in London was very considerable, but almost all of it confined to non-military objects. The Huns having failed completely to get superiority in the air, are unable to do effective daylight attacks. So they just keep everybody's nerves on edge, and interfere with production as much as they can by making attacks all day and every day, which very, very seldom succeed in getting into London, and all night they send over planes, two or three at a time in groups dotted about over London, and, of course, succeed in getting through without much difficulty, and doing a lot of damage.

It is of course quite impossible for me to explain to you the atmosphere that we live in, but I will give you a rough outline of my personal life, which may give an indication of what life is to all people in London in my position. People living in crowded areas without the facilities of their own shelter, of course are having a very much rougher time; they have to go into public shelters each night, and their houses are so crowded together that when a bomb falls it does a hell of a lot of damage. Their spirit is, however, marvellous — quiet contempt for Hitler and all his works, and no more signs of panic now than there was on the day the war started. I cannot express to you the admiration I have for these poor people. Compared to them the life of those of us who are fortunate enough to be better off is a bed of roses. We have a good many of our people, whose homes have been wrecked, and they all display the same calm indifference to the whole thing, as if it had been caused by a cloudburst, or some phenomena of nature, and was quite unavoidable.

Now to our own life. We get into the office about half past eight, generally during an air raid. We start work as if there were nothing the matter, except that we have a watcher on the roof, and people with whistles all over the building, and if the watcher sees any planes near us, he gives the signal and everybody goes down into the dugout. When the raids first started, they caused us a great dislocation of work, because we used to go down into the dugout for the whole of the warning, but when this got to be five, six, or seven hours of the day, we gave it up, and adopted the present system, which so far has worked very well.

We go home about 5:30 to 6 in the evening in the car, very often having to go a roundabout route owing to demolition, and having dinner at seven, the wife and the servant and I all in our pyjamas sit about listening to the radio until about 8 to 8:30, when the warning for the night raids goes. We then just go up to the dugout, where we have bedding, taking a portable radio with us, listen to the program till about 10 o'clock, and try to sleep. The racket all night from the guns is really great, and when I say 'tis great, I speak with some experience of the Western Front in the last war. The All-Clear for the night raids generally goes just about daylight, say to 5:30 in the morning, but if we are awake, well, we don't get up but just stop there till 7 o'clock, get up and have breakfast, and I come down to business.

This is just a plain, unvarnished description of how we spend our life; we haven't actually slept in our beds for sixteen days now. It doesn't sound too pleasant, and it isn't, because the nervous strain is pretty high, but still one's getting used to it, and anyway we've got to stick it out, and we shall stick it out, until we've given the Huns something that they're giving us.

Occasionally during the day one gets disturbing thoughts like we had last Friday when the bombs dropped just near the building, breaking the windows in our case, but doing a lot of damage elsewhere, without any warning. This simply means that one 'plane out of perhaps two hundred has managed to get through unobserved and dropped its bombs at random. That was naturally unnerving to the girls, but they took it very well, and there weren't more than two or three of them who showed any signs of being frightened, in spite of the explosion.

It's curious to be writing this to you, because I know that you can no more realize what we're going through than we could realize when correspondents and people were writing us about what the Finns went through.... There is also no doubt that we're not going to give in, and even if London has to be evacuated altogether it won't stop us.

I'm afraid this letter is a bit disjointed, but it is being written during an air raid, and I have had several interruptions.

One thing that helps greatly in keeping our spirits up is that everybody realizes that Hitler has had at the hands of the R.A.F. the first defeat he's ever had. There is no question that he expected to subdue this country by invasion and his invasion depends entirely on whether he can get command of the air. By command of the air I mean local command of the air, but in daylight. This he's absolutely failed to do, thanks to the R.A.F. who every time the Hun comes over in daylight, shoots down three, four and even five times as many planes as we lose. Please don't get any idea into your head that these figures published by the Air Ministry are phoney. It just can't be done. You must remember there are millions of people who see these fights every day, and they see the German 'planes coming down with their own eyes, and they see the wreckage on the ground, so that's that.

You'll be surprised to hear that we're still doing business. It seems a funny thing amidst all this noise, and danger and nervous tension, to be quietly seeing about customer's orders, and so on, but actually it helps us a lot, and we are very glad that business is going on.

Well I sincerely hope that you won't get the impression that this country is beaten, or is going to be beaten. We're taking a pretty good hiding at the presentime; that is, the civilian population is taking a good hiding, because the Hun is indulged in a form of warfare which simply as far as I can see can't be stopped, that is, indiscriminate night bombing. We've got to hold our reserves ready in case he tries an invasion, but we're getting stronger all the time, and one of these days we're going to start to kick, and when we start kicking it's my honest opinion that German people won't stand one-tenth of what we've stood. Our people have a placid outlook on life, and a strong nervous system, based on a tradition and a history of hundreds of years. This the German people haven't got, and brutal fools as they are to allow themselves to be ruled by such gangsters, I feel sorry for them for what they'll have to go through. How soon that time is, and how much we can do will depend, to quite a large extent, on what United States and Canada will do for us—not next year, or the year after, but during the next six months. If you feel yourself, or anyone you know feels in any way anxious to have revenge on what these beasts are doing to us, then talk and think nothing but how soon you can get help to us in any way possible.

So with our tails well up, and wishing you all the best of good wishes....

P. S. Two little scenes that I have observed myself within the last forty-eight hours, and which are indicative of the spirit here: (1) 8.30 a.m. A road in the suburbs of London, air raid taking place, pair of lovers strolling down the road their arms round each other in the usual way, the girl wearing steel helmet. (2) The same day going home from business in the evening, a large fire station near the banks of a canal manned entirely by volunteer firemen; five or six of them fishing in the canal during the air raid.

Since I have started to write this letter to you we have had four air raids. What a life!

Plastic Surgery —Correcting Face Deformities and Defects

One of the good things that resulted from the last war was the great opportunity surgeons had in correcting face deformities due to shrapnel and other wounds. While the improvement in their appearance meant much to these soldiers and their families, the experience obtained by surgeons has meant even more to growing children, boys and girl, and adults afflicted with deformities of the face.

One of the commonest deformities is a long nose with an extra length of "hook" on the end of it. An illustration showing "before and after" of a young girl appeared in the Journal of the American Medical Association some months ago. The "before" operation picture showed a young woman with marked hump nose with overhanging hook or tip. She did not get along well with other girls because of her appearance. The "after" picture showed a straight nose and no hook or tip. "The operation did a great deal to overcome her emotional difficulties".

Drs. Claire L. Strath and E. H. De Kleine, Detroit, whom I have just quoted believe that in the presence of deformity the most important single factor in avoiding undesirable personality changes (inferiority complex particularly, is the most complete surgical restoration possible at the earliest date feasible. Childhood deformities should be corrected before the child reaches school age and a few are best corrected within the first week of life.

While the plastic surgeon may have most to do in correcting facial defects or deformities, the help of other specialists is sometimes necessary, namely dentists, eye, and also ear specialists.

There are also deformities elsewhere in the body such a curvature of the spine bow legs, knock knees, wry neck and others, any of which can spoil school, business or social life. Most of these can be corrected completely or in part.

It is gratifying to know that parents and the family physician are now aware of what it means to children and other to have to face the handicaps of a deformity. It is fortunate also that the family physician is now able to refer patients to experienced plastic surgeons.

Plugging into any nearby electric outlet, an attachment has been invented for kitchen sink faucets to purify running water at a rate of two gallons a minute.

Stewart Says—

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Canadian Columnist

Chas. P. Stewart

Washington, Nov. 6—The Greek legation in Washington is considerably depressed by Italy's war move against its small home kingdom.

As a Hellenic diplomatic attacne put it to me, "One Greek soldier is a match for three or four Italians, but if they pile in five or six to one against us, they may make us a deal of trouble."

American military men take it for granted that the Axis will make short work of the little country, possibly with the exception of its coastal fringe, along which they think that Britain's eastern Mediterranean fleet may help it formidably.

To be sure, the Greeks are rated as first rate fighters and the Italians as pretty weak-kneed warriors. However, the Greeks are away outclassed in numbers, and those they have lack much equipment, whereas the Italians are quite well supplied in the latter respect. Furthermore, it's assumed that, even if Dictator Mussolini does need any assistance, Dictator Hitler will provide him with it—and nobody questions the Germans' prowess on the battlefield.

Albania a Factor

Albania may prove to be an anti-Axis factor in the equation.

It seems funny that that wee little country should signify in the situation. Yet it's across Albania that the Axis forces have been striving to get into Greece overland, dodging the British fleet's superiority on the water.

Now Italy recently grabbed the Albanian realm, kicking King Zog out into exile. According to Italian accounts, the Albanians were glad of it, but other stories are to the effect that they were as mad as hornets, and that, today, they're in a state of anti-Italian insurrection—determined to resist the passage of Axis troops across their territory into Greece.

The Italian version is that the Greeks and Albanians hate one another.

They relate that, not long ago, the Greeks caught an "Albanian patriot" (a pro-Italian) and chopped his head off. It really happened probably, But the Greeks' yarn is that the chap wasn't a patriot. They say he was a bandit and that the Albanians were delighted to have his bean amputated.

Anyway, there are reports that Albanian's in anti-Italian revolt. Rome denies it, and there's no knowing due to the censorship.

The rumors sound probable, though. The Albanians are a super liberty-loving people. Their methods of fighting also are decidedly primitive.

In the days before the last world war I was in Turkey, which then was fighting Albania.

The Turks, none too civilized themselves, complained that the Albanians were outright savages. They charged that the Albanian custom, when a Turkish prisoner was captured, was to cut his hands off.

Just Making Sure

The Albanian high command did not deny the accusation, but it deeply resented its implications.

From Antivari (then their capital) they broadcast their explanation.

"When we take a war prisoner," they pointed out, "we haven't the facilities to intern him. Yet we do not want to turn him loose to go on fighting us. Neither do we want to kill him. That would be barbarous. So we put him on his honor to remain a non-belligerent if we release him. And, to make sure that he keep his pledge, we cut his hands off."

It's imaginable that Albania may have considered the Greek chopping off of one patriot's head a trifle too drastic.

All the same, that's the sort of bunch the Axis will have to deal with if it tries to fight its way overland into Greece.

Whether or not Italy has Albania completely licked and pacified and satisfied, I don't know, because of the censorship. But if it hasn't, it has a mean little stretch of country to fight its way through to put Greece on the spot

LIPSTICK HAZARDS

Protest of Winona health officials against hard-to-clean lipstick smears on restaurant glasses and cups is one of the first public expressions of indignation we've heard against an aesthetic crime which has inspired much private muttering.

One of the gruesome aftermaths of an evening party or bridge game is the smouldering mound of red-daubed cigarette butts found in every ashtray. The average male doesn't mind the scarlet imprints of lips on cups half so much as the telltale token left on cheek, forehead or collar by the woman who claims his affections.

Probably the worst hazard is the lipstick's inevitable availability to three-year-old Anne, who climbs up on the dressing table, smears herself into a grotesque caricature of Mom, then finishes her work of vandalism by drawing indelible pictures on the bedroom wallpaper. She gets paddled for that, but Mom ought to be. Lipstick is all right in its place—but no place else.— Minneapolis Star Journal.

I WANT 2000 PEOPLE TO TRY SYNTONA FOR ONLY 25 CENTS

SUFFERERS FROM STOMACH TROUBLE, WEAK KIDNEYS, LAZY LIVER, NERVOUSNESS AND GENERAL RUNDOWN CONDITION

EVERY PERSON who suffers can have a special introductory bottle of SYNTONA to try for ONLY 25 CENTS.

Simply read the offer below. Do this in your own interest.

This new and scientific medicine, known as SYNTONA, has helped so many people whom the readers of this page know personally. Therefore, we offer the first trial bottle at 25 cents, because we believe the people who are benefitted will keep on using it. The offer is good for Friday and Saturday of this week only.

What It Is!

This is no salts or pill, nor is it a powder, capsule or tablet.

SYNTONA is an advanced medical compound of 12 of the finest medicinal herbs, and not one a habit-forming drug. It is taken before meals and mixes with the food in one's stomach, thus throwing off the poisons that foster stomach troubles. It acts within ten minutes to stop gas and pains, sourness, bloating and belching. At the same time SYNTONA drives the poisons from the kidneys and relieves headaches, bladder irritation and weakness.

NOW, whether SYNTONA will help you as it has thousands of others—whether it will end your suffering in a day or week—remains to be seen. But in light of what it has done for others, it is surely a mistake not to try it for 25 cents, only a fraction of its worth. This introductory offer is good Friday and Saturday ONLY, so read the rest of this announcement and act at once. Do this in fairness to yourself and your family.

What It Will Do!

SYNTONA will cleanse your bowels (gradually — not drastic or severe), and tone them into daily action.

It will bring out awful gases and impurities (frequently from the first dose) which may have been inside of you a long time, causing you many days of misery with headaches, dizzy spells, skin eruptions and lazy, drowsy, tired feeling.

SYNTONA will relieve acid conditions and make the digestive organs sweet and clean, and give grand relief from acid indigestion, bloating, sour stomach, shortness of breath and dyspepsia.

IT WILL improve your appetite and promote proper assimilation of food for ENERGY and RESISTANCE.

SYNTONA will act as a diuretic to sluggish kidneys and flush out quantities of impurities that may have become dammed up inside, causing BACKACHE, SHARP PAINS and RISING AT NIGHT.

It will make your liver more active, thus relieving spells of biliousness and sick headache.

Science brings us methods of preparation and preservation which enable us to bring this famous medicine within easy reach of all sufferers. Permits hundreds to get away from the habitual use of nerve-deadening tablets and harsh drugs.

Relieves those with rheumatism and neuritis pains, by ridding the system of excess acidity and irritating waste matter.

IT WILL clear up skin eruptions caused by the impurities in the organs, will overcome the sallowness or "muddiness" that is due to sluggish liver.

SYNTONA will make your stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels more active, build you up in general and make you FEEL like a DIFFERENT MAN or WOMAN, younger than you may have felt in YEARS.

Mrs. A. J. Webster and Mrs. Percy Ketcheson motored from Toronto yesterday to attend the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Ketcheson.

The many friends of Mrs. Noble Brown will be sorry to learn of her illness at her home.

Dr. Bert Howard is in Picton, tonight to address the annual Fathers' Night meeting of the Home and School Association. Dr. Howard will speak on boys' work.

Mr. Lorne O'Ray, R.C.A.F., Camp Borden, spent the week-end with friends in Belleville.

The friends of Mrs. K. Cleeton of 227 1-2 Front Street, will be pleased to hear she is recovering from a very painful illness.

Mrs. Thelma Liddle, who was recently appointed to the office of Grand Electa of the Grand Chapter of Ontario, Order of the Eastern Star, left yesterday for Hamilton where tonight she will attend the reception to the Worthy Grand Matron Mrs. Blanche Geddes by her own Chapter in that city. Tomorrow night in Oshawa Mrs. Liddle will attend a reception to the Grand Sentinel. Mrs. Liddle is a Past Matron of Belleville Chapter No. 55, and is receiving congratulations from her many friends on her recent appointment.

A very successful meeting of Christ Church Guild was held yesterday afternoon in the Parish Hall with a splendid attendance. Miss Florence Fitzgerald presided. Rev. G. G. Wright was speaker for the afternoon and gave an inspiring talk to the members. Plans were discussed for a hostess tea later in the month. The winner of the knitting bag on which tickets were sold was announced as Mrs. Sherry, while the winners of the telephone bridge and euchre series were Mrs. Saunders and Mrs. Holst. After the business of the meeting, the executive served tea.

Marking the occasion of their golden wedding anniversary, Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Ketcheson were at home to their friends at a tea held at their home yesterday afternoon and at a reception in the evening. The rooms were lovely with the flowers showered on them by friends as expressions of their congratulations and good wishes for continued happiness. The tea table was especially charming with golden chrysanthemums and matching tapers. Assisting during the afternoon and evening were Mrs. Mack Robertson, Mrs. C. A. Cameron, Mr. Percy Ketcheson and Mrs. A. J. Webster of Toronto, Mrs. A. H. Ketcheson, Mrs. A. B. Gribble, Mrs. R. S. Hamilton and Miss Victoria Ketcheson. Mr. and Mrs. Ketcheson were entertained at a dinner party at the Queen's Hotel by their family, previous to the evening reception.

WEDDINGS

EVANS—KETCHESON

A pretty Autumn wedding took place at Foxboro Presbyterian Church on Saturday afternoon at three o'clock when Margaret Roseann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clem H. Ketcheson, Sidney, became the bride of Edward Garland Evans, son of Mr. Arthur E. Evans and the late Mrs. Evans of Cardiff, Wales. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. A. MacDonald. Wedding music was played by Mrs. C. G. Smith.

Ferns with bronze and white chrysanthemums adorned the church for the ceremony The bride who was given in marriage by her father wore a light blue jacket dress of Autumn rose with hat and accessories in soldier blue and corsage of bouvardia and deep wine baby 'mums. Her only attendant was little Miss Joan Read as junior bridesmaid, gowned in wine velveteen. She carried a nosegay of white and pink 'mums and bouvardia. Mr. Cecil Smith was groomsman.

A reception followed at the home of the bride. Mrs. Ketcheson received wearing soldier blue with matching accessories and corsage of yellow baby 'mums.

Mr. and Mrs. Evans left on a wedding trip to Ottawa and eastern points the bride wearing a soldier blue fitted coat over her wedding costume.

COLLIER—BREEN

At the parsonage of the Brockville Tabernacle on November 2, Pastor C. T. Cross united in marriage Delbert W. Collier, formerly of Wellington, Ontario, and only son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Collier of Brockville, and Miss Leta Breen of Brockville, Ont., formerly of Plevna, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Breen of Plevna, Ont.

The young couple were assisted by Miss Hester Breen of Kingston, and Mr. George Breen also of Kingston. Many of their young friends gathered to witness the ceremony including the bride's two sisters, the Misses May and Grace Breen of Belleville.

After the ceremony the young couple left by motor for Smith's Falls, Ottawa and other eastern points. On their return they will reside in Brockville.

The Stars Say

WHILE matters may be accelerated to a very high degree on this day, according to the lunar and mutual aspects, yet the general trend of events may be devastating and disintegrating rather than constructive. The energies and spirit of initiative and enterprise may be well stimulated, but the mental slant or grasp of disruptive situations may be erratic, panicky or revolutionary.

Those whose birthday it is may run into a year in which it will demand a definite use of the constructive forces, with sound planning and aggresive execution to avert dire results of impetuous, irresponsible, erratic or eccentric whims or impulses.

A child born on this day may have excellent creative ability, with much enterprise and initiative, but this may be negatived by an erratic, rash, impetuous or flighty temperament, unless given early training and direction.

Pretty Sitter Gets Accolade

Rita Johnson knows the art of graceful sitting.

By HELEN FOLLETT

Every lady pilgrim along the beauty trail should learn to be a pretty sister. Surprising how many eye-offenders there are; those who sprawl with feet apart, those who sink their heads down into their shoulders and fold up in the middle, those who sit stiffly erect on the edge of the chair or if they were about to be scared into flight.

Look about you in any public conveyance and see the ugly poses of feet. Terrible! Some of them toe in, others rest upon the outer sides of the foot, producing a bow legged effect. Very yokelish and unladylike. Alert minded girls don't assume unmannerly poses.

Sitting Pretty

When occupying a chair, sit far back. The body should touch the chair back, the torso be held erect, but not stiffly. Cross your ankles, if you wish, but see that the toes of your shoes point downward, so the soles are not exposed.

Watch the pose of the hands, the tilt of the fingers. Keep the head balanced. When the head is held beautifully, the chest is lifted and the arms fall naturally. Posture is an old, old story but one which should be often told. The modern girl seems to know little about it, and that's a crying shame. Good posture can give you more style than a frock that costs a fortune.

Liver spots are freckles' big sisters. Sometimes they stay with one only in the good old summer time, depart when winter comes, which shows that, like freckles, they are marks left by old Mr. Sun. The cure then is found in protective measures.

Wear gloves always when out of doors, if your hands are discolored with these blemishes. Every night use cold cream freely, rubbing it in well. At your drug store cosmetics counter you will find mild bleaches that may be effective.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

DEFINITE ART IN FLOWER PRESENTATION

Every epoch of the pageant of life, from birth to the last sad journey, is associated with the beauty and infinite variety of flowers. When the baby comes, we felicitate the mother with flowers and welcome the baby with tiny posies. When the small daughter steps out into the world on her first day of school, the mother sometimes puts into her little hand a charming bouquet with which she is to make her bow to Teacher.

The milestones of graduation from grammar school, high school and college are greeted with youthful flowers. Precious flower-memories dot the years between—the debut, dances, teas, dinners, and other festivities. Beaux send gallant corsages to belles. The announcement of the engagement cascades more flowers on the head of the happy fiancee. And then that climax of all flower-sentiments in a girl's life, the shower of wondrous white flowers that the groom sends to his bride.

So the pageant progresses—Easter, with its flowers symbolic of new life; Christmas, with its festive-colored flowers and plants; Mother's Day, Father's Day, significant anniversaries, accomplishments that call for congratulations or the shadowed days of friends in sorrow or sickness.

Given this broad and diversified opportunity to show with flowers every human relationship, every shade of feeling between giver and receiver, to enrich life and make it glow, we should make ourselves artists in using this great gift.

"Doctor"?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. If one's husband is twenty-seven years of age and has a Ph. D. degree, should he have the title of "Dr." before his name in society column notices? We were visiting out-of-town relatives last summer and our hostess was not clear as to whether she should introduce him as "Doctor" to other guests?

2. I am quite sure that I, his wife, should never refer to him as "Doctor". In this not so?

Wondering

1. Since your husband was automatically given the right to use the title of "Doctor" before his name, it is really for him to decide if he wishes to use it. Some men and some women, when they receive this degree, decide to use it; others do not. It is a very personal choice. I should think that it would mean a great deal to him professionally to use this significant title.

If your husband does decide to use this title, it would always be used in place of "Mister." Therefore on the occasions when a wife would correctly refer to her husband as "Mr. Eliot", you would refer to your husband as "Doctor Eliot". That is, when she is speaking of him to tradespeople or to servants. To close friends, a wife, of course, refers to her husband as "John". To not-so-close friends, or to acquaintances, even to people who don't know him, she says, "my husband".

DR. DAFOE'S COLUMN on the Quintuplets and the Care of Your Children

A BALANCED DIET

Yesterday a week of Quintuplet menus was promised, and it is presented today in the hope that it may be a helpful guide to both children and parents anxious to prevent both overweight and undernourishment. It follows:

MONDAY

Breakfast: Dry cereal, soft boiled egg, toast, milk.

Dinner: Lamb chop, spinach, beets, potatoes, soda biscuit.

Supper: Cooked cereal, bread, salad, (lettuce, tomatoes and celery), biscuit, milk, apricots.

TUESDAY

Breakfast: Dry cereal, scrambled egg, crisp bacon, toast, milk.

Dinner: Tomato juice, broiled steak, beans, peas, bananas.

Supper: Oatmeal, bread, salad, chocolate pudding, milk.

WEDNESDAY

Breakfast: Corn flakes, bananas, poached egg, toast, milk.

Dinner: Bouillon, cod fish fillet, peas, carrots, graham wafer pie.

Supper: Cooked cereal, bread, salad, stewed prunes, biscuit, milk.

THURSDAY

Breakfast: Dry cereal, soft boiled egg, crisp bacon, milk.

Dinner: Liver, beans, asparagus, rice pudding, biscuit.

Supper: Oatmeal, bread, salad, orange whip, biscuit, milk.

FRIDAY

Breakfast: Dry cereal, bananas, scrambled egg, toast, milk.

Dinner: Tomato soup, cod fish fillet, peas, carrots, potatoes.

Supper: Cooked cereal, bread, salad, fresh fruit, biscuit, milk.

SATURDAY

Breakfast: Corn flakes, bananas, toast, poached egg, milk.

Dinner: Bouillon, beef stew, carrots, peas, ice cream, biscuit.

Supper: Oatmeal, bread, salad, custard, milk.

SUNDAY

Breakfast: Corn flakes, eggs, bacon, toast, milk.

Dinner: Bouillon, chicken, carrots, peas, ice cream, biscuit.

Supper: Oatmeal, bread, salad, apple sauce, milk.

A glass of orange juice and a teaspoon of cod liver oil is served the Quins 15 minutes before breakfast. They have cod liver oil again before supper.

The following are never served the Quins: Cabbage, onion, candy, spices, pastry, fried foods, turnips.

The foundation of the Quintuplets diet is the basis of the ideal diet for everybody: plenty of milk (pasteurized, of course), fresh fruit juices, green vegetables, meat properly cooked, and cod liver oil.

Mrs. Wendell Willkie Proud of the Fight Her Husband Made

(By Mary Elizabeth Plummer)

(Associated Press Staff Writer)

New York, Nov. 6.— (AP)—The slim, youthful-looking wife of Wendell L. Willkie was at his side, still smiling, even as her husband was losing his fight for the presidency.

A friend put an arm around her and said, "Don't worry, honey".

She quickly replied, "I'm not worrying".

On their plans for the future:—

"We haven't made plan for anything except to take a vacation. That was to happen win, lose or draw".

In an interview late last night, she indicated that much as she wanted her husband to win, her personal preference for herself was a quiet life.

"I've never had a public life until this campaign", she said. "I do like my own privacy. I like to sit behind the post, or behind a big fat lady—as I did yesterday at the movies".

Looking fresh after thousands of miles of travel with the Republican candidate, she confessed, however, she was tired.

"I haven't slept for a long time, it seems to me", she said. "I certainly intend to get some sleep tonight.

Mrs. Willkie stayed in their hotel suite when her husband, with the vote mounting against him, went to the hotel ballroom about midnight to thank campaign workers and say, "Don't be afraid and never quit".

Edith Willkie turned to her friends and said: "I'm proud of him, I'm proud of the fight he made".

QUATERNION Y.P.U.

Quaternion Union held their weekly meeting in Front Road Church on Monday evening with the President Bill Brennan presiding.

After the singing of "What a Friend we have in Jesus", there was a business discussion. An announcement was made of the Belleville Presbytery Young People's Rally in Tabernacle Church on Nov. 11, to hear Rt. Rev. A. S. Tuttle M.A., D.D., Moderator of the United Church of Canada. An invitation is to be extended to Foxboro Union to meet with Quaternions on the 18th., when Rev. E. M. Cook is to be the speaker.

Helen Brown took charge of the Worship Period and was assisted by Jean Matthews and Mary Kerr.

The President introduced the speaker Rev. J. A. Dilts of Holloway Street Church. The subject of his address was "Motives for Life". He quoted Apostle Paul's motive "For me to live is—Christ". What is it for you? Life is not a goblet to be drained but a measure to be filled. Let us put something into life not see how much we can get out of it.

This fine address was followed by a brief period of games including a True and False Bible Contest.

MELROSE W. INSTITUTE

Melrose Women's Institute held a regular meeting at the home of Mrs. Harry Murphy on Thursday, Oct. 31st.

The District President, Mrs. R. Bunnett, was entertained and addressed the ladies. She stressed the need for intensive study along a certain line rather than trying to touch on a little in a number of different lines of study. She referred the ladies to the last issue of "Home and Country" and read "Keeping the Institute Before the Public".

Red Cross Work had a prominent place at this meeting. A cot quilt was displayed which had been made from suiting samples, also a "parka" from a discarded woollen scarf, both suitable articles for a refugee box.

Quilt patches were distributed to be returned made into blocks for the Nov. meeting. Red Cross funds were increased by $9.81 at this meeting, $3.50 raised from the sale of a quilt and 1.90 from a dinner.

Plans were made for the Red Cross Bazaar. Committees formed from members on each line will look after final arrangements. Members are asked to donate their handiwork.

Mrs. Walker, local leader for refinishing of furniture project made a few remarks regarding this work and requested that the class be left over until the new year.

The attendance of members and visitors was over sixty and the collection amounted to $5.45. Two new members paid their fees making the total membership 50.

GIVE YOUR ROAST AN EXTRA FLAVOUR this new way

A FAMOUS Montreal cook sent us this tip on roasting. She advises mixing a tablespoonful of H. P. Sauce into about a cupful of water and suggests pouring this mixture into the bottom of the roast pan and using it to baste the meat occasionally while it is roasting. This cook tells us that this plan greatly improves the flavour of both roast and gravy.

For fried steaks, broiled meats, chops, hamburg steaks and other foods, including fish and fowl, add a little H. P. when serving. Thick, fruity H. P. Sauce brings out hidden flavour in foods. Try it with your next meal. A small amount is all that is needed to add a distinctly enjoyable and appetizing flavour.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

ANY CURE FOR JEALOUS HUSBANDS?

Haven't you often wished that your husband wouldn't act quite so much as though he owned you? That he wouldn't watch your comings and goings so carefully? Or make scenes when you dance too long with other men? Or object when your clothes are rather gay or your makeup a shade too vivid?

That young husband of yours is disposed to be a little jealous. It fusses you, I'm sure — and you'd like me to tell you what you can do to smooth these annoyances out of your life.

It goes without saying that you want him to love you. Just enough, perhaps, to be a pleasure and a flattery, but not enough to be a burden and an embarrassment, or to stand in the way of your complete freedom.

You want him to admire and approve of you, whatever you may say or do or wear. You want him to feel a constant urge to give you just a little more money than he can afford.

You want him to relieve you of pretty nearly every domestic burden. But you don't ever want to be the victim of his masculine jealousy.

My dear children — for your name is legion — what you want is impossible. A man who is genuinely in love with his wife is pretty likely to demand that she display no interest in other men, or make obvious efforts to attract them.

If the wife is selfish and coquettish, and doesn't try to meet his wishes, should a wounded husband suffer in silence? Anyway, he doesn't. He's jealous and can't help showing it. Before you know it, there's a domestic scene.

I can't defend jealousy. It isn't a lofty emotion, and doesn't show itself in pretty ways. But it can't be wished away. Where love is, particularly the love felt by a husband, jealousy is more than likely to reveal itself, no matter in how faint a tinge.

"With women," some French writer has said, "jealousy is merely a matter of hurt pride. With men, it's a torture as profound and keen as physical agony. Toward the woman he loves, man takes the attitude of a god. He demands that she be totally his creature."

If you want your marriage to be happy, it's your job, first of all, not to provoke jealousy. If, in spite of everything, it manifests itself, it's likewise your job to learn to soothe it.

When Bill's happiness and peace of mind depend entirely upon you, doesn't that very fact make you feel tender and indulgent, so that you can smile and humor his little outbreaks?

You must, in certain moods, learn to be a mother to him. If you think it's the rough, untaught child in a man that shows itself in fits of jealousy, then remember it's the patiently maternal side of a woman that must reveal itself in order to deal with him.

Suppose he didn't love you, or care what you did or how you looked or whom you smiled at? Wouldn't your days be long and cold and the world a desert? A man who takes a woman into his inmost heart offers her a warm, sweet nest to live in. Jealousy? She should learn its lessons.

There is doubtless good reason for the fact that the world has always been lenient toward the sins of jealousy. We must tolerate it, I fear, in this queer, mixed-up life of ours.

Fashion Flashes

IT LOOKS LIKE the biggest fur-trimmed suit season in sartorial history. A beautiful model is in deep turquoise blue woolen, the boxy jacket made with two big patch pockets of beaver. The fur, which borders the deep, high collar, is used for a bag and for a squared bonnet.

BRIGHT HOURS after dark find gala wearing calot hats atop their pompadours. A charming little skullcap is of navy felt with height gained by a row of pink and blue birds. Lacy blue veil.

SEEN AROUND TOWN are many cape costumes. Smart over a suit of tawny yellow woolen is a cape of black with yoke and plastron of leopard.

SMART SIMPLICITY is the keynote of some of the most striking evening things. A charmer is in white crepe embroidered all over in small silver sequins. The perfectly plain bodice has a high round neck and elbow-length sleeves. High-waisted accordion-pleated skirt is fairly narrow.

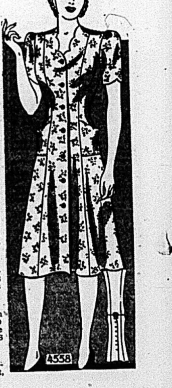
Scallop-Edged Princess Style

By ANNE ADAMS

Pattern 4558



No matter how hectic and rushed your day has been, when evening comes you'll still look neat and smart in Pattern 4558. That's because Anne Adams has omitted all fancy furbelows in its designing, using just simple, good, slimming details. The button-front speeds up dressing and lets you iron the frock in a flat-spread piece. Those princess lines do wonderfully slenderizing things to your figure — they're easy on your sewing needle too. Have the side panels, front and back, on the bias if you like. For a touch of gaiety, the neckline, sleeves and optional pockets are scallop-edged. Do order this pattern right away — you'll find it the quickest sewing task you've ever undertaken.

Pattern 4558 is available in women's sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36 takes 4 3-4 yards 35 inch fabric.

HIGHLIGHTS FOR FALL BY AMERICAN DESIGNERS

Clifford Furst ESTABLISHED COSTUME JEWELRY AS "FASHION"

Clifford Furst is America's acknowledged leader of costume jewelry designs. It is due to his efforts in injecting originality, elegance, style sense and the same fine workmanship found in jewelry set with real stones, that costume jewelry today is definitely a fashion. No longer regarded as cheap adornment, costume jewelry is now beautifully designed and coordinated to follow the trend in fashion. Since he left the marine engineering profession fifteen years ago and created a pair of decorative shoe buckles, Clifford Furst has steadily aimed toward producing inexpensive jewelry of intricate beauty, real value in workmanship and charm.

Credited With Many "Firsts"

He was the first designer to turn away from the creation of flashy rhinestone pieces toward designs which stress color, line and a fashion "idea". He was first to sponsor the use of huge semi-precious Chinese and East Indian stones in costume jewelry, the whimsical lapel pieces, the bib necklaces, enamel jewelry and the gay featherweight "bubble" beads. In 1939 Mr. Furst set many important trends, notably the use of stained glass and hand-decorated porcelain for jewelry, the revival of jet, paste, medieval designs and the longer length necklace. His Russian Easter egg necklace, strung with real little painted porcelain eggs, and his "Sainte Chappelle" bracelet of stained medallions were easily the most discussed, most successful American jewelry piece produced during the year. So important in fact that the American jet designs he showed in October were sponsored in their last collection by the French Couturiers, to whom, until the war, he regularly exported his Castlecliff creations.

The top-flight dressmaking houses of London and Paris including Norman Hartnell, Maggy Rouff and Molyneaux have for several years past introduced Castlecliff jewelry with their collections, definite proof of the brilliance and superiority of our American designers. Mr. Furst also creates special collection for such fashionable designers as Hattie Carnegie, John-Frederics, Germaine Monteil and others. The Duchess of Kent, Mme, Jean Ralli, Donna Gora Caetani, Lady Elsie Mendl, Mrs. Harrison Williams, Brenda Frazier and others of the famous "best dressed women" have chosen many of Mr. Furst's designs for their wardrobe.

Drastic Changes Indicated

The slowing up of the style stream due to the war in Europe will be counter-balanced by rather drastic changes in the costume jewelry picture, Mr. Furst believes. "Accessories of all sorts, chiefly jewelry, will be very different this year against a background of almost unchanged conservatism in dresses and suits," he continued. "Since jewelry has for some years been dominated by American idea, the war had very little effect beyond the general feeling of sobriety and dignity which pervades all of fashion," he said.

60 Inch Necklaces Seen

For Fall, sixty-inch necklaces are important in Mr. Furst's collection. Often these are accented by tiny black beads. The necklaces are versatile, designed to be worn single or double-strand effect, the latter in line with the Fall trend for lavish display of jewelry, all of the type which "looks exactly like the real thing." The phrase "junk jewelry" is obsolete in the fashion vocabulary. Whimsy is not entirely missing, but it is whimsy with a difference. There is, for instance, Castlecliff's amusing datekeeper lapel pin, a new "conversation piece" all America will love. It is a delicate filigree clock face dangling from a brilliant bowknot, the hands of the clock turn to mark your next appointment. Articulate jewelry, flexible brooches, bracelets and earrings are strongly featured in the New Fall jewelry collections.

● Clifford Furst, noted American costume jewelry designer.

An exquisite set in glinting gold, designed by Clifford Furst. Consists of earrings, clips and bracelet in delicately interlaced swirls which can be worn separately or together in perfect harmony with dresses and suits.

This exclusive design by Clifford Furst of Castelcliff is one of the many original creations that has stamped him as one of America's foremost designers of "fashionable" jewelry. Practically all of his creations are beautifully styled and coordinated to follow the trend in fashion—all have an "idea" back of them. An interesting forecast of Mr. Furst's is that the 60-inch necklace will be important this Fall. Evidence of the popularity of this trend is already noted at smart gatherings.

Koret HANDBAG DESIGNER NOTED FACTOR IN FASHION

The name of Dick Koret, guiding genius of the world of handbags, is always high up in any roster of great American designers. This is a position unparalleled for so specialized a field as that of handbag designing. And Dick Koret is largely responsible for this steady growth in fashion importance of the handbag.

Excitive Designs

The Koret Handbag Originals, each stamped with a significant twentieth century gilt gazelle, have become famous the world over. There is good reason for this. In the first place, Koret builds his handbags soundly, their construction is the very best, their design is ever imaginative, always new and exciting. And they show an amazing affinity for the latest mode in costumes. In fact, many of America's best dress designers confab with Dick Koret in styling their lines, and this dependence on an accessory designer is really unique. Koret seems to have come naturally by his talent, which flourished during his comparatively few years of apprenticeship in selling. He has started so many influences in the handbag business, it is hard to enumerate them. All of them required unyielding courage, a natural instinct to Dick Koret, for early in life he was called upon for every ounce of courage a human could muster. He came to this country a lad of nine...with fame and fortune only a dream. His climb was rapid until today he heads his own superlatively successful company, and is undisputable leader of his industry.

Handbag Wardrobes

In mentioning some of the important trends started by Koret, it is well to remind you that only a few years ago handbags bespoke anything but style. They were made of leather and were made only to last. No one, except a few of the very rich, ever had more than two or three bags. Today every smart woman has a handbag wardrobe for each new season.

Dick Koret had then the courage to introduce trends radically different. He used suede for handbags when no one ever dreamed of it. He was first to make an underarm bag. Bags had always dangled from wrists, shoulders, fingers. To prove his belief in the future of the underarm bag he made every bag an underarm bag for a period. Ever alert to changing habits, he introduced bags huge enough to accommodate cigarettes and dressing table props. He was first to put combs and two-faced mirrors in handbags.

Color Affiliates Started

Latest and perhaps most courageous of all, Dick Koret was responsible for the organization of the style alliance, Color Affiliates.

This is a group of manufacturers who banded together four seasons ago to forecast and create new colors, forgetting individual interests, taking the "long" view so that American women could find authentic, beautiful colors that matched exactly in accessories. The Color Affiliates plan was an instant success and it now includes fabric manufacturers, even a world-famous cosmetician. This Fall they are introducing six lush new shades, subdued and rich in color, so that you can match your bag, shoes and gloves, then contrast your hat and dress, glorifying the whole with a make-up designed expressly for these basic shades. So cleverly balanced are the six shades that you can match any two items in your ensemble with no trouble at all. Koret Handbag Originals this Fall are magnificent. Restrained in colors, they employ soft, dusky suedes in many shapes..gleaming, handsome calfskin, swank pigskins. There are dozens of great bags, yet many of the more modest-sized ones. In the latter, though, there's lots of cargo room, so cleverly are they gusseted and cut.

All Fur Bags New

This Fall a surprise is being launched by Impresario Koret. Last year he introduced the fur muff bag, an accessory that dramatized any costume. This year he has gone further and made handbags of all fur.

● Mr. Dick Koret, handbag Impresario.

A Koret original, this soft suede handbag features a "hooded handle" that springs directly from the base of the bag itself. Exemplifying the Koret credo for more space with less bulk.

These six new shades for Fall are subdued in tone, and go back to natural, out-door coloring for inspiration. Bark brown, rich deep brown, juniper green, deep forestry tone, Indian Summer, ripe russet, huckleberry, frosty purple, nightflight blue, autumn navy, and scarecrow grey, a very dark shade. Richard Koret uses these new Fall shades for dramatic, but practical bags that have classic styling and good lines that reflect his innate good taste and creative originality. There is no more sincere flattery to an original designer than to be copied, particularly if he gets recognition, and certainly Richard Koret with his Koret Originals is one of the most copied handbag designers. He understands American way of living and designs for it.

Vera Maxwell DESIGNS "CITY COUNTRY" FASHIONS

Vera Maxwell, one of America's most enterprising young sportswear designers, might be labeled a feminine Horatio Alger for she won her success the hard way.

Born in New York City, Miss Maxwell studied for the Metropolitan Ballet, where she danced for three seasons. Between engagements, her desire to be up-and-doing (and earning) led her into the ready-to-wear market where she got her first taste of the industry from the viewpoint of a model.

Practical Background

At the age of nineteen, she married. Less than five years later she found herself facing the necessity to support not only herself, but a small son. With the "spunk" characteristic of the American girl, Vera Maxwell found steady and adequate employment modelling riding habits and ski clothes. She kept her eyes and ears open, and gradually worked into the selling and of the business. Here, her sunny smile, charming personality and intelligent interest won the confidence of several important buyers, so that soon Vera Maxwell became style and merchandise conscious, and eager to produce the new simpler casuals she saw American women wanted.

To Miss Ethel Smith, then sportswear buyer for Lord & Taylor, Miss Maxwell gives fervent thanks for her friendly encouragement and intelligent criticism of her earliest efforts. The experience gleaned from working with Miss Smith has been invaluable, says Miss Maxwell.

Asked how she made the transition from modeling and selling to designing, Miss Maxwell related how she would stay on at the office after hours, and how for a small consideration, fatherly pattern-makers would show her how to cut and fit the basic patterns that every designer must know how to make. Vera Maxwell makes her designs from rough sketches, working first with the colors and then superintending the wearing wherever possible. Until recently, Miss Maxwell has been going to Scotland for her fabrics, but now she had found American sources that she feels will adequately compensate for the temporary loss of European ones.

Famous For Originality

She says of herself that she has pioneered a "revolt against the stereotyped"....that she loves to make the colorful, unaffected sports clothes she feels are so right for American women to wear To Vera Maxwell goes the credit for being the first to combine silk with tweed ...for originating the little yellow sheepskin jackets that adorn our American campuses. Also, the new "longer" silhouette that we are now hearing so much about has been on Vera Maxwell's "line" for several seasons. Hers, too, are the bold plaids and unusual color combinations such as turquoise and ripe olive...as well as countless other tones that are quickly becoming a part of our American fashion scheme.

Vera Maxwell makes coats, suits and ensembles, and an occasional casual dress that are distinguished for their lovely clean lines and crisp details. Inspiration? All of local origin...colors she has observed on her Bucks County (Pa.) farm.

Tall vivacious with curly-gray-white hair that dramatizes her clear brown eyes, Vera Maxwell is young, alert, straight-forward...The perfect example of that familiar American theme...the successful professional woman who is at the same time an equally successful wife and mother.

● Vera Maxwell, talented American designer.

Fashionable furred Tweed jacket suit, designed by Vera Maxwell, famous American designer. Trimmed with Safari seal, note its double breasted longer jacket, its full pleated skirt. Definitely important for Fall.

Vera Maxwell was sponsored by Lord and Taylor, one of New York's fashionable stores, as one of their first American designers. Important to note is that Miss Maxwell was one of the first designers to recognize the "longer line' silhouette as a coming fashion trend. She was also first to combine silk with tweed, and she is equally famous for her coat as well as suit fashions. She enjoys designing the simple, unaffected sports clothes which she feels are so perfectly right for the American woman.

● Nora Corbin, talented designer of children's clothes.

A new Fall sister act in doublebreasted caped reefers, designed by Nora Corbin. Dark green tweed coats with princess lines have huge flap pockets and bright red flannel-lined capes that are detachable.

These are typical of the fashions designed for children by Nora Corbin, who is one of our leading American designers. Flattering lines, easy wearability and long-wearing fabrics are important features of her fashions. They are to be found in America's leading stores.

Nora Corbin DESIGNS FOR THE "YOUNGER CROWD"

I can almost say that I began my fashion career in a town in Massachusetts at the age of five! In early grades at school I was often given drawing paper and paints by my teacher—instead of lessons — and told to do pictures of anything I desired. Usually, I would end up doing the latest fashions of the day. Ever since I can remember, bright bits of fabric or lace suggested ideas for dolls clothes (later for my own "finery") and many were the things I concocted in my spare moments.

At art school I studied design and fashion illustration along with portrait painting. I was thrilled to have some of my work accepted and hung at the Connecticut Academy of Fine Arts.

Children's Artist

When I came to New York I did fashion illustration for Women's Wear and Vogue. Later, I painted water color miniatures, specializing in children's portraits.

These two types of work seemed to combine very naturally with my chosen career of children's dress designing. My observations on the market convinced me that there was work to be done in this field and I decided I should enjoy doing it.

Since that time I have gone into the matter more deeply than I anticipated—for I found myself styling and designing practically everything for children from 6 months to 16 years, including coats, hats, blouses, sportswear and the like. My designs are all worked out of paper in full color, just like fashion sketches. They are then made up by manufacturers and some are presented under the name "Little Girl Fashions." Others go into the line known as "Younger Crowd Fashions." These fashions are exclusive with Lord & Taylor in New York City and sold to one store in a city throughout the country.

Guimpes Favored

This fall finds children's styles stepping ahead alongside those of their elders. The most popular silhouette remains the flared type, though a bit modified. More all around pleated skirts and group-pleated skirts appear. The guimpe dress is again the favorite. (Here let it be said we are a jump ahead of the grownups for the guimpe dress is "latest fashion" news for big sister!)

Striped or plain chambrays, plaid or checked ginghams and pique continue to be popular, together with flannel, velveteen and pin whale corduroy. Prints are always good and they are especially quaint and colorful this Fall. Waistlines of dresses are still fitted for the most part.

Mix-Match Important

The ensemble is gaining popularity. Jackets and skirts, the "mix-em" and "match-em" are more popular than ever.

Coats are mostly princess flared or box styles. Some introduce side pleats in front and back or box pleats in back—usually with a half belt at waist line. Capes and hoods are on many of the new coats. The fly front closing appears on fitted coats this season as well as on the popular box models.

Red is the important color of the season. It appears in lovely pottery rose shades, also in wine and cherry tones. Bright red combines well in checks or plaids with the everlasting favorite, blue—especially the clear, bright navy that is almost a royal. Dark green, blue green and soft gray blue are very good.

All in all, the children's fashion picture is most exciting and it presents the widest choice of styles, fabrics and colors ever available to mothers throughout America.

Hayman Sticks to Prediction Toronto Argonauts Will Win Canadian Gridiron Title

Three Top-Flight Players, Now in Air Force. May be Moved From Toronto

PLAY MONTREAL

Team Given Stiff Workout in Preparation for Game on Saturday

(By the Canadian Press)

Toronto Argonauts may be the most unpredictable team in Eastern Canada, but despite the fact they hit the heights one week and the depths another week Coach Lew Hayman is standing by a prediction made early this season that the team will win the Canadian championship.

Hayman says he hasn't changed his mind though Argonauts lost 5-0 last Saturday to Tigers in a big four game after defeating Ottawa Rough Riders to a close margin the week before. The victory over the Riders ranks as the most startling upset of the eastern football season, because the Riders had taken the measure of the Argonauts 41-6 in their first meeting one Saturday earlier.

One thing liable to have an effect on chances of Hayman's prediction coming true is that the Argos are in danger of losing three top-notch men to the Royal Canadian Air Force. Halfback Doug Annan and Linemen George Sprague and Chuck McLean have completed their training at the No. 1 initial Training School in Toronto and may be shifted out of the city shortly.

Argos went through one of their stiffest drills of the season last night in preparation for their wind-up game of the schedule against Montreal. A victory over the Montrealers who have won only one game in give, would assure Argonauts of a play-off spot against Riders.

At the Ottawa drill last night, members of the team selected Halfback Andy Tommy and Outside Tony McCarthy as nominees for the 1940 award of the Jeff Russel Memorial Trophy. The trophy is awarded annually to the player judged most sportsmanlike and most valuable to his team in the big four.

Riders' drill was marked by the turnout of Tony Golab, who suffered a severe back injury a couple of weeks ago and was not expected to play again this season. Golab jogged around the field a few times and Trainer George Kinross said he would be fit in the playoffs.

CHALLEDON BEATS ONLY RIVAL IN PIMLICO SPECIAL

Willian L. Brann's Challedon wins the fourth running of the winner-take-all Pimlico special from his only rival, Myron Selznick's Can't Wait. The race was originally designed to determine the "horse of the year", but six of the original invitees failed to show up and the affair developed into a match race between Challedon and Can't Wait. Jockey George Woolf rode the winner.

THREE PLAYERS IN 6-MAN RUGBY FOUND INELIGIBLE

Two From B.C.I. and One From St. Michael's Found to be Over the Age Limit

STANDINGS CHANGED

St. Michael's and Albert College Now Are Tied at Top With Two Wins and One Loss

"The first shall be last and the last shall be first"—at least that's nearly the way in which the standing of the city six-man junior interscholastic football group standing finds itself following a meeting of the coaches of the Bay of Quinte Junior C.O.S.S.A. group held before Convener N. A. Beach last night. Three players were found ineligible, owing to being over the age limit of 17 years, and these players were not only suspended from the league and reported to the C.O.S.S.A., but all games in which the said players participated were declared defaulted to the opposing team.

The players concerned were player McDougall of St. Michael's Academy and players Kerr and Keegan of the Belleville Collegiate squad. The various coaches of the offending teams were exonerated, it being proven the individual respective players had personally submitted incorrect ages in order to gain berths on their squads. The exposure of the ineligible players came after Convener Beach had personally investigated the ages of every player of the four clubs composing the group, Albert College, O.S.D., St. Mikes and B.C.I. It was pointed out at the group meeting that in such cases offending players are usually suspended by the parent association from participation in all Interscholastic sports for a period of one year from the date of the offence. However, the local group heads made no recommendations, but merely reported the infractions to the C.O.S.S.A.

The coaches present under Convener Beach were Clifford Yerex of B.C.I.; Jack Doran of St. Michaels; Jim Rickaby of O.S.D. and Gordon Munn of Albert College.

The revised standing of the group, as the result of the investigation and default of games, is now as follows:—

	W.	L.	Pts.
St. Mikes	2	1	4
Albert College	2	1	4
B. C. I.	1	2	2
O. S. D.	1	2	2

Games this week:—

B.C.I. at O.S.D.

BOB DAVIDSON ON SHELF WITH A KNEE INJURY

Knee Gave Out at Monday's Practice With the Leafs but Injury Considered Only Temporary

HONEST WORKMAN

Patrols Left Boards for Drillon-Apps Line and Used for Penalty Killing

By DICK SHERIDAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Nov. 6 (CP)—He's seldom in the headlines so there's no time like the present to give a boost to Robert (Bob) Davidson whose durable limbs are finally beginning to creak. With the National Hockey League season barely begun, the rugged left winger of the Toronto Leafs is already on the shelf. However, it is believed he will be there only temporarily.

Rugged Robert, who has skated miles up and down the left wing patrol during his seven years with the Leafs, came to an abrupt halt when his knee gave out during last Monday's practice. He was ordered to rest up for the remainder of the week in the hope he'll be ready for Saturday's game with Detroit Red Wings.

Silent partner of the Leafs' famous D-A-D line, Davidson is the cover-up guy for his more famous teammates—Syl Apps and Gordie Drillon. The goals he has saved by his backchecking equal if not eclipse those scored by his pals.

Always in condition and ever willing, Davidson is the ideal team player that every manager cherishes. Manager Conn Smythe, watching his tireless skating in a recent drill, remarked: "I never have to worry about Bobbie. He's always in there when the going is the toughest."

Came From Marlboros

Davidson, Toronto-born, has played all his hockey in the city of his birth. He graduated from Marlboro Seniors to pro ranks in 1933. Twenty-eight years of age, he scales around 175 pounds.

Never a prolific scorer, he was at his best last season when he counted eight goals and aided in 17 others. In the 1937-38 campaign he was credited with three goals and 17 assists. That was the year Drillon and Apps placed one-two among the league marksmen with the astounding totals of 52 and 50, respectively.

What Davidson lacks in color he makes up in honesty of purpose and year after year he is assigned the thankless task of killing off penalties. Smythe realizing his worth has never been known to consider placing him on the auction block during his long service with the Leafs. With the retirement of Red Horner last spring, Davidson became the veteran of the club with the most years of service.

The left winger's injury, while minor in nature, seems to indicate the D-A-D line has other forces to contend with as it seeks to regain recognition as the best three-some in hockey. Drillon and Apps were hurt in succession last season. The line was eventually reformed but its sting was missing.

On the basis of Bob's loyal work, there's another Davidson on the way up who has been tagged by the Leafs. Alex Davidson, a defence freshman with Marboro Seniors, is just waiting for the call to join his brother on the Leafs' lineup.

Hank Greenberg Voted 'Most Valuable' Player of Year

Chicago, Nov. 6.—(AP)—It was a happy day for all concerned when the Detroit master minds finally decided to shift Hank Greenberg, with his consent, from first base to the outfield.

Big Henry said that the move suited him if it would help the team, and it did help the Tigers emerge as a surprise American League flag winner without hurting the Tiger slugger at all.

Greenberg's splendid year at the plate and acceptable work in the outfield moved the baseball writers association of America to vote him the "most valuable player" of the year, the same honor he received in 1935.

Hank blasted 41 home runs and knocked in 150 runs, leading the league in both respects, his late season slugging winning many important games for the club in the feverish pennant battle.

Bob Feller's 27 mound victories for Cleveland brought him second place. Only two pitchers— Walter Johnson and Lefty Grove — ever won the award. Joe DiMaggio of New York, the 1939 winner, dropped to third. Buck Newsom, Detroit pitcher, and Lou Boudreau, Cleveland shortstop ranked next in order, each getting one first place ballot. Jimmy Foxx, Boston, only three-time winner of the "most valuable" designation, ranked sixth.

QUICK GOALS HELP

Saskatoon, Nov. 6 (CP)—Two quick goals in the third period gave Saskatoon Quakers a 6-4 victory over the Calgary Stampeders, 1940 western Canada champions, in a senior exhibition hockey game here last night. The teams play here again Thursday night.

The Broadway gossips are saying Babe Dalgren will land with the Browns...The National League has dropped Umpire Bill Campbell and will replace him with Ernie Stewart, one of the American Association aces.

It may be an old chestnut, but we heard it for the first time yesterday and here it is. It seems a passenger was seated in the first seat of a bus directly behind the driver. The driver noticed the passenger had a pipe in his mouth and politely informed him there was no smoking allowed on board.

"I'm not smoking," answered the passenger leisurely.

"But you have a pipe in your mouth" snapped back the driver.

"Sure, I have. And I've shoes on my feet, but I'm not walking."

Smaller secondary schools sponsoring Interscholastic sports in the Central Ontario area have long complained that the larger centres and schools repeatedly have been guilty of using players over-age and the smaller schools have been thereby forced out of competition in years past. We put little stock in these complaints, but more recently it remained to have Convener N. A. Beach, in charge of the district junior interscholastic football group, delve into the status of all of the players and their respective ages in the city six-man loop, only to find that three players were over age. These players were immediately suspended from the association and their cases will be reported to the C.O.S.S.A. for possible further punishment. The coaches of the teams implicated were exonerated, as the guilty players are alleged to have tendered improper ages.

The coaches of the four teams composing the league met this week and unanimously agreed that the offending team in each incident would default the game to the opposing team where wins had been registered when ineligible players had been used, this being aside from the suspension of the offending players. St. Mikes were guilty on one occasion, while the Collegiate squad was found guilty on two occasions, which means the Irish lost one game in the standing and the "Collegians" two as the result of the group decision. We merely bring these points out to prove to the small schools of the district that the heads of Interscholastic sport and conveners especially, are endeavouring to have their groups function in a legitimate and sportsmanlike manner.

Major Van Steenburgh, officer commanding the 3-47th Battery, C.A.S.F., and former resident of this city, is keenly interested in the organization of a hockey team within the ranks of his unit we have been informed by members of the 3-47th Battery. There are several high-ranking pucksters with the 3-47th, including three or four from Belleville. Sergeants Bill Holway and Don Thomas were in the city yesterday seeking assistance in the purchase of uniforms for their hockey team. They hope to play games in Cobourg, Napanee and Belleville, from which centres many of the unit were recruited. Belleville's contribution was suggested as jerseys and sox, other paraphernalia being donated by Cobourg and Napanee as a purely civic venture coming from service clubs and sporting organizations. The cost of a complete set of jerseys and sox would run about $45.00 and we understand both the Kinsmen and Kiwanis Clubs will assist, but it is hoped that others will also contribute small sums to make the donation represent the whole community. As the 3-47th Battery team has which opens on Nov. 18th, no entered in the Van Horne series, time can be lost in providing these essentials.

Sergeants Holway and Thomas were not seeking cash, but would prefer the uniforms be purchased here and sent to the Battery in Kingston. Incidentally they did not stipulate what colors were desired, but we expect the boys of the 3-47th will provide us with that information soon. Incidentally any person or group interested in helping our soldier boys in their needs can leave their contributions with Don Roe at the United Cigar Store.

Do you remember when Jack Chesbro, one of baseball's leading spitball pitchers, died at Conway, Mass., nine years ago today? He led National League pitchers in 1901 and 1902 while with Pittsburgh, and in 1904 hung up an all-time record for games won with 41, while playing for the New York Yankees.

If the boys boosting intermediate hockey in our midst, and they're starting off in the right direction, hope to attain the best for their results it might be a good idea to call a general meeting of interested persons and elect a strong executive to assist in the business end of the club. For a start it has been suggested that Lloyd Hicks, a successful sportsman in his own chosen field, be included as one of the club officers, preferably secretary. A good active executive invariably proves an incentive to the actual players.

Decision to enlarge its scope to include midget and bantam hockey in the province as well was made at the annual meeting of the Ontario Juvenile Hockey Association held last week in Toronto. Possibilities of a Canadian juvenile series was also discussed by the delegates, but nothing definite was announced.

Retiring President J. Lorimer of Kitchener presided and gave way to the new president Dr. L. Hipwell of Toronto. C. McGlashen of Niagara Falls was named first vice-president and other officers elected were as follows: Second vice-president, O. H. Luke, Oshawa; third vice-president, A. McIntosh, Midland; secretary-treasurer, J. H. Stafford, Toronto; committee, Dr. H. Cooke, Hamilton; W. Wood, London; M. Jackson, Kingston; F. C. Waghorne Sr., Toronto; J. Aspen, Kirkland Lake; A. Waters, Clinton; J. Smith, Listowel; E. Taylor, Hanover, E. Gorman, Kitchener.

Hank Greenberg, slugging outfielder with the Detroit Tigers, was voted the most valuable player in the American League for the season of 1940. Bob Feller, Cleveland fire-ball hurler, was second and Joe Di Maggio, the only Yankee sure of his job in 1941, was third on the list, after winning the award last season. It marked the second time in six years Greenberg has won the coveted award.

SPORT SPLASHES — Hear there will be no senior hockey of consequence in Northern Ontario this winter. . . . What a difference a small summer can make. It hardly seems it, but Joe McCarthy has piloted the Yankees for a full decade and will continue in 1941. . . His last three-year contract, at $35,000 per, expired in October. . . . Chalk up a new Ranger star, Ott Heller is the proud father of a bouncing baby boy today. . . . We hear the newly - organized Belleville hockey team will practice tonight in Kingston. . . .Sports Scribe Bill Walshe of Kingston, is up to his old tricks crying for the Limestone City pucksters to "go east boys, go east." . . . Apparently Bill doesn't know there is a little thing called zones in hockey and they're adhered to. . . . Scribe Bill says Kingston got Perry Everett and Leo Goyer in exchange for Hastie and Gow and is quite happy about the whole thing.

Local Theatres Co-operate in Selling Tickets for Rodeo at Coliseum In Aid of Air Raid Victims' Fund

Toronto: Fresh from their success in the Motion Picture Industry's "Win the War" Campaign in July, the theatre men of Ontario are again mobilizing their forces for a war effort. In the War Stamp campaign, nearly 1,000 theatres from coast to coast co-operated to roll up a sale of three-quarters of a million dollars of War Savings stamps. This time, 350 theatres in Ontario have set themselves the task of selling 24,000 tickets to a Rodeo.

On November 14-15-16, Gene Autry, the singing cowboy star will appear as the guest star at a Rodeo to be held at the Exhibition Coliseum in Toronto. Aurty is giving his services free. The entire net proceeds are being sent to the Lord Mayor of London for the Air Raid Victims' fund. In order to dispose of the large number of tickets, every theatre within 100 miles of Toronto has been appointed a ticket order agency. Theatres outside this area are arranging parties to attend the Coliseum on one of the three days.

Charles F. Mavety, the well-known dude ranch owner, is acting as show producer, and has assembled the best aggregation of Rodeo talent ever seen in this country. The headliners are Curley McCall of Calgary, Junior Eskew, world champion trick roper, Mildred Horner, world's champion lady bronk rider, 40 of the world's finest male bronk riders, including Smoky North of South Dakota; Pistol Pete of Fort Worth, Texas; Ralph Aquino of New Mexico, Harley Walsh, Canadian Champion, winner of the 1940 Calgary stampede.

Autry is bringing his two high school horses, Champion Jr. and Champion Sr. He appears in several numbers in the Rodeo and sings some of his western songs. A number of big spectacle acts are included in the show that come intact from Madion Square Gardens in New York.

Theatre men in the 100 mile area are endeavoring to organize their communities into parties to proceed to Toronto in a body with the double object of seeing something that very few people in this Province have seen before, a good Rodeo, and supporting a war charity that is most urgent at the present time.

Complete details of this show can be obtained from local theatre managers of Belle, McCarthy and Capitol, and in view of the outstanding show to be presented, prospective patrons should not delay in arranging their reservations.

Mrs. Harry Thompson Addresses W. M. S. Of Aiken's Church

The Woman's Missionary Society of Aiken's United Church held their Autumn Thank Offering Service on Friday evening, November the first. At seven o'clock upwards of one hundred people assembled at the dining hall to partake of the bountiful supper provided by the ladies of the congregation.

Mrs. Harry T. Thompson of Toronto, Secretary of Stewardship and Finance, Dominion Board, was the guest speaker for the program that followed in the church.

The pastor, Rev. L. W. Scott, acted as chairman, opening with the use of the hymn "In Christ there is no East or West".

The Devotional period was given by members of the Mission Band with a solo "Let it Shine" by Master Ernest Vardy, the Bible reading Psalm 67 given orally by Master Ray Scott and a solo "Working Together" by Miss Barbara Hamilton.

Solos were rendered by Master Garnet May of Belleville, "Near to the Heart of God" and "Beautiful Garden of Prayer", Mrs. (Rev.) Davis of Cannifton and "Gathering Sheaves" by Mrs. (Rev.) Mercer of Bayside.

The Thank Offering envelopes were brought to the front of the church by the members and the money was dedicated by the president, Mrs. Fred Westover and the hymn, "We give Thee but Thine Own" was sung.

Mrs. Stanley Spafford introduced the speaker, Mrs. Thompson, who commented on the co-operation existing between the Mission Band and members of the Society and complimented the children on the fine devotional numbers.

Mrs. Thompson gave intimate glimpses of the expansive work carried on in the different lands and the various phases of the work of the Woman's Missionary Society.

She told the story of the progress in the Christian life of a girl and her family in Africa; of the work in India, where the doors of opportunity are very, very wide open today, and expressed regret there were not suffiient workers.

In speaking of the Women's College Hospital in West China, where there were 193 student nurses last year, Mrs. Thompson marvelled at the lack of revenge in the hearts of the Chinese Christians toward the Japanese who bomb them. Mrs. Thompson told a little of the Missionary work being done in Canada, of the John Neil Hospital at Cold Lake, Alberta, where the Hospital is the meeting ground or community centre; also the Indian Boarding School at Moose Mountain where the United Church co-operates with the Government in meeting expenses.

These missionaries at home and abroad, Mrs. Thompson stated, depend on our Woman's Missionary Society for their support and efforts. The United Church of Canada has joined the American churches as proclaiming 1940 as Stewardship Year.

Stewardship, she said, does not depend on money alone, but stewardship of life, and to honestly and sincerely live our stewardship of time and money.

The Woman's Missionary Society which strives to hold its banner high and to ever help the United Church, stands for union and brotherhood of all nations and the speaker urged the members to be prepared to carry on religious education and study after the war is over. To study, pray and give is the slogan, and every woman a member, is the aim of the Society, she reminded the members.

The National Anthem was sung at the close of the program.

CASE SETTLED OUT OF COURT

Miss Bernice Church Given $7,500 in Action Against Prince Edward County

Picton, Nov. 6 (Special)—A settlement of $7500.00 and costs in full of the damage claim against the County of Prince Edward and Harry Dodge, an employee, has been accepted by Miss Bernice Church, her counsel, F. L. Ward, K.C., announced yesterday.

This was an accident involving a claim for $30,000 which was to have come up for trial in the forthcoming session of the Supreme Court.

The case was settled out of court with the accident liability insurance company with which the county is insured, paying the amount involved in the settlement.

The claim was made after Miss Church, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester Church, Glenora, was severely injured when struck by a county road truck driven by H. Dodge. She was walking on the roadside at the time, enroute to the school where she taught.

When a hot exhaust of a car ignited alcohol draining from the radiator of a car in Algar's Garage late Monday, the car was damaged before local firemen arrived and used chemicals.

The Anglican Young People's Association of the Church of St. Mary Magdalene was reorganized Monday evening. Meetings are to be held every second Monday. Officers elected were: Miss Miriam Vincent, president; Eric Bronskill, vice-president; Miss Dorothy Maher, secretary; Miss Betty Todd, treasurer. Rev. J. B. Creeggan addressed the gathering.

Plans Completed For Opening of New Parliament

Ottawa, Nov. 6 (CP)—Plans for the new parliamentary session opening tomorrow held the attention of Parliament Hill today, with the last formalities of the old session out of the way.

After ending the first session of Canada's 19th parliament yesterday without major incident, the members today are concentrating on events to come. The three opposition groups are holding caucuses at which they are organising their criticisms of the government's war record and preparing their own alternate proposals.

While Liberal members are not expected to caucus before next Wednesday, the administration itself undoubtedly is lining up its sessional activities, at least in so far as the broad debate on Thursday's Throne Speech is concerned. That speech will indicate to parliament in a general way the legislative program the government has in mind but discussion immediately following may cover the whole field of governmental activity.

All opposition groups are expected to demand increased action in coping with domestic problems and intensification of war activity. The wheat problem, development of the St. Lawrence River power sites, a continued residue of unemployment and kindred problems likely will be raised for government attention. The St. Lawrence power development now is being studied by American and Canadian government engineers.

Little Benny's Note Book

Today in school Miss Kitty was talking about other things more important than money, saying, Some fokes think that money is the beginning and the end of everything and the only thing worth possessing, but phillosophers and other wise people know differently. They know that money is really the cause of most of the world's troubles, and that the poor musician with his love for music and the simple workman lending a helping hand to his needy naybors are far happier than the selfish miser hoarding his clinking gold pieces. Now I want you all to write a little story showing that money is not everything, and the first 2 to finish may read them aloud, she said.

Raymin Levy being the first one finished, the title of it being The Miser, as follows:

The Miser

Once there was a old miner and he spent his whole time listening to his gold pieces go clink clink clink through his fingers, making such beautiful music that he had an idea and spent them all to start a free practice building for poor musicians and spent the rest of his life happily listening to every instrument in the band instead of just gold pieces. Money is not everything.

Mine being the 2nd one finished, the title being The Ash Remover, as follows:

The Ash Remover

Once there was a poor man living in a back street making his living by taking out ashes for his rich naybors in the front street and feeling jellus when he saw them rolling in wealth and automobiles, till one day the government came along and took everything away from them for taxes to pay for a war, and they didn't even have enough left to pay to have their ashes taken out and they didn't know how to take them out themselfs, so the poor man took them out for nothing just to lend a helping hand, and he got such a great reputation for charity it made him happy the rest of his life. Money isn't everything.

McFARLAND CASE GIVEN TO JURY THIS AFTERNOON

Justice Keiller McKay Makes Strong Reference to Circumstantial Evidence in Address to Jury

ELOQUENT CHARGE

The Supreme Court jury sitting in the trial of Robert McFarland, accused of the murder of 18-months-old Gordon Archer, retired to find a verdict shortly after 1.30 p.m. o'clock today, the third day of the trial.

Presiding Justice Keiller MacKay in an eloquent charge to the jury, following addresses by counsel made a strong reference to circumstantial evidence. This type of evidence, he cautioned, although admissible should be received and acted upon with the greatest caution.

"If in the chain of evidence, there is one weak link, or one link missing, then of necessity the Crown's case must fail", His Lordship said.

Charged On Law

The jury must be satisfied that the evidence must be not only consistent with guilt, but also inconsistent with any other rational conclusion, namely innocence.

Justice MacKay charged the jury on law that if several persons form a common intent to prosecute an unlawful offence, then every one is responsible for any act committed by any one of them.

"That is, if the accused, Robert McFarland agreed with Alice McFarland to take this child to a certain point, and encourage her to destroy the child by throwing it in the river, even if his hands never touched the child, he is just as guilty as she", the bench declared.

There May Be Doubt

If on the other hand, she made up her mind to commit the crime herself, then the accused is not guilty of murder".

There may be a real doubt, a reasonable doubt in your minds on this case but that is not my charge.

"As the Crown must establish evidence not consistent with innocence, there is a link which if not missing, is decidedly weak in character.

"That link is, has it been brought home to the accused that he did aid, abet, procure and counsel this woman to murder the child. It is clear he did aid and abet, but has the Crown brought home the purpose, that is, murder. That is for you to say.

"There are only two verdicts you can bring in, Guilty or Not Guilty of Murder," His Lordship concluded.

Defence Counsel Heard

Honesty of intentions and purpose in his attitude toward his wife and her baby, was stressed by Defence Counsel Ormonde Butler in his address.

The defence rested its case after two character witnesses who testified to the honesty and integrity of the accused man.

McFarland's conduct on the night of the crime and since has been inconsistent with the crime as charged. There has been no motive suggested at any time on the part of the accused, Mr. Butler pointed out.

Purely Circumstantial

Crown Prosecutor Walter Martin stated that all evidence in the case was purely circumstantial. He also pointed out that section of the Criminal Code which states that any person who aids, abets, procures or counsels a person in a crime is equally guilty with the person who actually commits it.

The Crown placed weight on the fact that a witness had seen a man and woman coming from a footpath that led to the river, near the eastern bank of the river. He also stressed the point that accused's mother did not know her son's wife had a child, nor did she know her son had been married until the day of the marriage.

The MacFarlands had to find a place for the child to stay as "there was no place for it at home," the Crown said. The accused man's statement given to the police was consistent with the Crown evidence with the exception of his story of waiting for two hours on the west side of the bridge.

Mr. Martin also pointed out the fact that the baby weighed 23 pounds, and a stone produced by the Crown, which is alleged to have weighted the body, weighed 9 pounds. The wire was twisted tightly about the body of the baby. It would take a strong person to throw the child in the river and to bind it with wire.

No Plans Made To Introduce Redistribution Bill

Toronto, Nov. 6 (CP).—Premier Hepburn said today the government has no plans to introduce a redistribution bill at the next session of the Ontario Legislature. The session opens in February.

Asked about the possibility of an election in 1941, Mr. Hepburn said: "I repeat—I don't believe the people of Ontario are desirous of the turmoil or expense of a general election at the moment. For that reason, there is no urgency."

He said the question of redistribution of Ontario's ninety ridings is "highly controversial and in any event the measure could not be effective until the next general election." He added that the possible reduction of seats in any part of the province had not been given consideration.

He said, however, that the government could carry on more efficiently and with less expense with fewer members. Mr. Hepburn did not specify how many.

APPOINTMENTS ARE ANNOUNCED

Col. Murray Becomes G.S.O. (Grade 1) Intelligence and Major Scott Appointed G.S.O. (Grade 2) Intelligence

Ottawa, Nov. 6 (CP)—Appointment of Lt.-Col. W. W. Murray of Ottawa, heretofore chief cable censor, as General Staff Officer (Grade 1) Intelligence, was announced by National Defence Headquarters today.

Maj. G. H. Scott, formerly police magistrate at Red Deer, Alta., and Calgary, who has been serving with the Intelligence Branch, has been appointed General Staff Officer (Grade 2) Intelligence.

Maj. L. S. Yuill, Deputy Chief Cable Censor at Montreal, succeeds Col. Murray as Chief Cable Censor at Ottawa.

Col. Murray

A veteran of the First Great War, Col. Murray was on the Staff of the Ottawa Bureau, The Canadian Press before the Second Great War started when he was recalled to service from the reserve of officers.

He served with the 20th and 2nd Canadian Battalions. He was mentioned in dispatches for work on the Somme and awarded the Military Cross at Passchendaele and in 1918 received the Bar to the Military Cross.

Major Scott's Career

Maj. Scott served in the First Great War with the 2nd Canadian Mounted Rifles. He went to Greece on the Staff of the Imperial Forces and did Intelligence work in Athens and Salonika. In September, 1939, he was appointed to the Intelligence Staff at Defence Headquarters as Assistant Director of Military Intelligence.

Maj. Yuill went overseas in the First Great War as a Private in the 1st (McGill) University Company of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry.

IMPRISONED

Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru, one of two men chosen by Mohandas K. Gandhi to make anti-war speeches in India, was sentenced to "four years of rigorous imprisonment" on charges brought under the Defence of India Act.

FIRST CLEAR TEST OF THIRD-TERM TRADITION GIVEN

President Roosevelt Did Not Mention Third Term in His Brief Campaign

Washington, Nov. 6 (AP)—The third term tradition—part and parcel of United States political history for a century and a half—was swept aside yesterday in the Roosevelt triumph.

It was the first clear-cut test of the old tradition. It was the first time the electorate had ever expressed itself directly on the subject. And the verdict was rendered by the millions of votes for Franklin Roosevelt.

The issue played a major part in the heated campaign waged against him. Throughout the weeks of electioneering numerous demands were heard for a constitutional limit on the number of years a president may serve.

Mr. Roosevelt never mentioned the third term issue in his brief campaign, but in his speech at Cleveland, Ohio, last Saturday night he predicted that the United States would "reach the clear, sure footing ahead" in the next four years and that then "there will be another president in the White House."

3-Cornered Fight in 1912

The only time that anything like a third term issue went to the public was in the celebrated three-cornered campaign of 1912 but that occasion did not supply the clear-cut test comparable to 1940.

In 1912 Theodore Roosevelt entered the Presidential lists on the bull moose ticket against Wilson, the Democratic candidate and William Howard Taft, regular Republican nominee.

Roosevelt, succeeding the assassinated McKinley as President in 1901, served out part of one term in the White House and then was elected for a full term in 1904. On the night of that victory, he issued a statement that he considered the first three years as President equivalent to a full term. Calling the tradition against a third term a "wise custom," he said he would never accept nor seek another nomination.

Despite it, however, Roosevelt ran in 1912, his partisans arguing that there was no third term question. They contended that he had been chosen vice-president for the four years during which he succeeded McKinley, and therefore had been given only one actual term as President by the people. He finished third in the 1912 contest.

DEMOCRATS LEAD HOUSE, SENATE

Win 239 House Seats to 118 for the Republicans—Laborite Re-elected

Washington, Nov. 6 (AP)—The Democrats, riding a tide of votes with President Roosevelt, kept control of both House of Representatives and Senate in Tuesday's election.

An official tabulation shortly after noon today showed they had won 239 House seats, for more than a majority, to 118 for the Republicans. In addition, one incumbent American Labor Party member was re-elected. A majority is 218.

Contrary to Republican predictions that they would gain from 50 to 80 seats, the returns indicated that the Democrats might win a few more than their present House strength of 268.

The Democrats have held control of the House since John Garner, now Vice President, was chosen speaker in 1931, and of the Senate since victory in the first Roosevelt landslide of 1932 took office on March 4, 1933.

Clear Senate Majority

Their majority in the new Senate, convening next Jan. 3, was hardly in danger but any vestige of doubt was eliminated when the tabulation showed they had won at least 15 of the 25 Democratic seats at stake in this year's balloting.

These added to 44 holdover Democrats gave them a clear majority with a total of at least 57. The Senate has 96 seats of which a third are filled every two years.

The Republicans, with 15 holdovers, retained at least five of the nine seats they had at stake for a tentative total of 20. One of their victories dates back to Maine's September election.

Two Girls Burned To Death in Toy Factory Fire

Buffalo, N.Y., Nov. 6—(AP)—Two girls were reported killed and several more were feared dead today as a fire of undetermined origin swept through a toy factory in downtown Buffalo.

William R. Castimore, fire commissioner, said two bodies were taken from the blazing three-storey brick building. Several more girls were seen hanging from windows and crying for help as firemen arrived in response to a general alarm.

The fire occurred in the factory warehouse of the Buffalo Toy and Tool Works at Carroll and Ellicott Streets.

The War Today

By GUY RHOADES
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

The Greek High Command reported today that retreating Italian troops along the Western Macedonian front had been attacked by their own tanks, apparently in an error arising from precipitate retreat, but British sources cautioned against too sanguine a view of the Greek situation.

While the Italians so far appear to be doing extremely badly, British military experts expressed the view the main Italian offensive had not yet started, but might be launched at any moment. It appeared, however, that the Greeks would be favored by heavy snow which would handicap mechanized manoeuvring and give them some advantage even against strongly superior forces.

Greeks Reported Occupying Koritza

After 10 days of the Balkan war the Greeks were reported to have occupied the important Italian base of Koritza in Albania, capturing large numbers of Italian troops. Athens said the Greek lines were holding along the whole 100-mile Albanian front against which Italy launched its blows.

Longest Overnight Air Raid Over London

Elsewhere the pace of the war quickened. London was subjected to the longest overnight air raid alarm it has endured since the war started, but the Ministries of Air and Home Security said the damage was not particularly severe, although some fatal casualties occurred.

Londoners went to work while the alert, sounded at dusk last night, was still in effect. They went cheerfully, though, grinnng widely as they scanned news reports of President Roosevelt's third-term election victory.

Roosevelt Symbol of Friendship.

To them the President has become a symbol of friendship between their country and the United States, a nice fellow in fact whom they like, even though Wendell L. Willkie, his Republican adversary, also promised them all possible United States aid short of war.

Britain appeared to have encountered a new worry, though, in the recent effectiveness of Nazi submarine attacks on merchant shipping. This worry was manifested yesterday in the House of Commons when Prime Minister Churchill remarked that the Royal Navy was severely handicapped in hunting down the U-boats by stubborn refusal of Eire to allow its patrol vessels to base at southern Irish ports.

Eire's Neutrality.

Some members took a bitter view of the Eire attitude, contending that after all, only Britain and its fleet stand between Eire and invasion and that the country still remains within the British Commonwealth, enjoying trade preferences without showing willingness to share responsibilities. Some urged strong representations to the Eire government to relax its neutrality.

In the air the Royal Air Force struck boldly again at oil stores and war industries in Germany and "invasion" ports along the channel, setting fires and causing visible damage.

Italian sources complained that Naples had been bombed for the third time. They had the usual comment on Yugoslavian complaints that Italian aircraft three times bombed and machine-gunned a Yugoslavian border town. They said the planes recognized by ground watchers as new Italian craft might have been British.

U.S. Mandate to Speed up Defences And Aid to Britain & China—Knox

Chicago, Nov. 6 (CP)—Col. Frank Knox, Secretary of the Navy, today termed President Roosevelt's re-election "an unmistakable mandate from the people to their President" to pursue an accelerated program of national defence and all possible aid to Great Britain and China.

"It has been the undisguised hope of Berlin, Rome and Tokyo that the election would leave us disastrously divided," he said. "We must prove that a vain hope.

"We must speed up to the maximum our productive capacity in armaments so that we can lend all possible assistance to the people of Great Britain and the people of China in their gallant fight against those powers which seek to conquer and divide the world amongst them."

Re-Election of President F. D. Roosevelt Greeted With Unrestrained Enthusiaism By the British Public and Press

(By J. P. Sanderson)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 6.—(CP Cable)—The British public today greeted the re-election of President Roosevelt with unrestrained enthusiasm, millions of Londoners grinning happily as each edition of the newspapers announced a bigger majority for the man who, in the past six months, has done more to cement Anglo-American friendship than any other in a decade.

The reaction of the British public was summed up in a banner headline across the front page of the tabloid Evening Standard: "Roosevelt is Safe". It told more of the relief and satisfaction felt here than the Star's "Roosevelt Elected Again" or the News' "Roosevelt Victorious".

This feeling of relief and satisfaction did not mean a blow toward Wendell L. Willkie, the unsuccessful Republican nominee, but was only a natural reaction to the re-election of the man regarded by the average Briton as "our best friend".

Crowds War News Off Front

For a week or ten days the United States election has been crowding the war news off the front pages of London newpapers. There was more interest exhibited in the election than at any time since 1916 when Woodrow Wilson was re-elected President.

It was not because of American domestic politics involved—that subject is almost a closed book to the average Briton—but because of its possible effect on Anglo-American relations and the flow of war materials across the North Atlantic.

With Mr. Roosevelt re-elected for a third term there was no danger of a new and unknown administration coming into office and no danger of a hiatus before a new president assumed office.

To the British nation at war, dependent to a considerable extent on American industry to whittle down Germany's lead in aircraft, tanks and other machines of war, these were natural fears.

For the first time in many years the British nation had a personal interest in an American presidential election.

"Good Old Roosevelt" Heard

When the early returns showed a lead for the president men who stopped on the street to read newspaper boards were heard murmuring: "Good Old Roosevelt". Everyone was discussing the results, from bus conductors to immaculately dresesd "city" stockbrokers, and everyone seemed to agree "I'm glad he has been returned".

Because of the difference in time between Britain and the United States, afternoon newspapers replated their editorial pages for short comments on the election.

Wyndham Robinson had a cartoon in the Star captioned: "The Hat Trick", showing a smiling Roosevelt pulling from a hat ribbons that spiralled into the words "third term".

Diplomatic sources suggested that American help to Britain probably would be increased still further now the campaign is over. It was suggested that the campaign held up decisions on many schemes which now could be proceeded with.

Roosevelt Accepts With Sincere Thanks Willkie's Message

Hyde Park, Nov. 6 (AP)—Franklin D. Roosevelt, re-elected President for a third term, accepted with "sincere thanks" today a message from Wendell L. Willkie congratulating him on his re-election.

Willkie had wired Mr. Roosevelt from New York City this morning, wishing him "all personal health and happiness," and saying he knew "we are both gratified that so many American citizens participated in the election."

"Please accept my sincere thanks for your message of congratulations" Mr. Roosevelt replied. "I greatly appreciate the assurance of your good wish for my health and happiness which I heartily reciprocate."

White House aides made public also exchange of felicitations between the President and Senator Charles L. McNary of Oregon, the Republican Vice-Presidential candidate.

McNary had conceded victory to the President last night.

The President had stayed up until the early morning hours, filling chart after chart with election returns in the dining room of his country home.

3 NAZI RAIDERS DOWNED IN DAY

Southampton Bears Brunt of Raid Early Wednesday Night

London, Nov. 6—(CP)—German bombers smashed public buildings and houses in Southampton in a massed raid early tonight and killed and injured an unstated number of persons.

However, most of the raiders were unable to penetrate inland.

An art school and an office building were hit by bombs and a number of persons buried in the ruins.

Three German raiders, the Air Ministry said, were shot down during the day. Two British planes were missing but one of the pilots was reported safe.

London was showered with incendiary and high explosive bombs during the longest night raid of the war but came up today with the official announcement that "the general scale of damage was not heavy and it is confirmed that the number of casualties was not large."

Roosevelt Victory Unpalatable News For the Germans

London, Nov. 6—(CP Cable)—Lord Beaverbrook's Evening Standard today declared that President Roosevelt's re-election "will cause the blackest day Berlin has known since the beginning of the war."

"Roosevelt is a great Democrat," the paper said. "He is more than a great believer in democracy. He is its great exponent. . . .

"The great industrial power of the western hemisphere dedicates itself to our cause because the American people have learned from their leader his own faith in freedom his spirit of daring and his knowledge of the vast ramifications of this conflict."

OVER 30 MILLIONS INCREASE SHOWN IN RAIL REVENUE

Revenue Totalled $367,179,095 for Year 1939, Dominion Bureau States

OPERATING COSTS UP

Ottawa, Nov. 6—(CP)— Total revenue of Canada's steam railways increased more than $30,000,000 in 1939 from the previous year, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics said today in a preliminary report on the year's railway operations.

Revenue amounted to $367,179,095 compared with $336,883,400 in the year before, the report said. Operating expenses increased to $304,373,285 from $295,705,638.

The slump in railway revenues which took place in 1938 was carried over in the first four months of 1939, but from May until the end of the year, marked increases were shown each month, it said.

The report attributed the increased operating expenses to changes in the volume of work and not in wage rates. Reductions in basic rates of pay which had been in effect for several years were restored fully at April 1, 1938, and no major changes had been made since.

Interest on funded and unfunded debt was reduced from $79,215,333 in 1938 to $79,022,934 and the outstanding funded debt at the end of the year was reduced from $1,568,269,672 to $1,533,373,521.

C. N. R. Loss Down $16,231,733

A reduction of $16,231,733 was shown in the Canadian National Railway System's loss, while the Canadian Pacific Railway increased its income from $1,262,382 the previous year to $9,782,148. The Canadian National Railway's loss amounted to $38,239,264, against $54,470,997.

Effect of Canada's bumper wheat crop in 1939 was shown in the number of tons of freight carried one mile, the report said. The total of ton-miles was 31,464,991,270, a 17.3 per cent increase from 1938.

Passenger traffic in 1939 dropped to 20,482,296 passengers carried. This figure has been lower only twice in the last 38 years, the report said, the 1938 figure being 20,911,196.

Only one passenger was killed in train accidents during the year, and 322 were injured.

The number of railway employees increased by 1,538 to 129,362, the Bureau said, and the total railway payroll in 1939 was $200,373,668, compared with $195,108,351 the year before.

Average hourly wage for all employees on an hourly basis was 62.5 cents, compared with 62.1 in 1938, while their average wage for the year was $1,485, against $1,456. Employees on a daily, monthly or annual basis numbered 26,135, an increase of 451 and their salaries amounted to $47,110,114, a yearly average of $1,803, against $1,779.

HUNTER KILLED NEAR LINDSAY

Mervin Currah Apparently Fell Over Log and Gun Discharged

Lindsay, Ont., Nov. 6 (CP)—First fatality of the deer hunting season in Haliburton county was discovered today when a search party found the body of Mervin Currah, 27, of Gelert Village, in the bush near Scotts Dean. Currah was dead from a shotgun wound. Dr. J. T. Speck, Haliburton Coroner, said Currah had apparently fallen backward over a log and the trigger of his shotgun had caught in some brush causing it to fire the gun. The mishap is believed to have occurred yesterday.

U. S. Foreign Policy Approved by Nation States Cordell Hull

Washington, Nov. 6 (AP)—State Secretary Cordell Hull said today the United States now could go forward in the "firm continuance of those foreign policies" which he said were given "nationwide approval" in yesterday's general election.

Mr. Hull, in a formal statement said in part:—

"Consciousness of the tremendous responsibility which rests upon all of us in the present crisis should overshadow any sense of personal elation or disappointment over the election result.

"It is a matter of profound significance that our foreign policies, the basic features of which were supported by both the leading candidates for President, were given yesterday nationwide approval.

"With the election over, our nation can now go forward with the fullest measure of practical teamwork by the Government and the people in the firm continuance of those foreign policies."

12-YEAR-OLD GETS DEER

Peterborough, Ont., Nov. 6 (CP)—Twelve-year-old Harold Legrow, deer-hunting for the first time, brought down a large doe while hunting with his father near Millbridge, 12 miles north of Madoc. He used a .22 small bore rifle.

30 FIRES BLAZE AMONG TANKS AT EMDEN BASE

Royal Air Force Blasts Power Station at Hamburg, Starting Fires

'INVASION' PORTS HIT

London, Nov. 6 (CP). — British bombers started thirty fires among petroleum tanks at the big German naval base at Emden last night and damaged shipyards at Bremerhaven and Bremen, the Air Ministry announced today.

Other attacks were launched against the Neuhof power station at Hamburg, where fires were started, and against the submarine building yards at Vegesack, near Bremen, a communique said.

In addition, the German invasion ports of Boulogne, Calais, Dunkirk, Antwerp and Flushing and "a number of airdromes in German-occupied territory" were heavily bombed.

8 DIRECTORS NAMED FOR CLUB

Kiwanis Club Wins Cup for Achievement in District During Past Year

After the final ballot had been counted James Barclay, Bruce Lattimer, Jack McVeigh, Ross Stiver, John Trudeau, Charles Tripp, Edward Willing and Morley Wyman became directors of the Kiwanis Club for the ensuing year and from this board of directors, a president will be chosen to guide the destinies. "Dick" Flynn, who was president last year and who so capably filled the chair after Bill Anderson accepted a position at the Airport, kindly consented to act as Vice-President for the next year. The luncheon at the Queens Hotel was one of the largest attended during the year in expectation of listening to Jim Hunter, broadcaster of Toronto, in making an appeal for scrap metal to aid the British War Victims' Fund, but he was unable to attend owing to another engagement that was urgent and not known about at the time he promised to come to Belleville.

However, the members were not disappointed for Dr. Reg. Anderson, a member of the club, filled in the breach at a moment's notice and his address on "Suez" was a masterpiece and showed that the local club has a number of gifted speakers within its own ranks. The address has been covered in these columns at an earlier date but Reg has a sure grip on his facts and his delivery is excellent and he showed that his history reading is not haphazard by any means. The speaker was introduced by James Barclay and Kiwanian appreciation was expressed by Ted Hughes. The report of the Toronto convention was given by Jack Trudeau and Cliff Baragar and at the conclusion Cliff presented to President Dick Flynn the cup won by the Belleville Club in the Blue Division for the best achievement in the past year.

Churchill Criticized By Irish Times On His Statement

Dublin, Nov. 6 (CP)—The Irish Times, under the editorial heading, "Dangerous Talk", today criticized Prime Minister Churchill's statement in the House of Commons regarding the use of ports in Eire.

(Mr. Churchill declared yesterday that inability to use Irish ports constituted a "grievous load" upon the British Navy in its fight against German U-boats.)

"We deprecate the loose talk concerning Ireland which occasionally creeps into the proceedings of the British Parliament," the editorial said.

The people of Eire, it continued, "have endorsed the policy of neutrality pursued by the Irish Government, and they are prepared to abide by it."

"We are satisfied," the newspaper added, "that all talk of refuelling submarines from depots on the Irish coast is mere moonshine."

Indian Died From Head Wounds Says Witness

Goderich, Ont., Nov. 6 —(CP)—Dr. M. C. Fletcher testified at the murder trial today of Samuel Dodge, 41-year-old Indian, that James Kilpatrick died from head injuries caused by the sharp edge of a heavy instrument, "such as an axe."

Dodge is accused of killing the 67-year-old carpenter, who was his employer, in the Dodge home near Exeter, Ont. on June 20. Police allege an axe was used.

Dr. Fletcher, who performed the post-mortem, said that Kilpatrick's arms were lacerated and bruised as if he had been fighting.

Arthur Beirerling told the assize court jury that Kilpatrick and Dodge had been friends for many years.

TORONTO STOCKS.

Toronto, Nov. 6 (CP). — Toronto Exchange registered a modest advance today. Volume was fairly heavy at 269,000 shares. Action was heaviest in golds.

Base metal stocks were up with Sherritt, Noranda and Chromium among the strong issues.

Home Oil featured the Turner Valley group with a gain of 12 cents to 2.47 and in industrials, liquor, implement and miscellaneous issues were firmer against slight weakness for the steels.

WALL STREET

New York, Nov. 6 (AP)—Post-election selling toppled stocks in today's early market dealings but the list steadied later.

At a fast opening, in which blocks of 1,000 to 10,800 shares splattered the ticker tape, losses ran to two or more points. These were quickly trimmed and, here and there, modest gains were in evidence near the fourth hour.

Principal share losers included Consolidated Edison, Public Service of N.J., North American, American Water Works, Du Pont, Westinghouse, Standard Oil of N.J., Chrysler and Dow Chemical.

Homestake Mining and Dome Mines got up several points. Resistant were Sears Roebuck, Woolworth, Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet, Douglas Aircraft and United Aircraft.

Canadian issues were steady. Dome Mines advanced one point and McIntyre and Distillers Seagram showed improvement. Canadian Pacific eased.

Further Gains Made by Eggs

Toronto — Another full cent price increase occurred in fresh eggs on the Toronto open produce market yesterday as butter turned easy.

Although buyers became cautious in afternoon action, sufficient buying appeared on the egg market to absorb the continued light arrivals. Grades A-large, A-medium and A-pullets advanced 1 cent per dozen in both sections of trading, but the other grades showed no change.

Small offerings proved ample for the quiet demand, on the butter market as many of the larger buyers took to the sidelines. Holders did not attempt to press for business and most of them were not willing to sell the first grade Ontario product below the previous price of 30 cents a pound. A few sales went through at the lower level of 29 3-4 cents, however.

Montreal Produce

Montreal, Nov. 6—Produce market prices here as reported by the Dominion Department of Agriculture, follow:

Eggs: Graded shipments in used free cases, selling price, A-large, 47; A-medium, 44c to 45c; A-pullets, 36c; B, 27c to 28c; C, 19 1-2c to 20c. Receipts, 1,333 cases.

LIVESTOCK

Toronto, Nov. 6—(CP) — Cattle trade was slow with prices about steady up to mid-session on the Livestock Market here today. Veal calves, hogs, lambs and sheep were steady. The cattle holdover from Tuesday was 2,200.

The cattle supply included 1,000 stockers.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Marketing Service were: Cattle 630, calves 190, hogs 970, sheep and lambs 820.

Prices in the cattle section were: Butcher steers and heifers $5.50 to $7.25; boners $4.45; a few butcher cows $4 to $5.25; canners and cutters $3 to $3.75; bulls $4.25 to $5.25; stockers slow, $4.40 to $5.50 for common.

Veal calves sold at $10 to $11 for choice with common heavies selling downward to $6. Grassers sold at $5 to $5.50.

Lambs sold at $9 to $9.25 for good ewes and wethers, $8 to $8.25 for heavies and bucks and $7 to $8 for culls.

Sheep sold at $2 to $5.50.

Hogs sold at $11.40 dressed-weight and $8.50 liveweight. Sows sold at $5.50 dressedweight.

Montreal, Nov. 6 (CP). — Hog prices were strong while prices on other classes of livestock ruled steady in early trade on Montreal livestock markets today, according to the Dominion Department of Agriculture.

Receipts — Cattle 109, sheep and lambs 691, calves 103, hogs 248.

One load of medium quality steers was received. The balance of the receipts were made of common cows. Common butcher cows made $3.75-$4.25. Canners and cutters drew $2.50-$3.50 and common bulls $3.50-$4.25.

Veal calves ranged from $8.50-$11 and tops were $11.50. Drinkers made $5.50-$8 and grassers $4.25-$5.

Good ewes and wethers were $9.50, culls and bucks $7.50 and sheep $3.50-$6.

Hogs were strong at $11.30-$11.40 for B-1 dressed and $8.65-$8.75 off trucks. Grade "A" drew $1 premium with discounts on off grades. Sows brought $5-$6.25.

U.S. THIRD-TERM

75% of Country Reports

With about 75 per cent of the country's election districts reporting, Mr. Roosevelt held a lead of some 3,500,000 votes over his Republican opponent and it appeared that his election had been accomplished with 468 of the 531 votes making up the electoral college. The number required for election is 266.

The President's sweep helped the Democratic party keep control of both the Senate and the House of Representatives. In the House the Democrats were certain of 237 seats—19 more than the 218 needed for a majority—while the Republicans were sure of 114. At this point the Democrats had made a net gain of 11 seats.

Democrats Control Senate

Control of the Senate—a third of which retires each election—had not been in doubt due to the large proportion of Democrats among the holdovers. Sixteen Democrats and eight Republicans were sure of election to Senate seats. In four cases these returns indicated a turnover, leaving the Republicans with a net gain of two.

New Jersey, Michigan and Wisconsin were states which went into the Roosevelt column today after giving the early lead to the Republican nominee.

Republicans Carry 11 States

Mr. Willkie, who fought a hard campaign, not sparing himself an ounce of effort in his record-breaking tour through 34 states in which he made hundreds of speeches, had the satisfaction of knowing that he had restored the vitality of the Republican party after two disastrous defeats, attracted a popular vote much larger than that of 1936 and apparently had carried 11 states whereas in 1936 Alf M. Landon, his predecessor as Republican standard bearer, obtained majorities in only two.

Willkie and his supporters hammered vigorously throughout upon the theme that a departure from the no-third-term tradition would mean a step toward perpetuation of one-man rule.

But Americans apparently accepted President Roosevelt's promise that the third term would be his last and agreed to his plea that he be given a "vote of confidence" and a mandate to guide the nation through the pitfalls of war in Europe and Asia.

May Have More Power

In returning the New Deal to Washington, the voters possibly gave it more power than heretofore. Late reports indicated the Democrats had won additional seats in the House of Representatives and the Senate.

With more than half of the 435 House contests decided the Democrats had a net gain of six. Eight Democrats and four Republicans were conceded election to the Senate last night—where a Democratic majority was certain owing to holdovers and uncontested seats —but close senatorial races developed in half a dozen states.

Senator Charles L. McNary of Oregon, Mr. Willkie's vice-presidential running mate, conceded defeat and in a message of congratulation to Mr. Roosevelt and his running mate, Henry A. Wallace, wished them well and added: "We are a united nation . . . we shall try to afford Mr. Roosevelt and his associates a worthy and vigilant opposition. Today's trend indicates a victory for our principles four years hence."

The President happily told hundreds of neighbors who called upon him at midnight at his home at Hyde Park, N.Y., that the vote "looks all right." He had followed the results closely on charts set up on his big dining-room table.

Wallace was in Washington. He expressed gratification at the trend of voting but appeared a bit disappointed that his home state of Iowa moved into the Willkie column and gave signs of sticking there.

No Section For Willkie

The Republican candidate did not establish a lead in any particular section of the nation. The eleven States in his column were scattered widely from Maine to Colorado. Iowa, his native State of Indiana, Kansas, Maine, Michigan, Nebraska, New Jersey, North Dakota, South Dakota and Vermont.

It was noted that not one of these with the possible exception of Michigan, was a State where John L. Lewis' Congress of Industrial organizations would have a predominant voice.

Consequently Mr. Lewis was considered to have failed in his effort to lead the C.I.O. Unions away from the President, and his resignation from the leadership of the Union group, promised in an election speech in which he supported Mr. Willkie, was expected soon.

The president went into the lead immediately vote-counting began Tuesday night and forged steadily ahead. Hour after hour he strengthened his position and when the major industrial states such as New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Illinois swung definitely to him the issue was no longer in doubt.

If Willkie was to have won he had to take these States. He devoted much of his campaigning to them. In most of them he met warm receptions, but he could not overcome the President's popularity.

Newspapers which had supported Willkie's candidacy began conceding his defeat early. These included the Kansas City Star, The New York Times and Herald Tribune, the Detroit Free Press, The Baltimore Sun and The Portland Oregonian.

Willkie Not Downhearted

When, not long after midnight, the Democratic count moved up tentatively to 433 electoral votes, a crowd gathered in Mr. Willkie's hotel suite and he addressed them briefly.

He told them not to be "afraid or disheartened, because I am not," and added: "The principles for which we fought prevail as surely as the principles of truth always prevail."

The surge to the President reversed a strong pro-Republican trend established in the Congressional elections of 1938, when the presidency was not at stake, and in which Illinois, Massachusetts, Ohio, Pennsylvania and several other states elected Republican Senators or Governors, or both.

This time the President's magic as a vote-getter extended its spell to the ticket and he apparently carried along on the current with him a number of Democratic Governors and Senators as well as members of the House.

Newspaper editorials today featured the fact that the people themselves had rejected the implication there is danger to "the American way" in the President's third-term election and that the verdict should be accepted in good sportsmanship and in a spirit of unity with all effort concentrated upon making the nation strong.

An interesting commentary upon the working of Democracy was seen in the figures for New York City. Here, complete but unofficial returns showed 95.71 per cent. of the registered vote, 3,243,682 of 3,388,741 was cast, the highest ever known here.

The totals were Roosevelt 1,978,720; Willkie 1,251,466. Votes of 95 per cent. or more have been seen in the world a few times of late years, usually running like this: "98.2 per cent 'Ja.' 1.8 per cent. 'Nein.'"

Maine and Vermont Stay in Line

In the vast outpouring of votes for the President and Mr. Willkie the scattering of ballots for the other Presidential candidates was not reported. Norman Thomas, the veteran Socialist candidate, called himself one who "gets the results by mail."

Others in this election who will get their results "by mail" included Earl Browder, Communist; Roger Babson, Prohibition; John Aiken, Socialist-Labor, and John Zahnd, National Greenback.

New England again, as in 1936, gave the Republicans a majority in only two states—Maine and Vermont. After early returns last night in which Massachusetts and New Hampshire flirted briefly with the Republican column, both went to the President where they joined Connecticut and Rhode Island.

From New England all down the Atlantic Coast the sweep to the President was interrupted only in New Jersey. At first the Democrats hoped that Mr. Willkie's lead there would be overcome by votes in the big cities—such as Jersey City where Mayor Frank Hague's machine backed the ticket. But this hope was fading today. James H. R. Cromwell, Democratic candidate for the U.S. Senate and former U. S. Minister to Canada, conceded his personal defeat in New Jersey by Senator Barbour, Republican.

The solid south showed no sign of a crack in its traditional allegiance to the Democrats. Again, as in every election since 1928, these 11 States from Maryland south and west to Texas turned in substantial Democratic majorities.

WILLKIE CAMPAIGN MAKES HISTORY

Candidate's Efforts on Tour Could Not Have Been Matched by Any Other Man Reporters Say

(By Elmer Dulmage, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Nov. 6—(CP) — It wasn't even close in the electoral college vote, but United States voters can always say that Wendell Willkie gave them one of the big thrills of Presidential election campaigning.

It wasn't close at the finish but Willkie, starting from scratch, convinced the entire country—including President Roosevelt — that his whirlwind non-stop campaign was leading him directly to the White House.

A fighter of such calibre that early this morning his disappointment did not permit him to concede defeat when the evidence was overwhelming, Willkie so impressed newspaper reporters of all political colors who made the great American tour with him that they scarcely could believe last night's returns.

He was such an earnest "man of destiny" as he went his hurried way around the country, such an impressive platform speaker who attracted tremendous crowds wherever he went, that the strongest Roosevelt supporters feared him in every state north of the Mason and Dixie line.

His campaign was almost fantastic, probably beyond the powers of endurance of an Al Smith, or a Hoover, a Landon or even of a Rosevelt. He went everywhere, apparently captivated everyone.

It took a few weeks, but in the end the sensational Willkie boom that conquered the Republican convention last June in Philadelphia had apparently conquered great sections of the country. The Indianan was on his way and nobody denied it. He was a political rookie, never having run for office before, but that only added color to the performance.

Made Continual Gains

In the end the American institute of public opinion—the gallup poll—reported a rising tide of Willkie support that could conceivably defeat the president if it continued up to polling day. All other neutral authorities conceded Willkie was distinctly in the running. The result would be close.

The President had announced he would not campaign due to the pressure of state business, but the Willkie drive brought him to the radio and platform in the last two weeks like the old campaigner he always has been.

Perhaps the Roosevelt last-minute campaign saved the day.

Americans were so convinced of Willkie's vote-getting potency that they were prepared to stay up all night, if necessary, to get the final result. Even the best political observers were predicting that the whole question might revolve around the 22 electoral college votes of California as it did in 1916 when Woodrow Wilson defeated Charles Evans Hughes.

Newspapers devoted many a column in the last week to the Wilson-Hughes contest which California turned to Wilson after eastern voters were abed, assured Hughes had won. The Roosevelt-Willkie contest might be a parallel one!

Last night the east didn't have to stay up late for the result.

WAR'S LONGEST

There was a lull in London after the all-night alarm was lifted but the afternoon brought fresh alerts. There were two alarms by mid-afternoon, each followed shortly by the signal for "raiders passed."

The night of bombardment started at dusk yesterday.

The Nazis, taking advantage of the long hours of winter darkness, began their assaults earlier than usual last night and the night-long alarm still was in effect when London's workers started for their jobs.

The Industrial Midlands and Scotland also were raided and damage was done to homes and industrial premises, the Air Ministry said.

R.A.F. Strikes Again

The Royal Air Force struck back, however, the Air Ministry reported bombing "objectives in Germany and on invasion ports in enemy occupied territory."

(Swiss cities underwent long air raid alarms during the night, some lasting as long as 90 minutes. Such alarms are generally indications that the Royal Air Force is bombing military objectives in Northern Italy.)

The attacks on Britain apparently were carried out by lone planes—mostly light bombers—and at no time developed into major proportions, the Ministries of Air and Home Security said. Casualties were reported few, but they included some fatalities.

Blackouts are Lengthened

London's blackouts now begin at 6 p.m. British summer time (1 p.m. EDT) and last until 7.30 a.m. Next week they will be lengthened to almost 14 hours and by the week of Dec. 8, the city will be in darkness for more than 5 hours each night, with blackouts starting at 5.20 p.m. and lasting until 8.30 a.m. Within a couple of weeks thereafter they will begin to shorten again as the second winter of the war begins to wane.

The Air Ministry said that in yesterday's raids the enemy lost seven aircraft while six British fighters were shot down. The pilots of three R.A.F. craft were saved.

Indications that the war at sea might assume a more lively phase was given yesterday in the House of Commons by Prime Minister Churchill who remarked that during the last few weeks during which British and Allied ship losses have been heavier than usual the patrols had been at their lowest ebb due to demands on the Royal Navy in other spheres.

Coming Into Service

The Prime Minister added significantly that the 50 over-age destroyers acquired from the United States in return for naval bases in British western hemisphere possessions were coming into service.

He drew attention also to difficulties encountered by the Royal Navy in refusal of Eire to allow British naval vessels to refuel or be serviced at Eire ports and provoked a lively discussion in which some members suggested Eire was acting high-handedly, since she was still a member of the British Commonwealth, depended on Britain for help in case of attack and enjoyed the benefits of preferential trade with the Empire.

RETREATING

Meanwhile, the city of Koritza itself was shelled almost continuously by Greek Alpine gunners on heights previously taken in bayonet charges.

The Greek air force, aided by British planes, attacked Italian troop supply positions in Albania, while in Greece the civilian casualties from Italian air raids the first nine days of the war were counted at almost 1,000.

Italian Planes Destroyed

Greek planes were said to have bombed airdromes at Koritza and Argyrocastro, Albania, destroying some Italian planes which were on the ground.

The Greek communique blamed Italian planes for the bombing yesterday of the Yugoslav town of Bitolj, just across the frontier from the Greek-Albanian battlefront.

Security Ministry communique said 291 civilians had been killed and 690 injured since Italian planes started striking at Greece Oct. 28.

Civilians Machine-Gunned

The Ministry declared civilians were machine-gunned as well as bombed yesterday in raids on the island of Corfu and on Piraeus, Kastoria, Ioannica and other towns.

Women and children were reported among the casualties in Piraeus, the port of Athens, where refugee settlement homes were bombed. Casualties in the other cities were described as few; the communique said no military damage was caused.

The Greeks reported fierce fighting all along the craggy frontier battlefront.

Reports from the front said the Greeks were tightening their grip around fortified Koritza, cutting off the Italian supply route for the invasion of western Macedonia, and shelling the city continuously.

Dispatches from Yugoslavia said the Italians—30,000 troops are supporting tanks—still held the city. These reports interpreted the Greek shelling as preliminary to a possible attack to seize the town and the trapped troops.

Lines Are Holding

The Greeks declared their lines are holding firm in western Macedonia, where the Italians are striking at Phlorina, and in Epirus, along the north bank of the Kalamas River, barring the Italian push toward Ioannina.

The Greeks credited a British fighting plane with shooting down one Italian plane yesterday and said they destroyed seven planes grounded at Koritza and two which attacked Piraeus.

Gendarmes at Bantim, near Greece's northern border, telegraphed Athens that three Italian bombers were seen shortly after noon yesterday, circling over that area and then heading into Yugoslavia in the direction of Monastir (Bitolj).

(Unidentified planes bombed Bitolj, Yugoslav town near the upper flank of the Italian-Greek battlefront three times yesterday, killing at least two persons and wounding five. Both Greeks and Italians disclaimed responsibility for the attack.)

POLAND GRATEFUL TO CHAMBERLAIN

Prime Minister of Gov't. in Exile Says His Country Will Always Remember Fulfilment of Obligations by Britain

London, Nov. 6.—(CP Cable) An exchange of letters between Gen. Wladyslaw Sikorski, Prime Minister of the Polish government in exile and Neville Chamberlain, at the time of the latter's resignation as Prime Minister, was made public today.

Gen. Sikorski, in the name of the Polish government, paid tribute to the former Prime Minister for high qualities of courage. He wrote:

"Your name is bound with the declaration of war on Germany when, seeking a pretext to create a world conflict, she wantonly attacked Poland.

"The more deeply you desired peace the more difficult it was for you to take the decision. But you took it and by this action alone your name will always be remembered in the course of history.

"We Poles, while we remember all that was at stake from the very beginning of the struggle, will be forever grateful to you for the loyal fulfilment of the treaty of alliance between our two countries".

Mr. Chamberlain replied in part: "If we had stood aside and seen Poland overrun without having lifted a finger to aid her we should have failed in our duty to humanity. As it was we were, unhappily, unable to save Poland from the invader, but I am convinced her new martyrdom will not have been in vain.

"We have made her cause our cause and I rejoice to think that under your wise and courageous leadership the Polish forces in all three arms are fighting beside us and daily winning fresh laurels in the struggle.

"I trust we may both live to see the victory which I am convinced will be won by our countries and that a free and independent Poland may then take her place once more amongst the nations of Europe".

VOTE INTERPRETED

particularly those which might touch American interest in the western hemisphere, already have created a distinct "coolness" in relations between the United States and the Axis Powers.

France's defeat and the possibility that the status of French colonies in this hemisphere may be changed, has raised questions which are now under discussion between the United States and French governments. The American neutrality patrol, established to prevent encroachment on American territorial interests and waters, has been providing actual protection pending any developments.

Far East Question

The major questions in foreign affairs in the Far East facing President Roosevelt spring from developments resulting from Japan's "new order in Asia" policy.

In an attempt to stop Japan's actions, the United States has already imposed an embargo on scrap iron, coal and "moral" embargoes on shipments of war materials and supplies to Japan.

A major question now facing the administration was whether to reinforce the earlier embargoes. A companion topic concerns what, if any, additional financial, economic or other assistance may be given China.

ROOSEVELT NAME RETAINS MAGIC IN GETTING VOTES

Upsets Third Term Precedent and Reverses Political Trend in 1938 Congressional Election

WILLKIE'S BIG DRIVE

(By W. B. Ragsdale, Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Nov. 6—(AP)—The name of Franklin D. Roosevelt has lost none of its vote-getting magic.

With one more swift operation, it has conjured out of the polling booths millions of votes pointing to triumph and four more years in the White House, thereby toppling the third term precedent and giving a rousing endorsement to his foreign policy.

1938 Election Trend Revised

Beyond that, it reversed a political trend which set in in the Congressional election of 1938. In that election, when Democrats were running for House and Senate alone and unsheltered by the Roosevelt name, they lost seats right and left. This time, they apparently not only held control of the Senate and House, but picked up a few seats in the latter.

If the Republicans could have held the ground they gained in 1938 and taken New York, Wendell Willkie would have moved into the White House, come January. Republicans outvoted the Democrats then in enough states to have swung the election if they could have sustained that performance.

But as the figures marched in from Tuesday's voting, those gains melted. One by one, they crumpled—Connecticut, Delaware, Massachusetts, Minnesota, New Hampshire, New Jersey, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island and Wyoming. Then came New York to deal the final blow to Republican hopes.

Advantage Wrested from Republicans

Such an overturn of votes, a wresting away from the Republicans of an advantage they had gained the hard way two years ago, was accomplished by neither an ordinary campaign nor by the threshing out of ordinary issues.

At the outset of the campaign, Mr. Roosevelt notified his party that he would be too busy with the foreign situation to give much time to campaigning. But though he said he would shun purely political speeches, he left the way clear to take an active part in the drive by remarking that he would reply to anything he considered distortions of fact.

Objections inside his own party to the third term effort had whittled away some of his staunchest supporters in past campaigns. Chief among them was James Farley, who quit his post as National Chairman. Vice-President John Garner went home to Texas, took no part in the campaign, and stayed away from the polls. Farley, however, rendered yeoman service in New York.

Willkie's Mighty Drive

Willkie went forth in a mighty drive. In its marathon itinerary, unflagging efforts and staggering number of speeches, the Willkie "crusade" as he called it was a thing to wonder at. Democrats sat tight until the Republican dust began to settle upon them, and it settled thick. Charges were flying thick and fast, then in the last two weeks the President turned his full vigor into the campaign.

Of the charges that had been turned upon him, one of the chief was that he was leading the country into war. Another was that centralization of power in the Federal government was leading toward State Socialism. And the third was that the overthrow of the third term tradition would set the nation upon the road to dictatorship.

Free Ballot Complete Safeguard

Mr. Roosevelt denied the first, said he was working for peace and would do so all the days of his life. He paid little heed to the second charge, but replied to the third that the free ballot was a complete safeguard against the overthrow of democracy.

Few would agree upon what issues the campaign turned.

That 1938 trend continued until the fall of 1939. But in the fall, war broke out in Europe. Orders from Great Britain and France, plus the upset of the usual channels of trade, gave a boost to business. Through the winter and spring this continued. And 1940 brought the United States' defence program, setting wheels to turning, adding more thousands to payrolls.

Along with this, the collapse of France and the desperate battle of Britain had set the nation to thinking of the urgency of its own situation.

WASTE MATERIAL PILED HIGH IN OLD SKATING RINK

Kiwanis Club Appeal to Help Red Cross and British Relief Fund Being Answered Generously by All Classes

SCRAP TO BE SOLD

Waste material of practically every conceivable kind, including old tires and tubes, copper boilers, old beds and cots, radiators, storage batteries, old stoves and furnaces tin cans, clippings from plumbing shops, old sleighs and buggies, rags, in fact almost every manner of waste which at one time or another is to be found in backyards, cellars, and barnyards is finding its way to the old Turnbull Street arena in answer to the Kiwanis Club's appeal for salvage material to raise funds for the Red Cross and British War Relief Fund.

School children of the city were the first to answer the appeal and early Monday morning old magazines and periodicals were brought to the school from where they were collected by truck and taken to the collection depot, while the arrival of heavier material has continued until today the pile of waste which will go a long way toward the relief of suffering in war areas, has steadily mounted.

The objective set by the local Kiwanis Club for the Belleville district is 300 tons of waste material and citizens are urged to search their premises for old bits of brass, lead, bronze and aluminumware which have served their usefulness. A call to Kiwanian Ross Stiver, or to Fire Chief William Lynch, who are heading the waste committee, will bring a truck for collection of the waste material. It will be taken to Holgate's Storage where it will be sorted and stored. The proceeds are for a worthy war service and Belleville residents are urged to make an especial effort for a worthy cause.

DISTRICT FARMERS WELCOME RAIN

District farmers welcomed with open arms the rainfall which visited the Belleville area early on Tuesday evening and which has continued intermittently all through the morning and until early afternoon today. Farmers visiting the city this morning stated that the rain will go a long way toward filling the wells which in many cases were very low, it being necessary to either drive stock to water or to draw water from distant creeks or rivers.

Doubt was being expressed as to whether the needed rainfall would come before the autumn freeze-up as had this occurred, the water situation in many cases in the country would have been acute. Fall plowing will be made easier as the result. The rain will also soften the ground and enable farmers to complete their fall plowing, it was stated.

by Van Wyck Mason

CHAPTER SEVEN.

"But to get on with the story: this Transpacific Company, an American corporation, made a great fuss about reopening; their manager hired hundreds of coolies, brought in machinery and mining experts, and generally put the Talingho property back in condition."

"Just a minute, Lieutenant," North interjected from the midst of his mental calculations. "Did this purchase take place AFTER Japan created Manchukuo as a buffer state —or before?"

"After, sir."

"Thank you. I think I remember the later developments." Meditatively joining his fingertips, the intelligence captain went on: "No sooner had the Transpacific got well settled in Talingho than this bandit marshal, Wang Tso Kin, began raiding into Sino-Japanese territory. Strange coincidence—eh?"

"That's right," Clark eagerly agreed. "When Wang got chased by the Japanese, he retreated TOWARDS THE TRANSPACIFIC PROPERTY, though there was a much easier route about five miles to the north of the mine."

"It does give one pause," North remarked, "almost as much as to know why old Wang, after retreating over seventy-five miles direct to Talingho, decided to dig in JUST BEYOND THE TRANSPACIFIC PROPERTY?"

"It was a neat piece of work on somebody's part," Lieutenant Clark observed. "Old Wang so disposed his troops that the Japanese commander had to post his on the Transpacific property or be wiped out. Remember what happened?"

A moment Captain North delved into some mental archive, then looked up, his eyes narrowed a little.

"Seems to me that when the Japs tried to take possession of the hill, American employees raised our flag and warned them off; then when the Japs persisted, they opened up with machine guns."

"In fact," cut in Clark, "the Transpacific mine guards knocked off about fifty of the attackers."

The intelligence captain frowned a little. "It took a clever man—one above the average—to think that out."

"Yes, sir. But that wasn't the real damage. When the Japs fell back, Wang's crowd promptly took advantage of the opportunity to stage an offensive of their own. In fact, Captain, the bandits caught the Jap force in the flank and so cut 'em to kybobs, and of course Tokyo didn't like that a bit."

The speaker paused to slap a mosquito that lit on his wrist. "G-2 came into it because about a dozen American mine guards got shot during the row; American property had been invaded, Americans killed defending it, and all that."

Captain North began to pace back and forth while Clark, apparently eager to reinstate himself in his superior's good graces, hurried on with his account.

"The Japs of course sent out more troops immediately, drove Wang into the hills, and all was quiet till the end of April—the twentieth I think."

"The twentieth—is that exact?"

"Yes, sir. That was when this second offensive of Wang Tso Kin's began. As you know, the Japs shelled the Chinese position yesterday, and in doing so had to fire on the Transpacific property."

Lieutenant Clark's erect body sagged a little on its seat when North inquired, "What was the reaction here in Honolulu?"

"I—I don't know, sir, I was away on a trip—a trip. But the evening papers said that seven more Americans had been killed."

Again a strained silence fell on the bedroom, until North asked: "Well, what about this so-called 'friendly visit' of the Japanese Scout Squadron I heard them talking about on the mainland?"

"Due in two days, sir," Clark said in a flat, sad voice. "Six cruisers, an airplane carrier, and a flotilla of twelve submarines. Everyone on the island is afraid of trouble, but you see how it is?"

"How what is, Lieutenant?"

"Why, if either government calls off the visit, the other will interpret it as an unfriendly gesture."

"I see. If the Japs don't show up, then our own jingos will say it shows bad faith and will assume that a declaration of war is imminent; and on the other hand, if Washington asks the Japanese admiral to postpone his visit, Japan will have it that the United States is about to declare war. It's an ugly mess, at any event."

Hugh North checked his restless parade by the open window to gaze out at palm tops which, in the pale moonlight, seemed to have been coated with frost. . . . Did Japan want war?

"Outside of rumors that there will be trouble, do you know of anything specific?" querried North, suddenly fixing his subordinate with grim and searching eyes.

"No," Clark replied with a return of his early sullenness. "But the feeling is so strong that lots of men are sending their wives and children to the other side of the island till the Jap fleet pulls out."

The intelligence captain's lips formed a noiseless whistle, then changed the subject with, "Where are autopsies generally held in Honolulu?"

"At the Tripler General, sir—Dr. Thaxter's the coroner," Clark said earnestly. "And—well, I—I hope you'll let me held you, sir—I've . . ."

Abruptly, North, folding his arms, looked the other in the eyes until they wavered and sought the floor.

"Do you think I ought to? Do you realize what this idiotic infatuation of yours has cost G-2? Here's the Department faced with the worst crisis the country's had since 1918, and you"—his condemnation was utterly impersonal, and wholly withering—"you neglect your duty, spend your days and nights boating, picnicking, and chasing some girl.

"And how," North announced, "I've reached a decision. I'm not going to recommend you for dismissal. I've done plenty of fool things myself—though nothing on a par with this—so I know what it is to be young. There's still plenty of time for you to get over this nonsense."

"Thank you, sir!" Clark burst out. "I'll never be able to tell you how grateful I am, and I—I'll work to the limit!"

"Right! But on the mainland—not here." Captain North paused by the window and looked out into the light-filled darkness where the Aloha tower, faintly gilded by the city's glare, dominated Honolulu. "You're going aboard the liner that sails for San Francisco at eleven-thirty tonight."

"Tonight!" Lieutenant Clark's white-clad body stiffened, and his eyes became two brown pools of misery. "Why—why—but I can't go tonight."

"You can, and will." Utterly final was North's tone. "I won't run the risk of having you see that Stefan woman again. I'm out to beat her and I don't want you"—he was deliberately brutal now in an effort to arouse his subordinate from his daze—"to go blabbing to her about my plans. See to it," he added sharply, "that you take that boat tonight. I suppose you can be trusted to do that?"

In China "the mine guards opened up with machine guns," explained Lieutenant Clark. "They knocked off about fifty attackers."

PROVOST CORPS TO BE FORMED IN CANADIAN ARMY

Corps Will Handle Traffic, Police and Similar Problems in the Corps

By ROSS MUNRO

With the C.A.S.F. somewhere in England, Nov. 6 (CP).—The first provost corps in the history of the Canadian army has been formed here to handle traffic, police and similar problems in the composite Canadian-British corps in the camps where Canadian soldiers are being trained.

Under direction of several former Royal Canadian Mounted Police officers in the Canadian Active Service Force, this newest development in corps organization was considered necessary to keep pace with the increase of Canadian troops in England and to contribute to the efficiency of the corps.

When the first division came to England nearly a year ago it had its own provost company, made up of men recruited from the R.C.M.P. As more troops arrived the provost problem broadened, other companies were formed and finally the provost corps emerged.

Five companies, mounted on motorcycles, will look after the provost duties in the new set-up. The corps will be administered by Lt. Col. C. H. Hill of Victoria, Deputy Provost Marshal at Canadian military headquarters overseas. Direction of personnel in the corps area is under Major W. R. Day of Ottawa, assistant provost carshal of the corps, who came to England as officer commanding the 1st Provost Company.

The 1st Provost Company is still the representative unit of the R. C. M. P. with the Canadian forces. The other companies have been recruited mainly from among men who never wore the scarlet tunics of the Mounties.

"This provost corps just had to be," said Maj. Day. "It is a logical step from a Canadian military point of view."

The provost corps will enforce discipline and handle police matters. Of paramount importance is the question of handling traffic and directing truck convoys along the narrow, winding roads of the British defence areas.

"Traffic problems are particularly important now in light of the high mechanization of the forces," said Major Day. "About 50 per cent of our work will be concerned with traffic duties and special training is given officers and men in this regard."

The new corps unit also will look after prisoners of war.

"Dr. Kildare Goes Home"

"Dr. Kildare Goes Home," in which Lew Ayres, Lionel Barrymore and John Shelton join hands to establish a clinic in a country town and make the old-fashioned community "live again and like it," is the attraction coming next to the Belle Theatre. Like its predecessors, it is a medical mystery picture in which dramatic moments in medical science are blended with comedy and down-to-earth human emotions. The dramatic highlight is the struggle of the doctors to save the life of the "mystery patient" played by Gene Lockhart, and the battle for a sanitary town before an old-fashioned town council. Comedy high spots include the planned elopement of Ayres and Laraine Day who suddenly discover that the whole town knows their secret. Harold S. Bucquet, who directed the preceding pictures of the series, again directed. John Shelton, who scored with Lana Turner in "We Who Are Young" is a new addition to the cast as Dr. Davidson. Other players include Alma Kruger, Samuel S. Hinds, Emma Dunn, Walter Kingsford, Nat Pendleton, Marie Blake, Nell Craig, Frank Orth, Horace McMahon and George Reed.

New "Nick Carter" Story

Nick Carter, as personified by Walter Pidgeon, plunges anew into adventure, this time with abundant comedy amid the thrills in "Sky Murder" third of the Nick Carter series, announced as the companion feature attraction. Joyce Compton appears opposite Pidgeon in a role that mingles comedy with romance, and Donald Meek continues his comical role of Bartholomew, the eccentric bee expert. Karen Verne, Edward Ashley, Tom Conway, George Lessey, Dorothy Tree, Frank Reicher and Chill Wills are other players.

"Britain at Bay" is the title of the new Canada Carries On series to be exhibited on the same program.

"Strike Up The Band"

Streamlined song hits and ancient ditties that evoke hilarious laughter, comedy, romance and youth, and heart throbs are all combined in "Strike Up The Band" merry musical with Mickey Rooney, Judy Garland, Paul Whiteman and Orchestra and clever youngsters. "Strike Up The Band" closes a highly successful engagement now at the Belle.

The Belle News of the Day will also be exhibited.

AT THE McCARTHY

Drinkwater's "A Family of Nations"

The powerful and dramatic story of the growth of Great Britain from an empire to a commonwealth of nations is grippingly unreeled in "A Family of Nations," the new film production which is slated for its first showing at the McCarthy Theatre next week through United Artists release. Featuring such world famous personalities as George Bernard Shaw, John Drinkwater, Sir Austen Chamberlain and Lady Astor, "A Family of Nations," was filmed from a script by John Drinkwater, the great English playwright whose drama, "Abraham Lincoln," was an international success. It was produced by E. R. Conne, with Alan Mowbray, noted Hollywood actor, in the role of the narrator.

The central theme of "A Family of Nations" revolves around the thrilling and exciting chapters which welded Great Britain into the greatest permanent league of nations the world has ever known. It unfolds the vivid story behind her rise as a great world power, the events that made her a great democratic force for universal law and order.

The film starts with the coronation of young Queen Victoria and traces the steps of a free people who work for peace and democracy as they fight the evils of war and unemployment and repression. The picture carries the spectator through the fateful day when Great Britain was again called upon to declare war against Germany and to take up arms to defend the freedom, liberty and democracy which Britons will never give up.

Among the most dramatic scenes depicted in the film are the spectacular coronation ceremonies of King George VI, the visit of the Royal monarchs to Canada and the United States, the glory and gallantry of the British fleet, the silver jubilee during the reign of King George V, the visit of George Bernard Shaw at John Drinkwater's home and the brilliant playwright's views on the indomitable strength of the British Empire.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Spring Parade"

First actor to gain the honor of playing the masculine leading role with Deanna Durbin twice is Robert Cummings, who's the object of the star's affections in her current picture, "Spring Parade," now at the Capitol Theatre with a daily matinee.

Just a few seasons ago Cummings made his first appearance with Miss Durbin in Universal's "Three Smart Girls Grow Up."

The role proved to be the turning point in Bob's life, as for some months previously the young star's career had been in a bit of a slump. "Three Smart Girls Grow Up" provided him with a role different from anything he'd ever played and shot him into a popularity he'd never enjoyed before.

Pasternak Credited

Cummings credits producer Joe Pasternak and director Henry Koster with discovering the type of character he could play best.

"I had always been cast in parts where I was supposed to be a weakling who becomes hysterical when things start to go bad," Bob says. "Koster and Pasternak discovered I had a bit of comedy ability and weren't afraid to take a chance."

The actor is portraying the role of a devil-may-care, flirtatious young blade in Deanna's new "Spring Parade."

Conspicuous Roles

In his first picture with Deanna, "Three Smart Girls Grow Up," there was no romance between the star and Cummings. In "Spring Parade" he's the man she falls in love with. It will be the first time Deanna has had a real sweetheart on the screen.

The added short subjects with "Spring Parade" will be "Spills and Thrills," comedy, Universal News and the fifth chapter of the thrilling serial "Tim Tyler's Luck."

JOHN L. LEWIS LEADER OF C.I.O. IS REPUDIATED

Can Now Make Good His Promise He Would Quit if Roosevelt Elected

SETTLEMENT NEAR

Washington, Nov. 6 (AP)—President Roosevelt's apparent victory over Wendell Willkie gave John L. Lewis his self-appointed cue today to step down as President of the Congress of Industrial Organizations and it likewise encouraged conjecture that new efforts would be made to end the schism in union rank between the C.I.O. and the American Federation of Labor.

Lewis staked his C.I.O. leadership on a Roosevelt defeat when he issued his dramatic call to followers two weeks ago for a Willkie triumph.

A New Deal backer in 1936, Lewis announced in his Willkie appeal that if a third term were given to President Roosevelt, he would regard it as a vote of "no confidence" in his judgment and retire from office when the C.I.O. meets in convention Nov. 18.

Despite this, however, a movement got under way at the first sign of a Roosevelt victory to have Lewis reconsider and continue in his present post.

If that move fails, Philip Murray of Pittsburgh, a C. I. O. Vice-President, probably would be the choice to carry on the leadership of an organization which split into two political camps as soon as Lewis came out for Willkie.

May Work Out Settlement

The triumph of the pro-Roosevelt leaders in C.I.O. brought predictions from some sources that an A. F. L.-C. I. O. peace settlement within six months would be worked out. A. F. L. leaders have blamed Lewis for the failure of past conferences to produce a labor settlement.

On the other hand, the pro-Lewis forces asserted that Lewis would continue to exert a major influence over C.I.O. policy and direction since, along with his C.I.O. presidency, he has been the leader and outstanding figure of the powerful United Mine Workers' Union, regarded as the key unit of the C.I.O.

The C.I.O. presidency paid Lewis no salary. The Mine Union post carries a salary of $25,000 a year.

If Murray succeeds Lewis as the top man of C.I.O., Lewis will be handing over the title to one of his closest associates for 30 years. Murray, like Lewis, is a miner, and ranks next to Lewis in the Miners' Union.

Lewis was the founder and first president of C.I.O.; it grew out of a break with the A.F.L. over organizing policies in the big mass production industries in 1935.

Neighbors Serenade President Roosevelt At Hyde Park Home

Hyde Park, N.Y., Nov. 6 (AP)—President Roosevelt filled chart after chart in today's early hours with figures telling a story of an overwhelming electoral vote lead in his historic race for a third term, and then, after describing the election trends as "fine", went to bed at 3.35 a.m. EDT

Such was the trend of the balloting that by midnight hundreds of the President's neighbors in this Hudson Valley village gathered with red lights, a drum and bugle corps and noisemakers for a "Victory Parade" to the Roosevelt home.

Standing in the light of smoking flares on the portico of Hyde Park House, the President told the paraders the returns were incomplete, that he had not yet heard from Pacific Coast States, but that "it looks all right."

And, to another mass of people who arrived half an hour later, he said, "Things look perfectly fine."

Well, before midnight, telephone calls and telegrams by the hundreds had brought him messages of congratulation, and from then on the volume picked up.

Mr. Roosevelt planned to sleep late, then lay the cornerstone of Hyde Park's new Fieldstone Post Office at noon.

To the first group of his neighbors, Mr. Roosevelt remarked:—

"We, of course, face difficult days in this country. But I think you will find me in the future just the same Franklin Roosevelt you have known a great many years."

He said he was going to come back to Hyde Park "just as much as the Government of the United States will let me."

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

WENDELL WILLKIE

The Republican presidential nominee went to bed at 2:30 a.m. EDT after telling a rally of Willkie supporters: "The principles for which we fought will prevail, as surely as the principles of truth always prevail."

While the audience in the main ballroom of the Hotel Commodore cheered and waved handkerchiefs, Willkie added, "don't be afraid, and never quit."

He acknowledged the applause with a sweep of his arm, then went upstairs. He sent word to reporters that he would have no further statement until 11 a.m. EDT.

Before he retired, the candidate had spent nearly 10 hours checking returns from each state. Seated at the end of a couch littered with newspapers and election charts, he smoked numerous cigarettes, conferred with associates and made hasty pencilled calculations.

Chairs For Only a Few

The hotel room held chairs for only four or five persons. Willkie's brother, Ed, stayed near him all evening, as did the nominee's 20-year-old son, Philip.

Statisticians sent in periodic reports on probable state totals. Early in the evening, Willkie described the election as a "horse race" and expressed the opinion it would not be decided until today.

Shortly after midnight, Willkie went to the ballroom, where a "victory party" rapidly was turning into a quiet gathering.

He stepped to the platform, in front of an election blackboard, and expressed thanks to his "fellow fighters in this struggle."

"I congratulate you," he said, "on being a part of the greatest crusade of the century . . . . I hope that none of you is either afraid or disheartened, because I am not in the slightest."

AS FOREIGN

Unofficial quarters said they expected a stiffened Oriental policy by Washington to show itself quickly, but they declined to speculate on its possible shape.

Berlin Declines Comment

Berlin, Nov. 6—(AP) — Authorized circles declined to comment today on news of President Roosevelt's re-election, declaring German reaction would depend entirely on the President's post-election "attitude and actions."

"It is idle to discuss what Wendell Willkie would have done had he become President and equally idle to speculate on what Roosevelt will do," said one authorized source. There is nothing to do except watch events."

Result Expected in Rome

Rome, Nov. 6—(AP) — Fascist political circles today described the indicated re-election of President Roosevelt as "re-affirmation of American policy, which was expected."

"Since there was no surprising result, there is no occasion to comment," one Fascist observer said. "American policy evidently will remain the same and so will Italy's."

Victory Hailed in London

London, Nov. 6.—(CP)— London newspapers today hailed President Roosevelt's lead for re-election as a blow at Hitler and welcome news for Britain.

An editorial in The Evening Star said "all the influence which Hitler was able to bring to bear was thrown against him (Roosevelt)", and added:—

"We heartily welcome the American decision. Germany cannot mistake its implications. It is one of a growing number of signs that the tide is setting against tyranny and will finally engulf it".

The Evening News, whose front page proclaimed "Roosevelt victorious," declared editorially: "Every vote cast yesterday was a vote against Hitler. . . .We ourselves can be thankful the campaign is ended. America will quicken her stride again and without any of the delays that might have come from the sending of a new man to the White House".

The London newspapers gave the vote the widest prominence they ever accorded a United States election.

'British Fighting For French', Says New York Times

New York, Nov. 6 (CP).—Britain is the only hope France has to save her home frontiers and her colonial possessions, the New York Times said today in commenting editorially upon yesterday's address in the House of Lords by Viscount Halifax, Foreign Secretary.

Noting that the foreign secretary had said Britain has "repeatedly rejected suggestions from the enemy for agreement at the expense of France," the newspaper remarked, "this is a pertinent and highly important point," adding:

"Now France is the spoil for the victors. France and her empire represent booty beyond the dreams of the conqueror a year ago, and there is no question that Britain could preserve her empire intact at the price of surrendering this rich prize to the axis powers. In the most literal sense, therefore, the British are fighting for the French."

DISPATCHES SAY CAROL, LUPESCU ALREADY MARRIED

Allege Ex-King States Marriage Took Place in London "Some Years Ago"

NOT RECORDED

London, Nov. 6 (CP).—Some British newspapers published Madrid dispatches today saying that former King Carol of Rumania had accounted that he and Mme. Magda Lupescu were married in London "some years ago".

However, records at Somerset House for the past twenty years did not show the name of either King Carol or Mme. Lupescu. An official said "there are no circumstances in which a marriage could take place in England or Wales without registration."

The last time King Carol is known to have been in England with Mme. Lupescu was 1928. The British government asked them to leave after they had been in the country three weeks. Carol at that time had recently renounced his rights as the Crown Prince.

cracy endangered."

Confident that national unity would be upheld, the Herald-Tribune was equally confident that Wendell Willkie, the defeated candidate, "will likewise be found on the side of co-operation, wherever co-operation is not inconsistent with fundamental principles.

The Boston Post, Independent Democrat, found "the mighty vote that was rolled up all over the nation is one of the most heartening things that could happen to us."

Democracy Vigorous Thing.

"It shows that democracy is a live, vigorous thing," declared the Post.

Said the Boston Herald, Republican: "For the first time in our history the electorate has disregarded the tradition against the third term. But it was the people themselves who broke the tradition and they did so in a fair, open election, where nobody acted under duress."

The New York Times: "The appeal to the electorate is over. The choice is made. We disagree with the decision . . . but we glory in the fact that ours is still a system of government in which the will of the majority prevails, and the minority gives ungrudging support to the majority in the achievement of every truly national purpose."

Seattle Times, Independent: "The majority has chosen Franklin Delano Roosevelt to serve a third term as President . . . he thus becomes your leader and my leader, regardless of how we voted. All Americans intend to stand behind their chosen leader. It will be a sad day for the foreigner that dares to presume otherwise."

San Francisco Chronicle, Independent: "By their votes the people have continued Franklin D. Roosevelt in the presidency. In this democratic country they are unquestioned arbiters. As a democracy in which the majority rules, the whole country accepts the result.

Richmond (Va.) Times Dispatch, Independent Democrat: "A primary obligation upon Mr. Roosevelt in this fateful hour is that he strive to heal the breach which undoubtedly exists in the ranks of the American people. The fervor which thousands expended on behalf of his opponent must be harnessed to the building of America's defences."

San Diego, (Calif.) Union, Republican: "In returning Mr. Roosevelt to office the American people have given him no mandate...... The millions of protest votes for his opponent must be reckoned with if this is to remain a democracy."

Oklahoma City Oklahoman, Independent: "Even those who doubt that the wisest possible decision was made at the ballot box Tuesday will agree that our selected leadership must be followed loyally without complaint and without reservation."

Sioux City Argus-Leader, Independent: "Americans naturally must accede to the will of the majority. This does not however, carry with it the presumption that our voice cannot be raised in continued opposition to the policies and the program of the President. In truth it would be a violation of a cardinal phase of democracy for those who dissent to be silent. Democracy thrives on candid expressions and sours on suppression."

Chattanooga Time, Supporter of Willkie: "This is a season where there is work, important work for every American. In a spirit of unity the country can be made safe and kept free. That great task calls for the devotion of everyone, not as Republicans or as Democrats, but as Americans."

Carry on Canada

A Canadian General said, "High economic development is essential to military strength." This, today, is our main responsibility on the home front and the best protection we can give to Canada's economic life is by being normal in our actions and thinking both at home and in business. Let us adopt the British Slogan "Business as Usual" and maintain normal buying — normal selling and normal advertising.

President Given Victor's Welcome By Washington

300,000 Crowd at Station While Other Thousands Line Streets

Washington, Nov. 7 (AP)—President Roosevelt, first man in history to be selected for a third term in the White House, told a welcoming throng of thousands today that he and the first lady like farm life, but that of all the cities in the United States they would rather live in Washington, D.C.

He made the statement with a laugh in a talk to a crowd which thronged the plaza outside Union Station upon his arrival from Hyde Park, N.Y. The President thanked "my old friends of Washington" for their reception and added: "It isn't as if we (himself and Mrs. Roosevelt) were new people. Your turning out to see us means that we are getting on pretty well.

"And we are very happy, both of us, to be back here for a little bit longer."

Henry Wallace, Vice President-elect, and Mrs. Roosevelt rode with the President in his open car through throngs that lined the way to the White House.

Returning from Hyde Park, N.Y., where he watched the great Tuesday election sweep accord him an honor never before bestowed on any president of the United States, Mr. Roosevelt had a throng of officials and just plain citizens wait-

Why The Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen

Mirage! How often have motorists seen on the road ahead a vision of a lake caused by the sun heating the pavement; what they see is the sky. In winter when the air next to the water is cold and dense, ships below the horizon are seen from the shore. George William Curtis describes a heat mirage on the desert as a "reach of water frozen into transparent blue ice. The spectacle becomes more solemn in proportion to the beholder's consciousness of the delusion. Never, upon the Alpine throne, never, through the brief brilliant days of New England December, was winter more evident and entire".

SECOND SESSION OF PARLIAMENT CONVENES TODAY

Earl of Athlone Reads Speech From Throne Officiating for First Time Since Becoming Governor-General

DISCUSS WAR EFFORT

No Startling Legislative Proposals Are Expected at This Session

By Carl Reinke Canadian Press Staff Writer.

Ottawa, Nov. 7 (CP)—Parliament moves into action again today with the opening of the second session of Canada's 19th parliament.

The ceremonies will be simple and brief, devoid of the customary brilliance of peacetime openings. The main event of the day will be the Speech from the Throne sketching the government's legislative program for the session.

The Earl of Athlone will read that speech, officiating at his first parliamentary opening since he became Governor-General. No startling legislative proposals are expected.

Chief business of the new session probably will be discussion of the war effort and means of financing it, although debate on the report of the Royal Commission on Dominion-Provincial relations, the wheat problem and other domestic questions also may take a prominent place in the deliberations.

In preparation for the new ses-

Fairmont, Minn., Nov. 7—(AP)—When election officials started fire in the stove at Galena town hall they found it wouldn't draw because the chimney was plugged. Before they got through, helpers who cleaned the flue extracted a dog and four cats, all dead. Officials remarked that it was only a few days since Hallowe'en.

FAMOUS LONDON CHURCH DAMAGED BY NAZI BOMB

LONG NIGHT ALARM

Raiders Dodge Defenders in the Clouds to Scatter Bombs on Capital

London, Nov. 7.—(CP)—One of the most famous churches in London was hit by a high explosive bomb during a prolonged German air raid on the Capital last night.

(Censorship prevented identification of the building by name.)

Several hundred homeless persons usually take shelter in the church during raids and it was crowded with women and children who were singing "Annie Laurie" to a piano accompaniment when the bomb angled down, bursting with an explosion that rocked the crypt and filled it with smoke and dust.

The pianist stopped abruptly but then shouted quickly:—

"It's only one of our own shells".

While ambulances rushed to the spot with sirens screaming he started to play again and the refugees went on singing.

A warden in the crypt of the bombed church said that afterwards the occupants of the shelter "went to sleep as though nothing had

Italian Press Launches Attack Against Swiss

London, Nov. 7 (CP)—Italian press and radio attacks against Switzerland were reported Wednesday by the British Broadcasting Corporation, along with reports that all but two Swiss newspapers had been banned from Italy.

The BBC said the Italians had been angered by alleged satisfaction expressed in Swiss newspapers over Greek resistance to Italian troops.

"The territory and constitution of this small state (Switzerland) cannot be guaranteed immunity in the new structure of Europe," the BBC quoted the Italian radio as saying.

The BBC added that the Italian radio had accused the newspapers of being "full of lies" and printing "artificial catastrophes which were completely false."

Offices Records, Files Destroyed In Barrack's Fire

Kingston, Ont., Nov. 7 (CP)—Fire of undetermined origin early today destroyed an office building of the 4th Divisional Signals, Canadian Active Service Force, at the nearby Barriefield military camp. The blaze spread rapidly and office records and files were destroyed. The Kingston Fire Department was unable to check spread of the flames through the frame structure. Camp soldiers also formed a bucket brigade.

Ernest Bevin, Strong Man of Churchill Gov't, May be Next British Leader

By J. F. Sanderson Canadian Press Staff Writer.

London, Nov. 7 (CP)—Many political observers here have already selected Britain's next Prime Minister—Ernest Bevin, Minister of Labor in the Churchill government who recently was added to the war cabinet.

The men who watch politics from the press gallery of Westminster and try to predict future trends and events, have been wrong many times in the past. But this time they say they cannot miss—if Bevin stays in politics he will lead the nation, because, they reason, he won't stay otherwise.

Apart from Prime Minister Winston Churchill, no man in British public life has forged to the front so quickly as Bevin in the last six months. No man, and that includes the Prime Minister, has the confidence of the working classes of the nation in a comparable measure.

Bevin is in the somewhat difficult position of being the Big Boss of the labor movement but not boss of the parliamentary Labor Party. The party elects its leader and Deputy-leader each year but there is no sign Bevin intends to run this year against Clement Attlee and Arthur Greenwood who have held these positions several years. His friends

Long Range British Planes Bomb Suburbs Of Berlin and Railway

London, Nov. 7 —(CP)— Long range British warplanes bombed the Berlin suburbs and a railway junction northwest of the German capital during the night the Air Ministry reported today.

Attacks also were made, a communique declared, "on synthetic oil plants at Leuna and Hamburg, factories near Dusseldorf, the inland port of Duisburg and railway yards and junctions at Halle, Pretsch, on the Elbe, and near Cologne."

Other squadrons were said to have bombed long-range German gun emplacements at Cap Gris Nez on the French coast.

Spandau is Attacked

The Berlin suburb attacked was identified as Spandau, where the Air Ministry said the raiders had attacked industrial plants. The Royal Air Force operations were described as "extensive."

In daylight attacks yesterday, British bombers were said to have pounded oil refineries at Salzbergen, starting great fires.

Another daylight attack, the communique said, was directed against the Haamstede airdrome in the Netherlands, where a hangar was hit and aircraft on the ground were machine-gunned.

Bombs were reported dropped on "a concentration of shipping" at Cuxhaven, Germany, and on a convoy of ships of Den Helder, Holland.

The raids were said to have cost the British two planes.

London, Nov. 7 (CP)—Air Marshal Sir Philip Joubert said in a broadcast Wednesday the Royal Air Force "certainly shall attack Rome, as and when it suits us." Sir Philip, noted soldier and airman, spoke on the British Broadcasting Corporation's "Britain Speaks" feature.

"It would be a pity to attack Rome," Sir Philip said, "but if the need arises no doubt we shall steel ourselves to this act of vandalism. It would not be the first time that an invader from the north has laid the City of Rome in ruins."

MUST RESERVE LIBERTY OF ACTION REGARDING ROME

Under Secretary Butler Says Britain Must Take This Stand Since Italians Bombed London

ROME NOT BOMBED

London, Nov. 7 (CP)—Richard Butler, Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, told the House of Commons today that Britain must "reserve full liberty of action in regard to Rome" since Italian fliers had bombed London.

The Italians first bombed London from a base on the French side of the Channel Oct. 24.

When Italy entered the war Mussolini's Government declared Rome an open (or undefended) city not used as for military purposes, in order to preserve its antiquities from destruction by bombs.

It has not been bombed, but on Monday had an early morning air raid alarm. The reason for the alarm is not known.

Since the war began with Greece the Italian Radio has broadcast a pledge that Athens would be spared by Italian bombers unless Rome is raided. Athens itself, has not yet been bombed.

Greeks Will Use Guns Captured Against Italians

(By J. Wes Gallagher, Associated Press Staff Writer)

Salonika, Greece, Nov. 7—(AP)—Informed quarters today attributed a reported slackening of Italian air activity over northern Greece to the swift Greek army drive into Albania, which they said demoralized Fascist communications, coupled with British and Greek bombing of Italian airfields.

Ironically, Italian guns will be used to tighten the Greek defence against air raiders. A whole trainload of captured anti-aircraft guns and other war material arrived from the front last night.

Fascist air attacks on cities in northern Greece were reported extremely light yesterday. This was taken by Greeks as an indication that British and Greek planes had damaged Italian invasion bases badly, while the Greek drive on the ground to Koritza had ruptured the supply routes.

Greeks continued to strengthen their air defences by mobilizing all non-drafted workers between 16 and 60. These men were not inducted into the army proper, but assigned to essential war tasks for which they were deemed best fitted.

DARK SKIES GREET PARLIAMENTARIANS

Ottawa, Nov. 7 —(CP)— Dark skies greeted parliamentarians as they assembled today to take up the nation's business at the second session of the 19th parliament.

The thermometer stood at 36, four degrees above freezing. Damp snowflakes, widely spaced, drifted down in an uncertain wind.

JURY DISAGREES AND McFARLAND CASE TRAVERSED

Members Deliberate Nine Hours and Discharged After Failing to Arrive at Verdict

COURTROOM CROWDED

Justice Keiller MacKay Allows Part of Evidence Re-read After Jury Asks for Instruction During Deliberation

After nearly nine hours of deliberation, a Supreme Court jury failed to arrive at a verdict yesterday in the trial of Robert McFarland, 21-year-old Frankford shoe employee, charged with the murder of Gordon Archer, the 18-months-old son of his wife, Alice Archer McFarland. Mrs. McFarland, who was charged jointly with her husband for the crime, was adjudged insane and unfit to stand trial earlier in the week. The body of the dead child was found floating in the Trent River on July 28th, 1940.

McFarland will remain in custody until the next assize of the Supreme Court when he will undergo another trial. This will likely take place some time in February.

The jury retired at 1.27 p.m. following addresses by counsel and an eloquent charge by presiding Mr. Justice Keiller MacKay. They returned at 8.30 p.m. to request permission of the Bench to have the evidence of two Crown witnesses repeated. They retired again at nine-thirty and left the jury room at 11.17 p.m. when they delivered their findings of disagreement to the court. In his charge to the jury Justice MacKay had instructed them to bring in one of two verdicts, guilty or not guilty of murder.

Death of Daughter Unites Parents

New York, Nov. 7 (AP)—Night club singer Bunny Howard and her husband, Frank J. Long, a former program vendor, will travel together to the funeral of their six-year-old daughter, Jacqueline, over whose custody they had battled for weeks.

The child died of a nervous ailment Tuesday night.

Paul Todaro, attorney for the mother, said last night that separation suits brought by the estranged couple would be dropped.

"There's nothing to fight over now," said Miss Howard.

The couple and attorneys joined in a rough-and-tumble battle in the corridors of the Supreme Court building six weeks ago during a recess in the custody suit. The girl was not hurt.

Greece's Defenders Seek to Consolidate Newly-Won Area

Koritza Completely Dominated by Greek Troops but Doubtful If They Will Enter Albanian City

Athens, Nov. 7 — (AP) — Italy's big push against Greece, supreme test in this little nation's fight for life, apparently has started.

The Greek High Command acknowledged that its Evzones, or mountain fighters, had been forced into a "slight" retreat along the Ionian sea on the Evrus or Kalamas front, in northwestern Greece.

(After eight days of marking time on the banks of the Kalamas River, constantly harassed by Greek artillery, planes and roving patrols, the Italian High Command claimed today that the river had been crossed.

(Reports reaching London by radio hinted that the big Italian drive, anticipated by the Greeks, had begun. The push was forecast yesterday at London.)

Heavy artillery and aerial bombardment yesterday preceded the Italian Kalamas thrust. The extent of the Greek withdrawal was not disclosed.

The Kalamas River, roughly paralleling the border from five to fifteen miles inside Greece, is one of the first natural barriers to the Italian coastal drive from Albania.

Greece turned out her own small air force, now bolstered by British planes, to assail the advancing Italian columns.

May Be Forced to Abandon Salient

Conceivably a successful Italian thrust along the coast, threatening Greek lines of supply deeper inland, might force abandonment of the Greeks' own salient now threatening Koritza, Italian invasion base ten miles inside Albania.

Conversely, capture of Koritza, now dominated by Greek mountain artillery, 100 miles northeast of the Kalamas front, conceivably might slow down or even halt the Italian coastal drive through a rearguard threat.

Reports reaching Belgrade, Yugoslavia, from the Koritza sector indicated the possibility of a decisive battle in the next few days. Both sides were said to be bringing up reinforcements.

(The Italians had concentrated a large number of motorized units and tanks in the Koritza Valley while their planes fanned out to smash at nearby Phlorina and surrounding villages. In return Greek and British airmen blasted at Koritza and Argirocastro, in Albania).

The High Command acknowledged that Greek forces had "retreated slightly" yesterday at the extreme lower end of the Epirus sector bordering the Ionian Sea

Londoners Enjoy Night Life In Restaurants Far Underground

(By Louis V. Hunter, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 7—(CP)—London night life has gone underground and there is no indication the German Air Force will be able to stop Londoners from enjoying themselves at their favorite cabarets or restaurants. There still is gayiety in this old city, even though it is on a more restricted scale than before the air attacks against London began.

Some clubs provide shelters for patrons who wish to remain overnight rather than brave the terrors of a trek home during the nightly attacks.

Oddenino's in Piccadilly Circus invites guests to dine and dance "safely under 10 reinforced concrete floors." Hatchett's, Piccadilly Street, offers "Dancing in Perfect Safety from 8.30 p.m. Until Morning." The restaurant has a private air raid shelter.

Lansdowne Restaurant, in bomb-damaged Berkeley Square, advertises a new entrance in Lansdowne Row and dancing "30 feet underground." Grosvenor House has a new underground restaurant where guests can "dine and dance in safety."

The May Fair Restaurant now is an "official air raid shelter," where there is a nightly cabaret at 11 o'clock.

Meurice Restaurant in Bury St. offers "dancing from seven" in a reinforced grill room below ground level.

Piccadilly Hotel carries on despite damage suffered in a recent raid, with "dinner and dancing in grill room 30 feet below ground level." Queen's Brasserie in Leicester Square advertises the same facilities.

Murray's in Beak Street is "open as usual," with an official shelter. The Paradise Club, Regent Street, now is open daily from noon.

Willingdon to Head British Trade Mission To South America

London, Nov. 7 (CP)—Richard Butler, Undersecretary for Foreign Affairs, explained to the House of Commons Wednesday the purpose of a trade mission to South America, the British Broadcasting Corporation reported. The mission would be headed by Lord Willingdon, former Governor-General of Canada.

The mission would study at first hand trade exchanges under war conditions and would explain British economic and contraband control policy, the B.B.C. quoted Butler as saying.

The B.B.C. said the mission would visit all but one South American country, which it did not name.

DON'T SEND FRUIT IN PARCEL POST

Postmasters in Canada have been advised to warn against sending fruit and vegetables overseas by parcel post, as it is impossible to keep them fresh, and when they decay there is the danger of spoiling other parcels in the same package. The Canadian Postal Corps Overseas has received a number of parcels containing fruit and vegetables addressed to members of the C.A.S.F., and to prevent spoiling other goods the suggestion has been made that senders do not send anything that will decay, while postal authorities may move fruit and vegetables from parcels.

HAVE HALF-HOLIDAY FOR ELEVEN MONTHS

Campbellford merchants will observe the Wednesday half-holiday for eleven months of the year it was decided at a regular meeting of the Campbellford town council on Monday evening last. The petition which was brought to the town council, signed by a large number of the merchants was considered to be very representative and after some deliberation it was decided, that the request be entertained. A by-law governing the matter will be amended accordingly and in the future Campbellford stores will be open on Wednesday afternoons only during the month of December.

OBITUARY

MRS. JAMES H. MacDONALD, (Point Anne)

After a lengthy illness Mrs. James Henry MacDonald passed away late on Wednesday night, Nov. 6th, at the family residence in Point Anne.

The late Mrs. MacDonald had reached an advanced age, being in her 84th year. She was born in Tyendinaga Township and all her life was passed in that township, being for fifty-seven years a resident of Point Anne. Prior to her marriage she was Miss Margaret Emaline Black, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Black. In religion she was a faithful member of St. Michael's Church, Belleville and in the regard of all who knew her she held a high place.

Surviving her are her husband, Mr. James Henry MacDonald, Point Anne; four daughters, Mrs. Marcus Taft, Rochester, N.Y., Mrs. John De Vries, Rochester, N.Y., Mrs. Joseph Taylor, Toronto and Mrs. James Swenor, Toronto; two sons, Mr. Daniel MacDonald and Mr. Norman MacDonald, both of Point Anne; two sisters, Mrs. Catherine Boland, Belleville and Mrs. Ellen Dunn, Urbana, Ohio.

The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this qaper.

LATE MRS. ETHEL M. DELINE, (Ameliasburg Township)

The funeral of Mrs. Ethel May Deline, widow of Gus Deline, and late residence on the 2nd Concession of Ameliasburg Township, Prince Edward County, took place on Wednesday morning, Nov. 6th, from the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, Campbell St. The service in the chapel was conducted by the Rev. W. H. Boomhauer, pastor of the Ameliasburg United Church, after which the body was conveyed to the United Church at Cloyne where service was conducted by the pastor, the Rev. John Loranger.

The bearers at Belleville were Messrs. C. Young, R. Giles, W. Giles, F. Townsend, H. Redner and D. Redner.

The bearers at Cloyne were Messrs. John McCaulin, Roy Rose, Harry Cummings, W. Giles, Wesley Cummings and D. Redner.

Interment was made in Cloyne Cemetery.

MISS PERMILLIA ADAMS

After an illness of five weeks' duration Miss Permillia Adams, passed away early this Thursday morning at the residence of her sister, Mrs. E. W. Penn, 303 Foster Avenue.

The late Miss Adams, who was in her 88th year, was born in Rawdon Township, being a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Adams. For the past twenty-two years she made her home in Belleville, and prior to that time she resided in Sidney Township. In religion she was a member of the Tabernacle United Church and highly esteemed.

Surviving her is one sister, Mrs. E. W. Penn, Belleville, with whom she made her home.

Resting at the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, Campbell Street, until Friday afternoon, Nov. 8th., then at the residence of her sister, Mrs. E. W. Penn, 303 Foster Avenue. The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this paper.

LATE MRS. BERTHA MASON (Contributed)

The funeral of Mrs. Bertha Mason, widow of John Mason, was held from her residence in Springbrook on Saturday, Nov. 2nd. to the United Church there. The Rev. A. W. Harding, pastor, delivered a very comforting message to the bereaved family The choir rendered "Sometime We'll Understand" which was a favorite of the deceased. The congregational hymns were "Rock of Ages" and "Forever With The Lord."

Left to mourn her loss are two sons Morley and Murney Mason of Mountain View; one sister, Miss Ethel Peake and two brothers Mr. Lewis Alcombrack and Mr. Charlie Peake of Springbrook.

Appeal is Made For Contributions On Poppy Day, Sat.

For years past the people of Canada moved by the remembrance of sacrifice and of continuing need, have contributed generously to the Poppy Fund. The new demands should not be allowed to overshadow the sacrifices of the past. To those who suffered and may now be in want, it should be everyone's duty to give such assistance as is within their power that the devotion of veterans is not forgotten in the stress of the new conflict.

A contribution to the Poppy Day Fund will help to meet the present-day need of many who suffered in the last war and now it will also serve to assure those now called upon to assume the burden of sacrifice that, if they meet with adversity, they, too, may count upon the grateful remembrance of their fellow-citizens. A two-fold service will thus be served by the contributions.

Saturday, November 9, is "Poppy Day" in Belleville, sponsored by the local Army and Navy Veterans, and everyone will do their part and buy a popy. The Poppy Day Campaign of 1940, in its appeal and in its response, should surpass any of the campaigns of preceding years.

NUMBER SEVEN NOT SO LUCKY FOR THE SWEENEYS

Chicago, Nov. 7 —(AP)— Seven a lucky number? Don't tell it to Sweeney! Seven years ago when Mr. and Mrs. James A. Sweeney returned from celebrating their seventh wedding anniversary they found their house in ashes, and now, seven years later, they found that burglars had ransacked their apartment on 77th Street while they were celebrating their 14th anniversary.

The American yacht Southern Seas will be used as an hotel at Noumea, New Caledonia, for Pan American Airways, because of the "indefinite political situation" in the French island.

South Hastings Teachers' Institute Opens Annual Convention

Opening in Queen Alexandra School auditorium the annual convention of the South Hastings Teachers' Institute is being held in Belleville on Thursday and Friday, Mr. W. D. Whyte, B.A., president, occupying the chair.

Devotional Exercises

Dr. James Semple, B.A., Th.D., S.T.B., pastor of Bridge Street United Church, was in charge of devotional exercises, and in his address stressed the responsibility of the teacher as an interpreter. True education is not so much content, as direction, the speaker pointed out. Education may be used for good or evil. An example of this is that the most protestant and most cultured country with more academic degrees than any other in 1914-18 has now become a nation of the greatest butchers on the continent of Europe. The spectacle before the world today does not enhance one's conception of the German nation. One can teach children to be criminals or to be useful citizens.

Teachers are called upon today as never before to be interpreters; to interpret the meaning of democracy and to keep its ideals before the child. Teaching of true democracy must be given, the speaker believed, through schools and colleges. He begged God's blessing on the teachers in their work of interpreting all things relating to life, of training boys and girls that they may become useful and God-fearing citizens as they go out to do the work of the world, the speaker concluded.

The minutes of the last meeting and the financial statement were given by the secretary-treasurer, Mr. J. E. Bateman.

O.E.A. Highlights

Highlights of the O.E.A. meeting in Toronto were brought to the gathering by the convention's delegate, Miss M. Martin, who gave resumes of the most interesting addresses. A native of Austria, now on the staff of Pickering College, discussed conditions in Germany under Nazi rule. Addresses on such topics as "The Teacher and the New Program," "Human Elements in Education" in which the speaker wanted each teacher to be a Mr. Chips, and the words of the then Minister of Education, the late Dr. Simpson, who asked teachers to give even better leadership than in the past and counselled them to guide, with a strong heart, a true faith and a ready hand" left a lasting impression on the delegates at the convention.

St. Michael's Band Plays

St. Michael's Band received an ovation from the gathering when this talented group of youthful performers contributed a number of selections to the program. Resplendent in their smart uniforms, each wearing the bronze medal awarded by the Bandmasters Association for the pleasure given audiences by their performance at the Waterloo Band Festival last summer, the members of the Band took their places on the platform, under the direction of Barbara Forhan. In its numbers the Band displayed a careful training which gave their rendition true musical value. Bobby Young, gold medallist, twice, at the Waterloo Festivals, Dolores Clapp, gold medallist in 1939 and silver medallist in 1940, and Betty Flynn who received high honor in the competition were introduced to the audience by Sister Mary Mercedes who organized the band and has guided its progress since its establishment.

It was announced that the convention nad been able to secure as speaker, Mr. Thomas Bata, of Frankford, who will address the meeting Friday afternoon. The public was invited to attend.

Officers in charge of sessions of the convention include: Inspector: Mr. J. R. Pickering, B.A., B. Paed; Hon. President: Mr. H. J. Clarke, B.A.; President: Mr. W. D. Whyte, B.A.; Delegate to O.E.A.: Miss M. Martin: Alternate Delegate: Miss E. Styles; Auditors: Mr. W. Christie, Mr. J. Doran; Secretary-treasurer J. E. Bateman, 225 Ann St., Belleville.

On the absence of the President, Mr. E. S. Fairman, the Executive voted the Vice-President, Mr. W. D. Whyte, B.A., to the office of president for the current year.

Man Arrested Near Trenton on Charge Of Leaving Scene

Trenton, Nov. 7—Hit-and-run drivers will be dealt with severely in Trenton, according to Chief Constable William Bain, who endorsed the proclamation of Attorney General Conant. Chief Bain urges every garage in Trenton and district to aid the police in capturing hit-and-run drivers.

James Hearns of the Bayshore Road, Trenton was arrested last night and charged with leaving the scene of an accident, after his automobile is alleged to have collided with another car owned by Vincent Doyle, 94 Bayfield Road, Hamilton. Hearns had parked his car in front of the Northey Funeral Home on Dundas Street, about seven o'clock. The driver was just getting out of the car when another car, said to be a 1924 Dodge with no doors came along and collided with the Doyle car. Doyle gave chase and stopped Hearns. The accused man is charged with leaving the scene of an accident and also with being intoxicated. He was released on bail of $500.00 and will appear in Trenton on Friday afternoon.

Ray McPherson of Front Street informed the police this morning that two blankets were stolen from his automobile during the night.

Reports Daughter Missing

Mrs H. McDonald requested the Trenton Police to aid her in locating her daughter, Hettie McDonald who has been missing from her home since November 1. The girl who is 16 years of age is thought to have left town with another Trenton girl. The police are checking with the neighboring cities and towns.

Cars Collide; No One Hurt

Two persons narrowly escaped serious injury when their automobile skidded on the icy pavement and overturned in the ditch, near Smithfield this morning. The car was driven by Cecil Robinson of Front Street, Trenton. He was driving in a westerly direction with Miss Nettie Nickles, a school teacher at Colborne, when the car overturned in the ditch. Considerable damage was done to the car.

Reports Theft of Money

Police are investigating the theft of $30 from the house of William Scarlett, Wednesday afternoon. The money was the property of Mrs. S. Foshay, who was visiting at the Scarlett home. Mrs. Foshay had placed the money in her suitcase in the morning and did not notice that it had been stolen until late in the afternoon.

New Type of 'Bike' Licences for City May be Introduced

A new type of bicycle licence plates, manufactured in two sections, may be introduced in Belleville in 1941, Chief Alex. Kidd announced this morning. " Bicycle licences were introduced in Belleville last spring for the express purpose of endeavouring to curtail the stealing of bicycles, but the type of licence plates procured apparently did not meet with the desired requirements as we've had an increased number of bicycles stolen in Belleville this year. However, with this new type of bicycle even a pedestrian can see at a glance whether or not a bicycle is stolen", stated Chief Kidd.

The proposed new bicycle plate is made in two halves with the top half removable and which slides out of a slot. When the top half is removed the words "Stop Thief" are revealed in large red lettering. The actual licence plate number is split in half, but when the top half is placed back in position the whole issued number is plainly visible. These new types of bike licence plates have proven their worth and success in several centres in Western Ontario and they will be recommended to the city council by Chief Kidd today for use in Belleville next year. A sample of the split licence plate was procured by Chief Kidd from the York Township authorities and will be presented to the council for demonstration and approval.

'Gone With the Wind", American epic film of the American civil war, has run twenty weeks in the Gaiety Theatre in London.

Interpreting the War News

(By Kirk El. Simpson)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

The British and Chinese newspapers are expressing jubilation over President Roosevelt's re-election.

This is a dominant new factor in the war news, sharing significance with the amazing stand on the Greeks against Italy, a stand which is verging toward a military disaster for Hitler's ally.

If Hitler's time-table of war had been carried out on schedule, European interest in the United States election might not have been so strong. There can be little doubt that the time-table called for a complete Axis victory in Europe and Britain long before this. The new President-elect, whoever he was, would then have been confronted with an accomplished fact, and the question which nominee would have accorded aid to Britain most effectively would then have been purely academic.

Went Awry at Channel

But the time-table went awry at the English Channel. Then the possible effect of the American election became a more vital question.

Beyond a doubt, the Axis mates began to hope then that the campaign would impede American policy-making. As for the election itself, the Axis had no ground to assume that it would lead to a reversal of the American policy to aid to both Britain and China, since both President Roosevelt and Wendell Willkie had pledged themselves to supply such assistance by all means short of war.

Belief Denied By Willkie

During the campaign, opponents of Willkie contended that the American hand in foreign affairs would be weakened by his election. They said it would take an inexperienced man a long time to shake down into the job. This the Willkie men denied. Which side was right will now never be known conclusively, but this much remains certain:—

"Every consideration pressed upon the Axis strategists to hope for any development which might conceivably delay the day when the full force of American economic power could be thrown into the scale of the British defence.

Whether the election of Willkie would have hastened or delayed that day is a topic that, no doubt, will be long debated. The ultimate effect of the Roosevelt election can not yet be discerned.

There is one London News item, however, that has meaning. The order halting compulsory evacuation of Hong Kong by British noncombatants synchronised with word reaching London of Roosevelt's re-election.

There, as well as in Japan, the President and President-elect is clearly expected to show an even sterner front to "aggressor nations", east or west, backed by his new electoral victory.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop and I were starting to take a walk for pop's health and appetite, and ma said, Willyum, I want you to bring me back something.

How do you mean, a little surprise? pop said, and ma said, The surprise will be if you remember correctly. I need a can of Majestic baking powder, a jar of Schmeck's horse radish and a box of Fluffo Flakes. Now that's 3 separate articles Willyum you can count them on the fingers of one hand so I dont see why anything should go wrong she said.

Neither do I, unless the fingers of one hand should suddenly cramp up, pop said, and ma said, There are 2 of you to remember, so that's a dubble reason not to forget.

Dont worry, ma, I'll remind him, I said. Majestic baking powder, Schmeck's horse radish and Fluffo Flakes, I said, and pop said, Okay, all the freight seems to be aboard, let's go.

Wich we did, pop saying, It will proberly simplify the problem if we make up a little rime containing the 3 items. At least that's the sistem genrelly used to help childern remember, and you're a child and men and women are but childern of a larger growth, and I'm a man. We'll start with the Fluffo Flakes. My hart with sudden yearning akes, when I spy a box of Fluffo Flakes. My face lights up and my pulse beets louder, when I spy a can of baking powder, he said.

But G, pop, you've got to get Majestic in, I said, and pop said, And when that powder is Majestic, it makes the very breath in my chest stick. My eyes stream tears and my face grows saddish, at the simple thought of Schmeck's horse radish, he said.

Making the whole thing, and we wouldn't forget it, and the first thing we knew we were back home again and ma was at the front door, pop saying, By gollies we forgot the things, the trouble is we got too intristed thinking about them.

The result being we went back after them.

LIVESTOCK HEALTHIER NOW

Kingston, Ont., Nov. 7 (CP)—Dr. William Nicholls, said to be the oldest practicing graduate veterinarian in Canada, celebrated his 86th birthday yesterday by making a trip through the surrounding district to treat horses. He has been practising here the last 53 years.

Dr. Nicholls said that livestock today are healthier and of better grade than the stock of 50 years ago.

HAMILTON RENTS NOT PEGGED

Hamilton, Ont., Nov. 7 (CP)—Mayor William Morrison announced Wednesday after a conference with Prof. K. W. Taylor and E. W. Nicholls of the War-time Prices Control Board, that rents in Hamilton would not be pegged at the Jan. 2 level. He said it is proposed to set up a local Board, representing property owners and tenants, to hear appeals.

COMMISSAR URGES

Marshal Timoshenko took advantake of the anniversary to show publicly for the first time how Soviet Russia has built up her armed forces under his six-month regime at a time when other large European nations have been at war.

The Moscow Soviet at a meeting last night issued a statement declaring Russia's policy to be continued neutrality and armed vigilance.

"True to her policy of peace and neutrality," the statement said, "the U.S.S.R. will not participate in war. We must remember the international situation is full of surprises. Therefore, as Stalin has said, we must keep the entire nation in a state of military preparedness."

President Michael Kalinin in a lengthy address at the meeting warned that "the present international situation does not allow us to remain impartial onlookers...."

Responsible Duties

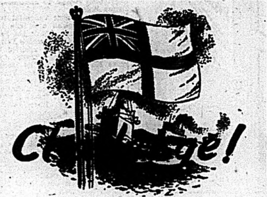
"This situation," he said, "imposes responsible duties on every Soviet citizen . . . Our first and uppermost duty is further to consolidate the economic and defensive might of the Socialist Fatherland."

Timoshenko, who succeeded Marshal Klementi Voroshiloff six months ago as Defence Commissar, called attention in an order of the day to the need for preparedness in "the face of danger of military attack so that no 'accident' and no tricks of our foreign enemies could catch us unawares."

The other also urged further consolidation of Russia's economic and defensive might and demanded a stronger Red army and navy.

"The second Imperialist war for world supremacy," the order said, "is growing in scope and extending to new territories and involving new peoples."

Listing bloodless conquests in Latvia, Lithuania, Estonia, and Rumania's Bessarabia and northern Bucovina, 45-year-old Timoshenko declared Stalin's "policy of peace had resulted in remarkable new victories."



This is a fight to the finish. No room for half measures. No room for delay. This is urgent ... pressing ... vital. This is WAR.

So Canada closes her ranks ..... 167,000 men in the Canadian Active Service Force; 240,000 recruits to be trained during the next twelve months; an army of 500,000 by next summer .....

This is one side of Canada's war effort. The other side concerns YOU.

More men ... well equipped, well armed, well clothed, well fed ... mean more dollars.

Canada looks to you to supply those dollars ... and to keep on supplying them till this war is won.

Start saving now. Be ready to help your country when the call for money comes. Be ready to enlist your dollars in this fight for human freedom and decency.

Be glad you are able to help so simply and so effectively .....

'NOBLE AND NATIONAL WORK' OF V.O.N.

"The Victorian Order of Nurses for Canada has accomplished a truly noble and national work."

This is the remark of Mr. Justice Davis, President of the V.O.N., and it is not too high praise for the record of service which the order has given over many years.

The Order tells a story of unselfish devotion to humanity by those who have built character and true philanthropy into the Victorian Order.

"The blue-clad visiting nurses of the Order are doing a vital work, and a work even more important in the stress and strain of war than in normal times. The great strength and quality of the Order is in the ranks of its workers, the trained women who go into homes all over the Dominion to heal and to cure the sick, to educate the mothers and to bring hope out of desolation. These, the private soldiers of the V.O.N. army, have made it an organization respected, loved and trusted almost beyond all others," says the Ottawa Journal.

The V.O.N. assures expert care. Many no doubt would go without this expert care if the order did not exist.

Such an order commends itself by its achievement in philanthropic work to the people of every community.

Belleville has had the service of the V.O.N. for many years and knows of its importance in preserving the health of the people. This week there is in progress a campaign to raise $1,0000 as a part of the $4,000 which the service costs for this city. The other $3,000 is met by Dominion and Provincial and municipal grants, contributions and pay visits.

FASCISTS' OFFENCE AGAINST FREE NATION

The crime which Mussolini committed when he tried to invade Greece was clearly stated by Prime Minister Churchill on Tuesday. "We have most carefully abstained from any action likely to draw upon the Greeks the enmity of the criminal dictators. For their part the Greeks have maintained so strict a neutrality that we were unacquainted with their intentions and dispositions."

Mr. Churchill, speaking of Mussolini as he showed himself in this campaign, says, "the Italian dictator, perhaps embarrassed by the somewhat florid flirtations of Monsieur Laval with the German conqueror, or it may be part of some new predatory design, has, in his customary cold-blooded fashion, fallen upon the small but famous and immortal Greek nation."

In these words Mussolini is condemned. He had no grounds and no excuse for thrusting at Greece, but a greedy desire to seize Greece and use it as a stepping stone possibly to Italian effort in Egypt or the Near East.

Events of the past few days with the Italians driven back into Albania shows how unwise and how selfish the Fascist chief was when he sent his ultimatum to the Greeks. He expected no such resistance and no such fine Greek strategy as have been used against him.

MR. CHURCHILL INSPIRES

Prime Minister Churchill is not only a great diplomat and one of the most forceful and greatest executive figures of history but he also as an orator and master of his mother tongue fights the great fight of Britain against the aggressive Nazi Germans and the exploiting Fascist Italians. He possesses the great gift of presenting facts in a manner to inspire and cheer even when times have been serious as they were last June. His words always inspire.

There is a good reason for this. Mr. Churchill is typical of the race. Difficulties exist only to be surmounted and to prove the mettle of such valiant men as Mr. Churchill and the men and women of Britain.

HITLER'S HURRIED JOURNEYS

Nazi Germans are seeking comfort in the fact that Hitler has travelled 3,700 miles in his efforts to round up Europe for his "new order." This is the same Hitler who was going to call on London back on the fifteenth of August but failed to put in his appearance. There were defences on the Channel and there were anti-aircraft guns all over Britain and soldiers and planes on guard. Hitler could not get in.

New York Times tries to figure out Hitler's itinerary to total the 3,700 miles. Here is what the editorial writer says:—

> "The Nazi press is in a happy glow over Herr Hitler's apparent success in the role of travelling salesman for the "new order in Europe." It is stated that he made a 3,700-mile trip, following about the same route taken by the Roman conquerors of Gaul. The route and the distance may reflect a flight of fancy, for no Roman of the Empire ever had to travel 3,700 miles to get from Rome to Gaul, and none, certainly, ever went by way of Berlin.
> "Hitler's precise itinerary has not been made public, though much of it can be figured out on a railway map. On Oct. 4 he was at Brenner Pass, where he had lunch with Mussolini. It was a fine day, but Hitler looked "preoccupied." On Oct. 22 he showed up in Paris, where he met Laval. Next day he received Franco at Hendaye, on the French-Spanish border. The day after that he received Petain and Laval in a railway car on a siding, just inside the occupied territory, somewhere in France. Four days later he was in Florence, having another chat with his friend Mussolini.
> "We shall not know for a while how much progress all this travelling produced toward the 'new order.' But we cannot help noting one omission in Herr Hitler's grand tour. He did not visit London, where since last August he has been overdue."

Why do Hitler's Nazi slaves take comfort out of this? They will soon see in it the effort of a man trying to perform too many acts before he thinks it will be too late. Why Hitler is doing this is because he is doomed to defeat. He has to travel thousands of miles. His mind and wits will have to travel many millions of miles if that is possible and even then he will fail. He has had to readjust his plans because he has failed to conquer Britain. The first great crisis has found him wanting. He is like other dictators who have tried—the Empire keystone which Hitler would need to help cement and support his overrun countries and allow him to build thereon a Germanic empire of slaves cannot be brought in. British resistance won't fit into his plan. So he has to do what to him seems the next best, leave the attack on Britain while he possibly tries to strike at another spot. Even if he should succeed in some other attempts, though such are no doubt as improbable as the conquest of Britain, he could never hold his sway because Britain is the rallying point of the world for in the words of the song "There'll Always Be An England."

A Little Touch of Holland

By TEMPLE MANNING

CURACAO, one of the most popular ports of call on cruise itineraries, is much in the news these days. We hope that it will continue to play host to the throngs of happy tourists who descend on the port right through the winter, aching to go shopping at the Oriental, El Louvre and other shops stocked with luxuries and all sorts of delightful souvenirs and gifts.

Curacao

Curacao lies about 38 miles north of the coast of Venezuela. It is about 38 miles long and only six miles wide at its broadest section. Interest in the island is centered in Willemstad, a town that plays host to persons of every race and color. The official language is Dutch, but the natives have worked out a patois, Papiamentoe, that is a melange of Dutch, Portuguese, Spanish, English, French and Hindustani—to mention only a few. The town itself is Dutch in character and architecture, a little bit of the Netherlands set down in the Spanish Main.

Quaint Sights

Clean streets and wharves are lined with seventeenth century gabled houses painted in bright and subtle colors, topped off with pale red tiled roofs, the whole scene splashed with brilliant sunlight. The shopping section, the oldest quarter of the town, the Punda, always seems to be jammed, possibly because the streets are so narrow.

Willemstad harbor is one of the finest in the West Indies, with a long channel opening into a wide bay, deep enough to accommodate ocean liners.

There are some delightful trips out of Willemstad after one has "done" Wilhelmina Park, the Pontoon Bridge and Governor's Palace, the Town Hall, and admired the colonial architecture. There's Caracas Bay, famous for its scenery and its old fortifications. There's Jan Theil, a short auto ride, marvelous for deep sea swimming. Along the seashore there's a pretty road leading to Piscadera Bay where there's a swell beach club all done up in tropical fashion. Nice for dining. A drive through the residential section through roads lined with tropical trees and flowers passes delightful villas set in flower gardens, the houses vivid with flowering vines.

Local Crafts

But we prefer the Peoples' Market in Willemstad with its offerings of rich tropical fruits and hand industries presided over by natives. Out in the native districts there's plenty of industry what with making those straw baskets and hampers so liked for gifts and souvenirs. At Huisvlijt there's a native industries exchange with beautiful curios, novelties and embroideries of all kinds for sale. At the native strawplaiting school, one can see how the natives learn to fashion Panama hats.

There are facilities for sports and athletics in Curacao and frequent football, basketball, baseball and cricket fixtures. Beautiful courts at the Curacao Tennis Club and a sporty course at the Santa Barbara Club. But for the most, its the shops, the cafes and the tropical scenery that offer the tourist the greatest surcease from everyday existence.

Removing Thyroid Gland to Slow Down the Heart Rate

One of the main symptoms of the severe type of goitre is rapid beating of the heart. Immediately after the removal of the thyroid gland by surgery a heart that was beating 120 before operation may be down to 72 to 76. This means much less work for the heart and the patient is much more comfortable.

When there is little or no goitre or thyroid trouble but the heart is diseased, the treatment consists of slowing down the heart rate in some manner. This is usually done by rest in bed, by use of digitalis or both.

In trying to estimate the strength of a diseased heart, the patient does work of some kind or takes some exercise. This work or exercise is usually climbing a certain number of steps within a certain time. The amount of increase in the heart rate by doing this definite amount of work is one means of finding out the strength of the heart. After going up an ordinary flight of stairs at a slow rate, the normal heart may increase its rate by 10 to 12 beats, whereas a diseased or failing heart might increase its rate by 20 to 30 beats. However, research workers state that the most important point is how long it takes the heart rate to get back to normal after exercise. The longer the time it takes to get back to its normal rate, the more oxygen it has had to use in doing the exercise. And until the blood gets this oxygen back, some of which oxygen it has had to borrow from the tissues of the body, the heart rate will be above its normal rate.

Thus a normal heart will beat 72 before exercise and may go up to 84 or even 90 at end of the exercise. It should come back to its normal rate.

Thus a normal heart will beat 72 before exercise and may go up to 84 or even 90 at end of the exercise. It should come back to its normal rate of 72 within two minutes. On the other hand a failing or diseased heart may require 4, 5 or even 7 minutes to come back to normal after the exercise. And according to the length of time it takes for the failing heart to come back to its normal rate, its degree of weakness or failure can be estimated.

In order to slow down the heart rate in diseased hearts, and so help to save some of the strength of the heart, a physician reports 8 cases of heart disease in which the removal of the thyroid gland shortened the time it took for these hearts to come back to their normal rate after exercise. These patients were also much improved in spirit.

Trenton Centre of Air Training Plan

By THOMAS E. BROPHEY
(In Windsor Star)

Trenton, Ont.—Standing in the guardhouse at the Royal Canadian Air Force station near this quiet little Ontario town, you watch young men in blue uniforms and then, suddenly, a lump forms in your throat.

"Owed So Much"

You feel the kind of thrill that comes when the band strikes up with stirring martial music as you watch clear-eyed, clean-cut sons of the north march past—and as you recall Winston Churchill's tribute to the Empire's airmen: "Never in the field of conflict was so much owed by so many to so few."

History is being written here at Trenton, 339 miles from Windsor on Highway No. 2, for here, along the wind-swept shores of the Bay of Quinte, is located the key station in the great Commonwealth Air Training Plan.

The young men stationed at Trenton come from all parts of the broad Dominion, from the United States, and from widely-scattered parts of the British Empire.

Here they are trained as intructors and then sent to air fields across the Dominion. Trenton is developing the "brains" of the Commonwealth training plan under which many thousands of fliers will be sent overseas, to carry on the brave battle for freedom which is being fought in the skies over Europe.

Many From Windsor

Among the 3,000 men who make the air station a beehive of activity, all hours of the day and night, are many from Windsor, many more who, coming from the United States, joined the ranks of the Royal Canadian Air Force at Windsor.

The function of the Trenton station, in the Commonwealth Air Training Plan, is to train fliers, administration officers, motorboat crewmen, observation and navigation experts, armament and bombing instructors, etc.

The knowledge they gain here will be multiplied many times as they carry on their work at an increasing number of stations throughout the Dominion, training many thousands of recruits for their special tasks under the master plan.

At the Trenton station, there is little of the drab routine that the civilian usually associates with military training. For the Trenton station is training specialists and, touring the air station, the visitor sees enough action and variety to make the ordinary workaday world outside seem dull by comparison.

Specialists All

Here plumbers become armament artificers and torpedo and bomb fitters; sheet metal workers and cabinet makers become air frame mechanics; electricians and watchmakers become experts at repairing delicate instruments; tailors become fabric workers; and radio mechanics and electricians become wireless and electrical equipment mechanics.

Here prospective flying instructors are given training in planes of all types, ranging from the little "Fleet" trainers to huge, big bombers of the latest type. Bombing instructors have the sand dunes along the shore and the great expanse of the Bay of Quinte on which to test their aim— with real bombs, sometimes.

The courses of instruction must, of course, be speeded up, because of Britain's present position in the air. Every effort is being made, through the Commonwealth Air Training Plan, though, to overcome this inferior position as early as possible. And the day may not be far off when this very plan will turn the scales in favor of Britain—and the civilized world.

Quality And Speed

While speed must be the watchword in the present crisis, the air training plan places the emphasis on quality first.

Each air student is given most intensive training, to fit him adequately for modern conditions of aerial warfare.

Gone are the days when a flier could go off gaily into battle after a few hours' training in the air.

Air fighting was something of a novelty in the World War of 1914-18. Hastily trained aviators manned flimsy craft and, with infinite daring, soared away into the clouds to meet the enemy.

But then, as now, air fighting's success depended on the individual's courage and skill. Canadians demonstrated to the world, in that war, that they have plenty of both. And a new generation of Canadians is going forth into the air today, to carry on glorious traditions enshrined forever in history by their predecessors.

When the World War of 1914-18 ended, half of the pilots in the Royal Air Force were Canadians. Though a Royal Canadian Air Force had not yet been organized, pilots were being sent overseas at the rate of 200 per month.

Canada's Part

Canada's magnificent contribution to the Empire's air-fighting strength in the last war will be equalled, if not surpassed, in the present war. The Commonwealth Air Training Scheme will provide a steady and increasing flow of fliers and technicians across the Atlantic. Hitler's doom will be written in the skies when Canadian fliers begin swarming over Europe in clouds, as today they are swarming over Trenton.

Hundreds of airplanes are located at the Trenton station. Britain has sent over some of her service planes. Many have been brought over from the United States, and Canada is building her share. Since instructors must have up-to-the-minute information on all aircraft, the very latest models are supplied the Trenton station.

From the little yellow "Fleet" trainers to the largest Lockheed bomber types, they're all available in the Trenton hangars. And while most of the flying is done in the day time, work continues after dark, so that there are few breaks in the continuous drone of motors overhead. Sometimes planes may be seen taking off from the air field by the dozens, at 30-second intervals.

To Prevent Accidents

Airdrome control officers supply a rigid check on traffic leaving the field and landing, to prevent accidents. The station's accident record has been low, compared to the amount of traffic.

Plans for the Trenton station were first prepared in 1929, but work on the station was delayed and little was done for a period of years. Most of the present station is of recent construction; expansion has been particularly rapid since the outbreak of the war.

The station is a self-contained community, with its own telephone system, fire station, water tower and distribution service, mess halls, dormitories, recreation facilities, classrooms, shops, etc. It covers an area roughly two miles square.

Entrusted with protection of the station is a carefully selected Security Guard of 200 men. They watch the entrances and boundaries of the field, carrying arms that mean business should the necessity arise.

The station was designed as permanent headquarters for the R. C. A.F. and the buildings with the exception of a few emergency structures put up since the war, are all built for use in peacetime as well as in war.

The station is being used as a sort of shock absorber for other air stations in the province, so that men are constantly arriving here and leaving.

3,000 Population

Its present 3,000 population is about all that can be accommodated comfortably and it's a population much greater than was anticipated when the present buildings were constructed. However, under a military set-up, more men can be accommodated should the need arise.

Size of the station has about trebled since the outbreak of the war. The officers' mess, for instance, was originally designed for a staff of about 100 officers, while there are 400 using it now.

The station as a whole is divided into a number of smaller units, each self-contained and self-governing except in connection with questions of broad general policy. There are the Central Flying School where flying instructors are trained; the Air Navigation School, where observers and navigation officers are instructed; the Air Armament School, for men who will take over administrative duties in other stations; and various smaller units, motor boat crewmen, equipment and stores, accounting, etc.

Administration

Group Captain J A. Sully, A.F.C., officer commanding the station, directs the elaborate organization necessary for smooth and efficient operation. His administrative staff includes Wing Commander C. J. Duncan, administrative officer; Flying Officer D. A. Macintosh, M. C., assistant administrative officer; Flight-Lieut. Denton Massey, M.P., adjutant; and Flight-Lieut. A. K. Aspden, assistant adjutant.

Group Captain Sully won his Air Force Cross in the World War. During the closing months of that war he served as liaison officer in the United States. Following the war he was commander of the auxiliary squadron at Winnipeg for several years.

While airplanes are the big thing around Trenton station, other forms of transportation figure prominently in the work of the R.C.A.F.

The Motor Transport Section, for instance, has 80 or 90 motor vehicles, ranging all the way from small trucks to large refueling tenders and snow-compacting machines that clear snow off the runways during the winter months.

Marine Transport

In the Marine Transport Section there are large cabin cruisers which are used on the bay, in range work, as well as a number of smaller craft And the station has its own racing sloop, the "Astra."

Recently completed is the recreation centre, which includes a fine swimming pool, recreation rooms, gymnasium and tennis courts. Baseball is a favorite sport among the air force men and this year they developed a championship team.

Officers point out that sports facilities of this kind are essential in keeping up the health and morale of their men. Engaged in strenuous work and study, members of the R.C.A.F. must have their intervals of relaxation. The station has one of the finest silver bands in Canada. A voluntary organization with 50 members, of which played this summer at the Canadian National Exhibition and are today, the only R.C.A.F. band in the Dominion.

"Four Corner" Plan

Prominent on the station grounds are the four large buildings constructed on the "four corner" plan, to house the station personnel. While each building was originally designed to house 200 men, war conditions have increased this number considerably.

In these buildings rooms that are airy and comfortable accommodate six men each, with additional space for lockers and other conveniences. In the basement, which in normal times is a recreation room, cots supply additional sleeping accommodations.

Recreation, writing and reading rooms provide additional conveniences. Each building is in charge of two non-commissioned officers.

In the mess and recreation building there are a self-contained barber shop; shower baths; a modern tiled swimming pool, automatically heated and purified, with water changed at regular intervals; a steam drier, which takes the place of towels, if necessary; an up-to-date bowling alley, and a large gymnasium.

The spacious mess hall seats 600 men and is provisioned by a kitchen where chefs in spotless white prepare meals for hungry airmen.

Nearby is the sergeants' mess, catering to the gastronomic and other needs of the N.C.O.'s. All cooking in the station is done by electricity and steam, supplied by the station's own plant.

The Airmen's Mess

Upstairs in the airmen's mess, as in the sergeants' mess, are large, airy lounging rooms. Here the men may smoke, play cards and games, or enjoy refreshments. Snack bars provide coffee and sandwiches. Looking out from the top floor of the sergeants' mess is the new sports grounds. Here the active sports, such as football, cricket, lacrosse, soccer and other outdoor games, are played. Airmen contribute $1 and commissioned ranks $1.50 monthly to the athletic fund of the station.

The station hospital accommodates 30 bed patients. A two-bed isolation is all provided. The Trenton station hospital is one of the most modern in military circles in the Dominion. A fully-equipped operating room is available to take care of the most urgent surgical cases. Part of the hospital work is the semi-annual check of personnel. The hospital is staffed with members of the Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps.

Bombing Teacher

One of the most important phases of pilot instruction is given in the Air Armament School. Here the young pilot is taught by means of the Camera Obscura and the Bombing Teacher how to "lay eggs" effectively on the target. This method of training is as simple as it is effective. The image of the plane is reflected on a table in the darkened Obscura Room when it passes over an aperture in the roof and is focussed through a large lens. At the proper moment the pilot releases a flashlight bulb and the light reflecting on the table in the darkened room gives instructors the correct location where the "bomb" has dropped.

The Bombing Target is an intricate piece of mechanism by which pilots are taught to bomb targets by means of a map of terrain moving beneath the "plane."

Wireless School

In the Wireless School pilots are taught the operation of transmitting and receiving sets. Complete transmission sets, the same as those used in the planes, are part of training equipment.

The pilot does four hours' actual operation on the air and must be able to read 15 words a minute in the Morse code. He is schooled in the actual operation of the sets while a wireless operator, who accompanies all pilots in training flights, is responsible for the mechanical perfection of the sets as well as all electrical equipment in the aircraft. He must be able to read 25 words a minute in the code.

Wiring of planes is taught in another section of the wireless building where students receive instruction through the method of dismantling and assembling electrical equipment on obsolete aircraft.

In the Equipment Building, where the student is taught the intricacies of maintenance and the care of stores, one of the most important phases is the use and care of the parachute.

All pilots must wear them when flying. They are made of silk and must be unfolded once every month and hung in the parachute well. Great care is taken in the instruction of folding the parachute since so much depends upon accuracy. An expert student folds his chute in about 20 minutes.

In the plane "hospital", where all kinds of repairs are made to damaged machines, replacement of parts and other necessary maintenance work is done, a staff of mechanics paint, repair and replace important parts of the planes.

An interesting feature of the station's training program is the bombing practice out over the Bay of Quinte. Smoke missiles are dropped on a floating target in the bay. From towers on the shore the airmen, out over the bay to sharpen their aim, are watched. Experts in the tower can tell where the missiles land.

Seaplane Hangar

Although the seaplane course has been discontinued at the station and is now being carried on in the various coastal squadrons of the R.C.A.F., there is plenty of activity at the seaplane hanger that borders the shores of the bay, with a cement runway stretching from its large doors to the water's edge. Here are stored the marine tenders used to carry fuel and supplies to the seaplanes.

A landmark for tourists and a guiding beacon for night fliers is the water tower, 125 feet high and equipped with a 3,000-watt light that flashes through the night — visible 30 miles away on a clear night.

After a visit to Trenton, a salute to Canadian youth is in order. The young men who stand guard for Canada are not the frivolous, blazer-sporting, jitterbugging type that moralists have been telling us represents today's younger generation.

The young men of Trenton are serious men who have heard their country's call. They know that the responsibilities are great for men of their years — saving a great Dominion, saving a great Empire, saving the world, in fact, from the worst calamity that has confronted it in a thousand years. They know —and they're not afraid.

God bless them—and good luck.

Victorian Order of Nurses

What the Nurses Do

The manifold services of the Victorian Order of Nurses make it possible for the residents of Belleville to enjoy the advantages of part-time nursing system planned to care for every need in this field. Citizens have come to rely on this expert nursing care that they can command at a moment's notice.

A few minutes in the office of the local Order when the nurse in charge is busy answering phone calls is something like this:

Mrs. Jones—"I wish to enquire about your service for a friend. What do the nurses do, and how long do they stay when they call?"

V.O.N. Office—"The nurse goes to the patient's home and stays long enough to carry out the doctor's orders, give the necessary care and instruct a member of the family to carry on in her absence."

Mrs. White—"Will you please send a nurse to show me how to bathe the baby and make up the formula the doctor ordered?"

V.O.N. Office — "A nurse will go out to your home this morning to help you, Mrs. White."

Dr. Brown — "Will you please send a nurse as soon as possible to 316 Main Street to give a bath and an irrigation. Would you also send a nurse tomorrow morning to 224 Pine street to do a dressing for a man going home from hospital today. I'm posting the order at you now. Then there is a young woman, Miss Green, 118 Maple Street. She has tuberculosis and it will be some time yet before we can arrange to get her into sanitarium. I should like you to send a nurse in to show her mother how to take care of her in the meantime. Their knowledge of hygiene is very limited, so that considerable health teaching will be necessary."

V.O.N. Office: "Yes, Dr. Brown. We'll attend to these calls for you.

The Victorian Order service is extended to all members of the community who need it. Those who are able to pay the fee, but lack of means does not deny a family the nursing care it must have. The portion of the cost which is not covered by fees and grants is made up by the generosity of Belleville citizens who have shown their appreciation by loyal support on previous occasions.

This week the V.O.N. committee is making its annual appeal for funds. By your donation you will do your part for a vital community need.

Rawdon

Rawdon—Mount Pleasant Hall was the scene of a jolly party on Tuesday evening when witches, goblins, ghosts and a weird array of usual characters gathered to enjoy a social evening together. Rev. J. E. Beckel was master of ceremonies and the judges were Mrs. Elwood Johnson, Mrs. Morris Rose and Mr. Robert Melville.

Mrs. Merle Spencer played the piano accompaniment for the grand parade and the prizes were as follows:

Adults: First, comic, Mrs. Carleton Potts.

Second, Highland lassie, Miss Gladys Sharp.

Children: Comic, Miss Grace Dunham, first; A witch, Miss Joyce Johnson, second.

The hall was decorated with shocks of corn, lighted pumpkins and Hallowe'en motifs and Mr. Don Campbell was the ghost who welcomed the merry makers.

The program was arranged by Misses Betty Hoard, Emma Cole and Mrs. Carleton Potts and opened with the story of Hallowe'en by Master Bruce Melville, Mrs. C. Potts read "story of the open window." Mrs. Percy MacMullen staged a humorous skit and was assisted by ten helpers. Miss Betty Hoard conducted a "Pumpkin Relay" with Messrs Carleton Potts and Boyd Beckel as captains and ten assistants.

An aeroplane ride conducted by Messrs M. Rose, D. Campbell and C. Potts proved most amusing and ten passengers enjoyed a delightful trip in the air. Mr. Kenneth Weaver in his inimitable style auctioneered the bags of lunch and the clerk banked $2.51.

Each bag contained lunch for two and after all were sold the merrymakers enjoyed a social half hour eating their lunch in groups of two. The evening was a real success and those in charge of the affair are to be congratulated on such a successful event.

Mr. Lester Hay arrived home on Saturday from Belleville Hospital and is slowly recuperating.

Master Wayne Shaw of Ivanhoe is holidaying with his grandparents Mr. and Mrs. Roy Thrasher while his parents are enjoying a delightful motor trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Hubble, Ferne and Neil attended a shower Friday evening for Mr. and Mrs. Jack Wilson at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Don Donohue, River Valley.

Folks at Mount Pleasant and throughout this part of Rawdon township were horrified to hear of the drowning of Mrs. Orval Jackson and her daughter Velma on Sunday evening as they formerly resided in this district.

Mrs. Frank Smith is ill at her home and confined to her bed.

Harold Hall was the scene of a large gathering Wednesday evening and a special speaker from Toronto spoke on Red Cross Work.

Mrs. Charles Ross and Raymond spent a few days last week with Mrs. Clarence Reid at Ivanhoe.

JURY DISAGREES

the occupants of which had remained through the long hours patiently to hear the verdict, sat in complete silence when the jury filed in to report its findings to the court at 11.17 p.m. An uninterpretative long-drawn "Ah" came from the assembled spectators when Foreman Grant Ashley, in reply to Sheriff J. D. O'Flynn's technical query, "Gentlemen of the Jury, have you arrived at a verdict?" responded, "No, we have disagreed. We cannot come to an agreement."

"If I ask you to return to the jury room, do you feel you are likely to arrive at a verdict?" asked Mr. Justice MacKay.

"No, my lord," Foreman Ashley replied.

"Very well," the bench remarked. "The accused will be returned to his cell, and this criminal action traversed to the next sitting of the assize of this court."

Addresses Jury

Addressing the jury, after McFarland had been led from the court room, Justice MacKay said, "As you are aware, the responsibility of the jurors is an individual one, not collective in its character, and if the gentlemen of the jury, honestly and conscientiously, differ then I can only say you are abiding by the best traditions of British administration, by standing by your convictions and dictates of your conscience."

"It is unfortunate," he added, "that the accused man must stand trial again, but the important thing is justice for justice is at all times a season, and that season is summer."

"I thank you for the long and painstaking deliberation in which you all have taken part. You have deliberated almost nine hours and I know you have used all reasonable consideration without compromising your own conscience, to reach a verdict," Justice MacKay concluded at this point.

Evidence Read

The formal request by the jury through Foreman Grant K. Ashley that the evidence of Mrs. Fred Johnson, sister of Alice Archer McFarland, and Allen Taylor, at whose homes the McFarlands called on the night of July 25th, be heard again, was met by the information from Justice MacKay that the required testimony was available only from the court stenographer's records.

The request came at 8.30, seven hours after the jury had retired to consider a verdict. Justice MacKay granted the request of the jury and instructed Court Stenographer J. Crockett to read the evidence of Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. Taylor from his notes.

While the evidence of Mrs. Johnson was being read, Justice MacKay intervened at a point where a conversation between the witness and Mrs. McFarland was introduced.

His Lordship recalled the point where he had instructed that any conversation that had taken place between the witness and Mrs. McFarland when the accused was not present, was not evidence against the accused. His observations were concurred in by both counsels.

"And I emphasize that now and ask the jury to note that this conversation is not evidence against the accused."

Jury Asks Questions

Asked by the bench if they had any other requests, following the repetition of the witnesses' evidence, Foreman Ashley replied, "Some of the jurors would like to know if the ties on the Grand Trunk Railway Bridge were close together and went through from one track to the other?"

After consultation with counsel, Justice MacKay replied that no such information had been offered in the evidence adduced.

Following the jury's announcement of its failure to arrive at a verdict, Justice MacKay dismissed them with instructions to report to the court this morning.

Addressing the court, His Lordship expressed his grateful appreciation of Crown and Defence Counsel for their real assistance to the jury and himself.

"The courtesy of the witnesses has been marked," he said. "The accused has had a fair prosecution and everything that could be said and done on his behalf by defence counsel, was said and done." The bench paid tribute to the press for a coverage of the criminal trials "that was devoid of sensationalism."

Accused Unperturbed

Throughout the three-day trial, Robert McFarland, the accused man, remained unperturbed by the fact that he was on trial for his life. He appeared to be bright and cheerful at all times and at no time did he show signs of nervousness or inward turmoil. He entered and left the courtroom with a quick, firm step, a bright expression on his face. He sat calmly throughout, while evidence was given for both the crown and defence. At times he leaned over and consulted E. Ormonde Butler, his counsel, and at others maintained a quiet interest in the proceedings.

At times he waxed thoughtful, and gazed steadily in front of him. He turned in his seat once or twice when a relative spoke to him and he answered in a firm, steady voice when a Salvation Army captain from Trenton, who was his constant attendant throughout the trial, conversed with him.

His face was a trifle paler than usual when the jury filed in to render its decision, but he showed no outward emotion, when the foreman announced the jury's findings. He rose quickly and left the courtroom with a firm step at the conclusion of his trial.

PERSONALS

Miss Helen Cook is spending this week with friends in Ottawa.

Mrs. John Grotto, who underwent an operation in Belleville General Hospital is progressing favorably and is able to receive callers.

Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Baragar and Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Baragar, motored to Ottawa today.

Lt.-Colonel and Mrs. E. A. Geen are spending a few days in Ottawa.

Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Malott spent a couple of days with Judge and Mrs. Deroche, this week on their way from Brockville to Toronto, where they are spending the winter.

Mr. Leo Hoffman, 50 Grove St., has left for Kingston where he has accepted a position.

Mrs. J. MacConnell, Picton, accompanied by her cousin, Mrs. Bremner, has returned home after spending the past week in Ottawa visiting relatives.

Members of Tabernacle Church Mission Circle entertained at a delightfully arranged tea yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. W. Dougherty, Geddes Street. The door was opened to the many guests by little Miss Joyce Miles. Miss Rachel Fox, president of the Group, received with Mrs. Dougherty. Mrs. R. J. Johnstone invited the guests to the tea room. Chrysanthemums were used most effectively in the decoration of the rooms. The tea table was a dainty picture with pink roses and white 'mums in a crystal bowl and matching tapers in crystal holders on a handsome lace cloth. Mrs. D. T. McClintock, Mrs. H. Froates, Mrs. A. H. Fisher and Mrs. A. Kitchen poured tea and the assistants were Mrs. J. Irvine, Mrs. W. Moore, Miss Emma Dafoe, Miss Thelma Hodges, Mrs. George Stanton, Mrs. C. Bailey, Mrs. E. Windover and Mrs. R. Edmondson. Miss Ethel Horton was in charge of the home cooking table, whose appetizing wares found ready sale. Miss Jessie Smith was treasurer for the tea.

Under the auspices of Minerva Chapter, No. 138, O.E.S., a most enjoyable afternoon tea took place yesterday at the home of Mrs. R. C. Andrews, Coleman Street. The hostess was assisted in receiving the guests by Mrs. A. Wonnacott, D.D.G.M., and Mrs. A. Cooper, Worthy Matron of the Chapter. The guests were invited to tea by Mrs. R. Hinchey. Tawny 'mums in a silver basket, with ivory tapers, made a lovely centrepiece for the tea table at which Mrs. A. Stirland, Miss Ella Bleecker, Mrs. T. H. Crosier and Mrs. R. Hinchey presided. Those assisting were Mrs. V. Smith, Mrs. F. Jobson, Mrs. F. Gillett, Mrs. Fred Wilson, Mrs. G. Burkholder, Mrs. R. Sargent and Mrs. E. Fry. The delectable home cooking was in charge of Mrs. O. J. Reed and Mrs. F. Parsons while Mrs. B. Moorman carried out the duties of treasurer. Mrs. J. N. Boyd was the winner of the beautiful bouquet of flowers on which tickets were sold by Mrs. C. L. Hyde.

Give Youth Confidence To Talk Up

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph.D.

Boys and girls entering the teens are hampered with fears as they never were before or will be again in later years, perhaps. It is in the classroom around the seventh, eigth and ninth grades (junior high school) where this fear is most destructive, as a rule. Not a few of the same youths, of course, suffer from very severe self-consciousness when they attempt to speak before their classmates in the tenth, eleventh and twelfth grades, even in college.

Some teachers, too, are very uncomfortable while in a teachers' meeting or institute. I have discovered that when I conduct a forum with school teachers they, as a rule, are more timid about "talking up" than are junior or senior high school students. By the way, I visited in a class at a college recently and observed that practically every student in that class taught by the president of the college, participated in the discussion in an atmosphere which approached that of a comfortable fireside group. It was wonderful, about the best classroom atmosphere I have ever felt or observed.

Parents Suffer, Too

This same fear which haunts youth also hampers fathers and mothers in a meeting where free discussion from the floor is invited.

Often teachers will argue with me that a student will have no fears about talking if he is well prepared, that only the lazy students suffer from self-consciousness. The other day I asked a group of junior high school girls if they often felt uncomfortable as they talked in class. Every hand went up as if a spring had been released. Certainly not nearly all of them were lazy students. I have had similar response from scores of other youth groups.

From among a junior high assembly the other day there came forth within thirty minutes, the following statements from as many individuals, each of whom rose and spoke from where he or she sat:

Stage Fright

"Your heart begins to beat very fast." "Your knees get weak." "Your knees shake." "You get out of breath." "Your voice quivers." "Your mouth and throat get dry." "You get a strange feeling in the bottom of your stomach." "Your face and neck burn." "You forget what you meant to say." "You wonder if some one will laugh if you make a mistake."

I believe the learning efficiency in the average classroom of teen age youth could be doubled if tea- comfortableness — of good mental chers cultivated an atmosphere of health — in the classroom, so the student could keep his mind on what he wished to say rather than on fears of being ridiculed.

Solving Parent Problems

Q. What do you think of the custom among many mothers of pairing off children under ten or twelve, at parties?

A. I think it absurd.

Household Arts by Alice Brooks

Colorful Effect Done in No Time in Cross Stitch

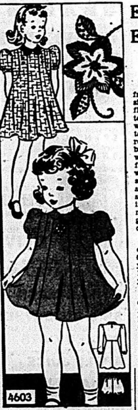
COPR. 1940, HOUSEHOLD ARTS INC.

PATTERN 6687

Colorful towels add to a kitchen's charm. These look like gay easy cross-stitch done in shades of gingham applique but they're just a color with green outline stitch leaves. Pattern 6687 contains a transfer pattern of 6 motifs averaging 5 1-2 x 8 inches; materials needed; illustrations of designs.

To obtain this pattern send twenty cents (20c) in coins (stamps cannot be accepted), to Ontario Intelligencer Household Arts Dept., 166 Front St., Belleville, Ont. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS and PATTERN NUMBER.

Enhances Frock Embroidery



By ANNE ADAMS

Pattern 4603

Here's a pretty Anne Adams frock that comes in two gay versions. Let colorful embroidered flowers decorate its front, and Pattern 4603 looks "all dressed up"; without embroidery it is trim and tailored. A transfer pattern and directions for making the simple embroidery motif come right along with the Sewing Instructor. The frock itself is very easy to make, with just a long centre-front panel and attractively curved side bodice sections. Choose between long and short sleeves. And let the collar be in a rounded or a scalloped shape, making it of either self-fabric or gay contrast. Bloomers or panties complete this kiddie style.

Pattern 4603 is available in children's sizes, 4, 6, 8, 10 and 12. Size 6, dress with embroidery, takes 1 7-8 yards 35 inch fabric; other dress, 1 7-8 yards 35 inch fabric and 1-4 yard contrast.

Send TWENTY CENTS (20c) in coins (stamps cannot be accepted) for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly SIZE, NAME, ADDRESS and STYLE NUMBER.

Send your order to Ontario Intelligencer, Pattern Department, 166 Front Street, Belleville, Ont.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Likes the "Old Fashioned Type"

Dear Miss Fairfax:

The girl I've been going around with is of the "devil-may-care" type. It's hard to keep up with her, because often when I call up she's out. I believe she goes out with other boys. I'm not sure just what I really think of her. I thought I might take out another girl, but I can't seem to get away from this one. She smokes, her views are opposite to mine, both on social and religious matters.

I've always thought I'd like my girl to be of the old-fashioned type. Do you think I ought to give up this modern girl and wait until my ideal comes along?

Al

My dear young man, I don't need to tell you that your continued suit of the young woman you describe as a modern girl is contrary to the fact that you say you are in search of the old-fashioned type. Why do you go to all this trouble? If you think you're going to change this modern girl into the old-fashioned type, I'm afraid you're wasting your time. In fact, I'm quite sure you are. Perhaps, however, if you keep on with this modern girl, you will give up your idea and be modern yourself.

But taking you seriously, which indeed I do, please let me say that in my opinion you would do well to pay more attention to girls rather than to one girl. I am quite sure if you go around a bit you will find the one who will make you happy.

Took Out Other Girls

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm 18 years of age and have never had a real boy friend. I met a young man of 22 years, and became very much interested in him. He took me out several times and I thought he liked me. One day he bought a new automobile and started taking out different girls. That made me terribly jealous, although I didn't let him know about it. Whenever he sees me he is polite, but doesn't pretend to care for me at all.

He started going "steady" with a girl from another town, and seemed to have forgotten me. The other day he called up and asked me to go to a show, but my mother said I better not go, so I didn't. He said this other girl meant nothing to him and never did. I can't understand him. One minute he acts as if he's fond of me. and then he'll turn around and take out another girl.

Tessie

Let me congratulate you on the wisdom of not showing you were jealous by making catty remarks about the girl your boy friend took out while you two were not going together. That, my dear, is probably the reason he came back to you. It's too bad your mother won't allow you to go out with this young man occasionally, but if she doesn't want it there's nothing to be done about it.

It's a young boy's nature to be equally nice to all girls when all girls are attractive to him.

Gossips Get Busy

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Several weeks ago I met a very nice young man at a sorority dance. We've been out together several times and he has always treated me with respect.

I have a couple of neighbors who are regular busy-bodies, and they've told me all sorts of stories about this boy, saying how wild he is and what a bad reputation he has with girls. When I tell them how decent he has been to me, they say I'm in love with him and don't see his faults.

I do like him, but only as a friend, as he is very intelligent and lots of fun. He never has tried to pet with me. We get along splendidly and I'd like to go out with him once in a while Do you think it would harm my reputation?

Wondering

If your young friend treats you with respect and you enjoy his company, that's really all there's to it. I think your neighbors are just meddlesome, if you'll allow me to say so, and I wouldn't pay any attention to them.

Ardor Has Cooled

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm 19 and have been going with a young man who is in his second year of college. He lives approximately 300 miles from my home town and I see him only occasionally, but we correspond. I haven't seen him since May and then he acted so cold, as if he wished he hadn't come. But still he writes to me. We do have a lot in common and we have much fun. But since I've gone with him, which is about a year, he has never told me that he enjoyed my company or complimented me on anything whatsoever.

What do you think of such a person? Do you think I ought to keep on corresponding with him?

Jo-Ann

A good many young men become high-hat after they go to college. Whether or not a girl is going to put up with this type of snobbishness is up to her.

To hang on to a correspondence with a young man, such as you describe. seems a pretty chilly form of amusement to me. But as I have said to you, it's strictly up to you whether you get enough out of these letters to continue writing.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Too "Sensible" for Good Taste

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am giving a bridal shower and card party for my niece who is to be married next month. I am inviting eighteen girls. Instead of each girl bringing the usual individual gifts, I thought it would be nicer and more sensible to have each girl contribute one dollar and get one nice useful and practical gift for the bride. Is it proper to ask the girls to do this, and if it is, what wording shall I use to let them know? Shall I enclose a separate note with each invitation? I'd like it worded so that I would receive a reply from each girl.

R.

I think that your plan for these contributions seems a bit too "sensible" to be in good taste. You see. there is always a certain reaction against having a shower given by such a close relative of the bride-to-be. When, added to this, the aunt plans the giving of the gift so practically as to ask for definite contributions of money, her plan might very easily be misinterpreted. Think about this, and consider whether it perhaps might be more delicate to allow the guests to bring whatever gifts they choose.

If you don't agree with my point of view, your letter to the guests-to-be might be worded like this:

Dear Mary,

It would make me very happy if you will come to a shower and card party that I am planning for Jane at my home on Friday, November twentieth, at three o'clock. I am inviting a group of Jane's friends to greet her and to "make merry".

I thought that perhaps it would be a nice idea to present Jane with one gift instead of having each guest bring a gift, and so I am inviting each guest to contribute one dollar towards a "general" gift. If you think that this is a good plan, will you be so kind as to send me a dollar, so that I will be able to buy the gift before the party?

Initials

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am to be married the first of next year, and when buying my silver I was advised that my own initials were the ones to have on my silver. I had intended to have the initials of my husband-to-be, but was told that this was not proper. Kindly advise me what is correct in this case.

Mary

Either form of marking your silver is correct, and it is the bride-to-be who decides which form she prefers. Formerly, all silver and linens were marked with the initials of the maiden name of the bride, and many brides still follow this custom. Brides today consider it more practical to mark their silver and linens with their future initials. So Dorothy Smith, who is to marry John Robinson, uses "D.S.R.."

Sometimes the uses of only one initial is preferred (a graceful English Script, for instance), and then the initial of the last name is the one used.

Lost in France After Evacuation Of Dunkirk, Toronto Girl Now Safe

Is Sister of Mrs. J. W. Howard, St. Agnes Manor Apartments

After weeks of anxiety over the probable fate of her younger sister who has been lost in France, Mrs. J. W. Howard of this city has finally received word that Miss Dorothy Rogers of Toronto, is safe at last in England. Mrs. Howard, of the St. Agnes Manor Apartments, has been ill in a Toronto hospital and her recovery has been retarded because of worry over her sister.

Miss Rogers went to England for a visit a year ago last March. When war started she took an ambulance driver's course and impatiently waited to be called up. The call came one day last December for her to report the next day, and shortly after she left to drive an ambulance in France. with the British Expeditionary Forces.

Then came the evacuation of the British Forces and she was unable to escape. For weeks her family heard nothing from her, except through indefinite sources, which said she was working her way to the south of France. From there she managed to arrive in Spain, sleeping in haystacks, trudging along roads packed with refugees, and getting food where and whenever she could. From Spain she went to Portugal, then to Gibraltar, where she boarded the British ship for England.

Born to Misspell —a Myth

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph.D.

Some children are by nature slow at learning anything. No reason to expect them to learn spelling easily. But some children who are miserable spellers are good in one or all other school subjects. Were they born short in spelling? Some say they were. Now and then a teacher will tell a parent her child doesn't have a spelling sense, that some people were just born that way.

This myth of being born short in a school subject is a very comfortable one to the teacher and parents, freeing them of further responsibility. It may even prove a temporary pleasure to the child, relieving him from nagging about his spelling.

He Can Learn

Barring those with seeing or hearing defects, practically every child who can succeed at reading or arithmetic can, in the light of careful investigations, also learn to spell.

Accepting this fact, there is danger of course, that his teacher and parents will incline to tell him that he should do as well in spelling as in any other subject and that he would if he only tried hard enough. Why are we so prone to curse the child with shoulds and oughts and then suppose we have done our part?

Let us not be so stupid. Rather let us assure the poor speller he can learn to spell and hold ourselves responsible for finding ways of helping him improve enough in learning to spell that he gradually will be convinced that he can spell.

Ways of Helping

"Have the child's vision and hearing checked. Find out if he knows every letter of the alphabet. Help him to learn without shame or fear of rebuke those letters he does not know.

"Be poised calm and serene yourself speaking in gentle, quiet tones so the child may also be serene while working at his spelling.

"As your child studies spelling, have at first only one word on a card or page before him. Pronounce the word slowly for him and follow this with naming the letters in the word in their proper order.

When your child does written work at home, make him feel you can never be too busy to spell any word he might wish you to spell for him."

Fashion Flashes

Coming back with a bang is the fur suit. One house shows a suit in Persian lamb, the jacket loose and boxy to contrast with the narrow skirt worked in narrow vertical strips of wool and wide strips of the black Persian.

The rich look of bronze kid is featured in many fashion shows. A smart ensemble has a pump of bronze kid with shoestring bows in grosgrain. The matching bronze kid bag has grosgrain ruffles.

YOU WILL ENJOY the new long wool evening wraps. A beauty is in off-white woolen, its shoulder yoke embroidered in wreaths of Christmas roses, in silver thread and sequins.

FINISH OFF your outfit with a new bag. A useful model is a large oblong in black suede edged with ruffles of black grosgrain with a broad grosgrain handle.

HANDS OUT for the new gloves. Made to wear with after-dark clothes is a glove of black or white suede, its cuff trimmed with scrolls of jet beads ending with a jet tassel.

EASY TO WEAR frocks are popular this season. Velveteen is used for a casual frock with a shirtwaist top and full gathered skirt. The bodice is beige, the skirt two shades of brown.

THERE'S SPARKLE everywhere these nights. Evening shoes in black satin or crepe with a heavily jeweled ankle strap and jewel-embroidered toe are featured by many specialty shops.

SOME TIME SOON it will be cold and then out will come all the winter sports clothes. To wear with skiing or skating clothes one shop shows a hig-length casual coat of white caracul lined with red wool, as is its full hood.

Keep Toes Out of a Huddle

By HELEN FOLLETT

ONCE AGAIN we must give warning to the members of this beauty class that if their shoes are too full of feet, if toes are in a huddle, heels hoisted up on spikes, they are in for a heap of trouble.

If you have abused your poor trotters, get yourself sensible footwear that affords a firm foothold. To recondition your pedals and make them feel normal again, try the following exercises:

Stand on one foot, hands on the hips, chest lifted and backbone stretched to the limit. Lift the other foot on a line with the ankle and shimmy your knee. The ankle must be relaxed.

Pigeon Walk

Walk pigeon-toed with the weight on the outer sides of the feet. Take short steps. This calls into action ligaments that have been inert and strengthens them.

Place some good sized marbles on the floor. Sit on a low chair, pick up the marbles with your toes. Splendid treatment for anterior fallen arches.

Short stockings are almost as harmful as short shoes.

While color seems to have little to do with the growth of hair it is a fact that nearly all red-heads have abundant tresses that do not go A.W.O.L. early in life. Another advantage — Titian locks carry beautiful lights and shadows.

Hair with an auburn tint requires more careful shampooing. Only the blandest soap should be used, and, of course, it must be thoroughly rinsed away so the lights will not be dimmed. After washing, add the strained juice of three lemons to a quart of water, pour over the head, lifting the strands so it will be well distributed. Use the bath spray once more, massage the scalp well while the hair is drying.

WEDDINGS

COOK—OUTWATER

Miss Evelyn Irene Outwater, eldest daughter of Mr. Earl Outwater, and the late Mrs. Outwater, Plainfield and Mr. Blake Cook, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ira Cook of Shannonville, were quietly married at the United Church parsonage, Plainfield, Saturday, November 2, with Rev. G. T. McKenzie officiating.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Cook were their only attendants.

After the ceremony the happy couple left by motor for Toronto and Detroit. The bride travelled in a grey ensemble with black hat and black accessories. On their return they will reside at Shannonville.

YARROW—PARKS

A very pretty wedding was solemnized by Rev. R. Rickard at the United Church parsonage, Colborne, on Thursday afternoon, October 31, when Jean, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Pearly Parks, was united in marriage to Mr. Walter Yarrow, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Yarrow, Colborne.

The bride looked charming in airforce blue with lighter blue accessories. She wore a corsage of white carnations.

The bridesmaid, Miss Dorothy Kemp, was attired in royal blue with wine accessories. Mr. Thomas Parks, brother of the bride, acted as best man.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of Mrs. Frank Yarrow, Colborne. Mrs. Yarrow was dressed in rust crepe and was assisted by Mrs. P. Parks, who wore a green pin striped dress. The rooms were decorated in pink and white and a pretty wedding cake centred the table, with pink and white streamers making an effective background.

A shower and dance was held Friday night in Colborne town hall. The presents received were numerous and beautiful.

The couple left later for a motor trip to London.

McAULEY—RYAN

St. Michael's Church, Belleville, was the scene of a very pretty Autumn wedding on Wednesday morning, when Miss Kathleen Patricia Ryan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Terance Ryan, Bleecker Avenue, became the bride of Thomas James, son of Mrs. Mabel McAuley and the late James McAuley, Belleville. Rt. Rev. Monsignor J. F. Nicholson, V.G., officiated. The wedding music was played by Mrs. J. Grant with Mrs. J. M. Trualsch as soloist.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, She wore a gown of white bridal satin with train and full length veil with halo style headdress with white orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of Bettertime roses.

Miss Myrtle Sytes of Toronto, was maid of honor, dressed in coral crepe with headdress to match and carried a bouquet of Talisman roses.

Miss Margaret McAuley, sister of the groom, of Ottawa, was bridesmaid, dressed in powder blue georgette crepe with headdress to match and carried a bouquet of Briarcliffe roses.

Mr. John Moher of Belleville, was best man. The ushers were Mr. Gerrard McAuley, brother of the groom, and Mr. Robert Kidd of Belleville.

The reception was held at the New Queen's hotel, where the bride's mother received the guests wearing a gown of mid-blue slipper satin and wore a corsage of Bettertime roses and was assisted by the groom's mother, wearing a black lace dress with a corsage of Talisman roses.

The couple left on a wedding trip to Ottawa, Montreal and points east, the bride travelling in a blue wool suit trimmed with Jap mink and hat to match. On their return they will reisde in Belleville.

GRAY—HAGERMAN

A pretty wedding took place on Tuesday afternoon, November 5, at three o'clock in St. Andrew's church manse, when Kathrine Marion Hagerman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Hagerman, 2 Elm St., became the bride of Erle Gray, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Gray, Bay St., Trenton. Rev. W. J. Walker performed the ceremony.

The bride wore a navy sheer gown with blue felt hat and accessories to match and a corsage of American Beauty roses.

Miss Phyllis Irvine as bridesmaid, wore airforce blue with wine accessories and corsage of roses.

Mr. Edward Gray, Trenton, brother of the groom, was groomsman.

Following the ceremony a dinner was served at the bride's home and in the evening a reception was held at the home of the groom's parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Gray will take up residence in Trenton.

FASHION FLASHES

BRIGHT LIGHTS shine on lovely hats this season. For after dark wear, one designer has done a charming little front-brimmed hat in palest blue felt with two full ostrich plumes in sapphire blue placed from back to front, over the crown. Blue veil embroidered in silver.

There's charm, color and interest in the new evening clothes. A magnificent gown is of tissue thin gold lame, sunburst pleated from neck to hem, with a pointed, heavily embroidered gold kid belt. With it is worn a long wrap of orange-colored wool with big gold fastening.

A NECESSITY when one wishes to save a fine fur coat from too much wear is a dressy fur-trimmed cloth coat. One is a smart model in black nubby woolen with a three-gore back and five-gore front. Big looped collar and hemline border of silver fox.

There's a big change in this year's coats. A smart new model is of black woollen with a plastron of black Persian lamb, rippled on either side and extending into a slanting side panel that narrows towards the hem.

The narrow path is that of many of the new dinner dresses done on very narrow, slim lines. This silhouette is used for a long-sleeved beauty in thin silk jersey with deep, slanting neckline and puffed shoulders. The bodice is embroidered in gold and bronze sequins to form a wheat design.

Still popular is the off-the-face big-brimmed hat. A smart model of this type, done in black felt, has a row of little scarlet birds along the turned-back brim.

BABY HAS MOR
TEETH THAN YOU

says Mary Blake

Yes, even a day-old baby. Two full sets—baby-teeth waiting to come through, permanent teeth lining up behind them. Mother's diet before baby arrives starts the building of those teeth; baby's food carries it on. That's why both need foods that are rich in lime and phosphorus, and in "sunshine" vitamin D.

And get these Carnation books. "Your Contented Baby" is free. The big, colourful Carnation Cook Book is 15¢ (postpaid). Carnation Company, Limited, Toronto, Ontario.

Irradiated Carnation Milk is a splendid source of lime, phosphorus, vitamin D. That's one reason so many baby specialists prescribe it. Other reasons are its sterile safety, its uniformity, its convenience in preparing baby's feedings, its economy, and above all its greater digestibility.

Of course you don't have to have a baby to use Carnation Milk. Because it is double-rich, smooth, creamy it does a wonderful job in cooking, and saves money on the table when used in place of cream.

It's not surprising that you're constipated!

If you suffer from constipation to the point that you feel weary, depressed and worn out—it is time to question yourself!

What have you eaten lately? Meat, bread, eggs, potatoes? It is not surprising then that you're constipated. Your diet lacks "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean quantity, but a kind of food that is not completely assimilated and leaves a soft "mass" in the bowels that helps the bowel movement.

If this is your case, the solution is tasty Kellogg's All-Bran, every morning for breakfast. It contains the necessary "bulk" and Vitamin B_1, the natural intestinal tonic.

Eat All-Bran every day, drink lots of water and get back your gust for life! All-Bran is made in London, Canada by Kellogg. At all grocers.

SECOND SESSION

sion, caucuses were held yesterday by Conservative and Co-operative Commonwealth Federation members to discuss their parties' plans for the session.

The C.C.F. group decided M. J. Coldwell, member for Rosetown-Biggar, should continue as their House leader, a position he held last session because of the ill-health of the veteran C. C. F. leader, J. S. Woodsworth. Mr. Woodsworth still is unable to attend parliament.

Will Request Information

Last night Mr. Coldwell said his party will request more complete information on the Government's war policies and what has been accomplished so far in the war effort. He said if it is impossible for the Prime Minister to give answers in public, his group will press for a private session of the House.

The Conservative spent the entire day in secret session, threshing over the events of recent weeks and laying plans for sessional work. They met from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. and again from 2 until 7 p.m. but no statement was forthcoming on the result of their deliberations.

Leadership Not Mentioned

It was learned, however, that the question of leadership was not even mentioned. Otherwise, the discussion covered the whole gamut of matters likely to come before the House.

The opening ceremonies today are stripped to the essential Parliamentary traditions. There will be no guard and no mounted escort for the Governor-General, and no salute. Instead of the ceremonial Windsor uniform, His Excellency will wear morning clothes, as will Prime Minister Mackenzie King and other government leaders.

Representatives of the defence services and aides will wear field uniforms instead of the more vivid dress uniforms of peacetime opening ceremonies. The few women attending will wear afternoon gowns, instead of evening gowns.

LONDON MILITARY CIRCLES EXPECT ITALIANS TO LAUNCH MAIN OFFENSIVE

London, Nov. 6—(CP)—Authoritative military circles in London said they believed the Italians had not yet launched their main offensive against Greece, but that the real attack was to be expected at any moment.

These sources said the big drive probably would come on the Kalamas River front, above Ioannina, in northwestern Greece.

Frankford Czechs Celebrate National Independence Day

Citizens of That Country Now in Frankford Fittingly Mark the Anniversary

CONSUL HEARD

Stirling, Nov. 7—The 28th day of October commemorates the date of the final successful uprising of the Czechoslovak peoples in 1918 against their oppressors, the same oppressors against whom the Czech legion had been fighting since 1914 with the Allies on the battlefields of the First World War. The day was fittingly marked with a celebration by the citizens of Batawa on the Trent on Saturday evening last. The significance of the day was briefly and impressively outlined on the elaborate invitations sent forth by the committee in charge of arrangements. The function was graced with the presence of Dr. Frantisek Pavlasek (Consul General of Czechoslovakia as guest speaker and the program included Czechoslovakia folk songs and music group demonstrations of rhythmic gymnastics by the Czech men, recitations and fine speeches. At the conclusion of the fine program a dance was held and refreshments were served.

Guests Welcomed by T. Bata

The guests were welcomed by Mr. Thos. Bata, who acted as chairman for the evening and who stated that once again Czechoslovak people all over the world are rising to do battle alongside their old friend and ally, the British Commonwealth of Nations in defence of those same principles of freedom and justice not only for themselves now but for the whole world. The program began with the singing of O Canada and the significance of independence day for the Czechoslovakian people was brought forcibly to those present in a brilliant speech by Dr. Frantisek Pavlasek, the Czechoslovakia Consul General in Montreal.

Address in Two Languages.

The address of the evening was delivered by Mr. A. Cekota first in the language of his native Czechoslovakia and then in English under the title "The World of Tomorrow." "In this peaceful Canadian country surrounded by nature, this little village and factory are far from the danger of the stormy world. But we will all be lost if we think peace and security will be guaranteed us forever and if we do not fill all our days with the same spirit of strength and endurance as in the beginning of our work. Even more according to the development of the future," he stated. "Do not fear that evil in the world will prevail. This earth is flooded with blood shed in the countless attempts to enslave man and maintain the power of evil. But in spite of this we are here, descendants of the pitiful creatures who started the trail from the darkness of caves countless generations ago. It is our very existance which witnessed that in this eternal struggle."

Outstanding in the musical contributions to the fine program were the fine choruses offered by the men's choir, "The World Storm," "Tovacov" and "Andulko." Two splendid violin solos "Humoresque" and "Goin' Home" from Antonin Dvorak were offered by Mr. Zurek accompanied by Miss Ostram. Recitations and gymnastic displays completed the carefully arranged program that was both educational and entertaining.

ERNEST BEVIN

say he is quite prepared to play a subservient role until he makes up his mind whether he likes politics.

Domineering Personality

In fact, he has been a success at many things, from driving a milkcart in Bristol to organizing and directing the biggest trade union in the world, the Transport Union.

Bevin has a domineering personality, He has never belonged to any organization or movement he did not dominate and that is one of the main reasons why he is being tipped as a future Prime Minister.

Once regarded as a future left-wing leader through the Socialist League with which he flirted but never joined, the Conservatives who sit around him in the House of Commons have discovered he is almost a bitter opponent of left-wing movements. It has come as a great surprise to them because he was associated in their minds with the general strike of 1926 and the series of disputes with the docker's union, whose fights he led for years.

Bevin had a prejudice against politicians for many years and was a bitter enemy of MacDonald, Snowden and Thomas, Laborites who helped form the National Government of 1931. But the war showed a deeper prejudice in him, a passionate hatred of Fascism which he interpreted as being aimed at everything trade unionism had built up in a century of slow evolution. It was this conviction that propelled him into politics and he shows every sign of staying around for a while.

DRIVER EXONERATED

Pembroke, Ont., Nov. 7 (CP)—A coroner's jury investigating the death of 17-year-old Ernest Herman Woermke of Pembroke Township, who died in hospital Oct. 24, a day after his bicycle collided with an automobile, last night exonerated Sgt. George Seymour-Taylor of Petawawa, Ont., driver of the car, of any blame.

KEY PITTMAN ELECTED

Reno, Nev., Nov. 6 (AP)—Senator Key Pittman (Dem.-Nevada) chairman of the United States Foreign Relations Committee, was returned to the United States Senate today. Campaign managers for Samuel Platt, Republican candidate, conceded Pittman's election by a plurality of about 6,000 votes.

WALL STREET

New York, Nov. 7—(AP)—Stocks moved upward sharply today in a fast recovery from their post-election lows, some leaders advancing around five points.

The trading rate, after a slow start, was brisk toward the fourth hour.

U.S. Steel and Bethlehem established new highs for the year. Others prominent on the upturn included Chrysler, General Motors, United Aircraft, Douglas, American Telephone, Anaconda, Westinghouse, Union Carbide and Standard Oil of N.J.

In the Canadian group Dome and Lake Shore Mines and Canadian Pacific advanced. McIntyre dipped slightly. Canada 4s, in the Bond Market, lost 1-8 point.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Nov. 7 —(CP)— Interest continued to bulk in the Gold shares and in the active buying the Golds posted an index gain of .33 at noon today on Toronto Exchange.

Base Metal and Industrial stocks were unchanged to slightly lower and the Western Oils were unchanged. Volume was substantial at 204,000 shares for the first three hours.

Malartic Gold Fields was the day's feature. Trading in heavy volume, it advanced 10 cents to 132. Higher prices were posted for Preston, Central Patricia, Hard Rock, Hollinger and Wright-Hargreaves.

In the Base Metals, Steep Rock, Pend Oreille and Nickel displayed strength and the Western Oils were unchanged except for a gain of a few cents for Home Oil.

Few and minor changes were boarded by the Industrials. British American Oil, International Petroleum and Dominion Steel B registered moderate gains and the Papers, including Abitibi Pfd and Consolidated Paper were lower.

Butter Prices Slightly Lower

Toronto — Butter prices lost a fraction in quiet trading yesterday on the Toronto open produce market. Eggs closed unchanged from Tuesday's level after commanding a slight increase during the early part of the day.

An unsettled undertone was in evidence on the butter market. Offerings were not heavy, but demand was slow and little butter changed hands. First-grade Ontario creamery solids eased to a range of 29½c to 29¾c.

A-large eggs advanced to a price spread of 46c to 47c in the graded section during the morning, but later settled back to a straight price of 46c. Demand was fairly good, but buyers appeared to be purchasing only for immediate needs. The market remained firm under light receipts.

Montreal Produce.

Montreal, Nov. 7—(CP)—Produce market prices here, as reported by the Dominion Department of Agriculture, follow:

Butter: First grade creamery prints, jobbing price, 31c to 31¼c; first grade solids, jobbing price, 30½c to 30¾c.

Eggs: Graded shipments in used free cases, selling price, A-large, 48c; A-medium, 45c; A-pullets, 35c; B, 27c to 28c; C, 19½c to 20c. Receipts, 2,001 cases.

LIVESTOCK

Toronto, Nov. 7 (CP)—Cattle trade was very dull on the livestock market up to mid-session here today with sales too few to establish prices. Veal calves, hogs, sheep and lambs were steady. The holdover from Wednesday was 1,300 head of cattle.

Receipts reported by the Dominion marketing service were: Cattle 60, calves 30, hogs 300; sheep and lambs 180.

A few veal calves sold at $7-$10.50. A few grassers brought $5.25-$5.50.

Lambs sold at $9-$9.25 for good ewes and wethers, $8-$8.25 for heavies and bucks and $7.50 for culls.

Sheep sold at $2-$5.50.

Hogs sold at $11.40 dressedweight and $8.50 liveweight. Sows sold at $5-$5.50 dressedweight.

Royal Visits Do Much Good, The King is Told

London, Nov. 7 (CP)—The King and Queen continued their tour of the much-bombed Merseyside today by visiting Liverpool and Bootle. The tour began yesterday, the King and Queen making the journey to the northwest shipping and industrial area by train.

At Bootle, Canon Edward Mayson told the King: "You do a great deal of good visiting bombed areas with the Queen."

The King replied: "I am glad to know it."

PRESIDENT GIVEN

ing to greet him enthusiastically hours before the arrival of his special train.

Flags whipped in the crisp autumn air. Bunting decked the great gray building. School children lined the curbs. Bands were marshalled. Police, expecting the biggest day since the visit of Britain's King and Queen, prepared to handle a crowd of 300,000 at the station and on Pennsylvania Avenue, historic thoroughfare along which many presidents have passed in victory but none, before this, in a third term triumph.

39 States to Roosevelt

The decisiveness of that triumph was reflected in the hourly more complete tabulation of the nation's popular vote. With 119,168 out of the country's 127,245 voting units accounted for, the ballot totals stood:

Mr. Roosevelt	26,956,562
Wendell L. Willkie	21,591,032

The President had 39 States to his credit with a total of 466 electoral votes. The big possibility of a change in this lineup appeared to rest with Michigan, where late Republican gains cut the Democratic margin to a slender 3,700 with more than 60 districts yet to report.

The Roosevelt victory, however, was not without encouraging aspects for his Republican opposition. The same figures which clarioned his re-election, also proclaimed substantial Republican gains over 1936, when Mr. Roosevelt won 523 electoral votes of the eight, which two lone States yielded to his rival Alf. M. Landon.

In 1932 the popular vote went: Mr. Roosevelt 27,476,673, Landon 16,679,583, but in 1940 Willkie not only slashed 50 per cent off the numerical size of the Roosevelt plurality but piled up a record-breaking mountain of Republican ballots. Although the count was not yet complete, he already had surpassed the grevious Republican high of 21,392,190 which Herbert Hoover reached in 1928 in his great "prosperity landslide".

Many Problems Await

With the last tardy returns still dribbling in, Mr. Roosevelt had a multitude of affairs awaiting his attention. Problems of foreign policy, plans for greater assistance to Britain, and defence program details all promised to shove quickly into the background the election, its interests and controversies.

On these major questions the President received an increasing number of assurances of co-operation and support from the ranks of his erstwhile political foes. To implement these assurances, a post-election keynote of national unity sounded in every section of the country.

Following upon Willkie's telegram of congratulation to Mr. Roosevelt yesterday, Landon told the country by radio that its job now was to "grin and go back to work."

In Palo Alto, Calif., former President Hoover noted that both Republican candidate Willkie and Democratic candidate Roosevelt had "pledged to the utmost national preparedness and to keep out of foreign wars."

"The transcendent duty now," Mr. Hoover said in a statement, "is the full co-operation of everybody in this vital purpose."

Along with their promises of support and co-operation, however, the Republicans gave every evidence of functioning vigorously as opposition to the administration on all issues which they may regard as inimical to the country's best interest.

Almost complete returns showed that the strength which the Republicans will command in the new Congress, beginning in January, would be greater in the Senate and somewhat less in the House than in the present session. With the outcome of one Senate race still in doubt, the Republicans thus far had registered a net gain of four seats for a total of 28 as against 66 held by Democrats in that chamber.

In the House the Democrats had a net gain of five seats, with only five contests still undecided. This gave them a total of 263 members, compared with 218 necessary for a majority. The Republicans had elected 162 members and Progressives three, Independent Democrats one and American Labor one.

Santa Claus Parade Executive Offered Use of Office Free

As a worthwhile gesture contributing toward the ultimate success of the Santa Claus parade which Belleville merchants will stage on Saturday, December 7, and which was announced through the medium of the press yesterday, the executive committee of the Santa Claus project have been offered the use of a heated, fully equipped office, through the courtesy of Mr. Jim Barclay, district manager of the London Life Insurance Company.

The gesture on the part of Mr. Barclay is deeply appreciated by the committee in charge who have already reported that several worth while suggestions for the improvement of this year's parade over that which was staged last year have been received. The committee is still open for further suggestions along this line, however and any suggestions will be gratefully received by the committee at their offices at the corner of Front and Bridge Streets.

A campaign for funds to buy bombers for defence of India was preceded by a leaflet raid. Leaflets bore the words, "This might have been a Nazi bomb. Defend the Punjab by helping to buy war planes."

$25,000 DAMAGE SUIT IS OPENED IN SUPREME COURT

C.N.R. is Suing George Montgomery, Frankford, After an Alleged Accident Near Glen Ross

OTHER SUITS LISTED

Completing one of the largest criminal dockets in the history of the city, the Fall Assizes of the Supreme Court of Ontario now in session under Mr. Justice Keiller MacKay, swung into the hearing of civil actions today which, it is expected will, take up the bigger part of next week to complete.

Heading the docket of two jury and one non-jury cases is the damage suit for $25,000 brought by the Canadian National Railway against George C. Montgomery, Frankford. The suit arose from an accident near Glen Ross, where it is alleged a motor car driven by Montgomery crashed into a gasoline-driven "jigger" operated by two railway employees. These men were severely injured. Mr. G. B. Balfour, K.C., of Balfour, Drew and Taylor, Toronto legal firm, is representing Montgomery with R. E. Laidlaw, K.C., appearing for the railway. Mr. Laidlaw will be assisted by H. B. Beardsworth.

Opening next week's sitting of the Assizes will be the suit of Parks versus Munro. Arthur and Jenny Parks, Madoc residents are suing for $10,000 damages said to have resulted from an accident in Madoc on November 23rd, 1938, when a car said to have been driven by Wellington Munroe, in which his father, Gordon Munroe was a passenger, pinned Jenny Parks against a parked vehicle when it struck her while she was standing near a village intersection. Mrs. Parks is suing for damages of $7,500 and her husband, Arthur, is asking $2,500.00.

One Non-Jury Case

The non-jury case, is that of Bellinger, versus Ostrom, arising from a motor accident on the Foxboro highway, one-half mile from Ross' Corners at 11.45 on the night of August 9th., 1939. Bellinger is suing the defendant for $10,000 for injuries received, when a car driven by George F. Ostrom Jr., and owned by his father, George F. Ostrom, Sr., crashed into the rear of the car driven by the plaintiff. Bellinger was hurled through the roof of the car and suffered severe injuries to his neck and spine.

Ponton and Pringle are acting for Bellinger with Porter, Payne and Arnott appearing for the defendant.

In the Parks-Munroe suit, Porter, Payne and Arnott will act for the plaintiffs with W. J. Arthur Fair, Peterborough, appearing for the Munroes.

Opening of Case Delayed

Considerable delay was experienced this morning when the C.N.R. vs Montgomery suit was scheduled to get under way. Counsel for both plaintiff and defendant conferred lengthily with Justice MacKay, who announced later the postponement of the opening of the hearing until this afternoon.

It was learned, that certain principals of the case were requested to undergo physical examinations for legal reasons. Members of the jury panel were requested to return this afternoon.

BRITISH RETAKE TOWN GALLABAT

British Mobile Unit is Pressing Italian Force in Kassala Sector on Sudan Eritrea Frontier

Cairo, Egypt, Nov. 7 (AP)—British troops have recaptured Gallabat, on the Sudanese-Ethiopian frontier, from the Italians, British general headquarters in the middle east announced today.

Gallabat is on the Sudan side of the line, about 75 miles west of Lake Gondar, Ethiopia. Italian troops moved into the town soon after Italy entered the war.

A British column early yesterday surprised and captured the town with the help of the Royal Air Force, imprisoning part of the garrison. Then, a communique stated, the Italians counter-attacked but this was successfully repulsed. Two heavy Italian bombings followed.

Farther north in the Kassala sector on the Sudanese-Eritrean frontier, a British mobile unit is pressing an Italian force, the communique added.

Germany Refuses Safe Conduct to American Liner

Washington, Nov. 7 —(AP)—The United States State Department announced today that Germany had refused to give any assurance of safe conduct for an American ship to enter an Irish port to bring home American citizens, although Italy had given such an assurance promptly.

Refusing to give such assurances, the German government was said to have declared that the areas around Britain are "areas of military operations" and that Berlin is "not in a position to furnish any sort of assurance of the nature requested."

The State Department said the Italian government's prompt and favorable response was furnished to Germany but that despite this the Berlin foreign office declined to act likewise.

The United States had planned to send an American ship, probably the liner Manhattan, to a western Eire port to bring home about 1,200 American citizens from Great Britain.

ANNA WOLKOFF GIVEN 10 YEARS

Tyler Kent, Discharged Employee of U. S. Embassy at London, Sentenced to 7 Years

London, Nov. 7 (CP)—Anna Wolkoff, charged with Tyler Kent, discharged employee of the United States Embassy, with violating the official Secrets Act in a spy plot, was convicted last week but his sen- to 10 years' imprisonment.

Kent, previously convicted, was sentenced to seven years.

Miss Wolkoff, 37, is the daughter of a Czarist Russian Admiral. Kent was convictel last week but his sentence was postponed until after the trial of Miss Wolkoff. He was a former code clerk at the Embassy.

Both Kent and Miss Wolkoff were tried in secret sessions.

Mr. Justice Tucker told Kent he had been convicted of five offences of obtaining and communicating documents which might be of use to Germany for a purpose prejudicial to the safety and interests of the state.

4 Confidential Documents

The charges, it was disclosed, related to four confidential documents which Kent allegedly took from the Embassy. He also was convicted of stealing one of these documents. The Judge said he took into account, in Kent's favor, the fact that the papers did not actually relate to naval or military movements.

Miss Wolkoff, a naturalized British subject, sent a code letter to "a traitor who broadcasts in Germany for the purpose of weakening the war efforts of this country," the Judge said.

(The propaganda broadcaster, Lord Haw-Haw, presumably fits this characterization.)

The Judge commented that Miss Wolkoff probably was motivated by an "anti-Jewish obsession."

FAMOUS LONDON

happened".

"The absence of panic was really remarkable", he said. "The people sang away although their throats were parched with dust from the explosion.

"A little later one of the clergy came into the crypt, said a prayer and cheered the occupants with a few quiet words".

A woman standing at a bus stop just outside the church was killed but there were no casualties in the crypt itself. All the stained glass windows in one side of the church were blown in or damaged and the wall was pitted with bomb fragments.

Pews were covered with dust and debris but the church appeared not to have been seriously damaged, officials said. The bomb fell just outside the door leading to the crypt.

A Canadian soldier blown off his feet while crossing the road was taken into the crypt by other soldiers who had taken shelter there. He quickly recovered.

London, Nov. 7 (CP)—Sirens howled at noon today, giving London its first air raid alert of the day after the longest night alarm of the war.

The raiders dodged defenders in London area and vapor trails high the clouds to scatter bombs on the in the blue-patched sky coupled with the sound of diving and climbing planes told of a battle over the capital.

The alarm sounded a few moments after the noise of a dog-fight was heard. A lone Dornier (German) bomber dropped a stick of bombs on a southeast coast a few hours earlier without causing any damage.

Light and heavy Axis aircraft scattered bombs over a wide area of Britain during the night, ranging from the south coast to Scotland.

One bomb struck a famous London church where a number of persons, including women and children, had sought refuge. There were some casualties but the number was not immediately known.

Raiders Come Singly

The raiders came singly and in groups of two and three, lighting their way under a hazy moon with flares and showers of fire-bombs. The heavy bombers droned slowly and methodically over at a high altitude while fighter-bombers, flying much lower, streaked across the sky in an effort to beat the heavy barrage raised around the capital.

The government said "a number of people were killed and injured" in the attacks on London, during which "a block of flats was hit and damage done to houses, shops and other buildings".

The Royal Air Force, meanwhile was reported to have attacked "a number of objectives in Germany" during the night.

Shortly before daybreak, German long range guns on the French coast began pounding the Dover area across the windswept channel. The explosions, continuing for more than two hours, rocked buildings.

Londoners, who have become familiar with the sound by German airplane motors, said there was a new sound overhead during the night, apparently indicating that Italian bombers participated in the attacks, which ranged across the Midlands, southern, southeastern and northeastern England and West Scotland.

In the last named region, a bomb struck a hotel, burying the occupants and a passerby and killing five persons. In London, showers of incendiary bombs started numerous fires keeping fire-fighters on the jump.

Some Lulls in Night

There were some lulls during the night and many Londoners left their shelters to go home to their own beds, continuing a fatalistic trend, which has been increasingly evident in the last week.

Among the buildings destroyed in London by the German night raiders was a Roman Catholic Church, where five priests and eight other persons were buried in the wreckage.

Another bomb struck just outside a motion picture theatre where 200 persons were shaken by the blast. When the manager tried to get the audience to leave they protested "Carry on" and left only, when he explained the building was unsafe.

One cluster of fire bombs which fell with a stick of seven high explosive bombs started a fire that sent flames leaping so high they silhouetted the majestic dome of St. Paul's Cathedral.

German planes cruised overhead with the towering flames as a beacon until the fire was brought under control two hours later.

Several French soldiers and sailors were among the casualties when a club was hit in one London district, while in another district nine houses on one street were wrecked and 11 others damaged badly.

People sleeping in a shelter escaped when a block of office buildings above them was fired by incendiary bombs. The rear of the block was reduced to rubble and charred beams.

Eight people were rescued from the wreckage of houses along several streets in another region of the capital where a stick of bombs fell during the first part of the night raid. Rescue workers continued to search the debris.

A bar room was hit in one district, killing two and injuring many other customers.

Several families were trapped when a bomb exploded among three tenement houses in a working class area. The houses were wrecked and it was believed five persons—a mother, two sons, a daughter and a 15-year-old girl—were killed. Three other persons were believed buried in a basement.

One woman was killed and several other persons injured in London today by explosion of a delayed-action bomb dropped by raiders last night. Six houses were damaged.

RAF WILL ATTACK

sible retaliatory attack on Rome as contributing to the apparent decision of the Italians not to participate in aerial attacks on London. He said there had been no evidence during the last few days of Italian planes aiding the Germans in air raids on London.

There were "solid reasons" for a feeling of optimism despite spread of the war to Greece, Sir Philip said.

"We are delighted by the determined manner in which Greece not only has resisted the Italian invasion, but has moved to the attack," he added. "We are also glad that we have been able to give a measure of direct aid to the Greeks."

"I feel that we have reached a new phase in this war," Sir Philip continued. "The main theatre of interest has shifted to the Mediterranean."

Navy Prevented Italy From Quick Move

Rapid moves by British naval units had made it difficult for Mussolini to send reinforcements to Albania and Greece.

In a general review of the war situation, Sir Philip mentioned a slackening of air attacks on Britain, and the superiority of British air and land forces in Africa over the numerically superior Italians as further grounds for optimism.

"We should be pleased if the Germans should try to invade us at this time", he said. "Because of our preparedness and the state of the weather, we should be able to give a good account of ourselves".

He suggested, however, that Germany was turning its attention to other fields of the war.

"Germany can use its aircraft elsewhere", he said, "and they are probably moving eastward".

All was far from well in the field of transportation in Germany itself, he went cn. The German railway system was ineffective, due mainly to the shift to mechanized transport, "and it remains to be seen whether Germany has enough petrol and lubricating oil to keep her mechanized transport in efficient operation".

GREECE'S

after heavy aerial and artillery activity along the entire front.

The exact extent of the withdrawal was not disclosed.

Reports from the northern front indicated that Koritza, the base 10 miles inside Albania from which the Italians launched a thrust toward Salonika ten days ago, was completely at the mercy of Greek forces in command of the surrounding mountains.

Italian supply lines and airdromes were said to be covered by Greek artillery hidden high in the mountains.

Reports that Greek forces actually had entered Koritza were discounted by military experts, who doubted whether the Greeks would attempt to push down into the plains and seize the city.

Serve No Good Purpose

Such a move would serve no good purpose, these experts asserted, and would put the Greeks at the mercy of Italian mechanized forces. By clinging to the mountains the Greeks are in a much more favorable position to beat off an Italian attack without suffering costly losses themselves.

Unofficial reports said the Greeks had captured at least 1,000 Italians in their push toward Koritza and had destroyed at least a dozen tanks—mostly light machines designed for mountain warfare and similar to those used by the Italians in the Spanish civil war.

Both British and Greek planes were said to be backing up the ground operations by pounding Italian troop concentrations and supply lines heavily.

Fighter Planes Join Greeks

British fighter planes also joined Greek craft yesterday in patroling Athens and its port, Piraeus, and were credited with turning back two raiding Italian squadrons.

The Greeks said the Italians had bombed the cities of Volos, Patras, Larissa and the island of Zante, but declared casualties and damage were slight.

(Reports from Belgrade, Yugoslavia, said the Italian air force has bombed the Greek town of Phlorina, east of Koritza, several times yesterday. Half the town and most of the Greek villages in that area were said to have been razed with heavy casualties.)

Albert College Realizes Hope Long Cherished by Defeating B.C.I. in Gridiron Tussle 12-2

However, Game Had No Bearing on Title as the Collegiate Squad Had Already Won Group

FIELD IS HEAVY

Ross Clare Returns to the Student Team and Kicked Both Points Secured by His Squad

There was loud rejoicing heard throughout the corridors at Albert College last night, the pent-up and exubert outbreak resulting from an accomplishment long hoped for and at last realized. The reason for the celebration was one of a justified nature because Coach Pete Beach's Albert gridders had finally succeeded in defeating their ancient school football rivals the Belleville Collegiate and in a masterful and convincing manner to add insult to injury. They rang the curtain down on the Bay of Quinte Senior Interscholastic Bay of Quinte schedule in the C.O.S.S.A. at the Fair Grounds yesterday when the Alberts soundly trounced the previously - heralded "scarlet scourge" by a 12 to 2 score to break the "Collegians'" record of consecutive wins for the current season.

Although chagrined in defeat Coach Morley Baker's B.C.I. squad are group champions, but yesterday's reverse was a bitter pill to swallow as the defeat was their first of the season and came at the hands of their most distasteful gridiron enemies, who in turn gloated and glorified over their winnings, despite the fact the Alberts injected three over-age players into the game but not before gaining the consent of Coach Baker's squad, as the result of yesterday's game meant naught in the league standing, the "Collegians" having cinched the group bunting last week in Cobourg. It was the bitter medicine of defeat at the hands of their ancient rivals that stung the Baker-led crew like the whip of a lash, but perhaps the reverse was a blessing in disguise, as it may have taught the Collegians the advantage of concerted practice and to respect every adversary, regardless as to the situation.

Clare Returns to Squad

The Collegiate squad opened with some razzle, dazzle plays that gave them three first downs in early succession and Ross Clare, who returned to join the "scarlet scourge" after an unnecessary absence, kicked a point to give the B.C.I. a 1-to 0 advantage going into the second stanza. Belleville blocked an Albert kick early in the next stanza and Clare punted into the coffin corner for another point, but Albert rallied and Hayman duplicated Clare's previous punt and the score stood at 2-1 for the Collegiate as the Collegians were cracking Albert's line and Theobald recovered at the halfway whistle.

There was little concern in the Collegians' camp during the halftime rest period, despite the fact the field was muddy, the weather bitterly cold and numerous fumbles had dominated the play. "Mac" McDonald a master at Albert whose driving force was an encouragement to Albert later in the game, elevated his teammates' hopes when he ran back a B.C.I. kick some 40 yards, but Albert fumbled and B.C.I. went to the air as Bradford snagged a forward for a 25-yard gain, but Albert held. Captain Des Partridge intercepted a Belleville latteral and broke away into the clear, but Ross Clare overtook him after Des had reeled off 45 yards and B.C.I. held. Row speared a pass for a 40-yard gain in the opposite direction, but Clare had to punt. McDonald made yards and Smithers smothered B.C.I. for a 20-yard gain and Sharp booted a 25-yard placement to put Albert 4 to 2 in the lead at three-quarter time.

Placement Turns Tide

It was Sharp's placement that turned the tide of the game, as Albert protected well and kicked on first and second downs to an advantage. Hayman punted and Pigden was rouged for another Albert point and as Albert broke up a B.C.I. kick formation, they downed Clare on the B.C.I. one-yard line only to have Partridge crack through for a touchdown, that Sharp converted, making the score 11 to 2. Sharp kicked another point in the last minute of play. In desperation the Collegians went to the air in the last quarter, but after "Buck" Sharpe, their ace inside, sustained injuries in the third quarter and was taken from the game the Collegains' morale and front line seemed to snap and their chances of going through their group without losing a game followed in defeat.

The Belleville Collegiate are group winners, however and meet Bowmanville High School in the C.O.S.S.A. playdowns. The ends, especially Warren, stood out for the losers, while McDonald, Sharp and Smithers were the best for Albert.

Albert College made six first downs to the B.C.I. five, while the Collegians completed four forwards in 13 attempted as Albert failed to click in three aerial attempts.

The line-ups:

Belleville Collegiate—Snap, McGeachie; insides, Pickering and Sharpe; middles, Jones and Kerr; ends, Bradford and Campbell; quarter, Pigden; halves, S. McBride, Cronk; fulls, W. McBride and Clare; subs, Mulholland, Gardner, Theobald, Gerow, Hunter, O'Connor, Smith, Row and Warren.

Albert College—Snap, Beck; insides, Carter and Acal; middles, Hinkinson and Burrows; ends Francis and Taylor; quarter, Eastbaugh; halves, McDonald and Sharp; fulls, Partridge and Smithers; subs, Watkins, Middleton, Bailey, Dobbin, Hager, Wright, Brawley and Ridout.

Referee—Homer "Red" Townsend.

BUFFALO BISONS WIN FIRST GAME

(By The Canadian Press)

Cecil (Tiny) Thompson, former goal-tending great with Boston Bruins and Detroit Red Wings, made an official entry today into the list of winning hockey managers.

Thompson gave up the big pads with the Wings this season, taking over the managership of Buffalo Bisons in the American Hockey League. The Bisons, a new team to the League, won their first League game of the season last night by downing Indianapolis Capitals 3-2 at Indiananapolis.

The Bisons, who have played only two games, won with a rally in the third period that netted all their goals. The tallies were produced by Morey Rimstad, Tony Hemmerling and Bill Cunningham. The Indianapolis goals went to Joe Fisher and Jack Keating.

In the only other game of the night Philadelphia Ramblers and Pittsburgh Hornets battled to a 4-4 draw, with the Hornets duplicating the Buffalo feat of scoring three goals in the third period.

Pittsburgh scorers were Johnny Sherf, with two, Lloyd Roubell and Lloyd Currie. Philadelphia goals went to Lloyd Allsby, Lude Wareing, Allan Kuntz and Murdo McKay.

REINSTATED

Jean Pusie former Canadiens and Rangers player, who left Vancouver Lions in a huff in mid-season last year and was suspended from organized hockey, has been reinstated and is returning to the Pacific coast league.

GRID SCHEDULES CLOSE SATURDAY

Argos Can Cinch Playoff Berth by Beating Montreal in Toronto

Eight senior football teams in the east were due to hold their last scrimmages today in preparation for matches Saturday which bring the regular schedules to a close in the section.

Most of the teams will have a day off tomorrow, or else go through light running drills, for coaches do not like to work their charges too hard on the day before a game.

Five of the teams still have a chance to emerge as sectional champions. In the Ontario Rugby Football Union, Toronto Balmy Beach and Sarnia 2-26th Battery are still eligible, while in the Big Four Ottawa Rough Riders, Toronto Argonauts and Hamilton Tigers are still in the running.

The Beaches and the Sarnians are assured of the two playoff spots in the O.R.F.U. The Beaches, only undefeated team in the east, have won all five of their games while the soldiers have six points to their credit, four better than the third place Hamilton Alerts.

Battle in Big Four

But while things are pretty clear cut in the O.R.F.U. a battle is being waged in the Big Four. The way things stand now the Riders lead with eight points, Argonauts have six and Tigers have four with one game left to complete the schedule.

Tigers can gain a tie for second place by beating Riders this week, provided Montreal's last place club defeats Toronto at the same time. Argonauts have the same chance to tie for first place, in the event they win over Montreal and the Tigers defeat Ottawa.

However, the majority of football fans believe that both the Riders and Argonauts will win, ending up the season in first and second place respectively and starting their playoff the following week.

EIGHT NOMINEES FOR MEMORIAL CUP

Each Team in Big Four Allowed to Nominate Two Players

Toronto, Nov. 7 (CP)—The Board of Governors of the Interprovincial rugby football union began today the task of selecting from a field of eight nominees the 1940 winner of the Jeff Russel Memorial Trophy.

Nominations were completed last night when Montreal's nameless team announced its pair of nominees for the trophy given to the player who the Governors think comes closest to the high standard of sportsmanlike play set by Russel, Montreal immortal killed several years ago in an industrial accident. The value of a player to his team also is considered.

The nominees for the trophy won last year by Bill Davies of Montreal are:

Hamilton—Doug Turner, snap; Captain Jack Craig, flying wing.

Ottawa—Andy Tommy, halfback; Tony McCarthy, outide wing.

Montreal—Doug Smaill, halfback; Lloyd Daniels, outside wing.

Toronto—Earl Selkirk, halfback; Len Staughton, inside wing.

CHIHAWKS OPEN N. H. L. SEASON AGAINST AMERKS

Paul Thompson Leading a Better Team Than One He Had Last Season

EVENLY BALANCED

Toronto Team Will be Minus Bob Davidson Against Red Wings

(By SIDNEY GRUSON)

Canadian Press Staff Writer

The burdens of National Hockey League leadership will rest a little heavier on Paul Thompson than the other team bosses this season, for Paul was the manager of the year—last year—and the performance of his Chicago Black Hawks through the coming months will be the seal on that judgment.

The soft-spoken Thompson takes his new edition of Chicago Black Hawks into action tonight in their opening home game—the only game on the schedule. His is the last club to see action in the new season and tonight's game will provide the so-called experts with the basis for their first comparisons of the seven teams.

For their opposition, the Hawks have drawn Red Dutton's revamped Americans, bursting with youth and not the slightest bit downcast from their opening 4-2 loss to Detroit Red Wings. For what it means at this stage, the Americans have the league's leading goalgetter—Johnny (Peanuts) O'Flaherty from Toronto amateur ranks.

Thompson took the best veterans from the collection Bill Stewart left him in the middle of the 1938-39 season and blended them with a half-dozen rookies to jump from last to fourth place last March. Everyone gave Paul credit for a job well done, but no one was positive it was the Hawk's ability or the lack of it in the bottom three clubs that made the jump possible.

Team is Intact

He has kept the team practically intact, adding just a little more youth to the forward lines. He believes he has "the most-evenly balanced outfit in Chicago history," and thinks the Hawks are a lead-pipe cinch to do as well if not better than fourth place again.

Tonight, he's got to start showing the folks that he's right.

There is only one game Saturday night as well, Detroit visiting Toronto Maple Leafs, while on Sunday night the Black Hawks are in action against the Canadiens in Montreal and Detroit hop back home to entertain the cocky Rangers. After that the league settles down to a steady grind.

The injury bugaboo has cropped up already in the Maple Leaf camp, where Bob Davidson is on the sidelines with a dinky knee. Coach Happy Day has been experimenting with Nick Metz at left wing for Syl Apps and Gord Drillon and, if Metz goes on that line, it's likely that Billy (The Kid) Taylor will be used as the Leaf's extra man against the Wings.

Otherwise, all seven clubs are at top strength for the heavy going which will come quickly. At the moment, the shouts of the Canadien supporters drown out the other cheering sections.

Montreal definitely is high on the Flying Frenchmen after just one game.

AWARDED TROPHY

Greg Kabat, who handles the quarterbacking chores for Winnipeg Blue Bombers, has been awarded the McKinney trophy as the most valuable player to his team in the Western Interprovincial Football union this season.

OTTAWA SENATORS WILL BE TOUGH IN QUEBEC LOOP

Team Has Held Boston Bruins to 2-2 Draw in Exhibition Tilt

CHOUINARD COACH

Only Four New Players on Club but Squad is Clicking

Ottawa, Nov. 7—(CP) — They couldn't make the grade last year but on the basis of pre-season performance Ottawa Senators look like dangerous contenders for the Quebec Senior Hockey League title this winter.

Senators have won two tied one and lost one in four practice tilts to date and Coach Gene Chouinard starting his first season with the club, is hopeful they'll maintain their present gait when they swing into the regular Q.S.H.L. schedule against Verdun Red Devils here Saturday.

Twice they upset Springfield Indians of the American League and were unlucky to drop a 3-2 verdict to Washington Eagles of the Eastern United States Amateur Hockey League. Their best effort came Tuesday night when they battled the National Hockey League's Boston Bruins to a 2-2 draw.

Even at that, Senators don't look a great deal different from last year—on paper at least. Only four players are new to the club.

Tony and Albert Lemay, who played last year with St. Hyacinthe of the Quebec Provincial Hockey League; Gene Reinhardt, formerly with Hull Volants; and Dunc Cheyne of Harringay Racers are the newcomers.

Holdovers include goalies Trevor Higginbottom and Louis St. Denis; defencemen Stan Pratt, Jack Wilkinson and Don Grant; and forwards Earl (Sparky) Nicholson, Joe Shack, Doug Brunning, Jack Carthy, George Greene and Eddie Powers.

Senators tried to bring Tony Graboski to Ottawa from Sydney Millionaires of the Cape Breton Amateur Hockey League, but the star defenceman signed a professional contract with Montreal Canadiens instead.

Jerry Shannon, veteran professional, has been practising with Senators but will not be able to play until he is reinstated as an amateur. Shannon broke into professional ranks in 1933 with the now-disbanded Ottawa Senators of the National League.

Between the Lines

with Ken J. Colling

"When Noah sailed the waters blue,
He had troubles same as you;
For forty days he drove the Ark
Before he found a place to park."

When convener Pete Beach cleaned the junior Interscholastic football clock here this week, the genial Albert College sports mentor proved to all concerned the value of minor league sports sponsorship within our secondary schools. So-much-so that the various school coaches in the community turned right around and fell in line with convener Beach's proposal of a junior Interscholastic hockey group, which will embrace St. Michael's Academy, O.S.D., Albert College and Belleville Collegiate. The introduction of junior C.O.S.S.A. hockey will not interfere in any way with the conventional operation of the senior Interscholastic puck loop, however.

Kingston Sport Scribe Bill Walshe devoted the better part of his column "Comment on Sports" to Belleville hockey activities the other day. Bill is labouring under the impression that S. R "Sandy" Burrows is the bossman of the rejuvenated Belleville hockey interests, but such does not seem to be the case, however. From what information we can gather the Reliance Aircraft Company, a new industrial firm located in Belleville, is paramount interested in the sponsoring of an intermediate hockey club in our fair city. One thing is certain, there are at least three new hockey players residing in Belleville today. New uniforms, gold and scarlet in color, have been purchased by "Speedy" St. Louis and Ken Watt, who are the prime movers of the intermediate hockey picture here. Incidentally the new Belleville hockey sweaters will resemble somewhat the color and pattern of the Shell softball jerseys.

Scribe Walshe in Tuesday's Kingston paper, stated that no Belleville entry had been received by the mentors of the Van Horne Memorial Cup series at that time and gave for a reason the fact that "Sandy" Burrows personally objected to the long drawn out Van Horne schedule, which usually over-lapsed the opening of O.H.A. in the district. Such is not the case, however, the new mentors of local hockey intimated strongly they wished to enter the Van Horne series late this week, so no doubt Scribe Walshe just hasn't got around to a thorough check-up as yet. Otherwise Kingston City, Queen's University, R. C. Signals and the Perth-Smith's Falls "Combines" are definite starters. Incidentally the Limestone City entry hopes to ice a giant pair of defencemen in Coach Yip Radley, former professional, and Doug White, last year with Sherbrooke, Que. Both tip the beam around the 200 pound mark.

Regarding future hockey activities Scribe Walshe is quoted as saying: "If Belleville and Kingston both get strong clubs for intermediate hockey efforts we will likely be made to revive the old grouping with Peterborough but although the Petes would be an attraction in local play the distance to the Lift Lock City makes it an expensive proposition. Kingston's logical, geographical grouping is to the east, both for intermediate and junior hockey as well as baseball and other sports, but previously most of the playoffs have been to the west which forced long trips to Oshawa, Toronto and even further. A grouping with teams at Brockville, Smith's Falls, Carleton Place, Perth and even Ottawa is more convenient for Kingston."

Any hopes the B.C.I. had of winning their senior Interscholastic football group without sustaining a loss were dashed upon the bitter rocks of despair yesterday when Pete Beach's Albert College squad played inspired rugby to beat the Collegians 12 to 2 and gain a well-earned and deserved victory it was. True enough Albert used three over-age players, but it was with the consent of Coach Baker's squad and defeat at the hands of Albert is always a bitter dose to swallow. Ross Clare returned to the Collegians' line-up yesterady, but showed the lack of continued practice. As a matter of fact the entire line collapsed before the strong Albert attack, especially after "Buck" Sharpe, leading force in the B.C.I. line was injured and removed from the game. Coach Morley Baker's outsides turned in a marvelous job. Ronnie Warren's tackling being of the deadly nature, while young Kennie Campbell wasn't missing too many either. Aside from the bitter sting of defeat at the hands of Albert the Belleville squad are group champions and meet Bowmanville in the playdowns, but it is to be hoped they'll realize that practice makes perfect and the Rubber Town gridders are no pushovers, else they wouldn't be where they are.

Do you remember when Jack Shill leftwinger of Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League, was sidetracked to a sick bed two years ago today with a spinal injury suffered in a game against Toronto Maple Leafs. Shill was out of the game for a month.

The executive of the local gals softball loop entertained all of the players who participated in the summer's fun at a social evening and dance at the Trianon ball room last night. The lassies invited their boy friends and a swell evening's entertainment resulted, especially as the girls served lunch and for once the male sex enjoyed the privilege of sitting back and letting "Mabel" do it. Chairman Ted Schwab was master-of-ceremonies while Secretary Jack McVeigh presented the Frontenac Trophy to the champion Zeller nine through Coach Charlie Barnett. Even Harry Rollins, men's softball maestro, was on hand and soon Harry will learn how it sounds to listen to himself, simply because they had a recording machine on hand and when Harry was called upon to say his piece, Ted Schwab handed him a microphone and Mister Rollins' voice was recorded without his knowledge, as a P. A. system had been installed. Incidentally there was some player lobbying going on last night, which would indicate girls' softball is on the up-beat.

PUBLIC NOTICE

VOTING ON QUESTIONS

Two-Year Term for Council and Control of Water Works and Gas Works by Municipal Council.

NOTICE is hereby given that a statement of the questions to be submitted to a vote of the electors at the Annual Municipal Elections for the Corporation of the City of Belleville to be held on Monday, December 2nd., 1940, are hereinafter set forth.

FIRSTLY

Electors will have the opportunity of voting on the following question:

"Are you in favour as a war time measure under the Local Government Act 1940 of the Municipal Council elected for the year 1941 holding office for the term of two years?"

SECONDLY

Electors will have the opportunity of voting on the following question:

"Are you in favour of the Council of the Corporation of the City of Belleville passing a By-law for the removal of the control and management of Utilities known as the Belleville Water Works and the Belleville Gas Works from the Public Utilities Commission of the City of Belleville and revesting the same in the Council of the said Corporation?"

NOTICE IS FURTHER GIVEN that the Mayor of the Corporation of the City of Belleville or a member of the Council duly appointed for that purpose shall attend at the Mayor's Office in the City Hall in the said City of Belleville on the 27th. day of November, 1940, at the hour of three o'clock in the afternoon and if requested so to do, shall appoint in writing signed by him two persons to attend the final summing up of the votes given for and against the Questions, and one person to attend at each polling place on behalf of the persons interested in and desirous of promoting the proposed Questions and voting in the Affirmative thereon, and a like number on behalf of the persons interested in and desirous of opposing the proposed Questions and voting in the Negative thereon.

TAKE NOTICE that the foregoing is a correct statement of the questions to be submitted to the electors of the City of Belleville at the Annual Municipal Elections to be held on Monday, the second day of December, A.D., 1940.

Dated the 6th. day of November, 1940.

British Communique

London, Nov. 7 (CP)—A joint communique of the Air Ministry and Ministry of Home Security Thursday said:—

"Shortly before dusk yesterday enemy aircraft dropped bombs in rural districts in Yorkshire and in the Eastern Counties. In Yorkshire little damage was done and no serious casualty has been reported. In the eastern counties, though most of the bombs fell in fields, four houses were destroyed and there was a small number of casualties.

"After dark the main enemy attack was upon the London area. A block of flats was hit and damage was done to houses, shops and other buildings and a number of people were killed and injured.

"Bombs were also dropped in many districts in the home counties and in south and southeast England. Most of these did no harm but in some places dwelling houses and other buildings were damaged. The number of casualties reported from all these areas is very small.

"Several bombs were dropped in one town in the southwest but no serious damage is reported though a few people were killed or injured.

"In an attack on a Midland town very little damage was done and the casualties were very few.

"In Southwest Scotland a hotel and some houses were damaged and a few people were killed or injured.

"According to reports so far received bombs dropped elsewhere caused very little damage and few if any casualties."

AT THE BELLE

"Dr. Kildare Goes Home"

Lew Ayres, Lionel Barrymore and the other Dr. Kildare characters plunge into another strange adventure in medical mystery in "Dr. Kildare Goes Home," now on the Belle Theatre screen. This time they leave the big city hospital to grapple with disease prevention and a clinic in a town stricken by financial panic, battle prejudice and opposition to cleaning up old wells and other unsanitary spots, and emerge triumphant after detecting and curing a mystery ailment. The new Kildare picture, which interlaces the dramatic and scientific moments with hilarious comedy, including the elopement plan of Lew Ayres and Laraine Day which goes astray in a laughable fiasco, is laid partly in the home town of the young doctor and partly in the clinic established in the neighboring town in an old residence. Failure of the paper mill has rendered almost every resident penniless, hence the clinic. A new doctor is added to the Kildare group in John Shelton who scored with Lana Turner in "We Who Are Young" and plays Dr. Davidson, Ayres' aid in the clinic project. Harold S. Bucquet, who had guided all the Kildare pictures, again directed. Players include Gene Lockhart as the "mystery patient", Alma Kruger, Samuel S. Hinds, Emma Dunn, Walter Kingsford, Nat Pendleton, Marie Blake, Nell Craig, Frank Orth, Horace McMahon and George Reed. Dramatic highlights include the emergency operation in the tenement, the battle of science to save Lockhart's life in the clinic, and the town meeting that finally endorses the clinic.

Nick Carter Mystery

Nick Carter, in the person of Walter Pidgeon, goes in for hectic new adventure in "Sky Murder," third of the popular detective series announced as the companion feature attraction. Pidgeon crosses swords with a mysterious band of international criminals following a murder in a luxury airliner, traces the organization to its lair and captures the "man behind", amid such thrills as walking on an airplane wing, fighting on a careening truck and, between thrills, getting into all manner of hilarious comedy scrapes through flirtations with Joyce Compton and other feminine charmers. The picture also introduces Karen Verne, new discovery from England. Players include Donald Meek, Edward Ashley, Tom Conway, George Lessey, Dorothy Tree, Frank Reicher, Chill Wills, Tom Neal and William Tannen. George Seitz, director of the Hardy family pictures, directed. The glamour highlight is a fashion parade of six beautiful models in gorgeous gowns at a Long Island party, the biggest thrill the capture of the gang by Pidgeon and "G-Men" and the comedy highlight the detective's accidental invasion of the dressing room of the fashion models.

"Britain at Bay"

"Britain at Bay" is the title of the new Canada Carries On series film to be presented on the same program.

A letter received by a London firm travelled nearly round the world to come from Palestine. It went via Singapore, California, New York and Lisbon.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Spring Parade"

Deanna Durbin's current picture, "Spring Parade," now at the Capitol theatre will be shown for the remainder of the week with a daily matinee, establishes a number of "firsts" for the singing star.

It is the first picture in which she has appeared in period costumes. She is seen in the role of a Hungarian peasant girl wearing the voluminous skirt and numerous starched petticoats of the peasant folk-dress.

It is her first period picture. The story is laid in Vienna, in the year 1896, in the reign of Emperor Franz Josef of Australia.

It is the first picture in which Deanna has ever performed anything but a ballroom dance in her productions. In "Spring Parade" she does the czardas, wild Hungarian peasant dance, with Mischa Auer, and the beautiful Viennese waltz with Robert Cummings as her partner.

For the first time in her eight pictures, lyrics for her songs were especially written for her voice. The words to her four numbers were written by Gus Kahn, dean of American lyric writers.

The added short subjects include "Spills and Thrills" a comedy, Universal News of the world. The fifth chapter of the thrilling serial "Tim Tyler's Luck" and the new "Canada Comes On" series. J. P. Priestley's "Britain at Bay" depicting the dramatic picturization of the spirit and defences of the "Citadel of Freedom."

The Pushkin Museum of Fine Arts in Moscow will be moved 300 yards to make room for a wide square in front of the Palace of the Soviets. The building weighs 50,000 tons and needs 20 miles of rail for the moving.

AT THE McCARTHY

"A Family of Nations"

George Bernard Shaw, the eminent British playwright, whose brilliant stage masterpieces have been acted in nearly every country on the globe, makes his film debut in "A Family of Nations," the dramatic story of the transition of Great Britain from an empire to a commonwealth, which comes next week to the McCarthy theatre.

In the picture, the world-famous octogenarian discusses, with his usual trenchant wit and shy humour the future of Great Britain and states his belief in its indomitable strength because its commonwealth of nations is founded on peace and democracy and universal law and order.

Other prominent personalities who appear in "A Family of Nations," which was filmed from a script by John Drinkwater, the great English playwright, and produced by E. R. Conne, include Mr. Drinkwater, Lady Astor and Sir Austen Chamberlain.

"A Family of Nations" mirrors the exciting and dramatic events which made Great Britain into the greatest permanent league of nations the world has ever known.

SHOULD INCREASE SUPPORT

Toronto, Nov. 7 (CP)—Norman A. Mackenzie, President of the University of New Brunswick and chairman of the Canadian Save the Children Fund, said in a letter to the Toronto Fund Committee today that "with the abandonment of the plan for bringing British children to Canada, it becomes increasingly important that Canadian support for the children of Britain should be greatly increased."

Deanna Durbin, star of Universal's colorful film achievement, "Spring Parade." Romance is the dominant factor in this fascinating story of gay Vienna now showing for remainder of week at the Capitol with a daily matinee.

"THE GORGON'S MASK"

by Van Wyck Mason

CHAPTER EIGHT.

Clark, trembling a little, crossed the room.

"Look here, sir," he pleaded hoarsely, "you don't understand. I—I—you've GOT to let me say goodbye to Nadia. You see"—he was fearfully in earnest—"I love her terribly—I'll go crazy if I can't see her again."

"No." North's tone was final as he glanced at his wrist watch. "It's ten o'clock now, and that boat sails in an hour and a half. There's a secret service man downstairs who is going to follow you and see that you get aboard that liner. Try any funny stuff and you'll land in the blackest cell you ever saw."

"Sorry, sir." Those two words held such a world of pathos, disillusionment, and despair that North tried to forget his wrath at the crushing burden that this incompetent had thrust upon his shoulders.

"Better get along," he advised in a kindlier tone, "and when you get aboard that boat, do some heavy thinking; get your feet back on the ground."

"Thank you," the other replied in the toneless accents. "It's mighty decent of you to say that, and I'll try. But—but—"

Abruptly he snatched up his officer's cap and hurried from the room.

Wherein lay this Stefan woman's peculiar charm? Wilson Clark, not to speak of Jerry Cross, had had exceptionally brilliant records up to the time of associating with her. What did she look like? Was she really a Russian, or did she hail from one of those Slavic states in the Balkans?

Perhaps ten minutes later the door opened to reveal the angular, gray-flanneled form of Bruce Kilgour, with a very British sun helmet tucked under one arm.

"Hello, old lad—fancy finding you in Honolulu.

"I'd rather be in . . . you guess!"

"I can—jolly mess out at Polk's place—eh, what?"

"Ghastly, Bruce," North admitted. "I see you, too, found food for thought."

"Enough to last a year," the Englishman admitted. "I say—the wind must be up for fair — saw your friend Clark going down the hall and the blighter looked as if his mother'd just died." There was in Kilgour's voice a definite invitation for confidence, but North merely grunted:

"Oh, did you? Well, I'm mighty glad to have you here, Bruce. Have a whisky and soda?"

"Count me dead when I say no," chuckled the Englishman and removed his coat. "And I do need a little stimulation after that ugly matter out at his majesty's. Rather!"

"Majesty? Well, I suppose to call Abner Polk a steel king is okay," North solemnly agreed as he let a cube of ice tinkle into his glass. "But what would you call that unfortunate girl who spoiled our coffee and liqueurs?"

The Englishman's face, one of those that never tan and are eternally raw and red, became quite solemn.

"A tragic and a significant enigma, Hugh. It was about her that I came to talk to you."

A ghost of a smile appeared beneath North's mustache. "So Downing street's worried, too? Strange, but when I got my orders I half expected to find either you or Blythe-Seddons here. I'm glad it's you," he added.

"Handsomely said, old lad," and the Englishman's features creased in a smile. "And when I realized that Anglo-American-Japanese fat was so near the fire, I was sure it would be Hugh North your crowd would send to use the extinguisher. But you've come too late, Hugh—a week too late. I know what you're up against—and who—which is a lot worse."

"Don't talk so much," North laughed, "or I'll think you don't like my liquor."

"Oh, I like it all right," Kilgour remarked as he stared into his glass with absurd intensity, "but I'd enjoy it a lot more if you would show me whatever it was you took from that murdered girl's hair."

Captain North stared and looked so convincingly blank that Kilgour laughed. "From the dead girl's hair? I say, Bruce, do you ever see spots before your eyes, or hear queer ringing noises in your ears?"

"Very seldom," Bruce Kilgour replied firmly. "Come on, old lad, I saw you take a small object from her hair when you—er—tested to see if she'd been stunned. After all, you know there are some bright people in intelligence services outside of the United States."

"Are there?" North's steel-gray eyes sparkled a little, and he grinned like a small boy. "Where?"

"England has a few, you know—and Japan, perhaps. Look here," Kilgour resumed suddenly, "we used to work pretty well together during the war; why shouldn't we help each other now?"

"Why should we?" countered the American intelligence captain, with one forefinger absently tapping the frosted side of his tall glass.

Kilgour shrugged. "For obvious reasons. About Nippon I honestly can't tell whether she wants war or not—the militarists over there are very strong."

"How about us."

"Oh, America doesn't want a war with Japan; on the face of it you'd have nothing to gain and everything to lose," Kilgour continued earnestly. "Besides, you know bloomin' well England wouldn't and—to be practical—couldn't afford to stand aside and watch you Yanks get licked by Japan!"

"Strange," North remarked to a vivid green beetle which suddenly dropped onto the window sill, "but on the Halolo I came to the same conclusion. Everyone thinks that John Bull and Company isn't financially organized for a war right now . . . here or in Europe."

Kilgour absently tinkled the ice in his glass. "Quite right. So you see, Hugh, there's every reason why you should trust me."

"On?" queried North.

"On." And with no more formality than that, the alliance was sealed—yet it was more binding than any that could have been secured with oaths, pledges, and bright red seals.

North wasted no time plunging into his problem.

"That murder this evening shows that things are getting pretty tight."

"A puzzler all right," said Bruce Kilgour. "Since the poor thing wasn't drowned, I can't understand how her body got there and even less what she means to this situation as a whole."

The American agent expressed himself frankly puzzled. "It bothered me a lot when I found that she was still warm."

Kilgour proceeded to pull out and load a short-stemmed pipe, before asking, "How do you think she was murdered?"

"Hard to say, but she must have died quickly, since her lungs were full of air," North remarked. "A quick poison might have done the trick; or suffocation. . . . No, that won't do; her face wasn't congested."

"But, old chap, how could she have been killed without marking her? The poor girl was naked as a jay bird, and there wasn't a wound on her that I could see—and I looked very carefully. That scratch on her neck—does that suggest anything?"

"Yes—I've a theory about that," North said quietly, "but, I don't think it could have caused her death."

"Then it was just a scratch?"

"No, it was more than that." North removed from the foot of his bed a shirt with one wet sleeve.

Kilgour looked a trifle mystified. "Wash night?"

"No—I've been removing some evidence from the cuff. Look at this," he held out a small square of paper. "What do you make of it?"

"Looks like a ground plan of Yyres after the war. What is it?"

"A valuable clue and a possible explanation of the murder, if we can solve the Chinese ideograph."

"What? That odd-looking set of scratches?"

The American's bronzed head shook slowly. "Think back."

"That's right — Kanamura was quite fascinated by it."

"He was all of that, Bruce, the intelligence captain added impassively. "If you know anything about Japs, you realized that he was about as excited as he could be under that frozen face of his."

"True. Then Hideyo Kanamura, the wealthy ship chandler, is a part of your problem—and, by the bye, just what IS your assignment here in Honolulu?"

"Oh, not much — nothing at all. Only to learn who's been promoting this rumored row between the visiting Japanese squadron and our American ships—and to forestall any such an attempt."

Bruce Kilgour uttered a brief whistle and eyed his host with new interest. "Too late, Hugh, and too large an order. But how do you plan to tackle the problem?"

The intelligence captain momentarily paused. . . . "First, I want to try to line up the people mixed up with the murdered girl. For instance — why was her body sent drifting towards the float of Abner Polk's place?"

Moira Lodge Freemasons Honor Bro. Mayor Thompson With Municipal Night

Officials of City, Members of Various Municipal Organizations, Who Are Masons, Fill Offices for Occasion—Mayor W. Morrison of Hamilton Speaks on Municipal Taxation, Says Real Estate Bears Far Too Many Taxes and Urges Intense War Effort on Part of Every Citizen.

Moira Lodge No. 11 A.F. and A. M. whose history dates from the 10th of March, 1801, when it was constituted with Wor. Bro. Capt. John Walden Myers, as the first worshipful master, marked a memorable occasion on Wednesday evening when a "municipal night" program was held at the Masonic Temple to mark the entry of Belleville's Mayor, G. E. Thompson, into Freemasonry. Honoring the event there came as guest one of the outstanding municipal authorities and executives in the Dominion, Bro. Mayor W. Morrison, of Hamilton, a former member of the Provincial Legislature. For the evening in the lodgeroom, Wor. Master J. E. Bateman and his officers yielded the offices of the lodge to Masonic officers and brethren who are municipal officials or members of civic departments.

"Municipal Night" Officers

The "municipal night" offices and those who assumed them for the time were: W. M.—Very Wor. Bro. F. G. Chamberlain, City Auditor; I. P. M.—Rt. Wor. Bro. H. J. Clarke, Alderman; S. W.—Bro. H. J. Armstrong, Alderman; J. W.—Bro. C. Baragar, Commissioner; Chaplain—Bro. H. McGinnis, Sanitary Inspector; Treasurer—Bro. H. D. Bateman, Comptroller; Secretary—Bro. H. B. Stock, City Treasurer—S. D.—Bro. C. R. Clapp, Commissioner; J. D.—Bro. H. J. Allin, Alderman; D. of C.—Bro. M. P. Duff, Commissioner; I. G.—Bro. A. Kennedy, Alderman; S. S.—Bro. C. Mott, City Engineer; J. S.—Bro. W. Harvey, Alderman; Tyler—Bro. D. Jeffery, Alderman; assisting P. M.—Wor. Bro. A. Kidd, Chief of Police, Wor. Bro. J. W. Holmes, City Clerk; Rt. Wor. Bro. J. O. Herity, Industrial Commissioner; Wor. Bro. H. Thompson, brother of candidate.

The Mayor of Hamilton brought to the gathering in the dining hall one of the finest addresses ever heard on the problems of the municipalities. He stressed the need of a change in the situation which loads real estate with every possible tax so that real estate is ceasing to be an investment and there is danger of Canada losing its reputation as a nation of home owners as the percentage of home owners is becoming smaller.

Mayor Morrison spoke on sustaining the war effort until victory is achieved.

At the fourth degree in the banquet halls, the brethren and the officials and members of the city services held high festival to the music of Moira Lodge Orchestra and the playing of Mr. E. James Corradi on the piano. Wor. Bro. J. E. Bateman occupied the chair with the Mayor of Belleville at his right and the guest Mayor of Hamilton at his left. The company honored the toast to "The King and the Craft" with the singing of the National Anthem and drank the toast to Grand Lodge and Grand Lodge officers.

Miss Bernice Arbuckle, of the Public Utilities staff gave two fine readings which the brethren enjoyed as their applause of appreciation made clear.

Mayor Morrison's Career

Bro. H. B. Stock city treasurer introducing Mayor W. Morrison indicated his remarkable career. After having practised law for some time in Hamilton Mr. Morrison offered himself for election as alderman and held the post for three years. He became controller for five years. [illegible] 1929 was elected member of the Provincial Legislature for [illegible] He resumed the [illegible] in 1934 and then [illegible] municipal service on [illegible]or. He is now closing his sixth year and Mr. Stock [illegible] would again be a [illegible] next year. Four of the six terms were given him by acclamation. Mr. Stock said that Mayor Morrison had the distinction of being the only mayor who had a lady member of the Board of Control, namely Miss N. Henderson.

Mayor Morrison is strong in keeping down capital expenditure and debt reduction had followed his entry into office. Mr. Stock said.

Hamilton's Financing

The visiting mayor, explaining how reduction of the debt was brought about, said interest rate had been reduced from five and one half per cent by taking advantage of short term loans as low as 1.5 per cent and long term loans at a little less than 3 per cent. "This has been obtained by winning the confidence of the investment public by putting in a business administration," he said.

As a result the debt has been reduced over two million dollars a year since he became mayor. He made this reference as his introducer had mentioned a large reduction in the debt of the city of Hamilton.

Mayor Morrison referred to the associations with Masonry and to the lessons which may be learned in their order which will prove of great value in life in the municipal field as in ability to speak, confidence, the teaching of brotherly love and many other invaluable lessons of the craft.

Real Estate Burdened With Taxes

"I find you have a 41 mill rate in Belleville, but I am assured that the assessment is not near up to value."

"The reason is that the home which was formerly the most valuable investment is now not an investment but a liability. Financial men used to have their wealth in real estate, but now financial men do not want real estate for one reason, because it is the carrier of every burden known to the taxing public because it is visible."

Church And Home

Tax the home for services to the home but "they" tax the home for everything in the world. There must be some adjustment or the name of Canada, the country of homes, will be gone and the children will be living in a few rooms and in automobiles.

Today the church and the home, the two most essential institutions in the world are being destroyed. Actively in Germany and Russia where they destroy home and church and wipe out marriages, now giving divorces by post card, marriage under this system being just a convenience, children are taken from mothers and put into institutions and creches, and the women separated from the training of their children.

Here in Canada the church and home are being destroyed passively. Across Canada there is a lessening percentage of home owners. Why should the home have to pay for hospitalization? Social service and relief are all services to the individual and should be paid for by individual.

He once told a Minister of the Crown that "you are catering to people you don't have to cater to. Come out with some straightforward proposition and the public will support you."

Once he had been told that he would be beaten for office if he took such a stand. As a matter of fact, said Mayor Morrison "I was never beaten except once when I was on the political platform." For Mayor of Hamilton he was first elected by 3,800 majority, then he had four acclamations in a row and last year he had a majority of 7,400.

Business Administration

"I contend that any member of a council can be elected if he puts in a business administration and tells the people what he thinks, open and above board. People may criticize but they will vote for him.

"People of Belleville, what help do you ever give your city council? I can safely say that ninety per cent of the times you have occasion to speak of the council is to find fault. Every town wants to keep up with the Jones but does not want to pay for it. Every organization has its pet, and wants its baby placed on the mayor's lap and no one else's placed there.

Home Bears Too Many Taxes

"There is only one way in which any mayor can get money. Taxation on the home. You people should be the last ones to come up and ask him to spend money and lay on the home taxes which should never be placed upon it.

Speaking of mayoral duties, Mayor Morrison remarked: "You may think when the mayor goes out of town he is on a joy-ride. Belleville won't get a lot if the mayor does not go on a joy-ride. The only man to get anything for the city is the mayor. Bodies will listen to him."

Steady War Effort

The visiting mayor referred to the necessity of steady war effort. "Loyalty is bigger than politics. The only way we can win the war is fighting shoulder to shoulder with the Empire against the foe." He pointed out the need of equipment in modern war and declared.

"The greatest thing in the world is that we had fliers. They have defeated the invasion and have given Britain time".

He referred to the trials of the British people and declared: "We must put ourselves in the position to give Great Britain what she needs. We have not started yet. We cry at income tax. I say, we should feel lucky we have the money to pay income tax".

"If there is anything you can do, individually or collectively, to help the Government fight the war to help Great Britain fight the issue, you must do it".

Mr. Morrison said he had always believed the working classes and the middle class were fair-minded. When he looked at the result of the elections in the United States, he said, "thank God, my confidence in the middle classes and the working men is justified".

Strength in Unity

The mayor urged that all people, irrespective of their politics or their own pet ideas should "go one with the British Empire and nothing will be able to defeat you".

Dr. Kinnear in moving a vote of thanks to Mayor Morrison said that "civic government is the best form of government we have."

He praised Mayor Morrison's address on its vigorous comprehensive character.

Toast to Bro. Mayor Thompson

Wor. Bro. J. E. Bateman, declared it was an honor to have the Moira Lodge to drink the health of Bro. Mayor G. E. Thompson.

His Worship Mayor Thompson spoke of the honour which he felt was his in having been chosen during the past year to represent Belleville, his native city, as mayor. He referred to his new associations with the Masonic brethren and said it was an unforgettable occasion. He thanked those who had put on the civic night program on this occasion.

Visiting Mayors

Toasting the visiting mayors, W. Bro. Harold McElrath mentioned that Mayor Alyea of Trenton, had been present at the earlier part of the evening to represent Trenton Masons and municipality and that Mayor McKibbon of Picton and Deputy Reeve Nicholson of Sidney, were in the audience. The mayor of Picton made a gracious address of thanks and comment and the Deputy Reeve of Sidney, also spoke in a very happy vein of the instruction and enjoyment of the evening.

Moira Lodge Orchestra gave a patriotic program. One of the numbers was a selection of patriotic numbers including "There'll Always be an England", the company joining in the song.

The War Today

By GUY RHOADES
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Germany was reported today to have ordered all Germans in Greece to leave that country, a move that caused some to believe Hitler might be about to send his troops to help the sorely-tried Italians who have been kicking futilely at Greece's back door for the last 11 days.

How Germany could get troops to the Greek front was something of a puzzle but it is known she already has sent thousands into Rumania, possibly in the hope of acquiring transit rights through Bulgaria which would enable her to join Italy in attacking Greece on two fronts.

Yugoslavia Firm

Whether she could also obtain transit rights through Yugoslavia was a question made more difficult today by a stiff Yugoslav declaration that she will answer with armed force any further violation of her territory such as occurred two days ago when planes, identified by ground watchers, as Italian, bombed a border town, killing a number of civilians.

While such a speculation lacked confirmation it was given added strength by hints that the Italian big push had started against Greece and that at its western extremity the Greek line had yielded slightly to pressure.

The Albanian city of Koritza which the Greeks have been shelling for several days apparently remained in Italian hands and military experts—despite reports the city had fallen with 30,000 defenders—said they believed the Greeks would not occupy it. An attempted occupation, these experts said, would bring the Greeks out onto the plains and expose them to the force of Italian mechanized troops which they avoid by staying in the mountains.

Non-Axis Powers and U. S. Election

There appeared a consensus throughout the world that the re-election of President Roosevelt for a third term had strengthened the hands of non-Axis powers resisting "new orders" in Europe and Asia. A Japanese spokesman was the only Axis official who voiced any concern over the election and he said Mr. Roosevelt should alter his Far East policy in favor of Japan.

After more than three years of warfare against China the Japanese appear to be finding the going extremely hard. In the north they appear to have found it necessary to shorten their lines to a considerable degree and Chinese reports say illness, as well as Chinese bullets, has caused severe casualties among them.

British Empire sources unofficially expressed pleasure at Mr. Roosevelt's re-election, not only because of personal regard for him but because plans laid for supplying the allies with needed weapons and supplies will not pass into untried hands.

ITALIANS CLAIM TO HAVE PASSED KALAMAS RIVER

London Says, Also, Duce Has Begun "Big Push" Against Greeks

HAS BEEN EXPECTED

Rome, Nov. 7 (AP)—The Italian High Command today claimed divisions have passed beyond the Kalamas River in Western Greece after they had reached the stream eight days ago in their drive from Albania.

(This is the sector in which the Greek High Command reported its troops made a slight withdrawal under pressure).

(The Kalamas River roughly parallels the Albanian border from five to 15 miles inside Greece in the Epirus region).

At the same time the High Command reported the battle still continued in East Africa after fighting was precipitated by a British attack on Italian positions at Gallabat.

"Repelled by our garrison," the communique said. "The enemy suffered considerable losses and later resumed attacks. The action is still underway.

"Our Air Force co-operated with our troops in repeated attacks during which our fighters shot down six enemy Gloster planes."

(Reports of this encounter were not confirmed in British quarters).

London (CP)—Reports reaching London by radio indicated that the Italian "big push" against the Greeks forecast in London yesterday now is underway.

An Italian headquarters communique heard in London by radio claimed Italian divisions had crossed the Kalamas River where the main Fascist attack had been expected to develop.

Girls' Softball Loop Stages Social Evening

Following the revival of girls' softball and a successful season on the diamond last summer the year's activities were culminated with a social evening and dance at the Trianon Ballroom last evening when the players of all clubs composing the Belleville Girls' Softball League, league executives and friends enjoyed the gala occasion and general softball fraternizing dominated the night's program. Music was supplied by Bud Haines' Commodores, while prize dances and favours added to the frivolity of the evening's entertainment.

President E. E. Schwab acted as master-of-ceremonies and introduced the speakers who were called upon for impromptu words. Secretary Jack McVeigh presented the Frontenac Trophy, emblematic of the girls' softball championship of Belleville, to the champion Zeller nine. The cup was accepted by Manager Morley Wyman and Coach Charlie Barnet. Harry Rollins, representing the O.A.S.A., was also present and spoke of the splendid cooperation of all sporting bodies in Belleville.

YUGOSLAVS WILL REPEL FURTHER BOMB ATTACKS

Press Praises Government for Adopting Strong Attitude

PROTECT NEUTRALITY

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Nov. 7 (AP)—The Yugoslav Press praised today the Government's announcement it would answer with "armed force" any repetition of attacks on Yugoslav territory such as the bombing of Bitolj Tuesday by unidentified foreign planes.

One paper expressed the opinion that the bombers had mistaken Bitolj for one of the cities in the nearby Greek-Albanian war zone, but warned:

"In the future Yugoslovia will be ready to protect its neutrality."

Gen. Petar Pesitch took over the War Ministry portfolio relinquished last night by Gen. Milan Nedio, reported to have resigned because Government orders prevented Yugoslav troops from firing on the planes which bombed Bitolj.

Hrvatski Dnevnik, the mouthpiece of Vice-Premier Vladimir Macek, said the Yugoslav neutrality policy had been approved by both the Italian and Greek press and added:

"It can be supposed that England has no reason to attack Yugoslavia."

In relations with the Axis powers, the paper said, Germany obtained important gains in a new trade agreement with Yugoslavia "and also concessions in the question of railway communications."

The latter reference was taken in some quarters as confirmation of reports that Yugoslavia had permitted passage of railway cars between Italy and Germany without the usual customs inspection.

POLICE COURT

Two Men Plead Guilty to Theft

Admit Taking Seed Grain and Heifer Calf From District Farmers

Richard J. Ewing, Toronto, and 17-year-old Thomas Van Zalkenburg, Thurlow, were both convicted on two charges of theft upon their own admission when they were arraigned before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C. in today's County Police Court session held at the Court House. The pair was remanded for sentence and held in custody.

Ewing and Van Zalkenburg admitted the theft of 700 pounds of seed grain, the property of Mrs. J. White, Thurlow, and also to the taking of a heifer calf, valued at $50, the property of Dennis Callaghan, Tyendinaga Township farmer. "Restitution has been made by Van Zalkenburg's father, I understand," stated Crown Attorney S. G. Robertson, as he introduced Ewing's list of previous convictions which proved quite lengthy.

"I might say that Ewing is wanted in Toronto on a charge of housebreaking" revealed Provincial Constable J. G. Burton, who apprehended the pair at the time of their arrest. "I'll reserve sentence until the Toronto authorities are notified," concluded His Worship.

Plead Guilty to Speeding

Several cases of violations of the Highway Traffic Act were heard including charges of speeding preferred against H. Robinson, Francis Carter and Arthur Foster with written pleas of guilty and fines of $5 and costs being imposed.

"Just why men will drive motor vehicles without first having obtained an operator's permit at the cost of a dollar bill when they are liable to a $10.00 fine is hard to understand," commented Magistrate Butler when Robert Loft, Tyendinaga, cheerfully stated he would "rather have the jail term" of 15 days than pay a $10 fine. Loft was charged by Motorcycle Patrolman J. H. Hatch with driving without a license. He readily admitted the offence.

Raymond Latchford paid $9.75, fine and costs, after admitting he had overloaded his truck, while Dr. L. T. Armstrong tendered a written plea of guilty to a charge of operating a motor car without adequate or proper lights. The latter was assessed $5 and costs, which was paid before court opened.

WARTIME SECRECY

came Monday afternoon when the 16,698-ton liner Rangitiki and the freighter Cornish City wirelessed they were "being gunned" by an enemy ship of the Graf Spee type. Later, the wireless station at Portis Head, England, reported a convoy "still being leisurely attacked by a raider" at approximately the same position.

Silence from the Admiralty possibly meant British cruisers were attempting to run down the raider, much as the Royal Navy accounted for the pocket battleship Admiral Graf Spee off Uruguay last December. Germany has two pocket battleships remaining, the Luetzow (formerly the Deutschland) and the Admiral Scheer.

The Rome Ba[illegible] contributed to the mystery by claiming in a broadcast, heard here by the National Broadcasting Company: "The Cunard liner Carpathia has been sunk." The Carpathia, which participated in the rescue of survivors of the Titanic disaster, was sunk during the First Great War and no ship of the same name is known to exist.

No Canadian Airmen on Ships

Ottawa, Nov. 7—(CP)—No Canadian airmen are aboard the ships reported attacked in mid-Atlantic this week by a German raider, according to Air Minister Power's information.

The Minister told a press conference today he did not think Canadian graduates of the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan Schools were on the ships and that he had no information that any Canadian airmen were on board.

Prospects of the Air Force obtaining some of the radio mechanics it needs are looking up a bit, Major Power said, but the response to the appeal for men skilled in servicing and repairing radio apparatus is still far short of what the service wants.

"The last report we had showed there were some potentials but they were largely in the officer class," he said. After conferring with his deputy, James S. Duncan, he added that things were looking up a little as far as radio mechanics for other ranks were concerned.

Major Power thought possibly the announcement of the requirements for admission as officers might have frightened some potential recruits. Officers had to be graduates in physics from universities and there were not many such men available. Competent radio mechanics who were not university graduates were also wanted.

Asked why Acting Wing Cmdr. Ernest McNab of Regina was transferred from the Royal Canadian Air Force to the Royal Air Force Maj. Power said he presumed it was to give McNab a wider command. The latter commanded Canada's No. 1 fighter squadron which is engaged in the air battles over the South of England with the rank of Squadron Leader.

While no new contributions have come in recently for war scientific research, Maj. Power said some persons had approached the department with the suggestion that sweepstakes be staged to raise money for planes. Such proposals could not be considered, he said.

SEVERAL CHANGES IN U.S. MINISTERS MAY BE EXPECTED

Joseph Kennedy, Ambassador to England, May be Given Another Post

DIPLOMATS IN CHARGE

Washington, Nov. 7. — (AP) — Presaging action to reinforce United States foreign policies, President Roosevelt and State Secretary Cordell Hull today began re-checking the nation's diplomatic representation in European capitals.

As a result of the war and the consequently altered relationships with belligerent nations, there has been a considerable 'turnover' among American Ambassadors and Ministers in Europe, necessitating a reshuffling soon and probably several changes in important posts.

Joseph Kennedy, Ambassador to Britain, whose return to the United States produced reports he intended to resign conferred with Hull yesterday but declined to discuss the future except to tell newspapermen he had "no plans".

The President and Hull stated several times, prior to the election, that they had no information that Kennedy would not return to London. Informed officials said today there had been no change in this situation and it was expected Kennedy would return to his post after a vacation from London's around-the-clock bombings.

Kennedy, however, has been mentioned as a possible chairman of The National Defence Committee, a position not yet filled by President Roosevelt.

The United States is now represented at the capitals of the four western European nations by Charges D'Affaires instead of the usual ambassadors.

Diplomat in Charge at London

Herschel Johnson, a career diplomat, is in charge of the London embassy during Kennedy's absence.

Leland B. Morris, another foreign service career man, is Charge D'Affaires in Berlin, where the United States has not been represented by an ambassador since the recall two years ago of Hugh Wilson, now on special duty in the State Department. There has been no indication an ambassador to Germany would be named in the near immediate future.

Edward L. Reed, counselor, is Charge D'Affaires in Rome during the absence of William Phillips, the ambassador, now on leave in Massachusetts. Phillip's health is reported so poor that he probably will not return to Rome. No one, however, has been mentioned as a possible successor.

Diplomatic observers here also do not expect William C. Bullitt, ambassador to France, to return to Vichy. H. Freeman Matthews, secretary of the embassy, is acting as Charge D'Affaires.

Since the United States still recognizes Poland, it was expected that Anthony Drexel Biddle, now here on leave, will rejoin the Polish government now established in London as American ambassador.

Police Blotter

Unable to ascertain the owner of a parked motor car, which he accidentally struck while parking his own automobile, Roy Wood, Bull Street, reported to police he had damaged the fender of an automobile bearing licence plates number 47-N-56 while attempting to park on Front Street yesterday. The right rear fender of Wood's car scrapped the rear fender of the parked vehicle, as he drove into the curb he told police after reporting the incident. City police will ascertain the owner's name through the motor vehicle licence branch.

Ormal Shaw, Belleville, reported to police the theft of a valuable guitar, which he left in a local department store. As the article was missing for some days before being reported police entertained little hopes in its recovery, but promised assistance to the owner.

Only three transients sought warm sleeping quarters at the police station last night, despite the season's initial cold snap.

MRS. OUTERBRIDGE AND SON RETURN FROM JAPAN

Daughter of Late Rev. E. N. Baker of Belleville, Among Party of Wives and Children of Missionaries Returning From Japan as 'Precautionary Measure'

Toronto, Nov. 7.— (CP)— Rev. Jesse H. Arnup, secretary of the Board of Foreign Missions for the United Church of Canada, announced today that as a "precautionary measure" the wives of three church missionaries and nine children have left the Mission Station in Japan and will arrive at a West Coast Canadian port.

A cable received by Dr. Arnup said that all men missionaries and single men serving in the station had elected to stay in Japan as long as the situation permits.

Included in the returning party are Muriel and John, children of Rev. and Mrs. G. E. Bott of Toronto, well-known at Howard Park United Church, Toronto. Another to return is Peter MacKenzie, son of Prof. and Mrs. A. P. MacKenzie of Toronto who will remain in Japan.

Mrs. H. W. Outerbridge and her son, William, are in the party. She is the wife of the treasurer of the Japan Mission. Mrs. Outerbridge is the daughter of the late Rev. E. N. Baker, a former principal of Albert College of Belleville, Ont. A daughter, Dorothy, is dietician at Alma College, St. Thomas, Ontario.

CMDR. BOWER AIRS COMPLAINT

Says He Was Shunted to Inferior Post in Navy After Writing to First Lord of Admiralty

By J. F. SANDERSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 7 (CP Cable)—Commander R. T. Bower declared in the House of Commons today that Sir Dudley Pound, the man at the head of the Navy "is not the man he was" and that "there is definite disquiet about the Board of Admiralty as a whole."

The Conservative member of Parliament and veteran naval officer has long been noted for his outspoken comments. He participated today in a short debate on the sinking of the aircraft carrier Glorious during operations off Norway with the loss of 1,200 men.

Cmdr. Bower accused the First Lord of the Admiralty, A. V. Alexander, of adopting Gestapo methods toward him and other officers and reminded the First Lord, who is actually his service chief, that the war is not being fought to set up Mr. Alexander "as a little pinchbeck Himmler with a tinpot staff."

Cmdr. Bower charged he was shunted to an interior appointment in the Navy after writing to Mr. Alexander that "grave concern was felt among responsible members of the Naval Staff at the conduct of operations in Norway and also in connection with the loss of the Glorious."

He declared that a "fog of secrecy" has been imposed to "conceal deficiencies of senior officers."

Sir Dudley Pound, whom Cmdr. Bower mentioned by name, is First Sea Lord of the Admiralty.

'Victimization' Denied

Mr. Alexander denied there ever was "any victimization" of Commander Bower and declared he had "no reason not to pay tribute to the service capacity and patriotic devotion of the First Sea Lord."

Declaring that "our first and only duty at the moment is to concentrate upon beating a very ruthless enemy," Mr. Alexander declined to answer questions on naval operations, raised by R. R. Stokes, Labor.

Cmdr. Bower, who criticized the Board of Admiralty in the House of Commons today, figured in a sensational incident in the House April 4, 1938, when Emanuel Shinwell, Labor, crossed the chamber and slapped his face as an upshot of a sharp oral exchange.

When fate of the Chamberlain administration was in the balance over the general conduct of the Norwegian campaign last May, a speech by Cmdr. Bower was credited with swinging several Conservative votes toward helping the Opposition parties come close to defeating the Government. As a result of the near defeat the Government resigned and Prime Minister Churchill took office.

CHRONICLE ACTIVITIES OF CAMP BORDEN

Toronto, Nov, 7 —(CP)— United States newspaper editors who toured Canada recently were so impressed with the display they saw at Camp Borden that they persuaded the newsreel companies to chronicle the activities of the camp.

Eleven movie cameramen from five states and one Canadian company arrived here today.

"This is quite a compliment to Camp Borden; believe me," said John Grierson, English producer and now Dominion Film Commissioner. "Eleven cameras is big stuff. It shows how swiftly U. S. interest in Canada is increasing."

Text of Throne Speech

Ottawa, Nov. 7—(CP)—Text of the Speech from the Throne, read by the Governor-General at the opening of Parliament today, follows:

Honorable members of the Senate; members of the House of Commons:

Since last you met for deliberation, all countries have come to have a clearer conception of the magnitude of the present conflict and its menace to civilization.

Additional nations have been threatened with war, or have become involved in war. But little of freedom is now left in Europe. Force and fear have been supplemented by subtle intrigue.

International tension has been heightened by the formation of an alliance between the axis powers and Japan.

While these events have added enormously to the uncertainties of the world situation, other events of even greater significance have served to confirm our confidence in the ultimate outcome of the struggle. First and foremost has been the magnificent resistance of the United Kingdom.

For four months, Britain has constituted the front line of battle against the forces of aggression. The spectacular advance of the enemy has been halted by the indomitable spirit of her people.

Conscious of Nazi Menace

The destruction of freedom throughout Europe has awakened, in the western hemisphere, a fuller consciousness of the Nazi menace. In the face of the common peril there has arisen a closer association and an increasing measure of co-operation between the United States of America and the nations of the British Commonwealth.

You have been summoned at this time that opportunity may be afforded for the fullest consideration and discussion of Canada's war effort and of national problems which war has served to intensify or create. You will be fully advised of international developments; of Canada's co-operation with the United Kingdom, and of relations with the United States.

The measures which will be submitted to you are such as seem necessary to my advisers for the welfare of the country and for the prosecution of the war to the utmost of our strength.

Members of the House of Commons:

You will be asked to make financial provision for expenditure caused by the state of war which now exists. The estimates for the current fiscal year will be duly submitted to you for your consideration and approval.

Honorable members of the Senate; members of the House of Commons:

In the discharge of your very responsible duties may Divine Providence guide and bless your deliberations.

HEAR GERMANS ADVISED BY NAZIS TO LEAVE GREECE

61 Members of German Commercial Service in Greece Reach Belgrade

Belgrade, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Trustworthy advices from Greece today said that all Germans in Greece had been advised by German diplomatic officials to leave the country at once.

This move was interpreted in diplomatic quarters as indicating possibly that Germany foresees no early fulfilment of the expressed hope for a quick settlement of the conflict.

Sixty-one members of the German commercial service in Greece arrived here. They had left Athens with the Italian Legation staff.

Train service between Greece and Germany, which are separated by the length of Yugoslavia has been at a standstill since the Italian-Greek outbreak.

London, Nov. 7.—(CP)—Reuters News Agency dispatch from Ankara said today that a number of German Nationals are leaving Turkey in connection with the arrest at Istanbul of several Turks on suspicion of espionage.

Chinese Report Spirited Fighting Around Yamchow

Hong Kong, Nov. 7.—(CP)—Chinese forces occupying Japanese-evacuated districts in Kwangsi province reported spirited fighting today around Yamchow, near the Kwangtung seacoast. Japanese dispatches reported Japanese airmen were bombing advancing Chinese troops.

Severe fighting was reported in the vicinity of Chennankwan, a strategic pass on the Kwangsi-Indo-China border. The Japanese were so hard pressed here, said the Chinese, they had to call reinforcements from Langson, across the border in Indo-China.

Violation is "righteous when used against an aggressor for defence," V. D. Savarkar, president of the Hindu Mahasabha, told a meeting at Poona, India

PROSECUTE WAR TO THE UTMOST OF OUR STRENGTH

Earl of Athlone Tells Parliament in Throne Speech Gov't. is Preparing for Fullest Aid to Great Britain

NO PAGEANTRY

By C. R. Blackburn Canadian Press Staff Writer.

(Advance) Ottawa, Nov. 7 (CP)—Measures necessary "for the prosecution of the war to the utmost of our strength" were forecast in the Speech from the Throne with which the Earl of Athlone opened a new session of parliament today.

There was no specific mention in the speech of any legislative action the government proposes to introduce during the session.

Members were assured they would be "fully advised of international developments, of Canada's co-operation with the United Kingdom and of relations with the United States."

Through flurries of damp snow the Governor-General and the Princess Alice drove to Parliament Hill with a motorcycle police escort and, for the first time since he took office last summer, his Excellency presided at a formal opening of parliament.

No Pageantry at Opening

In keeping with the gravity of the times today's opening was shorn of customary brilliance and pageantry which characterised opening ceremonies in peace time.

More than half the 400-word Throne Speech dealt with the situation in Europe and Asia. It paid high tribute to the people of Great Britain whose "indomitable spirit" had halted "the spectacular advance of the enemy."

It had been expected the speech would give some indication of the government's intention to deal with the report of the Sirois Royal Commission on Dominion-Provincial relations. Since it was not mentioned it is expected the House of Commons will be asked to express an opinion on the calling of a Dominion-Provincial conference.

Customarily the Throne Speech gives a brief resume of major subjects on which legislation will be presented. Only mention of the program was contained in the following sentence:

"The measures which will be submitted to you are such as seem necessary to my advisers for the welfare of the country, and for the prosecution of the war to the utmost of our strength."

Eire's Neutrality To Remain Unchanged Says De Valera

Dublin, Nov. 7.—(CP)—Prime Minister De Valera told The Dail (parliament) tonight that there can be no question of handing over Irish ports to Britain so long as Eire remains neutral.

(Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons Tuesday that inability to use Irish ports as bases placed "a grievous burden" on the Royal Navy in its task of patrolling the Atlantic shipping lanes.)

GERMANS ADMIT RAIDS MADE BY R.A.F.

Berlin, Nov. 7 (CP)—The German high command admitted today that Royal Air Force planes raided German territory but claimed that in only two cases were industrial plants attacked. Immaterial damage was caused a boilerhouse and loading platform, the communique said. Several civilians were said to have been killed when residential sections were bombed.

(A British communique said works and railway facilities in Berlin suburbs, as well as oil plants and factories elsewhere were attacked by the R.A.F.)

LEON M. GOUIN NAMED TO SENATE

Ottawa, Nov. 7 —(CP)— Prime Minister Mackenzie King today announced the appointment to the Senate of Leon Mercier Gouin, Montreal, Liberal member of Parliament for the Division of Salaberry, Que. Mr. Gouin's appointment will fill the vacancy created by the death of Senator G. A. Fauteux.

His appointment raises the number of Liberal seats in the Red Chamber to 47. Conservative seats also number 47 and the number of vacancies is reduced to two.

4-YEAR-OLD GIRL FOUND IN THEATRE SEAT, HAD WALKED 4 MILES

Toronto, Nov. 7 —(CP)— Four-year-old Lillian Little is safe at home today after a four-mile walk through city streets yesterday. She had been missing nearly eight hours and was found curled up asleep in the front seat of a theatre around midnight. She had been left there by a nine-year old companion.

GREEK TURNCOAT DENOUNCED

Athens, Nov. 7 (AP)—The Greek announcer for the Berlin Radio, identified by authorities here as Evangelos Kyriakis, was denounced in a formal resolution by members of his family for urging Greece not to fight Italy's invading army. Five members of the Kyriakis family now are in the front lines fighting Italy.

Willkie Leads In Michigan

Detroit Nov. 7—(AP) — Revised unofficial presidential vote totals, now virtually complete, tipped Michigan back into the Republican column this afternoon. With three of the state's 3632 districts missing, the vote was: Willkie, 1,028,087; Roosevelt 1,025,774.

Ickes Resigns to Give President Roosevelt A Free Hand

Washington, Nov. 7 (AP)—Harold Ickes, United States Interior Secretary, submitted his resignation to President Roosevelt today offering to step out of his Interior Department post when and if President Roosevelt chooses to accept it.

Ickes told a press conference he rejoiced in Mr. Roosevelt's re-election and in offering to resign acted only to give the President a free hand should he desire to make a Cabinet change.

Ickes acted similarly after the President's re-election in 1936, as is customary, but not all his colleagues in the Cabinet followed suit.

"I for one," Ickes said, "believe the President should be left free at the beginning of a new administration to reshuffle, recreate or do anything he pleases with his official family, especially in view of the mighty task ahead of him."

Italians Attempt To Pierce Main "Metaxas Line"

Greek Spokesman Declares "Situation Is 'Thoroughly Satisfactory"

Athens, Nov. 8 (AP). — Italian forces were reported today to have been thrown back by Greece's defenders, both in the centre sector of the mountainous border front and on the northeastern wing, where the Greeks have been in Albania since the start of the war twelve days ago.

The gains of the right wing were described as small but those in the centre as important.

This centre sector is where a large number of Italians were reported trapped some days ago, according to dispatches from the front, and the remnants are being encircled now, it was said.

Earlier the high command announced that all attacks on the Greek left wing, along the main defences of the Metaxas Line, near the Ionian shore, had been thrown back.

The Italians had brought the full force of their mechanized forces into the battle to crack the line near the coast in a drive toward Ioannina.

Why The Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

Source of rain! The corn crop of the world is dependent upon moisture evaporated from ocean surfaces hundreds of miles away from the corn-cribs waiting to be filled. One can easily realize this by noting the damp sea breeze and the comparatively dry land breeze. The ocean surface is two and one-half times that of the land, and two hundred times that of all lakes, rivers and swamps. It has been estimated that if the water of all the lakes in the world were spread over the land, the depth would only be one-fifteenth of the annual land rainfall. There is, of course, evaporation from moist land surfaces, which does add to the water vapor supplied by the oceans.

NAZIS OFFENDED BY STATEMENT OF GEN. WEYGAND

French Commander Said "France Will Not Cede One Inch of Colonial Empire"

UPSETS NEGOTIATIONS

Vichy, France, Nov. 8 —(CP)—Diplomatic sources here said today that the Germans have taken offence at a statement by Gen. Maxime Weygand that "France will not cede one inch of her colonial empire."

Gen. Jean Bergeret, Air Minister, has been dispatched to Africa, where Gen. Weygand has charge of Vichy's interests, to confer with the former allied commander in chief.

Diplomatic sources reported that the Germans have threatened to break off negotiations for a general accord with Vichy as a result of Gen. Weygand's remark, which has not been published in France.

Today the Resident-General of Tunisia, Admiral Jean Esteva, arrived in Vichy and was reported to have given officials a pledge of both his own loyalty and that of the Moroccan Governor, Gen. Auguste Nogues. This was taken as offsetting foreign reports that Nogues had threatened to withdraw his allegianse to Vichy should Morocco be turned over to another nation.

Cromwell Admits Rift With Doris

Spring Lake, N.J., Nov. 8 (AP)—James H. R. Cromwell, former United States Minister to Canada, said that he and Mrs. Cromwell, the former Doris Duke, were estranged, but he added he had no knowledge of any plans of her instituting divorce proceedings.

Cromwell, defeated Tuesday as Democratic candidate for the United States Senate, said he had not seen Mrs. Cromwell since June 4—his birthday—at a party in New York.

Cromwell is staying at the Spring Lake home of his mother, Mrs. Edward T. Stotesbury. He said he had been making his home there the past few months, after moving from Mrs. Cromwell's estate at Somerville.

The former Minister said he planned to spend the next week in New Jersey, after which he would go to Florida for a short vacation.

Mrs. Cromwell is in California, en route to her home in Honolulu.

SPORADIC RAIDING MARKS AIR WAR IN LONDON AREA

Nazi Blows Aimed at Britain's Industry, Transport and Civilian Morale

FEW CASUALTIES

Raids Intensive in Early Hours of Night but Taper Off Toward Morning

London, Nov. 8 (CP)—German warplanes appeared early over London tonight after widely scattered daylight attacks over Britain.

Anti-aircraft guns roared into action almost immediately after the sirens wailed, and the first night bombers were heard droning high above the capital.

Five bombs plunged down on one southeastern town striking a working class street and causing three casualties.

The "raiders passed" signal ended London's first day raid about noon. It had lasted about 1 1-2 hours.

British Freighter Radios 'Sinking Slowly, All Lifeboats Smashed'

New York, Nov. 8 (AP).—The British freighter Empire Dorado radioed today that she was "sinking slowly" about 300 miles west of Ireland, and that there were "casualties aboard".

MacKay Radio picked up this message:

"Sinking slowly. No means of getting away. All lifeboats smashed. Two rafts still alongside. Help urgently requested. Casualties aboard. Latitude 55.7 North, 16.50 West."

Shipping records do not list an Empire Dorado.

Shipping men identified the Empire Dorado as the former United States freighter Tolosa, purchased from the United States Maritime Commission last May by Runciman Limited of London for $367,187.

She was due to arrive in New York Nov. 18 from United Kingdom ports.

The 5,527-ton freighter was built in 1920 at Portsmouth, N.H., and was laid up at Fort Eustis, Va., when the war began.

Part of her Scottish crew arrived here last June on the liner Cameronia and the ship loaded at Newport News, Norfolk and Philadelphia before making her first voyage under the British flag last July.

BLIZZARD SWEEPS SASKATCHEWAN

Saskatoon, Nov. 8 (CP)—Northern Saskatchewan was being swept by a blizzard early today. Strong northeast winds were general in all parts except the Prince Albert region, and snow was general except around Melville.

East End Londoners Carry on Daily Routine Despite Intensive Bombing

By DREW MIDDLETON
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 8 (AP).—There is no peace in London's bomb-harried east end where, after two months of almost continuous punishment by the German air raiders, residents have re-arranged their lives.

This morning, I watched them troop out of air raid shelters at 7 a.m. The women and children had been in there since seven o'clock last night. Most of the men had been there since 10 p.m. after their nightly beer and game of darts in a nearby pub.

The women emerged with rolls of bedding under their arms. The children carried teapots.

Inside the shelter, two men doused the bunks with insecticide, and two more spread disinfectant over the floor.

One of the men said the people quickly adjusted themselves to the routine of shelter existence.

"We got no faith in them sirens, though. We stay in the shelter until daylight, no matter what time the 'all clear' sounds.

"Funny, we don't talk about bombs any more, although some women lie awake almost all night looking over at their young ones. Some mothers are sending their children away. Hurts them, it does, but who'd want a kid to grow up like a wild thing living in a cave?"

The men don't get angry now the way they did in the first few nights of the concentrated attacks. They have come to accept ruined homes and shops as inevitable.

"All we're worrying about," one said, "is whether we're doing as much damage to Berlin as they're doing here. All we want is that Berlin gets a little of its own back."

Smashing Attacks Carried Out on German-Held Objectives During Night

London, Nov. 8—(CP)—Official sources reported today that the Royal Air Force carried out a smashing attack on various German held objectives during the night, particularly on the great Krupp armament works at Essen on which raids were reported to have been "exceedingly heavy."

Oil plants in Germany, "invasion ports," already black from fires and the demolition of many previous raids and airdromes in Nazi-occupied France also were blasted.

The other targets of the R.A.F. raiders were listed as a synthetic oil tank at Cologne, a large part of which was reportedly set afire; blast furnaces at Dusseldorg and Oberhausen; docks on the Dartmund-Ems Canal; the inland port of Duisberg; shipping in Dunkerque harbor and airdromes in Germany and German occupied territory.

Power Station Hit.

At Lorient, the Air Ministry News Service reported, the R.A.F. struck at a power station, naval workshops, barracks near a drydock, shipbuilding ways and railway approaches.

Tons of bombs started fires which were still visible for half an hour after the bombers had started home, the news service said.

Despite powerful ground defences, large concentrations of searchlights and interception attempts by Messerschmitt pursuit ships, the news service said, the British raiding force returned without casualties.

Aircraft of the coastal command also bombed airfields at Abbeville and Lannian, firing buildings at Abbeville and dropping explosives on the Lannian field as German planes were taking off.

FAVORS AS MUCH AID FOR BRITAIN AS CAN BE DONE

Jos. Kennedy, U.S. Ambassador to Britain, Says States Given Protection by Continuing Help

NO SIGN OF PEACE

Boston, Nov. 8—(AP)—Joseph P. Kennedy, describing himself as still on the job as ambassador to Great Britain, is ready to "be in London within 48 hours if an emergency arises that requires me there."

He made the statement last night in reply to newsmen's queries as to whether he intended to resign his post. Recently returned from London, Kennedy said he expected to remain in the United States until after Christmas.

Asserting he was "pessimistic" concerning chances of immediate peace, he said he was "strongly against the United States entering this war by the back door, front door or any other door."

Asserting he was "strong for supplying England as much as we can," he added:

"I find groups of different kinds pressing the administration and Congress, for different kinds of reasons, to give help to Britain.

"To me, the question of giving help should be resolved on one point only — what's best for the United States?

"On that basis, I should favor continued aid because it serves as an insurance policy for our preparation."

TRAINING PLANES COLLIDE, 1 KILLED

Lac. P. D. Carvalho of Toledo Victim of Accident and Lac. Fitzgerald, Toronto, Injured

Fort William, Ont., Nov. 8.—(CP)—Lac. P. D. Carvalho, 22, of Toledo, O., was killed, and a flying colleague, Lac. G. M. Fitzgerald, 20, of Toronto, suffered shock when two Royal Canadian Air Force training planes collided in mid-air late yesterday.

Both student pilots were on student flights it was shown in a report of the accident issued last night by Flt. Lt. H. C. Johnson, Commanding Officer of No. 2 Elementary Training School here. Carvalho's plane crashed on the bank of the Kaministiqua River, about 12 miles southwest of the Fort William Airport. Fitzgerald landed his machine in a nearby swamp and was placed in hospital for observation.

Carvalho's plane was badly damaged, part of the machine resting in the river. His next of kin is his father, L. Carvalho of Toledo.

BRIDGE COLLAPSES AT TACOMA, WASH. NO LOSS OF LIFE

World's Third Longest Suspension Span Destroyed by Gale on Thursday

FULLY INSURED

Tacoma, Wash., Nov. 8 (AP).—The elements won in the battle for the $6,400,000 narrows bridge, and the floor of the world's third largest suspension span lay in Puget Sound today. But man and his science will try again.

Agitated and twisted by a wind of gale proportions, the colossal structure, which only four months ago was dedicated as a monument to engineering science, crumbled, then collapsed with a mighty roar yesterday into the white-crested waves of the Sound.

There was no loss of human life. Two men—an engineer and a newspaperman—who were on the bridge when it began to twist violently, miraculously escaped, even as sections of the floor began hurtling into the waters 200 feet below.

Tubby, a cocker spaniel riding in the car with Leonard Coatsworth, Tacoma newspaperman, was not so fortunate. Coatsworth had to abandon his car to save his life. And the terrified Tubby nipped at the knuckles of Prof. F. G. Farquharson, the engineer, who attempted to release the dog. As Farquharson and Coatsworth made their separate and precarious ways to safety, the car and cocker spaniel fell into the Sound.

A. P. Andrew, chief engineer of the Washington toll bridge authority, who announced that plans for rebuilding the bridge would be undertaken immediately, attributed the tragedy to "substitution of plate girders eight feet in depth for a truss design which had previously been planned." He explained:

British Fleet Leaves Gibraltar Spanish Report

La Linea, Spain, Nov. 8—(AP)—Heavy gunfire was reported in Mediterranean today shortly after a British fleet of 14 warships based at Gibraltar left harbor.

The British warships included a battleship, two cruisers, eight destroyers, two submarines and an aircraft carrier.

There was no immediate clue to the cause of the firing.

REVAMPED PUBLIC FINANCE SYSTEM LOOMS AT OTTAWA

May be Major Prospects of Parliamentary Session Just Begun

PARLEY CALLED

Dominion-Provincial Conference on Report of Royal Commission to be Held in January

(By Carl Reinke, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Nov. 8—(CP) — A revamped public finance system in Canada—held essential to efficient prosecution of the war—loomed today as one of the major prospects of the parliamentary session just begun.

The new session was opened formally yesterday but the speech from the throne contained scant indication of the government's course, aside from generalizations about measures furthering the war effort "to the utmost of our strength."

However, Prime Minister Mackenzie King broke a six-months' silence regarding the weighty reports of the Royal Commission on Dominion - Provincial relations, which was handed to the government last May.

TOWER OF LONDON, CHURCH, BOMBED

Ancient Tower Scene of Many Events in English History

London, Nov. 8 (CP)—The Tower of London and the Church of Saint Clement Danes in the Strand have been hit by bombs in recent raids, it was officially announced today.

Much of the historic interior of St. Clement Danes, regarded as one of the most beautiful churches designed by Sir Christopher Wren, has been destroyed but the structure still looks proudly down on the Strand.

A bomb fell near the church, demolishing windows and making most of the interior "almost a shambles," as the rector, Rev. W. Pennington-Bickford, put it.

Two of its most precious parts escaped damage, however. They were the stone altar dating back to pre-Reformation days and the pulpit, carved by Grinling Gibbons.

Setting of Historic Scenes

The ancient Tower, the scene of many events in English history, served in its day as a fortress, a royal residence and a prison. Its tall spire on the shore of the Thames is one of the historic landmarks of London.

Among the famed figures of history who were imprisoned in it were James I of Scotland and Sir Walter Raleigh. It was there that Henry VIII married Catherine of Aragon and Anne Boleyn.

There also Anne Boleyn was beheaded. Sir Thomas More and many others walked to their death behind its grim walls.

It was there that "the princes in the tower" were murdered.

The crown jewels were removed from the tower to safer keeping at the outbreak of the war.

Like St. Paul's Cathedral, the Church of St. Clement Danes was designed by Sir Christopher Wren. It was built in 1681 and a tablet on one pew recalls that Dr. Samuel Johnson once worshipped there.

ALASKA'S POPULATION IS 71,911

Juneau, Alaska, Nov. 8 (AP)—A preliminary census total sets Alaska's population at 71,911, compared with 59,278 ten years ago. The territory's rate of growth during the time was 21.1 per cent, exceeded only by Florida and New Mexico in the United States.

New Rule Applies To Large Bombers, Arms, Munitions

President Roosevelt Has Established Rule Of Thumb Policy on Items Coming off Factory Lines

Washington, Nov. 8 (AP).—President Roosevelt said today he had established a rule of thumb policy whereby Great Britain and Canada would be supplied 50 per cent of United States defence items now coming off factory lines, including large bombers and other things needed both here and abroad.

British Orders in U. S.

Britain already has orders in effect in the United States for 14,000 planes, President Roosevelt said in an election campaign address at Boston last week. At the same time he had announced that Britain had asked permission to order 12,000 additional. He said then that he had asked the Defence Commission's Priorities Board to give "most sympathetic consideration" to the request.

The Board said today it was intended, under plans now being devised, to gear construction of the British planes to United States production in such a way as to prevent interference with American defence requirements.

"The question of delivery priorities is being studied," the Board said. "They will be fixed at appropriate times as production progresses."

There was no announcement as to when the ships might be ready for delivery.

At his first press conference since he was elected to a third term, Mr. Roosevelt also reported that United States and Mexican army officers have carried on conversations regarding joint defence similar to those with other Latin American countries.

The President said that heretofore, in regard to defence items needed both by the United States and Great Britain, the United States was selling to Britain about 45 per cent of its new production and retaining about 55 per cent here.

Making plain that there would be some exceptions to his rule of thumb policy, the President said that, generally speaking, Britain would get half of needed munitions and other armaments and that this would apply to large bombing planes now coming off the line.

For a while, he said, the United States might need more than 50 per cent of some items and less in others.

Decisive Battle Is Forecast on Greek—Albanian Front

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Nov. 8 (AP).—Fighting on the northern Greek-Albanian front was reported to have reached new intensity today, causing observers on the Yugoslav border to predict that a decisive battle was shaping up in that sector.

Heavy cannonading was heard on both sides and the Italians increased their activity. Larger groups of Fascist bombers were reported to have attacked Greek divisions east of the Koritza-Phlorina highway and Greek fortifications at the Pisoderi pass through the mountains.

Guerilla tactics of the Greek troops were said to be scoring against massed Italian mechanized operations in areas presenting great obstacles to the use of modern arms.

SURFACEWARSHIPS DESTROY CONVOY CLAIMS BERLIN

86,000 Tons of British Shipping Sunk in Atlantic Says German High Command — No Immediate British Comment Made on This Claim

PRAISE DE VALERA

Berlin, Nov. 8 (AP).—The German high command claimed today that surface warships of the German navy operating in the Atlantic "have destroyed completely a British convoy on the North Atlantic route," sinking 86,000 tons of shipping.

(There was no immediate comment from British sources on this Nazi claim.)

The German communique did not amplify the claim, but government sources said that "judging by foreign reports" it must have involved surface warships, not submarines.

(On Nov. 5 the 16,698-ton British liner aRngitiki radioed that she was being shelled by a German vessel of the Graf Spee class—a pocket battleship—about half way between Ireland and Newfoundland, and a little later the British freighter Cornish City, 4,952 tons, sent a similar message of distress.

(It appeared then that a convoy had been attacked. The Nov. 5 messages were the last received from the two vessels.)

(The Rangitiki and Cornish city had sailed for Britain from an East Canadian port.

Nazi official selatedly claimed that Germany had dealt a hard blow to Britain's North Atlantic supply route from Canada and the United States.

Foreign office circles seemed overjoyed at the stand of Prime Minister de Valera of Eire against use of Irish ports by British warships.

"De Valera needs no amplification by us," they said.

219 WHALES TAKEN DURING SEASON

132,000 Gallons of Whale Oil and 269,000 Gallons of Sperm Oil Extracted

Ottawa, Nov. 8 (CP)—Canadian whalers took 219 whales during the 1940 season, the Department of Mines and resources announced today. This year's catch gave an output of 132,000 gallons of whale oil and 269,000 gallons of sperm oil.

In addition, the huge sea mammals yielded 181 tons of bone meal and 434 tons of fertilizer.

Canadian whaling operations centre off Queen Charlotte Islands on the British Columbia coast. With war conditions causing an increased demand for reduction products, the outlook for the industry is favorable, the department said.

16-YEAR-OLD DOG KILLED BY CAR

Struck by a motor car, a 16-year-old dog, the property of Samuel McFee, 58 Murney Street, was injured so badly it was necessary to destroy the animal early last evening. Fortunately, Thomas Thorne, custodian of the city dog pound, was in the vicinity and after examining the injured dog, shot it. Although Mr. Thorne stated today he did not obtain the name of the driver of the car that struck the dog, the motorist did stop and paid the scavenger's fee.

WATER REBATE

Your Commission takes pleasure in announcing that due to the successful operation of the Water Utility it is in a position to make a rebate to city users and now when so many calls are being made on the public, it is an opportune time.

It has been decided that all users who have been taking water service for a period of one year or longer will not be charged for water during the months of November and December.

Users who are on meter will receive a rebate of the November and December accounts but the rebate will not be more than the November and December accounts of 1939.

The Commission would point out that the above makes the second reduction which has been made in the water charges since it assumed control. A reduction of 10% was made in January, 1938, and this rebate amounts to approximately 15%.

War Emergency Classes For Full-Time Students Are Planned at B.C.I.&V.S.

Sponsored by Department of Education and Youth Training Program for Training of Men in Vital War Mechanics

War Emergency Classes, sponsored by the Ontario Department of Education in co-operation with the Dominion Provincial Youth Training Program, for the training of young men in machine shop practice, welding, aero-engine mechanics with related shop mechanics and blueprint reading will be re-opened at the Belleville Collegiate and Vocational School it is announced by the Belleville Board of Education.

All Placed in War Industry

The classes will include practically the same course of study as was taken by local young men during the months of July and August when some 70 men were instructed in vital war mechanics. During the past summer some 4,000 men throughout Canada were trained in War Emergency Work and so successful were the courses that over three-quarters or more than 3,000 of these men are now placed in industry. Only one of the local men who took the summer course at Belleville is now unemployed, it was revealed by Mr. B. C. Sisler, Chairman of the Belleville Vocational Committee yesterday and in this one case numerous opportunities for employment had been turned down as the person involved had made application for enlistment with the R.C.A.F. and is waiting to be called up. All the others had been quickly employed after completing their course, and mostly in the Belleville district.

No Interference With Night School

The War Emergency classes at the Belleville Collegiate will in no way interfere with the night school classes or with the studies of day school pupils taking vocational training, it was learned from Board of Education authorities. Night school classes will continue from 7 until 10 in the evenings as usual and tentative arrangements for War Emergency classes call for a period of study from four in the afternoon when day school pupils are let out, until 7 in the evening when night school begins, then time out for night school and commencing again at ten and continuing until morning.

Scarcity of Workers Expected

The fact that a scarcity of skilled mechanics and machine shop workers is almost certain to exist in the spring when the many wartime industries now planned and under construction will go into production to assist in Canada's rapidly mounting war effort, is given for the urgency of the classes and every vocational facility at the command of the local board will be thrown into the effort to meet this demand for labor when the necessity arises.

It must be understood that the War Emergency Classes are for students who can devote their entire time to the courses and in this respect they differ from the regular night school classes now being held at the Belleville Collegiate. Night school classes are held primarily for those who already have a trade or are employed and who desire to improve themselves in their ability to do their job, while the War Emergency Classes, on the other hand, are intended to train men for vital industrial work as rapidly as possible and to fit them for positions demanding skilled labor.

90 Per Cent. Men in Night School

At the present time there are 520 pupils enrolled in the night school classes at the Belleville Collegiate, an all time high for this institution. Ninety per cent. of the total number enrolled are men, a great majority of whom are taking machine shop, motor mechanics or welding training. Owing to the fact that most of these men are already employed it would be impossible for a great many to take the War Emergency training, the classes for which are to be held at night, therefore it is essential that night school classes be continued to accommodate the students enrolled therein. If the enrolment of the War Emergency Classes is great enough to require more class room space or additional machinery, arrangements will be made to install the necessary machines. This equipment would be installed and largely paid for, by the Government which is sponsoring the classes. Instructors' salaries and the cost of material used is also paid by the Government,

AHDD SCHOOL STORY .. ..qMof

Applications for the War Emergency classes will be received from boys sixteen years of age and men. Inquiries should be made to Mr. J. B. Findlay, Secretary-Treasurer, Board of Education, Room 112 at the Collegiate Building, on Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.; Saturday 9 a.m. until noon on Tuesday, Nov. 12, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

First Trainee Draft Returns Home Benefited in Health by Army Life

Hardened and happy after a month's intensive training at the Peterboro Militia Training Centre, local youths of the 21-year-old class who were called up on October 9th, returned to the city Thursday night after the conclusion of their compulsory 30 days training. Practically everyone of the boys claim they put on weight during their stay in camp, proof of what military training, regular hours and good food will do for a healthy young man.

At the conclusion of their training period the boys reported they had to turn in their clothing and equipment and if any of it was missing they had to pay for it. The underwear, sox and boots they were allowed to keep as a gift from the Government and along with this was their second $18 pay. They were also given a transportation warrant by the officer in charge of supply and transport. Local boys who took the N.C.O. training have been requested to continue their training two nights per week with the H and P. E. Regiment at Trenton.

Youths returning from the training centres report that the young men who completed their training period on Thursday, enjoyed the time spent in the camps. The routine of the camp was so arranged that life for the young men, who had never been in the army before, would be as congenial as possible. Many of the men, it was stated, have signified their intention of joining the C.A.S.F., and in some cases have already joined their new units. Many have made application for admission to the R.C.A.F. and are waiting to be called.

Men of the 22-year-old class will report for their 30-day compulsory training period on Friday, November 22. These young men will have completed their course of training in ample time to return to their homes for the Christmas season.

Up until the present, no announcement has been made in connection with the date which the third class will be called but it is expected that some official announcement regarding the 23-year-olds will be forthcoming in the near future.

OBITUARY

INFANT GARDNER
(Deseronto)

Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Gardner, Deseronto, will receive the sympathy of friends in their bereavement occasioned by the death of their thirteen-days-old son, which occurred in the Belleville General Hospital on Thursday, Nov. 7th.

LATE MRS. ANNIE HORRIGAN,
(Tyendinaga Township)

The funeral of Mrs. Annie Horrigan, widow of Timothy Horrigan, took place from her residence at Read, Tyendinaga Township, on Thursday morning, Nov. 7th, to St. Charles' Church at Read where Requiem Mass was celebrated by the Rev. Father Carey, who said also the committal prayers at the graveside in St. Charles' Cemetery.

The bearers were Messrs. Leonard Naphan, Edward Naphan, Joseph Bennett, William Bennett, Mack. Wring and Charles McDonald.

Two Found Guilty Of Assaulting A Police Officer

"These men were disgustingly drunk and raving maniacs," Inspector Frank Gardner told Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., while testifying against D. E. Murray and Robert Townellier, both of the R.C.A.F. and who were arrested by P. C. Evans last Sunday morning following a disturbance in a downtown restaurant.

Both Murray and Townellier were convicted of assaulting Constable Evans with the intent to resist arrest, although the pair vigorously protested innocence. Murray was also convicted on two separate counts of intoxication, while a theft charge was dismissed for the lack of evidence against the same man. His Worship found both men guilty of assaulting a police officer and resisting arrest, but reserved judgment until Tuesday next. At the request of F. O. Hammond, A.P.M. at the Trenton Air Base, Murray was held in custody, while Townellier was admitted to bail.

Convicted of Assault

Harry Stevenson, kitchen employee at the New Service Restaurant, was convicted of assaulting a fellow-employee and fined $5.00 and costs, amouniting to $20.50 in all. P. C. Taylor, who investigated the assault, stated in evidence that the complainant in the case, Lester Truesdale, and Stevenson had engaged in several arguments and altercations resulted during which both sustained minor injuries. Truesdale preferred charges after being hit with a rolling pin on the head earlier in the week.

Lorne Sanford, 89 South Front Street, was sentenced to serve two months in the common jail after pleading guilty to a charge of keeping liquor for sale.

Sergeant Arthur Harman told of visiting Sanford's home early on the morning of November 5th last, and finding several persons in the house drinking beer, a quantity of which was confiscated. The court declared Sanford's home a public place.

John McMurray, no address given appeared on a charge of vagrancy. "We are offering no evidence in this case, but I would advise this man to vacate the city as soon as possible as his presence is not desired in this community," warned Crown Attorney S. Gordon Robertson, who conducted the prosecutions of the court today.

Fined For Assault

Leonard Bishop, of the R.C.A.F., appeared for judgment on a charge of assault and was fined $5.00 and costs. The case was heard in a previous court, having resulted from Hallowe'en activities.

Several minor motor vehicle cases and a non-support proceedings, which were held in camera, concluded a lengthy docket today. Monday being Remembrance Day and a legal holiday, no session of Police Court will be held locally, His Worship, Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., announced today.

Ont. Gov't Orders Hydro Development On Madawaska

Toronto, Nov. 8 (CP). — Armed with a go-ahead order from the Ontario government, officials of the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission began laying plans today for developments on the Madawaska River, main tributary of the Ottawa River, and in the Albany River area, which will cost an estimated $12,000,000.

The developments were ordered at a cabinet meeting yesterday and include diversion of water from the Albany River system into Lake Superior and construction of a 54,000 horse power plant on the Madawaska.

The northern division known commonly as the Ogoki diversion, involves transfer of 4,000 cubic feet of water a second from the Albany system which flows into James Bay to Lake Nipigon and the Nipigon River which flows into Lake Superior. The project is being undertaken to implement the recent Canadian-United States St. Lawrence River power agreement under which the United States allowed Ontario 5,000 additional cubic feet a second for the Niagara plant provided the Ogoki diversion was undertaken.

Dr. Thomas Hogg, chairman of the Ontario Hydro Commission, said the Madawaska project calls for a power plant at Barrett Chute, thirty miles west of the Ottawa River, and a storage dam at Bark Lake. Plans for that region, he added, involve an ultimate development of eight sites in the river for a total estimated 200,000 horse power.

R. G. Winters Named President Laymen's Assoc., Marmora

Marmora—The annual meeting of St. Paul's Laymen's Association was held at the Parish Hall on Wednesday evening and although through mitigating circumstances the attendance was lower than in recent years, the meeting proved to be one of the most enthusiastic in the annals of the association which observed the tenth birthday. At the earlier part of the meeting the Honorary President, Rural Dean A. B. Caldwell was unavoidably absent.

The guest speaker of the evening Rev. L. Harding, rector of Stirling and Frankford, was accompanist for the singing of "Fight the good fight" and the National Anthem and also led in the opening prayer. In the reading of correspondence, a letter from the Diocesan Laymen Association was brought to the attention of the gathering. H. R. Pearce, retiring president, gave a short report of the year's activities followed by report by W. J. Cottrell, secretary-treasurer. In the secretarial report the harmonious working of the executive was stressed as well as the secretary treasurer's gratitude for restoration to health. The treasurer's report was most encouraging showing receipts in excess of 138 dollarz with about 130 dollars being allotted to parochial funds. Past President C. H. Buskard ably presided for the election of officers.

Those elected were—Honorary President, Rural Dean A. B. Caldwell; President, R. G. Winters; Vice President, J. R. Heart; Secretary Treasurer, W. J. Cottrell.

The program followed, Bert Kouri and William Hart were applauded for pleasing instrumental selection. Rev. L. Harding provided an interesting discussion by his talk on "Propaganda" in which he conveyed the thought that churchmen should be as enthusiastic for their church as salesmen are over the goods they seek to sell. He was accorded a hearty vote of thanks for his inspiring message. The two instrumentalists having furnished two more numbers. Rural Dean A. B. Caldwell spoke briefly in appreciation of the spirit of the meeting and pronounced the Benediction. An appetising lunch was then enjoyed before the gathering dispersed.

On Friday Nov. 1st at the parsonage, Mrs. W. P. Fletcher, leader of the pals C.G.I.T. group gave the girls a taffy pull. Games were played and a very enjoyable evening was spent.

Miss Rita Shannon is spending a week with relatives in Ottawa.

The ladies of Zion Church held a successful bake sale in the store in the Shannon Block on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Airhart and daughter Olive of Belleville paid a visit to Marmora on Tuesday.

Mrs. J. E. Marsh and two sons of Belleville visited Mr. and Mrs. Archie Jones on Sunday.

Mr. Harry McWilliams of Ottawa spent the week end at his home here.

Burrs

Burrs—Mrs. George Fox and Miss Irene Fox dined on Friday with Mrs. Percy Lough.

Mr. Douglas Harnes was at Trenton on Sunday evening.

Among those who visited Belleville on Saturday were Mrs. Keith Blakely, Mrs. Bride Hough, Messrs Clifford Hough, Thomas Vancott, Elliott Bird, Arthur Bird and Oliver Edwards, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Parks, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Vancott, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Morden, Mr. and Mrs. Eric Edwards, Miss Zelda Carter, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Vincent, Mr. Howard Fox, Miss Irene Fox and Mrs. George Fox.

Among those who attended the Masonic banquet at Ameliasburg when the D.D.G.M. was a visitor on Monday night were Messrs. Victor Bongard, Murney Parks, Donald Parks, John Root, Thomas Vancott, Jotham Moon, Gene Hubbs and Cyrus Fulford.

Mr. and Mrs. Basil Ainsworth, Christian St., Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Douglas, Jackie and Shirla, Belleville, Mr. and Mrs. Warner McFaul, Messrs Arnott and Charlie McFaul, Allisonville and Mrs. Earl Boyd, Ottawa, were guests at Mr. Jotham Moon's on Sunday.

On Saturday Mrs. George Fox, Miss Irene Fox and Mr. Howard Fox visited the former's son, Mr. Norman Fox in Belleville Hospital where he has been a patient since last Wednesday. Norman was working on the new Hydro line being built from Consecon to Mountain View airport, when he was struck on the leg by a hydro jack. It was thought at first the leg was broken but an X-ray revealed instead a clot near the bone. He will be laid up for some time.

Rev. A. G. Downing, Shawville, Quebec, who is taking the work of Rev. W. R. Pair, Picton, while he is attending a conference in Tennessee, accompanied by eleven members of Picton Assembly attended a prayer meeting at Mrs. George Fox's on Thursday evening.

Quite a number from here attended the Hallowe'en masquerade at Allisonville on Thursday evening. Hallowe'en passed off quietly, no damage being reported.

Mrs. J. E. Moran is visiting Mrs. Ross Burr.

The Daly Tea truck was through here on Tuesday.

Mrs. George Fox dined with Mrs. Frank Burkitt on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Eric Edwards and Mr. Oliver Edwards visited her brother Mr. Ray Bird and Mrs. Bird, Huycke's Point on Sunday.

Mrs. George Fox and Howard Fox called to see his brother Mr. Norman Fox on Tuesday evening and Miss Irene Fox accompanied them home.

On Tuesday evening about 100 friends and neighbors met in Springbrook hall in honor of Mr. and Mrs. John Burkitt (nee Jean Moore) of Belleville. Mr. Fred Bateman acted as chairman and Miss Ada Bateman read the address. Mr. and Mrs. Burkitt made suitable replies. The evening was spent in dancing.

Former King Carol Returns to Seville

Lisbon, Portugal, Nov. 8—(AP)—Former King Carol of Rumania, was reported to have returned to Seville from Madrid where he appealed yesterday to Spanish Foreign Minister Ramon Serrano Suner for permission to leave Spain.

The ex-monarch, who was accompanied by Mme. Magda Lupescu and his Chamberlain, Ernest Urdareanu, was expected to await Serrano Suner's reply in Seville.

The new iron guard regime in Rumania has been seeking to obtain the extradition of Mme. Lupescu and Urdareanu, who have been under virtual arrest with Carol in Spain.

COAST GUARD AIDS FREIGHTER

Sparta Aground on the Picture Rocks on Lake Superior

Munising, Mich., Nov. 8—(AP)—Coast guardsmen went to the aid Thursday of the 360-foot freighter Sparta, aground on the Picture Rocks at Grand Portal, on Lake Superior, 12 miles from the Sand Point coast guard station.

A patrol boat from Munising picked up six of the distressed vessel's crew of 31 at 8:45 a.m. EDT an hour after they had launched a lifeboat and set out to seek aid. Coast guardsmen said the vessel had been aground more than 36 hours, since a violent snowstorm that whipped up 30-foot waves blew it off its course Tuesday.

The patrol boat made a trip to the vessel's side to remove a part of the crew, and returned for the remainder.

The Sparta is owned by the National Steamship Co., and operated by G. A. Tomlinson of Cleveland. The vessel was upbound without a cargo when the mishap occurred.

Rawdon

Rawdon—On Sunday morning, November 3rd, worshippers from all nearby points and a large number of former residents gathered at Mount Pleasant United Church for the annual anniversary service. The edifice was filled to the doors and the church was resplendent with potted plants and bouquets of 'mums and gladioli.

Mrs. Kenneth Weaver presided at the piano and the choir of eighteen voices rendered two anthems at each service. In the morning Mr. John Coggins sang "The Stranger of Galilee" and in the evening Mrs. Carleton Potts and Mrs. Edgar McKeown rendered a vocal duet.

Rev. S. A. R. Delve, B.A., of Ivanhoe was the guest speaker and in the morning he spoke on the theme "Render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's and unto God the things that are God's" and his evening theme was 'Influence' which closed with an appropriate poem.

The day was ideal for this annual service and the service opened in the morning with "The Church's One Foundation" and closed in the evening with "O Master Let Me Walk With Thee." Over one hundred and seventy dollars was placed on the plates and the service was most successful.

Mrs. Frank Jeffs is spending a few days this week with her sister Mrs. Ray Moran, Frankford.

RESCUE SQUADS SEARCH FOR DEAD

Building Crashes Under Hail of Nazi Bombs at Southampton Wednesday

Southampton, England, Nov. 8.—(CP) — Rescue squads searched for dead and living victims in the ruins of buildings which crashed under a hail of bombs in a determined Nazi attack late Wednesday.

Many students and teachers were buried under the debris of a school struck by three bombs. Others were trapped in the school shelter but most of them were extricated alive.

Clerks and typists were trapped under the wreckage of a row of office buildings and in another part of town, civilians were killed when several small houses were hit.

The bombers were heavily escorted by fighters.

As the British defenders rose to the attack, the German formations swooped low and loosed their bombs almost directly above crowds of thousands who stood in the streets to watch the dogfights overhead.

Telephone Operator Summons Firemen

Otterville, Ont., Nov. 8—(CP) — Miss Maude Hussey, telephone operator, stepped into the breach here Wednesday when the fire bell was out of action and help was needed to combat a roaring blaze in a warehouse.

By continuous calling on the telephone of all able-bodied men, all members of the Otterville fire department reached the scene in a few minutes. Later Miss Hussey called fire departments at Tillsonburg, Delhi and Woodstock. The result was that only the warehouse, operated by Irvine Ackland and Son, was destroyed with estimated loss of $8,500 and the rest of the Main Street was saved. Village council had decided to build a new firehall so the bell had been removed from the town hall tower.

PADEREWSKI LABORS FOR POLAND

A name that will never die in Polish annals is that of Jan Paderewski, the eighty year old pianist and composer of the highest rank and a statesman who gave up his art to become Prime Minister at the time of the first World War and has again become President of the Polish Government in exile.

He was born a Pole, in what was Russian Poland, which later won its independence through the efforts of Paderewski and which is again in Russian Poland since 1939.

A Pole of the Poles, this gentle man, this great artist is the soul of Poland. His music is the music of inspiration and patriotic fervor and fire. Truly in him are the artist and the patriot one and indivisible.

Now at the age of eighty years, for he celebrated his birthday this week, he comes to the United States to do his part for Poland.

The greatness of this man towers over the grotesqueness of the German dictator and the Italian Duce. Paderewski is the soul of honor, courtesy and courtliness of manner and it seems almost impossible that in a world where he lives there should exist such crime as that perpetrated by the Nazis and Fascists and that this man whose great desire has been to raise the spirit of man by the pure inspiration of music could have suffered so much from the throwbacks to barbarism as seen in the Nazis.

It is characteristic of the barbaric and savage Nazis that the music of Paderewski's great fellow-Pole, Chopin, should be banned by the Huns. Chopin's dance measures are the very inspiration of the people. The unmusical Nazis care for nothing that does not exalt brutal strength and violence and so they strive to banish Polish measures. But they cannot drive the spirit of Paderewski and Chopin out of the hearts of the Poles.

Jan Paderewski is the friend of all the democratic states and oppressed nations. He made at the peace conference a powerful appeal for the small nations.

GREEKS HAVE A WORD AND BLOW FOR THE ITALIANS

The Greeks have a word and a blow which the Italian Fascists don't understand. The word was "No" to the brute ultimatum of Mussolini, and the blow is not only the stout resistance of the Greeks and numerous victories but it is a moral blow to the immoral Fascism regime and prestige.

Mussolini has messed up the campaign in North Africa where his drive bogged down. He has now evidently messed up his plans in Greece.

How can be explained the Italian weakness of strategy? There are several answers—the Greeks have right on their side and their arms are strong. The Greeks are brave fighters. No Roman victories in ancient days were ever won to compare with the valor of the Greek detachment of 300 Spartan heroes who died at Thermopylae as they held back tens of thousands of invaders twenty-five centuries ago. The heart of the world which admires valor yet throbs at the thought of the mighty struggle at Marathon and at Salamis where the Greeks smashed the armies and navy from the East.

Italian Fascist bluff went far in peace. In peace days it worked against the poorly-armed Ethiopians, but in war against a race which has been great for thousands of years the Fascist glory is tawdry and cheap. Fascism is permeated with the evils of the system which has crushed individual liberty and courage and has tried to make of the Fascist population a mere war machine. The Italian people have been admirers of Britain for centuries until Mussolini forced Italy into war for Fascist gain. The Italians are a peace-loving people but have been led by windbags and adventurers who are blinded by their gangster aims.

The heroic fighting of the Greeks is assisted by the outbreak of Albanian disorders. The latter strive to set their country free and the Greeks fight to preserve their liberty won at a cost over a century ago. They have the courage of the free soul, Italy is bogged down by Fascism and there is no doubt by the injection of too much Mussolini into the war decisions.

Mussolini so far has made an incredibly poor showing. He has lost prestige and Hitler must be very much annoyed at his associate acting so.

All this ought to be a sign to Mussolini who would not read common sense. He ought to see how hopeless Italian Fascism would be in Europe if Hitler were dominant. Hitler could wipe away Fascist individuality in a moment of victory if he could obtain it over the rest of Europe.

Mussolini had his chance after the war broke out. But like a hungry bandit he thought he saw Europe prostrate when it was only defeated France he saw. He was afraid he was too late and so he jumped in. Now he is in trouble in Africa and in Greece.

Today that modern Greece is giving a blow in the face of the base Fascist ultimatum. Greece can fight, for Greece has been the land of heroes and looks back to the greatest civilization of the world before the time of Christ. That land which has so great a past is assured of a bright future because she has always been found worthy of liberty and her people act as heroes act.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

James W. Barton, M.D.

The Internal and External Treatment of Acne—Pimples

In one of my classes at high school was a boy of fifteen whose face was covered with unsightly blackheads and pimples. Naturally he was much ashamed and believed that the rest of the boys thought that he didn't wash his face properly or often enough. My own opinion at that time was that he didn't play baseball, football, or take any exercise and that this lack of exercise was the cause of his pimples and blackheads—because his circulation was poor. It was a few years afterwards that I learned that most cases of acne—pimple —were due to gland disturbances at the age of puberty in both boys and girls.

Even in those days it was found that cutting down on "sweets" at this time helped clear up or bring improvement in some cases. Cutting down too much on sweets was found, however, to be unwise as boys and girls, before and during puberty, need plenty of sugar and starch foods to give needed energy.

One of the most complete reviews of the "possible" causes of acne is given in The Medical World by Drs. Oscar L. Levin and Howard T. Behrman, New York, N.Y. They name the various causes of the past and present such as pus organisms getting into the skin, various occupations which affect the skin by blocking the openings of the oil and sweat glands, chemicals which affect the texture of the skin causing it to lose some of its elasticity, dandruff of the scalp extending to face and shoulders, and gland disturbances occurring at and for some years after, puberty. These physicians state that any of the above may cause or be a partial cause of acne but that the most important single cause is an improper adjustment or imbalance of the glands.

Various forms of treatment are outlined which include cutting down on starches and sugars, eating more fruits and vegetables; keeping the intestine active; the use of vaccines, and most important of all, the use of gland substances.

Treatment of the skin itself includes use of good soap and water many times daily in very greasy skins, applying hot cloths and then removing the blackheads, opening up of pimples containing pus, and Xray treatments. Each case requires its own particular treatment.

A Liner Goes to War

London.

Speaking more than six months ago the First Lord of the Admiralty mentioned the fact that among the many other ships taken over by the British Navy for war purposes were 50 armed merchant cruisers.

These are steamers of the ordinary liner type, over a certain speed, provided with guns and commissioned as men-of-war. They have done much arduous work since the outbreak of war, some in the far north watching that area of sea from the Orkneys to Iceland and Greenland, others guarding the convoys or trade in the outer oceans.

Everyone has heard of the gallant fight of the ex P. & O. liner "Rawalpindi", on November 23, when she sighted the German pocket battleship "Deutschland" to the southeast of Iceland. Overwhelmed and set on fire by her vastly superior opponent, she fought on without a thought of surrender and went to the bottom with her colors flying.

The "Alcantara" a well-known liner of the Royal Mail Line, converted into an armed merchant cruiser, was more recently in the news when she engaged a fast German merchant ship converted into an armed raider. The raider was damaged and had her speed reduced though not enough. She managed to escape, an unlucky shot having damaged the "Alcantara's" engines.

Three other armed merchant cruisers, the "Carinthia," "Scotstoun" and "Andania" have been announced as lost through being torpedoed.

It was a well known trans-Atlantic liner commissioned as a vessel-of-war that I recently visited at a western port. Of the officers, all but the captain and executive officer belonged to the Royal Naval Reserve. Except for a handful of petty officers and a solitary Royal Marine bugler, the ship's company was entirely made up of reservists, pensioners and men who had joined the navy especially for the war, and had been sent afloat after a few months' intensive training.

Among the men were 30 Newfoundland fishermen. As expert boatmen in all weathers, their services were particularly valuable for boarding intercepted steamers.

How many miles this particular ship had steamed since the outbreak of war I did not discover. But her work had been arduous enough, particularly during the fierce weather and the long nights of Winter. Her normal routine was 18 to 19 days out, followed by five days to a week in harbor for refueling and storing. Her officers and men had about three days' leave every six weeks, and well they deserved it.

How were the 500 odd that formed her crew kept occupied and contented during the long periods at sea? I inquired. The time never hung heavily on their hands, I was told. To start with there was the watch-keeping, which was strenuous enough. There was also a very large ship, with great deck space and many interior compartments, to keep up to the usual man-of-war standards of cleanliness and order.

Then there was daily drill with the guns, and great keenness among the gun's crews to be first in the competitions with the dummy "loader." For the rest they held deck sports, and played assiduous deck hockey — officers v. lower deck, engine room v. victualling staff, and so on. Then they had their cinema, occasional concerts with a galaxy of talent, a good library, an amateur band and their own private and personal occupations in the shape of model-making, needlework and goodness knew what. The ship's company was a cheerful lot, and very keen.

The last time I had seen that liner was long before the war, with her panelled public rooms, her ballroom, observation cocktail bar, shopping centre and palatial private suites with silken hangings. But now the ship has been stripped for war, and all the fripperies have disappeared. Where there was walnut panelling or tapestry one now sees bare steel. Whole tiers of cabins have disappeared, to be converted into mess-decks. Part of the main lounge serves as a wardroom, and the other part as a cinema. What used to be the children's playroom now serves as a shelter for the guns' crews in bad weather.

One imagined that great ship peopled by the ghostly multitude of her passengers who had crossed the Atlantic east and west. For many years she had been on that regular run, passing to and fro as regularly as clockwork.

And now, with many others of her kind, she has been converted to the grim purpose of war— a useful ship flying the White Ensign of the Royal Navy, and manned largely by officers and men of the Merchant Navy who have again proved themselves to be one of the mainstays of Britain in the hour of her need.

Editor's Note: This article by "Taffrail", famous British naval writer, distributed by the Director of Public Information for Canada, tells of a visit to a trans-Atlantic liner commissioned for war service. His description of the ship fits so perfectly the beautiful lost Empress of Britain that the Empress may well have been the subject of his article.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—
And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

I WANT 2000 PEOPLE TO TRY SYNTONA FOR ONLY 25 CENTS

Sufferers From Stomach Trouble, Weak Kidneys, Lazy Liver Nervousness and General Run-Down Condition

WHAT IT IS!

SYNTONA is an advanced medical compound of 12 of the finest medicinal herbs, and not one a habit-forming drug. It is taken before meals and mixes with food in one's stomach, thus throwing off the poisons that foster stomach trouble. It acts within 10 minutes to stop gas and pains, sourness, bloating and belching. At the same time SYNTONA drives the poisons from the kidneys and relieves backache, bladder irritations and weakness.

WHAT IT DOES!

It acts on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. It DRIVES out rheumatic and neuritis pains; puts a stop to boils, pimples and other common blood disorders, by ELIMINATING THE CAUSE! It builds strong, healthy nerves. It will free your system of its oversupply of acidity. Those ravaging acids that accumulate and irritate your stomach—fill you with gas—sour your food and cause constipation.

Now, whether SYNTONA will help you as it has thousands of others—whether it will end your suffering in a day or week—remains to be seen. But in the light of what it has done for others, it is surely a mistake not to try it for 25 cents, only a fraction of its worth. This introductory offer is good Friday and Saturday ONLY. Act at once. Do this in fairness to yourself and your family.

Novel Gift By Mme. H. Rubinstein Made Toronto I.O.D.E.

Under the distinguished patronage of Mrs. E. S. Duggan, Municipal Chapter of Toronto, the I. O. D.E. plans one of the most colorful events of the season when four of Toronto's most prominent chapters, the Lady Tweedsmuir, the Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon, the Dr. Harold C. Parsons and the Forest Hill Village, joining forces as patronesses for reopening reception of the new salon of Helena Rubinstein on the night of Nov. 14. Regents of the four chapters will receive with Mrs. Duggan, and invitations are being sent to chapter members. An informal fashion show will illustrate the perfect harmonizing of makeup and coiffeurs to winter styles. Chapter members will model the gowns.

It is hoped that Madame Helena Rubinstein (in private life Princess Gourielli) will fly up to Toronto for the event. Madame Rubinstein has invited this quartette of I.O.D.E. chapters to take over her beauty salon for two weeks, to book all appointments including permanent waves, finger waves and manicures, and Madame Rubinstein will donate 100 per cent of the money received to the charities sponsored by the booking chapters. It has been arranged that members of each group will take turns as salon hostesses to welcome the clients they have booked, and to see that the money received is directed to the hostess's chapter.

To Mark 125th Anniversary Of Bridge St. United Church

Services Will Begin on Sunday, November 10th., and Continue on Sunday, November 17th—Moderator Rt. Rev. Dr. A. S. Tuttle of the United Church of Canada Will Preach at the Opening Service—Brief History of Century and Quarter of Congregation

On Sunday, November 10th and November 17th Bridge Street United Church will celebrate one hundred and twenty-fifth anniversary of this, the pioneer church of Belleville. In fact the congregation's history is almost parallel of the entire history of Belleville, for the small settlement along the banks of the river felt its need and soon there were the beginnings of a church. It was in 1795 that the Rev. Darius Dunham a Methodist circuit preacher held the first religious service of which there is any record here. Events moved fairly rapidly for a settlement in those days for it was only 10 years later when the circuit of Smith's Creek from Belleville to Port Hope was formed. In 1815 occurred the event which is taken as the starting point of the Bridge Street congregation, with the formation of the first organized Methodist class. This is the official birthday of what is now Bridge Street congregation, known from that time until 1925 as Methodist and since then as United.

The Right Rev. A. S. Tuttle, M.A., D.D., Moderator of the United Church who will attend the opening of the anniversary services on Sunday Nov. 10 and preach at the morning service in Bridge Street United Church.

Celebration on Two Sundays

In honor of this occasion there is to be a week of celebration of the anniversary including Sunday Nov. 10 and Sunday Nov. 17. The Moderator of the United Church will be present at the opening of the religious services associated with the occasion preaching at morning service on Sunday, Nov. 10th., the Rev. Dr. Archer Wallace delivering the sermon at the evening service. On the following Sunday Rev. R. B. Cochrane will preach in the morning and Rev. Dr. Crossley Hunter in the evening. Rev. Dr. Semple will have charge of the services and the special musical numbers will be played for the celebration.

Effort is being made to bring to the attention of the people of the district and former members of the congregation the plans for the anniversary celebration so that not only members and adherents of the congregation in and about the city but others from a distance may plan to attend.

History of Congregation

A brief history of the life of the congregation shows the vitality of interest in religion in this community. In 1822 the first Sunday School was organized as a union school. In 1829 Mr. Billa Flint, later Senator, moved from Brockville to Belleville and next year he made a house-to-house visitation. Next year the school was divided, part forming St. Thomas' Anglican Church School. In 1832 Mr. Flint, superintendent of the school, held the first Sunday School picnic in the world. The growth of the school brought about another division in 1833, part forming the Methodist Episcopal Sunday School. In 1834 the church conference first met in Belleville, Rev. William Lord of the British Wesleyan Conference, presiding. The number of ministers associated with the Canada Conference was 107 and the members 15,-044. Six years later the conference again met in Belleville, Rev. J. Stinson being president and the secretary Rev. Egerton Ryerson a noted educationist.

The church which had been built originally was on Pinnacle St. and in 1867 was enlarged for the second time, and in 1852 for the third time. Conferences met here at intervals.

Present Site Used Since 1864

It was in 1864 that Bridge Street became the site of the congregation's church home for in that year the cornerstone was laid by the Hon. Billa Flint, Bridge Street Methodist Church saw the conference meet under Dr. Morley Punshon as president in 1871.

In 1883 the United General Conference, was consummated uniting the four branches of Methodism. In 1886 the church was destroyed by fire and was rebuilt and reopened in 1887. In 1925 Church Union of Methodist, Presbyterian and Congregational Churches was observed. The loss of John Street Church by fire in 1937 and the disbanding of its congregation, a good many members joined Bridge Street congregation.

There have been many famous revivals held in this church, those of Crossley and Hunter being the best known.

Bridge Street Church was a few years ago thoroughly redecorated and improvements were added so that the church and equipment throughly meet the demands of an efficient modern congregation.

The Stars Say

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Friday, November 8.

Judging by the weak positions of the ruling planets this may be a day of routine events with matters moving in customary grooves. In these there may be fair success, with promise of expansion, progress and rather pleasant personal relations. It is probable that social, friendly or sympathetic understanding may dominate or influence business decisions.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year in which matters may move along in moderate grooves for successful approach to not too exalted ambitions. This happy state of affairs may be assisted by the support and friendly understanding of social or cultural comrades.

District Teachers Meet at Stirling

Stirling—On Oct. 30th teachers of the public schools in Madoc, Marmora, Tweed and Stirling assembled for one of their regular quarterly meetings. Mr. C. A. Wells, President of the organization, presided over the opening of the meeting which took place in the Stirling public school. A general discussion dealing with general school problems, the new course of study and general school activity proved of great interest to those in attendance. One of the main topics of discussion during this period was a method by which the various school teaching staffs could assist in the sale of war savings stamps and government war certificates. The plan set forth to encourage a canvass conducted by the school children was endorsed and within the near future will be set in motion.

At this point the gathering divided in sectional discussion groups wherein various grade problems and comparisons were dealt with and many worthwhile and constructive ideas shared by teachers engaged in the same type of class work. Later in the evening the visitors were entertained at luncheon served by the ladies of the local staff in the Household Science classroom at the High School. Although the date for the next meeting of the organization was not set, it was decided that the place of meeting should be at Tweed.

Items of Personal Interest

Word was received in Stirling this week of the death of Mrs. Alfred Chard of Edmonton, Alta., (nee Dolly Heard of Stirling), daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Heard of Stirling. Mrs. Chard was well known throughout the Stirling district and her passing caused much regret in the community. The funeral took place on October 31st with interment being made in Edmonton Lawn Cemetery.

Rev. James E. and Mrs. Beckel accompanied by Wm. Jones and Arthur Duncan attended the anniversary fowl supper held on Monday evening at White Lake United Church when Mr. Beckel and the latter two assisted on the evening's program. Rev. Beckel was in charge of the special anniversary services conducted on the previous Sabbath with large congregations attending both morning and evening.

Mrs. W. E. Roberts has returned to her home in Toronto after spending a few days with her sister Mrs. S. A. Hatton.

Mr. and Mrs. Grant Thain and daughter, Nancy, of Madoc, were Sunday guests at the home of Mrs. Nina Morton and Mrs. Nora Wescott.

Miss Helen Lacey and Miss G. Kippen of the High School Staff spent the week end visiting friends and relatives in Toronto.

Mrs. J. M. McGee is visiting friends and relatives in Stirling.

Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Tompkins and Mrs. M. Tompkins spent the week end visiting friends and relatives in Kemptville.

Trim, Tailored Shirtwaister

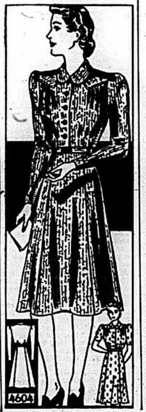
By ANNE ADAMS
Pattern 4604

Typically American in its casual, carefree style is the shirtwaister mode. Anne Adams offers a youthful version of this favorite style in Pattern 4604—a frock that is matronly in size only. There's slimming lines from every viewpoint, with front and back skirt panelling and the smartest of shoulder yokes. The bodice has been cut with just enough blousing for style and flattery, with its fullness placed "just right" and held by gathers and darts. A to-the-waist buttoning lets you in and out without mussing up your curls. Have the young, rounded collar in contrast or matching fabric. Why not make two frocks—one in wool with long sleeves; the other in cotton or rayon with short sleeves?

Pattern 4604 is available in woman's sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 36 takes 3 1-2 yards 54-inch fabric.

Send twenty cents (20c), in coins (stamps cannot be accepted). for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly SIZE, NAME, ADDRESS and STYLE NUMBER.

Send your order to Ontario Intelligencer Pattern Department, 166 Front St., Belleville, Ont.



Mr. Harold Alcombrack formerly of the Stirling News-Argus staff has accepted a position with the Trans-Canada Airways and left on Sunday for Malton Airport to take up his duties as Airport attendant.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Beatty, Frankford Road, were given a surprise party by the neighbors of the district last week prior to their departure from Stirling. Rev. A. M. Laverty acted as chairman for the evening and following an enjoyable social period an address was read to the honored couple and they were presented with handsome electric table lamp. Both Mr. and Mrs. Beatty expressed their gratitude for the kindly gesture and the good wishes of their friends in Stirling.

Mr. and Mrs. Beatty will spend a couple of weeks visiting relatives at Mountain, Ontario, following which they will establish their home in Toronto.

The sympathy of the residents of Stirling is extended to Mr. Harry Farnsworth in the loss of his mother. The funeral took place on Monday afternoon.

Annual Rally and Pot Luck Supper Held at Foxboro

Foxboro—The annual rally and pot luck supper held by the three churches of the Foxboro Charge of the United Church was held in the S.S. Hall of the United Church, Foxboro, on Friday, Nov. 1st. In spite of the rain, which was in fact welcomed for other reasons, about one hundred sat down to supper. After supper a splendid program was enjoyed under the chairmanship of the minister of the Charge, Rev. E. M. Cook, B.Th.

The first number was "O Canada" accompanied by Mr. Bruce Sills of Belleville with his piano accordian. There followed a duet by Misses Eileen and Dorothy Mitts and solos by Miss Marjory Parks of Marsh Hill, two readings by Miss Marion Daniels of Foxboro and several musical numbers by Messrs Wagner, Sills and Mumby of Belleville consisting of Hawaiian guitars, piano accordian and musical saw. These were greatly enjoyed and heartily encored. Another welcome visitor was the Rev. J. A. Dilts, newly inducted minister of Holloway St. United Church, Belleville, who gave the address of the evening.

Every item of the program was well rendered and received in hearty appreciation and the address was most relative to these days and left every one heartened and encouraged to carry on in things worth while. The sentiments of all present were expressed in well chosen words by Herb Townsend of Holloway and Mr. Ben Bleecker of Marsh Hill who proposed the thanks of the circuit to all who had so generously assisted. The meeting closed with the hearty singing of "There'll always be an England" and the National Anthem.

Miss Reta Christie has received the Warden's Medal for obtaining the highest marks in the entrance examinations for South Hastings Inspectorate.

Rev. A. L. Sisco, B.D., of Millbrook and Rev. J. R. Trumpour of Bridgenorth called at the parsonage on Monday and Rev. E. M. Cooke later accompanied them to Kingston to attend the annual Alumni Conference at Queen's Theological College.

Congratulations are offered to Mr. and Mrs. Earle Way and Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Carter who were recently married.

Mr. and Mrs. Ford Derry and family have moved into Mr. Harry Ketcheson's home and Mr. Oakley Gough and family of Stirling have moved in the home vacated by Mr. Derry and Mr. Lowery and family of Stirling are residing in Mr. Everett Ketcheson's house.

Secretary Treasurer: J. E. Bateman, 225 Ann Street, Belleville.

Executive: Belleville, Milton Fowler; Sidney, Miss Audrey Sheffield; Separate Schools: Sister Mary Dorothea; Trenton, Miss Elsie Fowler; Thurlow, Miss Muriel Milligan.

The newly elected President appointed W. G. Anderson and C. I. Frederick as auditors and will name the other committees later.

"Sabre-Toothed Curriculum" is Reviewed

"Education in the Paleolithic Age," an address by J. R. Pickering, B.A., B. Paed., Inspector of public schools in South Hastings, proved a most interesting and amusing review of the volume "Sabre-Toothed Curriculum" by Professor Benjamin. Mr. Pickering discussed the first developments of education in this age of stone.

To the Fist-Hammer Maker of the tribe went the credit of beginning the formal education of children. He was a thinker and, this was in itself an achievement, for thinking, then as now, is regarded as a great deal of effort and there are no lengths to which people will go to save themselves the pain and labor of thought. It was a socially disapproved activity. Yet the Hammer Maker persisted. He watched the children in their aimless daily play. He reflected on the activities of the adults which centred on three things, catching fish with the bare hands, clubbing the wooly horses that ran in the valley, building fires to frighten the sabre-toothed tiger. It occurred to the Hammer Maker that if the children were taught these arts early in life they would be more proficient in such necessary pursuits when they reached manhood.

First Teachers

The elders of the village thought this was a fine idea, and when in time they found the duties of staying home and teaching the children these three essentials, too exacting, they decided to have teachers. For this they chose the person who was too clumsy to be able to catch fish, too weak to club a wooly horse and too timid to try to frighten a tiger.

In time the fish became more agile and could not be caught with the bare hand, the wooly horses disappeared and their places were taken by antelopes, and the sabre-toothed tiger was superseded by the glacier bear. Old hunting methods were found useless. Discovery was made of netting the fish, of snaring the antelope and of trapping the bear. Soon the whole tribe had learned all these arts. But the teachers still taught the children the ancient crafts even if there were no fish that could be caught with the bare hands, no horses, and no sabre-toothed tigers.

There was some criticism of the teaching methods. It was even suggested they learn the new arts, now generally adopted. But the elders of the village said that these were standard cultural subjects and the curriculum would be too crowded if any new ones were introduced. Some teachers began to think that these methods were artificial and disassociated with real life. Then too, there was too much teacher-domination, the children should be allowed to choose the subjects for study. This was thought to be a great step forward, even although the children, remembering that the teachers still decided who would pass at the end of the year, thought it expedient to study the subjects which had already been scheduled for that time.

A radical advance was made when fish, half stunned after being caught with nets and clubbed, were put into pools and used for practical work in catching fish with the bare hands, and when two sabre-toothed tigers, the last survivors of their kind, old, worn-out, deaf and almost blind, were brought in cages for the children to practice frightening with fire, as their forefathers had done ages past. This was thought to be an important stride. "To me," as one elder of the tribe said "it seems that the children are learning what they live and living what they learn."

Mr. Pickering's amusing summary was an impetus to further acquaintance with the book in review.

Advantages of Federation

Miss Welsh, Toronto, representative of the Teachers' Federation, addressed the convention's afternoon session. She was introduced by Miss Dorothy Houston. Miss Welsh cited the many advantages of belonging to the Federation, stressing its Sick Benefit plan and pointing out that the union of all teachers would give the members of the profession a strong organization and a greater voice in public opinion.

Classes in Crafts

Thursday afternoon's session was devoted to the study of crafts, classrooms being assigned for each subject. Their demonstration was in the hands of an expert in each particular handicraft. The subjects included Soap Carving, Wood Cutting, Reed Work, Making of Shepherd's Pipes, Line Cutting, Coping Saw Work, Making of Puppet Heads, Plaster Plaques, and Clay Modelling.

A mural at the entrance to the auditorium commanded the admiration of the teachers. It represented scenes from the story of Cinderella, executed with amazing talent and beauty by a pupil of Ameliasburg School.

Vichy Affection For United States 'Wearing Thin' Says New York Times

New York, Nov. 8.—(CP)—The New York Herald Tribune, noting in a leading editorial that there are "disturbing indications that the affection which Vichy has frequently voiced for this country is wearing a little thin", said today that one of the "most delicate" problems facing the United States concerns French possessions in the western hemisphere.

The paper remarked that the French Ambassador, Gaston Henry-Haye, has assured the United States that the Vichy government would make no agreements with Germany granting the Nazis privileges in the French colonies but it added:

"Nevertheless, so long as the collaboration between Vichy and the Axis remains undefined, our relations with Vichy are bound to be less than satisfactory. Hitler doubtless realizes thus; it suits his book."

The New York Times also noted editorially that Vichy has reassured Washington, but it, too, suggested this reassurance "will not quiet the perfectly legitimate fears which Washington has felt about the future of French possessions in the western hemisphere".

Mobile Field Hospital Covering Two Acres Presented to Britain

New York, Nov. 8.—(CP)— A complete mobile field hospital, consisting of specially constructed tents, trucks, trailers and ambulances and covering approximately two acres was set up for exhibition purposes in Upper Manhattan Thursday by the American Field Hospital Corps. It will be open to the public from November 9 to 17 and soon afterward will be shipped to England for civilian relief.

Described as the largest and most complete mobile hospital ever constructed, it is composed of 25 trucks and trailers, each designed for a specific purpose, and 16 weather-proof tents and is equipped to accommodate 100 bed patients and a hospital staff of 50 surgeons, nurses, orderlies and technicians. It is completely self-contained even with its own kitchens, showers and heating and light units, and can be operated in completely devastated and isolated districts.

British Communique

London, Nov. 8.—(CP)—A joint communique of the Air Ministry and Ministry of Home Security Friday said:

"Enemy air attacks on this country were resumed shortly after dark yesterday and were concentrated mainly on London and the home counties though a few bombers were also dropped in the Midlands, in a town in southwest England and at widely separated points elsewhere in the country.

"In London and the home counties the raids continued on a fairly intensive scale until after midnight. Damage was caused to houses and shops and public utility services at various points and a number of people were killed and injured but the casualties were not heavy having regard to the scale of the attack.

"In the town in southwest England a number of houses was damaged and there were a few casualties including a small number of persons killed.

"From other areas little damage and few casualties have been reported".

'JIGGER' HURLED 40 FEET EAST SAYS OPERATOR

James Risk, C.N.R. Employee, on Stand Four Hours in Damage Suit

SAW NO TRAFFIC

Four-hour testimony of James Risk, maintenance foreman of a railway line running north from Picton to Bancroft, fired the opening guns in a $25,000 suit being brought by the Canadian National Railways against George F. Montgomery, Frankford in Supreme Court yesterday afternoon.

R. E. Laidlaw, K.C., is appearing for the railway, with G. B. Balfour, K.C., of Balfour, Drew and Taylor, Toronto, representing the defendant. Mr. Justice Keiller MacKay is presiding.

The suit arose from a motor accident at a railway crossing near Glen Ross on July 8th, 1939, where it is alleged an automobile driven by Montgomery crashed into a gasoline-driven "jigger" severely injurying Risk, who was operating the machine, and another railway employee named Todd, who was a passenger on the gasoline car.

Risk had sustained lung contusions, internal injuries, shock, a comminated fracture of the left leg and other injuries that necessitated lengthy hospitalization and special surgical, medical and orthopaedic treatment. The "jigger" had been hurled 40 feet eastward of the crossing by the force of impact and Risk had "come to" a few feet in front of it, he testified.

Reduced Speed is Testimony

He had reduced the speed of the gasoline-car from 20 miles per hour to approximately 3 to 5 miles per hour when 500-600 feet south of the crossing, he said. As he neared the intersection he had closed the throttle and allowed the gasoline car to "drift" under its own momentum.

"I could have stopped the car at anytime," he told the bench.

For 300 feet to the west of the tracks he could observe if any traffic was approaching with the exception of a distance of 40 to 50 feet near the right-of-way which was obscured by a slight knoll. He had not seen any traffic approaching from the west and had turned to look along the easterly approach when "I heard a noise like an airplane. It seemed above me. I turned quickly to the westerly approach and the automobile was on top of me."

The gasoline car had been hurled forty feet to the northeast by the impact and had turned squarely around before coming to rest on the opposite upward slant of a ditch. He had been thrown to a point in the ditch a few feet in front of the "jigger". He knew he had been hurt and had no feeling from his hips downward. His next recollection was of someone helping him from the ditch and of people gathering around. He had not known at the time where the automobile was.

Claims No Warning Given

Risk swore he had not heard any warning sound from an automobile just prior to the accident, and admitted the highway directly west from the right-of-way had a 5 per cent. gradient. A person standing in the centre of the tracks at the intersecton could see clearly down the tracks for a distance of from five to six hundred feet.

Under cross-examination by Mr. Balfour, Risk stated he could not say, that he saw weeds cut at the crossing on the day of the accident. He admitted the possibility of an automobile being hidden from view by a small "contour" just west of the right-of-way near the crossing. His gasoline car had no methods of transmitting warning, and said the engine of the car made "some noise" when it was allowed to "drift."

The brakes of the gasoline car had not been applied at any time, he testified. According to "regulations" he was supposed to stop the car at obscure crossings only. At an intersection where he could observe if traffic was on the highway, he was not supposed to stop.

Suffers From Effects is Claim

Previously, Risk told Mr. Laidlaw, that he still suffered from effects of the accident. He had been forced to work in the office and in his regular capacity had ridden on trains, being unable to ride on conventional gasoline car. His wages of $235.00 per month, as well as all hospital, doctors' and nurses' bills, in fact, all expenses had been paid by the Canadian National Railway, he said.

In outlining the case to the jury at the opening of the session, Mr. Laidlaw stated that Risk had availed himself of the benefits of the company, and the suit was what was termed legally, a subrogation.

REV. DR. BINGHAM WILL BE PREACHER

General Secretary of Baptist Convention Will be at Victoria Avenue Baptist Church on Sunday

Victoria Avenue Baptist Church is having a great day Sunday, Nov. 10, when the guest preacher will be the Rev. H. H. Bingham, D.D., General Secretary of the Baptist convention of Ontario and Quebec.

Dr. Bingham needs no introduction to the Baptist people of this section. He is a graduate of McMaster University. He is well known throughout his pastorates in London and Walmer Road Baptist Church, Toronto. He has recently left the latter church to become the new general secretary of the Baptist convention. Two years ago he ably filled the office of President of the Baptist convention of Ontario and Quebec. For four years he was Vice-President of the B.Y.P.U. of America.

Rev. Dr. Bingham, former President of Baptist Convention of Ontario and Quebec who will be at Victoria Avenue Baptist Church Sunday.

It is interesting to note that Dr. Bingham comes from a family of preachers. His father was a minister and Dr. Bingham was one of his four preacher sons.

Sunday morning Dr. Bingham will speak about the church in the community and in the evening he will preach an evangelistic sermon. The minister of the church will conduct the services. Music will be under direction of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Deacon.

DEATH ACCIDENT JURY'S VERDICT

Enquiry Finds No One to Blame for Death of Mrs. Mary Sero, Deseronto

Accidental death was the coroner's jury verdict looking into the death of the late Mrs. Mary Sero, Tyendinaga Reserve, who died in the Belleville General Hospital on Nov. 3rd last as result of injuries received in a motor accident one week previously near her home. The inquest concluded at an adjourned sitting held at the Court House before Chief Coroner Dr. J. J. Robertson last night.

The principal witness called was Mrs. Roma Hennon, a neighbor of the deceased woman and driver of a motor car, that turned over on the Slash Road, three miles west of Deseronto on Oct. 26th last, when Mrs. Sero, a passenger in the vehicle, sustained a broken neck. Mrs. Hennon testified last night she had walked from her Tyendinaga Reserve home to Deseronto on Oct. 26th to get her automobile, which was in a garage being repaired.

Met Sero Family

In Deseronto she met Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sero and later drove them home. At the Sero home, however, they decided to return to Deseronto later in the evening. "It was about 10.45 p.m. when we left for home that night. We were going down a slight grade when my daughter and Leva Sero, who were sitting in the front seat with me, remarked the car was going too fast. Mr. and Mrs. Sero were in the back seat a' the time. I immediately applied the brakes and the rear end of the car swerved and it turned completely over on the road before rolling into the ditch," Mrs. Hennon testified as the chief witness introduced by Crown Attorney S. Gordon Robertson. Fred Sero, husband of the deceased woman and Leva Sero a daughter, both of whom were passengers in the car, substantiated Mrs. Hennon's story. Mr. Sero added that his wife remained in the car, when it rolled over, but later he had to carry her into Mrs. Hennon's home as she was unable to walk.

Cause of Death

Dr. G. H. Stobie told the jury he was called to the Belleville Hospital on Oct. 28th, where he found Mrs. Sero paralyzed from the neck down. "X-rays disclosed a fractured dislocation of a neck vertraba and she died as the result of subsequent pneumonia. There were no other indications of injury," concluded Dr. Stobie. Dr. H. A. Boyce of Deseronto, also testified he had been called to Mrs. Hennon's home on Oct. 27th and upon examining Mrs. Sero immediately ordered her to the hospital.

The jury's verdict stated that Mrs. Sero had come to her death in the Belleville General Hospital due to injuries received in an automobile accident which occurred on the Slash Road west of Deseronto. "We also find from the evidence, that death was purely accidental," the jury added.

The jury impanelled by Sergeant Arthur Harman was composed of Messrs. F. Bird, foreman, Chas. Cochrane, I. Sills, Sam Munnings and H. P. Holway. Provincial Constable Patterson investigated the accident.

2 Liberals Elected In By-Elections Held in P.E.I.

Charlottetown, Nov. 8 (CP)—Premier Thane A. Campbell's lopsided majority in the Prince Edward Island Legislature was swelled today by the addition of two Liberals in by-elections, giving him all but three of the 30 seats in the House.

To the ranks of the Government party were added A. W. Matheson of Charlottetown, councilman, and George Kitson of Hampshire, assemblyman. In electing them yesterday, voters of the 2nd Queen's district turned back two Conservatives in straight party fights.

Matheson, a lawyer, polled 1,142 votes against 1,106 for R. R. Bell, another Charlottetown lawyer. Kitson defeated Philip Matheson of Oyster Bed Bridge, 1,637-1,439. Both the assembly candidates are farmers.

DUTCH E. INDIES MUST CO-OPERATE SAYS JAP LEADER

European War Has Closed Market for Many Products of the Rich Colony

TALKS TO CONTINUE

By RELMAN MORIN

(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Tokyo, Nov. 8 (AP—Complete co-operation between Japan and the Netherlands East Indies is not only desirable but inevitable, since authorities in Holland's rich colony "realize that to maintain their island government they must shake hands with us," Ichizo Kobayashi, Japanese Commerce Minister and head of a special commercial mission to Batavia, said today.

"War has closed Europe as a market to East Indies products," he declared in an interview. "Therefore, steel, bauxite, nickel and agricultural products must be sold to Japan....the Dutch realize the importance of close relations with Japan."

Kobayashi, who returned here recently to report on the Commercial Missions negotiations in Batavia, disclaimed any Japanese intention of interfering with Indies tin and rubber exports to the United States.

"We can get all necessary for us elsewhere," he added.

"Japan," he also said, "has no more territorial or political ambitions in the direction of the Indies than in the direction of China."

But Japan is the only nation in the world in a position to invest capital and develop resources in the Indies, he contended, and if Japanese capital flows there, Japanese immigration "could be expected to follow."

Want More Oil

Kobayashi is expected to return to Batavia soon to continue negotiations which the Japanese hope will divert more Indies oil to Japan for her war machine.

He has been conferring daily with government officials and although he refused to describe his reecnt oil negotiations, he admitted that "a certain quantity" of oil which the Indies offered would not fill Japan's needs and that therefore talks would continue.

Questioned concerning Japanese newspaper reports that British and United States oil companies exerted undercover pressure against a Japanese-Indies oil agreement, he replied:

"Having interests there they must have had some conversations with the Dutch, but I can't say anything about obstructionism."

The newspaper Asahi, meanwhile, predicted today in post-election comment that "the United States, both in politics and armament, will try something in the next few months which will make the world sit up and take notice."

President Roosevelt's re-election, it added, signalized the start of an American campaign of "national aggrandizement."

HE FELT MISERABLE AFTER MEALS

Acute Indigestion Relieved by Kruschen

The treatment which put this man right must surely be worth trying in every case of indigestion. Read what he says:—

"Two years ago I suffered very much from indigestion, loss of appetite, and a most severe pain in my back. Food soured in my stomach. I felt most miserable after meals, and had no desire or appetite for them. A friend advised me to try Kruschen Salts. I did so, and I am most happy to testify that after a short time I felt the greatest relief. I continued taking Kruschen till I felt myself quite better and a new man. I feel as light-hearted as I did twenty years ago."—W.B.

The several salts in Kruschen combine aid in promoting regularity and help cleanse your system each day of poisons and impurities. Millions take the "little daily dose." At all drugstores.

Americans Spoil Hawks' Home Debut Before 15,211 Fans by Lone Goal Fired by Sorrell

ROBERTSON GOOD

Opening Game Attendance Mark Established by the Black Hawks

(By Robert Clarke)

In the not so long ago, everybody trampled upon Marvyn (Red) Dutton's men. For many years the Americans were forced to carry on with a player personnel made up mostly of veterans. Whenever a star began to fade it seemed inevitable that he would wind up with Dutton, for the Americans were forced to take just about what they could get because of cash difficulties.

Slowly, however, Dutton has added new blood to his team, worked out a farm arrangement with Springfield Indians of the American League, and now apparently is almost ready to make his bid for honors in the National Hockey League. It's been a long, hard grind, and more spade work may be in order, but Dutton seems to be getting there.

The first sign of possible power came when the Americans broke even with Lester Patrick's New York Rangers, the Stanley Cup champions, in a pre-season exhibition series. The teams each won three games in a six-game round.

Displayed Good Form

The Americans did not fare so well in their first scheduled game of the season, losing 4-2 to Detroit Red Wings. But last night they displayed good form in scoring the first shutout of the season, winning 1-0 against Chicago Black Hawks and spoiling the Hawks' home debut before 15,211 fans.

The crowd established an opening game attendance mark for Chicago. The best previous attendance was 14,864 last season.

Last night's game, the only one on the card, was won in the third period when Johnny Sorrell, one of the half-dozen or so veterans that Dutton still has with the club, fired the puck by Goalie Paul Goodman after a play with defence man Wilf Field. The score came early in the last period and the Hawks weren't able to get it back as Goalie Earl Robertson of Americans continued his air-tight work.

The Hawks play their second game of the season on Sunday in Montreal against the Canadiens, who drew with Boston Bruins in their opening game before nearly 12,000 fans. Montrealers have been so enthusiastic about their club that another full house is anticipated. On Saturday the Wings go to Toronto to play the Maple Leafs in a game that is the second of the season for each team.

TORONTO ARGOS MUST WIN TO REACH PLAYOFFS

Montreal Will Play in Toronto and Team Has Improved With Each Game

TIGERS ON SPOT

If Hamilton Wins and Argos Lose a Playoff for Second Place Will be Necessary

(By Sydney Gruson, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

The east reaches the end of the football schedules tomorrow with only one playoff spot still open, and it's as surprising as anything that happened this season to find Toronto Argonauts having to battle right to the wire for a chance to go at Ottawa Rough Riders again.

These are difficult if not altogether evil days for the once-so-mighty men of Hayman. They can lose tomorrow against Montreal and still make it, but they must win to be absoluely safe from the clawing Hamilton Tigers. If Argos lose and Tigers win at Ottawa, there'll have to be an extra playoff in the interprovincial union.

Offhand, a call to Riders and Argos seems safe enough for they are on home grounds and have already licked tomorrow's opposition once this season. But the Tiger has had his claws sharpened since the first game, and is a formidable animal right now, while Montreal has improved steadily. They held Riders to a 7-4 victory last week and it was no fluke.

Argos will be in better shape for this clash than for any since the opening game of the year. Bill Stukus likely will be back in action and the ace Argo passer will aid their spotty offensive considerably.

Argos Need Every Man

The Argos will need every man they can muster, if Montreal's recent form continues. In Gord Noseworthy they have a punter to outdistance any of the Argo hoofers. Scotty Wright of Tigers showed just how valuable kicking distance is against this season's Argo Club by practically beating them single-handed last Saturday.

Because Hayman has a way of instilling extra zip when the stakes are high, and because the Argos know better than anyone that they can't afford to lose, they get the call by a narrow margin. Ottawa, too, is picked to beat Hamilton because they're at home and they've played two games below their standard. It's time they came up with a good one.

The Ontario union card seems clearcut. The unbeaten, untied Balmy Beach Club from Toronto go after Eddie McLean's Hamilton Alerts, at Hamilton, while Camp Borden travels to Sarnia to meet the Battery. There's nothing but prestige at stake, Sarnia and Balmy having qualified for the playoffs.

Balmy's all-star backfield led by Bob Porter and Don Crowe should be able to smother Hamilton fairly easily. Sarnia came back after trouncings from Beaches to swamp the Alerts last Saturday, and the soldiers should prove even less formidable.

OLD ENTERPRISE IS BEST JUMPER

U.S. Army Wins Bowman Challenge Cup Through Fine Performance of Aged Mare

By SID FEDER

Associated Press Sports Writer

New York, Nov. 8 —(AP)— She's chiefly described as a "no account" mare, and the best information you can get is that she's of uncertain age and parentage, but big old Enterprise is giving the United States army cavalry something to cheer about at the 55th annual national horseshow.

For the last six years, the army's individual riders have been playing second fiddle to the military of such countries as Mexico, Chile, Eire and France in the matter of jumping horses in international competition.

Then, along came Enterprise. Young Capt. David Wagstaff, Jr., of Fort Myer, Va., rode her out on the tanbark at Madison Square Garden last night, and, with the crowd of 10,000 cheering him on, piloted the old mare over the 17 difficult jumps to win the Bowman challenge cup for the United States army for the first time since Lieut. Carl Raguse did it with Dakota back in 934.

A lot of society folks inside ermines and behind fronts of jewels at the Gardens knew all about young Captain Dave, a native of Tuxedo Park, N.Y., but no one knew much about old Enterprise. And after all, she only did the jumping.

Since the program listed her only as an "aged" chestnut mare, the press box went into action trying to find out all about her. The only information available was that she was bred in England, was brought over here some years ago—no one knew just how many—and was mustered into the army at Fort Myer by Capt. John Mead. When he was transferred to Kentucky, he couldn't take old Enterprise along, so he sold her to young Wagstaff.

RESERVE FUND TO BE DISCUSSED AT ANNUAL MEET

Some Owners Want $300,000 Surplus Slashed Up Among the Various Clubs

Larry Macphail's Contract for Three Years is Again Renewed

(By Judson Bailey)
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, Nov. 8.—(AP) —The principal fight that is likely to be waged in the convention of the minor leagues at Atlanta, Ga., next month will be over the reserve fund that the National Association has accumulated over the husbandry of Judge William G. Bramham.

Baseball men say that the fund now amounts to about $300,000 and at least two amendments seeking to slice it will be offered on the floor. One of these will propose that the tax on sales of players which is levied for the benefit of Bramham's Central office be cut from two per cent to one per cent. The other will come out openly for reducing the present pool by distributing part of it back to the clubs that are members of the Association.

The experiment of the Brooklyn Dodgers in selling "strip tickets" may give the club $100,000 in its till before the season ever opens. The Dodgers have offered to reserve the same seat for opening day two holidays and all night games for any fans that wish, and let the Flatbush fans pay in installments. They are reported going fast—for Christmas presents.

Macphail's Contract Extended

Larry Macphail's three year contract, incidentally, was extended by the Board of Directors last month. They gave him a three-year lease when he took charge and have extended it every year since.

Pitcher Kirby Higbe might get excited about the value of $150,000 President Gerry Nugent of the Phillies has publicly placed on him in trade talks, but it won't do him any good in 1941 salary negotiations because he is already signed.

Outfielders Joe Marty and Johnny Podgajny, the Rookie hitting sensation of the National League's closing days, also are under contract to the Phils for next year.

The Boston Red Sox signed Dom DiMaggio, Lou Finney and Jim Tabor and Washington pocketed Sid Hudson and Walter Masterson's signatures at the end of the season.

WRIGLEY LIKELY TO FIRE HIMSELF

Chicago, Nov. 8 (AP)—Owner Philip K. Wrigley of Chicago Cubs revealed that he is seriously considering firing himself as president of the club.

"I want to quit as President and devote more time to my other interests," Wrigley stated, "but I haven't found any one to take over the presidency. So right now I don't know what I'll do."

He added he offered Vice-President Charles (Boots) Weber the job again today, but Weber turned him down. Weber announced several weeks ago that he is planning to retire from the Cub organization this winter and return to his native California.

Many stories and reports have been circulated on the probable reorganization of the Cubs' front office, but Wrigley, until today, had kept strict silence.

"What I have to do first," he explained, "in any reorganization which may take place, is begin at the top. Frankly, I have been trying to decide whether I should fire myself as president. It appears that I have been adding to the confusion, if not to the men who are associated with me, certainly to the newspapers, and I do not particularly care for confusion."

Five Negro Workmen Crushed to Death

Pittsburgh, Nov. 8 — (AP)—Five negro workmen were crushed to death Thursday by the collapse of a nearby Stowe township traffic tunnel which they were repairing.

Eight men were in the tunnel at the time a section of the concrete roof fell but three—warned of danger by a "sudden loud crackling noise—escaped. One of three, William Peay, 30, was injured.

Bodies of the five were dug out of the debris five hours after the accident by rescuers working with steam shovels.

The tunnel, about 15 feet high and 800 feet long, runs through a hill connecting two communities. It was condemned 10 years ago but recently, in response to complaints, the county commissioners ordered it repaired.

From the propaganda seat of the Nazi heads in Germany comes word that the Axis powers are going to create a European Olympic games of their very own. No doubt the boxers will be provided with brass knuckles and the hockey players with machine guns, judging from the usual practice of the Axis boys. Not so long ago we read where Nazi bombers dropped their missiles of death upon the centre tennis court at Wimbledon, where past heroes of the tennis world appeared in sportsmanlike competition regardless of race, color or creed. The sweethearts of Wimbledon were such players as Borotra, the Basque, von Cramm, the German, Tilden, Helen Wills and a host of others from every corner of the universe; and no person cared about the color of their hair, the "Aryanism" of their blood, or the flag of their native land.

To rebuild the centre court at Wimbledon is of little consequence, as structures that stand for free competition, sportsmanship, good-will and everything Wimbledon stood for cannot be permanently destroyed. The Germans have shown they regard international sport as merely another phase of war and no doubt consider Wimbledon a military target, as it is at such places as Wimbledon and the fields of Eton that true sportsmanship and democracy are born and cherished and it shall not perish from the earth because of greed and totalitarian ideas. Unfortunately, however, the glory of Wimbledon cannot shine again until the twin poisons of "total" war and "total" sport are banished from this world.

Do you remember when Larry Gains, Toronto negro and then British Empire heavyweight boxing champion, scored a two-round technical knockout over Alexander Lutz, British challenger, in London nine years ago today. Gains relinquished the empire title to Jack Peterson three years later.

Ace Parker, property of the Pittsburgh Pirates, intends to hang up his football shoes at the end of the current professional season and devote his future attention solely to baseball, he declared in Philadelphia last week. Ace broke an ankle while playing with Syracuse of the International League the past summer, but the fracture has completely healed and has not impeded his gridiron activities. However, the former Duke University All-America believes he will last longer if he gives up football and confines himself to the diamond.

According to Scribe Bill Walshe, the Belleville hockey entry all but missed the Van Horne Memorial Cup train this year. It seems Fred Beaudry and his Kingston cohorts contacted "Sandy" Burrows relative to a possible Belleville entry into the Van Horne group. Now "Sandy" is a member of the O.H.A. executive and Bill Hewitt doesn't think much of organizations like the Van Horne loop, simply because they tend to tread upon the little tootsies of the mammoth provincial hockey body. Mr. Burrows replied that Belleville just wasn't interested in the Van Horne business any more and as a personal opinion, added that the Kingston preseason puck loop wasn't exactly appreciated by the O.H.A. At any rate the Kingston Moguls shrugged their shoulders, forgot all about Belleville and went on organizing regardless of the opinions of the O.H.A. On Wednesday night, however, the newly organized Belleville pucksters set sail for Kingston and a practice at the Jock Harty Arena, being of the opinion their entry was an accepted fact. They soon found out differently.

The Watt-St. Louis aggregation practiced all right and a half a dozen new faces accompanied the Belleville crowd, but after practice they learned the Van Horne loop had closed its entries and the schedule was being drafted. Immediately Watt and St. Louis set to pulling strings and after the local picture was exposed to open view the Kingston executive accepted the gold and scarlet-clad local entry. It was a narrow squeeze, however. Incidentally we hear the new club is angling for the services of Goalie Cook, who starred with Brockville last year, and a brother of Lorne Cook, secretary of the Van Horne Memorial Cup series. Those making the initial jaunt to Kingston were Bill Hastie and Tabby Gow, neither of whom need much introduction to a local puck audience. Teaming with them is a former Georgetown junior, Georgetown being the cradle of N.H.L. midget hockey and a hockey hotbed of years standing. Jim Donahue, who played with the Cornwall Flyers in the Quebec Senior loop, but is employed locally now, was out, as was Jack Till of Cardinal. The Storms brothers, Harry McCreary and St. Louis were some of the others, we hear.

Gnr. "Lum" Carson, of the 3-47th Battery, was in the city Wednesday night and attended the Girls' Softball loop hop, as was Gnr. Don Woods. The former coached the Vikings and the latter the Mets last summer. Carson tells us that the 3-47th Battery hopes to enter the Van Horne series and have made application, but they still are looking eagerly towards Belleville sporting interests for their jerseys and sox, which shouldn't cost a penny over $40.00, we hear. Carson says the 3-47th held a hockey practice in Kingston recently and no less than 30 players turned out. "They were from all parts of the province and there was enough good material to assure the icing of a strong intermediate team," assured Gnr. Carson. Incidentally if the 3-47th Battery that was recruited throughout the Bay of Quinte area, has the nucleus of a hockey team surely Belleville sportsmen are big enough to take care of a small item like sweaters and sox. Step up boys and dig down.

The future of International League baseball looks rather shaky in Toronto. The Queen City club has finished in the cellar slot for two successive seasons under Tony Lazzeri. Of course no person blames Lazzeri for the poor showing of the Leafs, as he had nothing to work with. Yesterday it was announced that "Poosh 'em up Tony" would not be back in Toronto next year while Secretary Arthur Leman intimated the future of the Leafs looked anything but bright. The Leafs might just as well had nothing than what was fielded in the past two seasons. Toronto is a good baseball city, but no town could be asked to support a team the calibre of the Leafs of late. The purchase of some good players and a flag-contender is the best stimulant we know of.

It begins to look as though Ossie Vitt will be the only major league skipper not back at the helm this year....Just who will pilot the Indians is not known and the boys are doing a lot of guessing, otherwise the remaining 15 managers seem assured of their jobs for 1941, even Doc Protho, with the lowly Phillies.. Some say Charlie Gehringer, Detroit veteran, may be offered the Cleveland post, however....

How To Overcome Piles And Rectal Soreness

If you are annoyed with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not neglect the same or run the risk of an operation. Any itching, soreness or painful passage of stool, is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once. For this purpose get from J. S. McKeown or any druggist, a package of Hemroid and use as directed. This formula which is used internally, quickly relieves the itching and soreness and aids in healing the sore, tender spots. Hemroid is highly recommended, is easy to use and it seems the height of folly for anyone to risk an operation when a simple remedy, which is so pleasant to use may be had at such a reasonable cost.

"The Great McGinty"

The reason why Paramount has titled Preston Sturges' first picture under his new writer-director contract, "The Great McGinty" will only become apparent when this vastly entertaining comedy-drama is viewed as the next feature attraction at the Belle Theatre. In advance, we are advising our readers that this is neither the tale of a dipsy diver nor a screen paraphrase of a popular song of the same name which was contemporaneous with the Gay Nineties. The title is, in fact, a clever play on words.

We hasten to add that "The Great McGinty" is—emphatically—a rowdy and utterly amusing picture from a story and script, both of which are definitely off the beaten path of average screen fare. Importantly, too, it would seem to presage—happily enough—the apparent determination of Hollywood producers (or Paramount, at least) to adopt the policy of assigning writers who are properly equipped by experience to direct their own stories. Certainly this initial Paramount-Sturges adventure along that line seems destined to return heavy dividends and vindicate the soundness of the idea.

While it is largely hilarious comedy which dominates the story, there are tensely dramatic scenes, strategically placed, which effectively add to the intriguing interest of the picture as a whole. Inspired casting has given Brian Donlevy the role of McGinty; Akim Tamiroff that of the despotic Boss, with a sense of humor; and Muriel Angelus as McGinty's wife.

"Cross Country Romance"

A coast to coast romance, with a howl in every state and laugh in every mile, "Cross Country Romance," sparkling new comedy, brings Gene Raymond and Wendy Barrie to the screen as a new romantic team.

The RKO Radio film follows the hectic adventures of a young doctor bound from New York to San Francisco in his trailer. When he discovers he has a stowaway in the person of a beautiful temperamental heiress who is running away from a distateful society marriage, laughs and complications pile up furiously.

Hedda Hopper and Billy Gilbert head the supporting cast in this riotous fun-film.

"Cross Country Romance" is announced as the added laugh feature offering.

The Belle World News events will also be exhibited. "Flying Coffins" is the title of the new chapter of the likeable "The Green Hornet" serial to be exhibited Saturday matinee at which a new issue of the popular Universal comic book will be presented to each boy and girl.

AT THE McCARTHY

"A Family of Nations"

Originally formulated as an inspiration and incentive to peace for the British Empire, John Drinkwater's motion picture "A Family of Nations" appears today as an inspiration and an incentive to the English people in their fight for the preservation of their Commonwealth, their ideals and their way of life.

When Drinkwater first conceived the idea for the picture, it was to be a pictorial record of the British Empire from the time of Queen Victoria up to the present. There was no war then, and the film was to emphasize to British subjects the value of their freedom through the interdependence and united front of the Colonies and Mother Country.

To do this he looked at millions of feet of film, dating from the pictures of Victoria's funeral; and enlisted the aid of many people prominent in public life. The result was graphic history containing interpolated interviews with Lady Astor, Sir Austen Chamberlain and George Bernard Shaw, in which they discuss their views on the development of the Empire.

The film graphically presents every event of importance to Britain from the fin de siecle up to the current conflict. The coronations of Edward VII, and George VI, the Boer and World Wars and the social and economic influences—the end of the Edwardian era, Women's Suffrage, the depression and recovery and the events and personalities involved in the responsibility for today's war.

Drinkwater must have possessed a truly prophetic quality, for timely thought the film might have been in peacetime, it is immeasurably more so in this period of conflict. In this picture, which will appear at the McCarthy theatre next week, one can see, in one continuous sweep, the upward progress of the British Empire and it makes plain the necessity of preserving, at any cost, this Commonwealth, for which so many have worked and fought and died, that we might continue to enjoy its benefits and the right to call ourselves Englishmen.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Spring Parade"

Deanna Durbin's eighth production, Universal's "Spring Parade", which has been hailed by critics as the best picture in which she has ever appeared is to remain at the Capitol Theatre for the balance of the week with daily matinees.

Produced by Joe Pasternak and directed by Henry Koster, the picture presents a more mature Deanna than in any of her previous offerings, and a more romance-laden story than has been her lot in her first seven productions.

Presenting Deanna as a village maid who goes to the city in search of the destiny foretold her by a fortune teller, the story is based on an original by Ernst Marischka and involves the star in her first real romance of the screen.

Deanna sings four numbers in the offering, three of them from the pen of the famous Viennese, Robert Stolz, who composed among other offerings, the famous "Two Hearts in Three-Quarter Time." The fourth, "Blue Danube Dream" is an adaptation by Hans Salter.

The added short subjects include "Spills and Thrills", a comedy, Universal News of the World. The fifth chapter of the thrilling serial "Tim Tyler's Luck" and the new "Canada Comes On" series. J. P. Priestley's "Britain at Bay" depicting the dramatic picturization of the spirit and defences of the "Citadel of Freedom."

"THE GORGON'S MASK"

by Van Wyck Mason

CHAPTER NINE.

"It wasn't an accident then?"

North snorted. "Of course not! There was some purpose back of her murder. Who was intended to see the body? What was its presence to prove? When I can answer that, I'll have solved the first step in my problem. By the way, what do you make of Phedre Renoire's reactions?"

"Phedre La Tour, you mean," grunted Kilgour, draining the last of his whiskey and soda. "Oh, don't pretend you didn't recognize her."

North sent a precise, gray ring drifting towards the ceiling.

"To tell the truth, I hardly did at first; she's aged a lot since last fall when La Tour dropped out of sight."

"Yes, she does seem to have been knocked about a bit. Ever find out what became of La Tour?"

"No. Heard rumors that he was somewhere in Russia, but that was over a year ago. I wonder what her part is in the game here?"

"Routine, keeping an eye out for Quai d'Orsai's interests, I suppose."

North fixed his companion with a searching regard and said impressively, "Why do you think she went so far to become so close to Abner Polk? For la belle France?"

"Can't imagine. She was always pretty strait-laced."

"Wouldn't that argue personal feelings in it somewhere?" gloomily demanded the American. "Well, let it go.—Now of course Kanamura's in it up to his ears."

"Is he working for war or against it?" Kilgour wanted to know.

"Haven't the foggiest idea—but I'd lay ten to one that he and the murdered woman had something in common."

North lapsed into silence, then delved into an inner pocket and drew out an envelope from which he removed a small object.

Kilgour's bright blue eyes kindled as he got to his feet.

"Stout fellow," he muttered. "I was wondering when you'd trot that out. What is it?"

"Frankly I don't know—haven't looked at it yet," North grunted as on the table he smoothed out a small scroll of tracing paper which was still secured to one shank of a bronze hairpin by two tiny black silk threads. Together they bent over the table.

Using a penknife which proved to be almost razor-sharp, North severed the tiny threads of silk, but took care to preserve them.

"Hope it's written in India ink," Kilgour muttered tensely and it was. When the little strip of soggy paper lay smoothed out on a clean white blotter, a series of letters stared up with satisfactory sharpness

ADXOQD
NFQNFMHCFZQS
DDMLOZHLZRSJDRSQFEEL

"Blight the luck!" groaned Kilgour, "cipher, of course, and not much of it. But I'll have a go at this later. I've always been batty on codes."

Over North's features crept a reminiscent smile. "I remember. Only batty enough to break the German High Fleet's Green code."

The Englishman flushed a little. "Oh, that was luck, pure luck. But with so little to go on, I doubt if I can get far with this." He got to his feet after jotting down a copy of the letters.

Suddenly, the intelligence captain asked, "Do you know of anyone in town who is on an intimate friendly basis with Abner Polk?"

"Why, yes, there is a girl in town—a perfectly ripping English girl whom Polk used to see a good deal. Of course he's been away, but I'm sure he'd be glad to see Betty Belknap again.

"She's reliable?"

Kilgour heaved a weary sigh and raised a quizzical eyebrow. "Naturally. But why do you plan to ring in a girl on this case? Thought you didn't like 'em for intelligence work."

"I don't," the American replied promptly. "Women are fascinating creatures — bright ornaments to a dreamy world—but they don't belong in espionage. Too emotional, Bruce, count on 'em and they fall in love. No, I merely want this friend of yours to spend as much time as she can at Polk's, and to notice quietly who goes there and why."

"Right-o, old lad, I'll send the faithful Betty around. When will you want her?"

North considered an instant. "Tonight, in this room—if she doesn't mind the unconventionality. I'm going over to the morgue," he announced, "and take another look at the late lamented under a decent light. If it's not too much of an imposition on Miss Belknap, I'd like to see her about twelve. Let me know if she's coming."

"Right," agreed Kilgour, putting away his pipe and retrieving the sun helmet he had pitched on the bed. "You'll find Betty a discreet soul, and," he winked, "quite English." He paused in the doorway as the phone jangled.

The intelligence captain made exasperating noises as he lifted the receiver. "Hello, . . . Yes, this is Mr Nevins. . . . What!"

The Englishman stiffened but said nothing when a deep series of furrows appeared on North's brow.

"Poor fellow—an awful shame!" With a weariness that was far more eloquent than words, North replaced the receiver and faced Kilgour with, "that call was from a man I put to shadowing young Clark."

"Lieutenant Clark?"

"Yes. Five minutes ago, Clark jumped, or was pushed, from his room window on seventh floor of his hotel."

"Dead?"

"Dead."

Captain Thomas Amalu's white-clad body paused in the chilled-room door and almost filled it as he switched on the lights. North, peering over the Eurasian's shoulder, could see a row of six slabs, all but two of them unoccupied. From beneath the sheet shrouding the further figure protruded a bare, milk white, delicately formed foot with traces of enamel still tinting its carefully manicured nails.

"Well, there she is, Mr. Nevins," remarked the Hawaiian police officer. "Chief of Police says help yourself. I hope you can find out something about her. We have telephoned all over the island, but it's always a case of 'No savvy', 'No have got such girl'."

"No one missing at any of the army posts?"

"No one, sir," echoed Captain Amalu; then his fat lidded eyes widened a little. "What do they say downtown about the war? A Japanese told me, not an hour ago, that their fleet would bombard Honolulu soon."

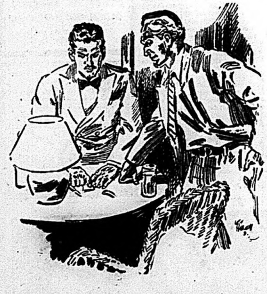
"Stuff and nonsense!" grunted North and promptly dismissed the subject. "Who brought the body here?"

"Police ambulance, sir."

"Anybody come with it?"

"No, sir," sighed Captain Amalu, who would evidently much rather discuss the gathering war clouds.

(To be continued)



"Blight the luck!" deplored Kilgour as North fingered the tiny paper. "Cipher, of course, and not much of it."

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was smoking to himself in his private chair and I said, Hay pop, tomorrow's Sattiday and they always have a swell Kut Up Komery at the Little Grand on Sattidays, and tomorrow they're going to have Fun in a Bakery with the Six Burp Brothers and everybody says it's their swellest picture they ever had.

I'm glad to hear you say it, that just bares out my contention about the movies, they're improving all the time, pop said. Some people have the idea that motion pictures are in their infancy, and sometimes it does really seem as though they were in their 2nd childhood, having skipped their maturity, but I insist they're getting better every day, or at least every few days, he said, and I said, Childern only have to pay half price at the Little Grand.

The childern are to be congradulated, I'm sure although I doubt that the special price was prompted by anything except mercenary motives on the part of the board of governors of the Little Grand, pop said. Still, it's an example of good issuing from questionable promptings, such as in the case of some of our most delicious sauces, wich were concoted originally to disguize the taste of spoiled meat in the wicked old days before refrigeration, he said, and I said, But jimminy, pop, some of the other fellows are going.

I'm not surprised pop said. Equality of opportunity is a myth, the very unfairness of special privilege is often the cause of great achievements resulting from the greater determination engendered in the under privileged, he said, and I said, But good night, pop, I want to go, can I, pop, cant I?

The admission price is within your reach, pop said.

Wich it was, on account of him holding it out to me.

Proving sometimes all you have to do is ask.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Nov. 8 (CP)—Golds featured [illegible] to Exchange today. All othe. [illegible] increased. Volume was 262,[illegible] res.

Industrials moved actively in today's trading and gains were showing for steels, utilities, senior oils, foods and papers.

Kerr-Addison, McKenzie, Buffalo-Ankerite, MacLeod-Cockshutt and Central Patricia were among the gold gainers. Shares of Transcontinental Resources Limited were listed today and sold around 44. Steep Rock was active being up 4 to 1.69. Sudbury Basin firmed 20.

WALL STREET

New York, Nov. 8 (AP)—Profit takers descended on the stock market in force today and most leaders lost their rallying verve of the preceding session.

Prices were slightly higher at the opening. Selling then cropped up and the ticker tape was three minutes behind for a while as blocks of 1,000 to 5,000 shares changed hands. The pace then slowed and, near the fourth hour, declines of fractions to a point or so were plentiful.

In the stock division U.S. Steel, Crucible and Pennsylvania hit new year's highs at the start, then backed away. Inclined to waver also were Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, Douglas Aircraft, Consolidated Edison, Texas Corp., N.Y. Central, J. I. Case and Kennecott.

In the resistant class were Sears Roebuck, Allied Cremical, J. C. Penney, Du Pont, Eastman Kodak and Air Reduction.

Canadian issues moved slightly higher. Dome Mines, McIntyre, Hiram Walker and Distillers Seagram comprised the forward movement. Canada 4s, among Bonds, held unchanged.

Hog Quotations

Toronto, Nov. 8 (CP)—Dressed-weight were up 10 cents at Hull and prices were unchanged at Brantford and Stratford in bacon-hog markets reporting early today.

Dressedweight: Brantford $10.75 plus transportation, Hull $10.70, Stratford $10.75 plus transportation.

Slight Easing In Butter Prices

Toronto — Further price easing was reported in butter on the Toronto open produce market yesterday and eggs held firm at previous levels.

Many buyers remained aloof of the butter market, apparently waiting to study the all-Canadian stock figures prior to making commitments. Although offerings were still on the light side, sufficient butter was available to meet the slow demand. Ontario No. 1 creamery solids sold in wholesale channels at 29½ cents a pound. Dealers reduced prices on prints to the retail trade in accordance with the slightly lower price on solids. Top grades moved at 31 to 31½ cents a pound.

Caution was the keynote on the egg market in view of recent sharp gains. Prices held firm, however, under prevailing light arrivals.

Montreal Produce.

Montreal, Nov. 8 — Produce market prices here, as reported by the Dominion Department of Agriculture, follow:

Butter—First grade creamery prints, jobbing price, 31c; first grade solids, jobbing price, 30½c.

Eggs—Graded shipments in used free cases, selling price, A-large 48c; A-medium, 45c; A-pullets, 35c; B, 27c to 28c; C, 19½c to 20c. Receipts, 5,312 cases.

Ambulance Given England

New York, N.Y., Nov. 8 —(CP)—Residents of New London, Conn., gave an ambulance to the bomb-harrassed Old Londoners today. A $1,350 cheque for the purchase of an ambulance was received today by the British-American Ambulance Corps with the request that the machine be sent to London England. It was the 367th ambulance given to Great Britain through the corps since its organization last June.

Weekly Livestock Report

Toronto, Nov. 8 (CP)—Cattle and calf prices were unchanged on the livestock market, here this week. Hogs dropped 40 to 50 cents from last week while lambs gained 25 cents. Sheep were a little lower.

The cattle holdover from last week was 700 head which was increased to 1,000 head by the close of the current week's market sessions. The total supply included about 2,500 stockers. Several hundred plain killers from northern and eastern Ontario were included in the holdover. Weighty steers sold at a top of $8.50 with others from $8.25 down to $3 cwt. Butcher steers and heifers were $5.50 to $7.50 with boners at $4 and $5. Butcher cows sold at $4 to $6.50 with canners and cutters at $3 to $3.75. Butcher bulls were $5 to $6.50 and bolognas $4 to $4.75. Fed calves sold from $8 to $10.50.

Good stockers sold steady at $6.50 to $7.50 cwt with stock calves up to $7.75. Common stockers moved slowly at $4.50 to $6 cwt. Good milkers and springers were firm at $80 to $90 each while common kinds moved slowly as low as $45 each.

Veal calves were steady at $10 to $11 for choice and downward to $6 for common. Heavy, fat calves sold at $6 to $8 and grassers brought $5 to $5.50.

Hogs opened and closed at $11.40 dressed and at $8.50 liveweight. Sows were lower at $5 to $5.50 dressed.

Lambs opened 25 cents higher at $9 to $9.25 for good ewes and wethers and closed at the same level. Heavies and bucks were $8 to $8.25 and culls $7 to $8 Sheep were lower with good western ewes at $5.50 and with others from $2 to $5 cwt. Western breeding ewes sold at $9 to $11 each.

Cheese Board to Draft Resolution Asking For Higher Prices

Members of the Belleville Cheese Board are insistent that something be done to improve the price of both export and domestic cheese. At the regular meeting of the board held on Thursday evening, several of the members stated at the present price, cheese was being produced at less than cost to the farmers who produce the milk and also that the price was away out of proportion to what the farmer had to pay for the produce he had to buy.

It was pointed out that labor was being paid correspondingly exorbitant wages at government construction projects and that farmers cannot compete with the high wages offered and were in many cases losing their help. In some cases it was reported that farmers so affected were seriously considering getting rid of their stock because they could not hire help to assist them in their farm work. "This will seriously curtail the production of cheese unless something is done to aid the farmer in this respect," said Mr. W. R. McCreary, who claimed that the situation demanded serious consideration.

Mr. Fred Mallory, Secretary of the Belleville Cheese Board asked that it be remembered that England was purchasing practically all our export cheese and that at the present time it was doubtful if she were in a position to grant any higher price which might be asked. In opposition to this argument it was pointed out that labor costs at many construction projects now under way in Canada were being largely paid for by England, and that farmers should be paid at least corresponding rates for their produce.

As a result of the discussion the Secretary of the cheese board was instructed to draft a resolution asking higher prices for next year's cheese, the same to be forwarded through the Ontario Cheese Producers' Association.

Lake Freighters Driven to Shelter By Heavy Storms

South Bay, Nov. 8 — Seeking shelter out of strong winds, that at times reached gale proportions four unidentified lake freighters are laying at anchor off Timber Island, Point Traverse, out of great seas that are sweeping across Lake Ontario in one of the first heavy storms of the fall.

Mountainous seas sweeping across the lake held many vessels at their ports, although some heavily laden freighters proceeded to their destinations despite the big blow. One oil carrying canal barge was reported in difficulty off Oswego and coastguard boats gave succor. All commercial fishing craft were held at their quays throughout the storm, daring not to venture forth to retrieve their nets.

News Briefs

Mr. Clarence Ostrander and son have laid up their fishing craft in the Point Traverse harbor for the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Wannamaker and family have returned to this vicinity taking up residence at their home here.

The water level at the harbor has dropped several inches during October, but has not inconvenienced commercial fishing craft.

Pte. Howard Bongard, Camp Borden, visited his parents over the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Lobb are taking up residence in their new home recently purchased from Mr. Wilfred Ostrander.

The Bell Telephone Line will shortly be extending its line to the Point Traverse vicinity.

Placed on Butter Ration

Copenhagen (via Berlin), Nov. 8 —(AP)—Denmark, which for years has helped supply Europe with butter and eggs, was placed today on a butter ration of 350 grams (12.35 ounces) a person weekly. Germany's war butter ration is at present 125 grams (3.5 ounces) a week.

GERMANS BOMBED WRONG STATION FOR TWO WEEKS

When Mistake Realized, Says Correspondent, Britain Had Corrected Defences

JUST RETURNED

New York, Nov. 8 (CP)—The bombing plane is the greatest obstacle to be overcome by press correspondents who daily report the war from London, writes James M. Minifie in the New York Herald Tribune today. The least is the censorship "which functions only on questions of ac' and not on matters of opinion."

Just returned from London where he was stationed since May, Minifie represented the Herald Tribune in Europe for the last 10 years, serving in Rome, Paris and in Spain. He is a graduate of the University of Saskatchewan.

British censorship is imposed only to keep military information from reaching the Germans, Minifie explained to Americans who frequently have been critical of the war censorship. The responsibility is the censor's, not the correspondent's he added.

(This is in contrast to Germany's system under which correspondents are responsible for the news they send. If a dispatch is viewed as unfavorable in German eyes, the correspondent may be expelled from the country.)

Censorship prevents identification of areas where bombs hit and Minifie justified this policy by saying that if a "flash" on the position of a bomb hit is allowed to be sent abroad, the information would be at German air headquarters 40 minutes later. The next relay of bombers thus would correct their aim.

"The importance of not revealing to the Germans the precise area they are hitting is apparent from the fact that they bombed Marylebone station and surrounding district for two weeks, apparently under the impression that they were hitting Paddington," he wrote.

"Marylebone is a large station, but is virtually unused, following the railroad consolidations after the last war. Paddington is the chief departure station for the west of England. By the time the Germans realized their mistake and started bombing Paddington, heavy day bombing was out of the picture and the improvement in British anti-aircraft defences had made low-level attacks almost impossible.

ITALIANS ATTEMPT

front with troop fighting on a fairly heavy scale, it was said, but Greek field artillery and anti-tank guns were most active in the protection of the coastal route to Ioannina.

Neutral military experts said the Greek positions now are as good as or better than they were on the first day of the Italian offensive.

They said that the Greek advance into Albania on the Macedonian front more than offset their withdrawal 100 miles to the southwest in the Epirus region.

Everywhere, according to these observers, the Greeks apparently are operating in accordance with well-laid plans and with no break in their communications or supply organization. Both army and civilian morale appeared high, under the encouragement of British aid.

The coastal thrust toward Ioannina was the greatest threat to the Greeks.

The High Command said that all attacks in this sector, where the Greeks previously said they made a slight retreat had been repulsed.

A Government spokesman declared: "The situation is thoroughly satisfactory."

Elsewhere on the 100-mile front extending along the Greek-Albanian border from the Ionian Sea to the Yugoslav frontier little activity was reported beyond heavy exchanges of artillery fire.

On their extreme right flank the Greeks apparently still were clinging to their mountain positions dominating the Italian base of Koritza, 10 miles inside Albania.

The High Command made no mention of further advances there and military observers believed the Greeks would be content to hold the commanding positions they have already won.

Just "Local" Fighting

Italian attacks on the Greek left flank in the Epirus sector reported yesterday as apparently the beginning of a major offensive, thus far have resulted in purely "local" fighting, a government spokesman said.

The High Command used the same phrase in referring to fighting there.

Reports from Cairo said the British middle east command was giving valuable air and naval aid to Greece, but that it was moving cautiously because of the necessity of keeping its forces ready to meet a threatened Italian drive at the Suez.

Greek reserve officers and non-commissioned officers living in Egypt received orders to report to their consulates and it was understood they were to form the nucleus of a Greek division to be recruited from the large Greek colony there.

Italian aircraft continued their attacks yesterday on objectives behind the Greek front lines, bombing Corfu and a number of towns in the interior. The Greek High Command said there were some casualties but no damage of military importance.

BRIDGE COLLAPSES

"The solid metal expanses acted like a sail, catching the wind and swinging the bridge. We had planned to bore holes to allow the wind to pass through, but had not had time."

It was a race with the elements that the engineers lost. From its opening, the bridge had shown menacing signs of sway whenever a high wind whipped-up. There was an up-and-down swing that gave motorists a sea-sick feeling.

A $20,000 model of the span consequently was constructed in the University of Washington Engineering Laboratory, and was studied by engineers seeking a means of arresting the sway.

The state carried insurance of $5,-300,000 on the bridge, plus insurance against loss of tolls.

(Prof. F. B. Farquharson was on the writhing narrows bridge when its centre span collapsed into Puget Sound. He had been engaged in laboratory research for several months at the University of Washington in an attempt to correct the sway of the span. His account of the bridge collapse follows:

By PROF. F. B. FARQUHARSON

Tacoma, Wash. (AP).—I was the only person on the narrows bridge when it collapsed. It wasn't bravery on my part. I didn't believe it would happen, and besides, I was anxious to get a motion picture of the unusual way the bridge was acting for my official records.

When I arrived about 9:45 a.m. the bridge was moving in a normal way, in the familiar rippling motion we were studying and seeking to correct.

About half an hour later it started a lateral twisting motion in addition to its vertical waves. It had never done that before. There was considerable noise of stress and strain. As the motion increased in severity, lamp posts were jerked back and forth in a side motion and at least six snapped off while I was on the bridge.

I noticed one auto stalled in the middle of the span. Previously I had seen two men near the car. They were deathly sick. They stumbled and crawled to the Tacoma end.

I looked in the car and saw a dog in there. Then I went ashore to get some more films for my camera, and walked out on the careening span again.

Tried to Save Dog

About ten minutes later, as the pitching, twisting and rolling increased, the dog occurred to me again. Since I love dogs, I staggered out to mid-span again and opened the door and tried to coax him out. The animal, sick and terrified, bit me on a knuckle.

Then I gave up the attempt, deciding that even if I succeeded in getting the dog out he'd probably fall overboard. So he stayed and plunged to death in his master's car.

Looking toward the gig harbor end, I saw the suspenders—the vertical steel cables—snap off and a whole section of the bridge caved in.

The main cable over that part of the bridge, freed of its weight, tightened like a bow string, flinging the suspenders into the air like so many fish lines.

I realized the rest of the main span of the bridge was going so I started for the Tacoma end. Behind me, the rest of the bridge plunged into the Sound.

By that time I was between the tower on the Tacoma side and th Tacoma shore. I thought I was out of danger, but suddenly the bridge dropped from under me. I fell and broke one of my cameras. I got up and started, only to have the bridge fall out from under me again.

The part of the bridge I was on had dropped fully 30 feet, due to the sudden shift of weight in the main cable. . . .

It was one of those things that couldn't happen once in 1,000 years, a combination of conditions that no one anticipated.

(Farquharson suffered only minor bruises and abrasions.)

REVAMPED PUBLIC

Having had opportunity to study the commission's far reaching recommendations since parliament adjourned Aug. 7, the Prime Minister made plain the government's determination to act on those recommendations if the co-operation of the provinces could be obtained.

To that end a Dominion-Provincial conference has been called for sometime about mid-January. Invitations were sent out to the premiers of all the provinces last Saturday.

Historic Essentials Maintained

Parliament's opening ceremonies yesterday maintained all the historic essentials of the occasion while avoiding unnecessary pomp and glitter. The Earl of Athlone, with Princess Alice at his side, presided at the Senate Chamber ceremony attended by the members of the Commons and Senate. It was the first parliamentary opening since His Excellency became Governor-General early last summer.

"You will be fully advised of international developments, of Canada's co-operation with the United Kingdom and of relations with the United States," the Throne Speech said. "The measures which will be submitted to you are such as seem necessary to my advisers for the welfare of the country and for the prosecution of the war to the utmost of our strength."

General Debate to Open

Today general debate on the Throne Speech begins in the Commons when Brooke Claxton (Lib. Montreal-St. Lawrence-St. George) and Rene Jutras (Lib. Provencher) move and second the address in reply. After that Conservative Leader Hanson will move adjournment of the debate, to be resumed Tuesday afternoon. The Commons will not meet on Monday, "Remembrance Day."

The Senate adjourned after the opening proceedings yesterday until Tuesday, when Senator L. A. David of Quebec and Senator Salter Hayden of Ontario will move the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne in the Upper Chamber.

In announcing his proposal of a Dominion-Provincial conference, the Prime Minister informed the Commons that Parliament probably would stand adjourned throughout January, so that the conference might be arranged for sometime about the middle of that month.

Maximum War Effort Promised

"It is the view of the Government that adoption of the commission's recommendations is necessary to put our country in a position to pursue a policy which will achieve the maximum war effort and, at the same time, to lay a sound foundation for post-war reconstruction," Mr. King said in his letter to each provincial premier.

At the proposed conference the government would grasp the opportunity to place its views in this regard before the provinces and seek general discussion of the recommendations. The government believed no time should be lost in arranging such a conference, the Prime Minister wrote.

The Rowell-Sirois commission was appointed in 1937 to investigate unsatisfactory Dominion-Provincial relations and the war had only emphasized the necessity of a solution.

Under the present set-up, it was impossible to attain the maximum productive effort or distribute war costs fairly. Attention had also to be given to the future, so that thorough-going social, economic and financial adjustments could be made for the post-war period.

Two-and-a-Half Year Study

The Rowell-Sirois report resulted from a two-and-a-half year study of the confederation basis by a four-man commission, aided by a staff of outstanding experts in economics, finance and history.

In general it recommended that the Dominion should assume responsibility for relief for unemployed employables and for all provincial debt. In return, the provinces would withdraw from the personal and corporation income tax fields, as well as inheritance taxes. Through this tax transfer, it was felt, variable finance factors would be borne more equitably on the broader tax base of the Dominion.

The Prime Minister also tabled a file of orders-in-council passed during the adjournment of the last session from August to prorogation last Tuesday, and correspondence with Conservative House Leader Hanson on plans for opening parliament.

SPORADIC RAIDING

Raiders Over Midlands

Raiders also were reported over the midlands during the morning and reports of last night's raiding disclosed that a large library, a children's hospital and a Catholic home for the old were among the places hit. Casualties were few at all three. Fair weather prevailed in the Strait of Dover but a slight haze cut visibility.

Casualties were few in the night raids which were concentrated mainly on London and the surrounding area, the Ministries for Air and Home Security said. A few bombs were dropped on the industrial midlands, a town in the southwest and at other widely scattered points.

Raids Fairly Intensive

The attacks on London were on "a fairly intensive scale" during the early hours of the night but tapered off after midnight, a communique declared.

The nighly raids began on schedule but the all clear was sounded several hours earlier than usual, in contrast to the previous night when the capital was kept under the longest alert of the war.

"Damage was caused (last night in London and surrounding regions) to houses, shops and public utility services at various points and a number of people were killed and injured but the casualties were not heavy, having regard to the scale of the attack," an early morning communique said.

Other places reported hit despite fierce anti-aircraft fire were an ambulance depot, a shelter, a previously bombed hospital, a number of private dwellings and a block of apartments. Twenty bombs hit one garage on the outskirts.

In other areas of England there was little damage and few casualties, the government said, but a number of houses was damaged in the southwest England town and "a small number of persons" killed.

Picton and District

Picton, Nov. 8 —(Special)— One of the most enjoyable meetings of the season was "Fathers' Night" held by the H. & S. Club in the kindergarten on Wednesday evening. Mrs. F. Webster presided and introduced the guest speaker, Dr. Bert Howard of Albert College, Belleville.

As usual Dr. Howard had a very inspiring message for his audience when he dealt with the subject "What Should We Expect of Education?"

"We go to school to learn our own value," said Dr. Howard. "We are worth just the value we place on our own lives. If we think our lives valuable, we try to make it count for something in our country."

The speaker emphasized the need of pupils being taught to design their lives—designed lives, like designed buildings, being the most profitable.

Train to Think

"Pupils should be trained to think," said Dr. Howard. The unthinking, superficial person is almost always an uneducated person. Our thoughts can lift us to the highest heights or drag us to the lowest depths."

"School should teach us to face life," suggested the speaker. "If we dodge the issues of life we will never enjoy life." He suggested a favorite motto of his—Take off your hat to the past, and your coat to the future."

Children must be taught that there are "Alps" to surmount in life but that there are also passes that can be navigated.

Pupils need to learn how to face life, and we can encourage these young people by letting them know we are "standing by."

Full of Interests

"The world is full of interests and pupils must acquire some of these," said Dr. Howard. "We must teach the boys and girls that an educated person has internal resources that he can fall back on. Recreation and amusements are an important part of life but, like our noses, must be kept in their proper place," said Dr. Howard. "Enjoyment is the bloom on life, that we get seeking something else," said the speaker.

Better Than 100 Years Ago

"We should learn how to leave the world a little better place than we found it. The world is a better place today than it was 100 years ago," said the speaker, "when boys and girls of tender age were chained to benches in factories and made to work long hours under the lash."

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered Dr. Howard for the fine address by Mr. L. B. Calnan and seconded by Mrs. Iva Martin.

Other items on the program that were greatly enjoyed were, a piano duet by Helen Yarwood and Woodrow Blakely; a reading by Lillian Carter and a vocal solo by Rev. J. B. Creeggan, accompanied by Mrs. Howard Walmsley. Later the gathering assembled for refreshments in the Domestic Science room where the fathers present were seated at one large table and the club members at another. Sandwiches, cake and tea was served by the refreshment committee.

Cubs Entertained

Mrs. C. Ball entertained the Cubs at a party at the Mission after school on Wednesday when there were lively games followed by refreshments.

The public school teachers of P.E. County are assembling in Wellington Consolidated School for convention on Friday.

Belleville's Children's Band was heard with great enjoyment at the Jamboree staged in the armouries by the Arm Chair Club on Wednesday evening. Bingo was another attraction when the prizes were chickens and tendersweet hams. Jitney dancing found favor with the younger crowd and a fine sum was realized from the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Cross, Union Street, have the sympathy of many friends, as their twelve months old baby passed away on Tuesday morning following a short illness with pneumonia.

A number from Picton attended the funeral service of Mr. Daniel Williams at the home of his only son, Sam Williams, Waupoos East, on Tuesday afternoon. Mr. Williams passed away on Sunday in his 88th year and was laid to rest in Glenwood Cemetery, Picton.

Mrs. Milton Young is closing her home for the winter and will take up residence with the Misses Abercrombie, Queen Street.

Jamboree Successful

Picton — The jamboree in Picton armories Wednesday night sponsored by the Armchair Club drew a splendid crowd despite adverse weather conditions. There were more than a thousand paid admissions.

Especially popular among the games was bingo when hams and chickens were the prizes. The wheel games, where cigarettes and candy were the awards were busy all evening. Jitney dancing saw the floor filled, Davis' orchestra furnishing music.

The 1941 cars exhibited by General Motors and Prince Edward Motors were inspected with interest and attractive displays of radios were arranged by Carter Bros., Adams and VanDusen Co., Canadian Department Store.

The I.O.D.E. conducted a refreshment booth and the ladies were kept very busy. Those in charge wore large ribbons of blue or yellow in their hair, aprons to match, tied with similar large bows.

Highlighting the program was the program given by St. Michael's band of Belleville, which more than lived up to advance notices. Mr. A. Meagher was a capable master of ceremonies and Monsignor Nicholson, St. Michael's Church was heard in an inspiring address.

Rousing marches solos and duets, were beautifully rendered and drew enthusiastic applause. The children, smart in colorful outfits, were under the baton of young Barbara Forhan. Of special interest were two numbers the compositions of E. R. Hinchey of Belleville. A musical dialogue by Bobby Moher and Edward Barrett, one dressed as a girl, was cleverly done, the story being told by playing various numbers. Other numbers on the enjoyable program were opening, "Anchors Aweigh," "King Cotton," march, "Office of the Day," march, bell solo by Helen Grant, aged 7, youngest member of the band, "Col. Bogey" march, cornet duet, Margery Gill and John Briand.

The "B" orchestra gave Victor Herbert's "Indian Summer," Betty Flynn, Dolores Clapp and Bobby Young, medal winners, gave a trio; Barbara Donovan delighted with a tap dance. Joe Barrett contributed a fine vocal solo; Mary Aileen Grant gave a pretty fairy dance.

Loyola Chapple, who was fourth in the Waterloo musical festival, starred in an euphonium solo.

"C" band played "Primo", an overture by E. R. Hinchey, "Down the Field" and "Coronation Medley," the latter also by Mr. Hinchey. Theresa Meagher, who was fifth at Waterloo in a class including men 25 years of age, showed her ability in a tuba solo.

The band reflected the years of careful training given by their teacher, Sister Mercedes of St. Michael's. A return visit of the band would be highly popular, their attendance at this jamboree was a real attraction and highly appreciated.

V. O. N. CAR HASTENS TO ANSWER YOUR CALL

The little car, bearing in modest letters the name of the Victorian Order of Nurses, is a familiar sight to most residents as it travels every city street in sunshine and in the stormiest of weather, night and day. Out of it steps the blue clad nurse on her mission of healing or teaching, bringing to hundreds of homes in the city the nursing care that they urgently require, or words of enlightenment in health instruction that will bear fruit in the better health of the community.

Thousands of visits are made each year into homes in the city where skilled part-time nursing is needed. Those who can afford to pay the fee and those in less fortunate circumstances receive the same kindly and efficient service. The deficit in the V.O.N. budget is made up by grants and through the response of citizens to the annual appeal for funds.

The campaign this week started on Monday with an excellent reception being accorded the canvassers as they visited Belleville homes. The city has been divided into four districts captained by Mrs. C. A. Cameron, Mrs. F. Foley, Mrs. Douglas Cleland and Mrs. A. Gilroy under the guidance of the campaign chairman, Mr. Taylor Franklin. Men and women enthusiastic over the work of the V.O.N. in Belleville have volunteered their services as canvassers. Their devoted work has resulted so far in very satisfactory returns, and when the campaign week is over it is hoped that the objective of one thousand dollars will be oversubscribed.

The interest of the citizens in the campaign is another evidence that the home front is not being neglected in this serious time. Every community must go forward in programs for better health and better living conditions, so that fighting men, returning home when Britain's cause has triumphed, will find that those entrusted with the affairs of the homeland have kept up the good fight in their own particular sphere.

Former Isolation Hospital Disposed of by Corporation

R. F. Hayward's Offer of $500 for Property is Accepted

Considerable business was transacted by the City Council meeting in committee Thursday evening prior to the regular session being held on Monday.

Due to the complaints of several taxpayers re transfer of children from Queen Mary School to King George School, a committee of Mayor Thompson, Aldermen Clarke, Armstrong and Jeffery was appointed to obtain information and recommend to the council about a suitable reply to the Department of Education relative to re-opening class room at Queen Mary School closed by the inspector.

A committee of Mayor Thompson, the Comptroller and the Treasurer, was appointed to interview the Board of Education relative to request of additional finance required to continue night classes at the Collegiate till end of the present season, also with reduction of provincial grants, what the approximate overdraft shall be if night classes and present instruction is maintained till the end of teaching season and report back to council.

The committee recommended a grant of $150 be given the War Savings Certificate Committee and that they be given the use of the Council Chambers on Tuesday, November 12th.

An offer of $500 for the property known as the Isolation Hospital by R. F. Hayward was accepted by the council in committee. The corporation will retain the right to round off the northwest corner, the land to be taken from the property free of charge. A cheque for $50 accompanied the offer. The purchaser becomes liable for taxes from December 1st, 1940.

It was recommended that the chairman of public works be given the authority to have city engineer have a safety line painted on the pavement on Victoria Ave. from Front St. east over Pinnacle St.

The chairman of public works, Ald. H. R. Rollins, Mayor Thompson, Ald. A. M. Kennedy and the city comptroller were appointed as a committee to look into the matter of purchase of a pick-up truck for the Public Works Dept.

TWO KILLED BY BOMB

Scranton, Pa., Nov. 8—(CP)—Police today continued investigation into the deaths of a brother and sister, killed by a bomb explosion in a car parked in front of their home.

William Rebhorn 19 and his sister, Lois, 17, children of Dr. E. H. Rebhorn, Scranton's Public Health director, were mangled when one of them touched the door handle of the family car.

Brian Donlevy and Muriel Angelus in "The Great McGinty," the year's surprise comedy hit, next at the Belle, with "Cross Country Romance" as co-feature.

MR. CHAMBERLAIN IS 'GRAVELY ILL'

Wife of Former Premier Says His Health Has Been Failing Last Few Days

M CHAMBERLAIN .. U D CH

London, Nov. 8 (CP).—Rt. Hon. Neville Chamberlain, former prime minister, is "gravely ill", Mrs. Chamberlain informed the press today.

"Mr. Chamberlain's strength has been failing the last few days and he is now gravely ill," the message said.

The former prime minister, who laid down his duties as prime minister in May and retired from public life last month, is 71.

Mr. Chamberlain is understood to be in the country, where he has been resting since his resignation Oct. 3 as Lord President of the Council. He resigned as prime minister last May 10, giving way to Winston Churchill the day Germany began her drive into the low countries and France.

Mr. Chamberlain underwent an abdominal operation July 29 for relief of symptoms of intestinal obstruction, but his recovery was described as satisfactory and after a short while he was back at his government post. He has suffered attacks of gout in past years.

Trenton Municipal Election May be Quiet

Trenton, Nov. 8 — With nomination day only two weeks away prospects of a quiet election loom large. There is a possibility that there will be a three-cornered race for the mayoralty seat but still the prospective candidates will not definitely commit themselves.

Mayor O. Alyea who won the seat last December in a three-cornered race will likely run again but when questioned this morning he would not definitely commit himself. "There is a possibility that I will run under certain conditions," he said. Ex-mayor Harry Cory might enter the field again, while many say that Councillor Couch will also run.

Two councillors of the 1940 council have signified their intention of withdrawing from municipal politics this year. They are Councillor Victor Ryan who is planning to establish a new business in Trenton and Councillor Ernest Ellis who is working at the Airport and finds he does not have the time necessary to look after his work and municipal affairs at the same time.

Councillor H. LaFleur and Councillor O'Rourke, two perennial councillors, will be back in the field again this year. Both, these councillors have served many years in various capacities. Councillor R. J. Whitley has not yet decided whether he will again serve on the council.

The council that is elected this year will be elected for two years or the duration of the war, as the Ontario Department of Municipal Affairs has automatically extended the time.

The term of Commissioner George Sprentall on the Public Utilities Commission expires this year and so far no candidate has come forward as opposition.

HITLER ATTENDS GATHERING

New York, Nov. 8 (AP)—The Berlin Radio broadcast a dispatch from Munich reporting that Hitler attended a commemorative gathering of Nazi veterans in Munich this eve of the Nov. 9 Nazi Memorial Day.

Collegiate News

B.C.I. & V.S., Nov. 8—A bitter wind blew out of the east—and exposed the fact that two of our six-man junior rugby team had conveniently forgotten their last birthdays in their signing up for the team—a very bitter wind, for it leaves a bitter taste in our mouths. Two victories are cancelled and we now trail along at the end of the list. But there's good stuff in the team — show them fellas, in the next game!

The Albert College senior team (reinforced by agreement with overage players for an exhibition game) gave plenty of opposition to our senior rugby team on Wednesday afternoon, the score being 11-2 in favour of Albert. One loss is good experience. Now for Bowmanville!

So we heard:

The Grade 10A Blitzkrieg is going to publish an annual and we hear that under the very competent direction of Marie Ducsberry its paper is flourishing. There is another form paper put out by 9B with Gordon Bankier as editor, which is a great success. We think this idea of a form paper is a good one and must admit that Grades 9 and 10 have stolen a march on the upper grades, who had the same idea several years ago but it came to naught. 12B, to stimulate enthusiasm in the War Saving Stamp campaign, gives a weekly prize of a War Saving Stamp to the individual who sells the greatest number of stamps each week; recent winners were Norma Smith, Gerald Hyde and Mary Lou Lazier (I've forgotten the names of the others). Last week the reports on sale of stamps for September and October went in and for the two months the Collegiate sold $4,228.00 worth. We're all patting ourselves on the back now!

XIE, a commercial form, has decided to start their own class paper, which they call the "Bullet" in—straight to the point. The staff, comprising most of the small form, is bringing out the first issue on Monday and hope to bring out one a month. The best articles, etc. of the term will be enclosed in a year book, which will be carefully preserved as a class record.

Friday, Nov. 1, a tea dance was held and for the first time in ages an orchestra supplied the music. It was a grand orchestra and we soon realized that it was composed mainly of senior grade musicians who have been practising in the auditorium surreptitiously for weeks but we congratulate them, especially for the splendid rendition of our school songs toward the end! It was a grand dance and everyone went home happy. The inspectors are making their first inspection of the school this term. The editorial staff of the Elevator is practically complete now and is as follows: Consulting Editor, Mr. Jury; Editor-in-Chief, Phyllis Barlow; Literary Editor, Joan Bennett; Photography Editor, Katherine Winter; Assistant Editor, Jack Stocks; Humour Editor, Margaret Coulby.

Inspectors Miss McKim and Mr. Beatty were with us this week and they commended our war effort in every way. The school play is to occur Thursday and Friday nights, Nov. 21 and 22, so we were informed by the "hero" — Ralph Atyeo, in a breezy speech in assembly last Wednesday morning. He galloped onto the stage and leaning confidentially over the stand, said, we quote: "Mr. MacLaurin, members of the staff and fellow students"—gosh I'm glad when that formality is over with—"I want to tell you about the school play which is to take place soon— (Here our speaker stopped for breath and went on.) We were then given a very vivid account of the difficulties into which the play's hero manages to get—all in all we surmise that it will be the funniest and most worthwhile play that the Green Room Club has put on for a long time. I wouldn't miss it for worlds.

Last Tuesday after four we happened into the girls' gym and found a volleyball game in progress between the Spitfires and Bombardeers, two teams among which there seemed to be a great deal of rivalry for the honour of winning. The Spitfires triumphed with a score about 36 to 18. It was a swell game. We're beginning to get accustomed to our tenth period for war work and it goes along quite smoothly.

I forgot to mention before, that every other Friday afternoon those who wish to take period of musical appreciation in the auditorium. This course comes by radio and deals with tones, sounds, pitch, etc. of musical instruments. It is very interesting and is enjoyed by the vast number of music lovers in the school—and so till next week.

House of Commons Sat in Another Place on Thursday

New York, Nov. 8.—(CP)—Vernon Barlett, Member of the British Parliament, disclosed in a British Broadcasting Corporation broadcast heard here by the Columbia Broadcasting Company, that the House of Commons sat Thursday in a place other than the House of Parliament.

Bartlett's broadcast said:

"As an experiment and as a precaution against increased bombing, the House of Commons today met in what I can only call another place.

"That great and famous building, the House of Parliament by the Thames, is a very conspicuous target, and it might get knocked about. So we tried an alternative building. . . .

"In this, I think and hope it's going to be very difficult, indeed, for Hitler or any other German to drive the Mother of Parliament in exile".
